The Old Testament prophets for centuries had predicted the time when a kingdom of righteousness, of peace and of justice, would be established on the earth. When John the Baptist opened his ministry he emphasized the fact that the kingdom of heaven was at hand. By this the Jews understood that the kingdom foretold by the prophet was about to be introduced, which meant that Satan would be overthrown and God's rule established on earth. They expected that He would establish it through them, His chosen people. Not only the Jews, but Christians as well, have the right to expect the coming of such a day. The very character of Christ assures it, as unless it comes it will mean that Satan will be triumphant, as no one can claim that that Christ's will is being done on earth to-day as it is in heaven.

ESTABLISH A KINGDOM.

In the opening of His ministry, Christ offered to establish this Kingdom, but He soon found that the Jews were not ready to accept Him as their King. In time He changed the theme of His message to them, and began to foretell His death as a sacrifice for sin, to announce a judgment on them as a race, their dispersion, His own final return, and the establishment of the Kingdom at some future date. This doctrine of His final return has a place in the creed of every large evangelical church. Of course in time men began to put off the time of His second coming to the end of the world and the final judgment, and thus it has lost its importance in the minds of many Christians.

Growing out of His prophecy of future events, the disciples wanted to know what would be the signs that would herald the great events that He told them would take place in connection with His return. These were the questions they asked as described in the 24th chapter of Matthew, and His reply thereto—runs through the rest of that chapter and the 25th chapter as well.

The first sign spoken of was a national one. It included the destruction of the great temple of which they were so proud. He then, in His forview of the events that were to come, looked down through the age, and besides describing the events of the immediate future gave a general panoramic view of conditions throughout the present age until His return. The view He gave of future events included not only those of the immediate future but those of the distant future as well. Thus, the first event described, included the destruction of the temple and the dispersion of the Jews as a nation.

A SECOND SIGN.

A second sign He gave was that the age that was coming was to be characterized by wars, as described in the 6th and 7th verses of the chapter, and famines and pestilences and earthquakes. The fact that any or all of these events are taking place is not necessarily a sign of his immediate return, for these things have happened throughout the centuries that have elapsed since His ascension. It is implied, however, that these would increase in intensity and frequency as the time for is return drew near, and this has been happening of late years.

The third sign is given in the 12th verse and might be called a religious sign. He predicted that the faith and love of many would grow cold. It has happened in the past. During the dark centuries there was very little faith on the earth, and this condition was repeated in the 18th century in England. Therefore the prevalence of lack of faith and coldness alone do not necessarily mean the near return of the Lord. The apostles, however, have given further signs. The Apostle Paul in 2nd Timothy, the third chapter, said that in the last days, perilous times would come, and described the character of the men of those days, who he said, would have a form of godliness but deny the power thereof. In other words, they would have claim to be religious and observe religious forms but would lack the inward spiritual life of Christ. There would be much religious effort but little achievement. All the leading religious denominations of to-day, the speaker said, admit that this is a condition to-day. Churches to-day are making great efforts but these efforts do not bring corresponding results. The Apostle Peter in his second epistle, the third chapter, the third and fourth verses, said that in the last days there would be scoffers, who would deny that Christ was to return. In other words they would deny the supernatural in religion. It was hardly necessary, the speaker said, to point out that the whole trend of the scientific thought of our day, is to deny everything of the supernatural in religion. This tendency is not confined, merely to non-Christians, but is evident among Christians as well. The apostle, John, in 1 John 2:18-22 said that in the last time anti-Christ should come, who would deny that Jesus was the Christ. The religion of Christianity teaches that Christ came down from Heaven to save man from the results of his sins. The religion of man is the defiction of man. When that condition is apparent, then we have a sign that the three apostles agreed upon would be one of the signs of the coming of Christ. These signs are all evident to-day. Never before, in the world's history, was this condition as apparent as in these days.

SHOULD BE PREACHED.

A fourth sign given by Christ of His return, was contained in the fourteenth verse of the 24th chapter of Matthew, where he predicted that the gospel should be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations and then the end should come. No where was it predicted that the nations would all be converted. Instead, it was predicted that from among those who hear the gospel, there would be some who would believe and accept it. These would be gathered out from among the rest, and would form the body of Christ, or His church. If the conception that the whole world was to be converted by the preaching of the gospel, is correct is it not striking that after nineteen centuries have elapsed not all the persons in even one small community have been converted, to say nothing of whole nations. Christ instead indicated that the preaching of the gospel would create a cleavage, separating those who believe from those who refuse to accept Christ. It was only fair, however, that the message should be proclaimed to all nations and communities that they might have a chance to accept the message and that He might gather out from all people who would constitute the church which would compose the body of Christ. Never before in the history of the world, has the gospel been proclaimed to all nations and people to the extent that is the case to-day. Thus, one of the strongest signs of His early return has been fulfilled.

A JEWISH SIGN.

A fifth sign is what might be called a Jewish sign and is contained in verses 21 and 29. In these verses Christ speaks of the troubles that were to come upon the Jewish people and not necessarily of the even greater time of trouble that should come just at the close of the age. The signs He there gave have all been fulfilled upon the Jewish people, who a few decades later, were carried off as slaves by the nations that overthrew Jerusalem and who have been without a land or home of their own and hated by all people ever since. Elsewhere in the Scriptures, Christ gave as a sign of His return that Jerusalem should be trodden down by the Gentiles until the time of the Gentiles should be fulfilled. It is generally believed, that as a result of this war, the Jews are to return to Jerusalem, and Palastine be restored to them as a people. Immediately after such an event takes place, the advent of Christ to judge the nations may be expected.

In the 21st chapter of Luke, the 25th and 26th verses, Christ said that preceeding His return there would be distress of nations with perplexity, men's hearts failing them with fear and for looking after these things which were coming on the earth. The speaker asked if this did not draw a true picture of the feelings of thinking men to-day. Within a few weeks after the declaration of war by Germany, fourteen nations had issued similar declarations, and the distress on earth has been deepening ever since. We are approaching a condition when the whole world would be at war. This great civilization of which the world has been so proud with its features of education, culture, and progress, may not be able to withstand the outcome of events that have been brought about by man's efforts to have his own way on earth without paying due regard to the teachings of God. While it is true that the history of the centuries that have passed show that the men of the generation have been able to solve for the time being the problems of their generation, their very solutions have created even more difficult problems for the succeeding generation to struggle with until the time has come when the problems of to-day are baffling the most astute minds of the world. Slavery has been abolished but has been replaced by economic conditions that are enslaving the masses and leading to Socialism and general conditions which there is much to indicate that the nations will not be able to solve. As the first coming of Christ was surprising in its character, and not expected by the masses of the people, so we may expect that His second coming will be. Christians are told that they need not be disturbed by world conditions as the one Man who can solve the problems of the world stands waiting His time to do so. He may come in a manner we little expect, but His coming will mean the introduction of new and better conditions throughout the world.

THE FINAL SIGN.

As a sixth and the final sign touched on in his address, Mr. McNichol dealt with the parable of the ten virgins in the 25th chapter of Matthew. This parable he believed meant that because of the long absence of Christ people would forget the promise of His return and would be in a condition of sleep. Just as the virgins awoke in a period of darkness so the world is awakening at this time to Christ's promised return. There were centuries during which, the belief in Christ's advent had almost disappeared from the earth, but during the last four centuries it has been revived, and is being proclaimed to-day as never before. Many thoughtful Christians who believe in evolution and that the world was getting better have been led, as a result of this present war, to study the great prophecies of the Scriptures and to accept them. How wonderful it is to realize that Christ knew before hand all the things that were to come upon the earth. He has been allowing mankind to put forth their best efforts to establish th Kingdom of righteousness through man's own efforts. Christ has been patient and long suffering with mankind and with the injustice and sin on the earth, but he has promised to come and set things right. Practically all the signs He gave of His coming have been fulfilled to-day. When He comes a grand new era will dawn upon the earth.

SLACKERS CAN'T GO SEALING

Decision Made by Owners of Newfoundland Fleet.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 17. — The war spirit is again manifested in the decision of the owners of the sealing fleet that will set out in the middle of March to ship no slackers.

No unmarried man between the ages of 20 and 30 who has not offered his services to the country, unless he can establish that he remains at home to permit other members of his family to be at the front, will be given a coveted berth on the hunting trip that appeals so strongly to the adventuresome spirit of the Newfoundlander.

The sealing flotilla will be the smallest on record. It will consist of ten wooden ships of the old type.

OUR SPLENDID VINOL

Quickly Stopped Mr. Clark's Hang-on Cough.

We have seen right here in Peterborough such wonderful results from the use of Vinol in such cases, that we agree to return the money to anyone who tries it and does not get the same result Mr. Clark did. He says:—

"I used Vinol for a chronic cough and hard cold which it seemed impossible to get rid of. At nights I would cough violently so I couldn't sleep. I learned about Vinol through a friend who had used it at the house where I am living, and the result of its use in my case was that the hard cold was soon well and the chronic cough disappeared in very short order." F. J. Clark, 9 Pearl St., Amsterdam, N. Y.

It's the beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates contained in Vinol that makes it such a successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. Try it on our guarantee.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

INTERESTING LETTER FROM A PETERBOROUGH SOLDIER

Private Joseph McCoy of the 21st Battalion Describes a Raiding Party in Which a Number of Men Were Killed—Life at the Front

Mrs. Joseph McCoy, 565 Rogers street, East City, has received the following letter from her son, Private Joseph McCoy of the 21st Battalion:

France, Jan. 22, 1917.

Dear Mother,—Just a few lines to let you know I received your most welcome letter yesterday and was very pleased to hear from you again. I also got a letter from father the same night and was surprised the letters came so quick. I would like to tell you what part I am in, but you know that is impossible. I got all the parcels you sent me all right, but none from the Red Cross or Kitchener Club that was sent for Christmas, but I may get them yet. I know how glad you would be to have grandfather and all the folks for Christmas. I would give quite a bit to be there and see them again. Santa Claus was very kind to you all, too. I was sorry about the Quaker Oats disaster, but I came through a disaster the other day that the Quaker Oats could not be compared with for destruction, but thank God I came out of it. Our brigade went over the top at 7.45 a.m. and was back in a little more than half an hour with ninety-nine prisoners and one officer. It tickled me all to pieces to see those gray devils going down the trenches as they would meet any of our men. They would throw their hands in the air and yell mercy kamerad, and some of them were so frightened I felt sorry for them. Some of them carried our wounded on stretchers and some went out again in No Man's Land and brought in our wounded. They were so scared they would do anything. It was the nicest bit of fun I have had since I have been here. Billy Brown's brother was killed. He said good-bye before going over and two minutes after he was killed. Sergt. Levesting and Jack Spencer were killed that morning also. You know them, they were from Gooderham, and young Kellit from Haliburton was wounded, but not dangerously. Billie Webb is all right yet and George is at the base. He was well away out of it. I forgot to say we would have got more prisoners only a whole field company ran like blazes. I got a shoulder strap of one of their tunics for a souvenir, but the best souvenir I got was a whole head and body. I helped to take the wounded out to the dressing station most of the day and it was a pleasant job I don't think. The last one I helped was a Hun. I was sorry for him; the poor beggars don't want to fight. We are billeted out now for a training course and a rest, and I won't see any more of it for a while. It is quite cold in our billets, but we won't be here long as the doctor condemned them this morning. There is about two inches of snow on the ground and the people say this will last till about the middle of February. We got a new draft from the 155th and I know a lot of them, Leo Baptiste, Roy Graham, Bob Peever, young McCann from Bancroft, William Storms and big Henry Bird and his brother from Baptiste. They wanted some one to go and carry stretchers so I went and helped to carry wounded all day. It was the hottest place ever was in. I hear the fellows that took our place have captured another town and I hope it is true. I hear that old wing ridge is captured, but you will see that in the papers before now. I get all your bundles of papers all right. There is a chap here from Peterborough belonging to the sun section and every time he sees the bundle of papers he says, 'Here is more news from God's country.' He is only out three years from England when war broke out, but he thinks Peterborough is the nicest place on earth. Well now mother, I think I have done extra for this time, so good-bye and God bless you all.

Your ever loving son,
JOE.

Tanks In Action Shown in Scenes Of World Battle

Wonderful Films Create Favourable Impression in London

GREAT MONSTERS EAGERLY AWAITED

Will Appear in the Empire Theatre Next Thursday, Friday and Saturday

The new battle pictures showing the wonderful tanks in action have been exhibited for the first time in London, where they are arousing enthusiastic attention and Lord Northcliffe's London Daily Mail says:

At the Scala Theatre a packed and representative audience (including Mrs. Lloyd George, Lady Brade, and Miss Bonar Law) showed the universal impatience to behold the "tanks" in action. The theatre was besieged with late-comers, for whom there were no seats. Military and naval officers were as anxious as the civilian public to witness the great film; the crowd in the foyer of the theatre was all dappled with blue and khaki.

Breathless Drama.

Early in the drama—for the film of the Battle of the Ancre is a breathless drama from beginning to end—the first "tank" appeared, passing our troops in the early morning. A chorus of "Ah's" and then a great rattle of applause came from the audience. They were insatiable for the "tanks"; every time one of the monsters appeared the acclamation broke out. The "tanks" have satisfied human hunger for romance in the drab kalends of the greatest and yet dreariest of all wars.

It was interesting to walk round the back of the serried rows of seats and listen to public comment on the long-desired pictures of the battle monsters. Here was the novelty of a great cinema audience all talking animated, carried away by enthusiasm. For the "tanks" are more wonderful even than descriptions of them have conveyed; soon in brute onslaught they are more stirring to the imagination than mere shapes of antediluvian creatures; they are triumphs of human invention and mechanism.

Returning Unscathed.

The War Office gives generous inspection of them; they loom up on the screen a few yards in front of the British public; a crew "board" one of them and screw themselves—and their mascot cat—into its interior; it moves off into action; it crushes down barbed wire as a mastodon would crush down jungle grass; it noses barbetted guns, sniffing the enemy ahead; it rumbles off into the welter of the "No-man's Land" it returns, with that portentous steel hide unscathed, victorious, surrounded by cheering soldiers.

And every time a "tank" appeared the applause broke out anew. The "tanks" are indeed the masquerade scenes of this marvellous film, for they appear so invulnerable and serene that, with the joyous after-battle comedies of our conquering men, they provide the "light relief" of what else is so poignant a drama.

The management of the Empire has seen the films and guarantees them as the best war pictures ever shown in the city.

Trouble Over 109th Colours

Keeps a Staff of Officers Busy Looking After Them

LINDSAY, Feb. 17. — Unforseen trouble has arisen over the colours of the 109th Battalion, which were brought to Lindsay last week by Col. J. Ballantyne, O.C., of the 109th Battalion previous to its being broken up in England. As announced by Col. Ballantyne and the officials of the Cambridge street Methodist church, the colours were to be properly consecrated at a public service to be held on Sunday afternoon, and afterwards placed in a conspicuous position.

Colonel Ballantyne sought to have the colours placed in the Cambridge street church and thus carry out the wishes of the officers of the 109th Battalion. It is also understood that Lady Eaton has requested that they be placed in the Methodist church at Omemee. An officer from headquarters at Kingston is expected to take charge of the colours, which will be taken to Kingston.

In the meantime they are in the possession of Rev. Mr. Going who will hand them over to the staff officer on his arrival.

Just what disposition will be made of the colours will be known later on.

Convalescent Home For 200 Soldiers

MR. POWER, OF KINGSTON, IS LOOKING FOR SUITABLE SITE.

PORT HOPE, Feb. 17.—Mr. Power, architect, of Kingston, was in town yesterday looking for a suitable site for a convalescent home for two hundred wounded soldiers. Mayor Mulholland is showing Mr. Power about town and they do not expect any difficulty in securing a suitable building.

The recruit was not very robust, and during a trying route march had to fall out no fewer than five times. The sergeant got exasperated.

"You are in the wrong regiment," he shouted. "It's not this one you should be in at all."

The recruit looked puzzled.

"It's the flying corps you should then yer would only fall out once."

The Collapse of Quaker Oats Warehouse

The collapse of a flat-slab reinforced concrete building in the recent Quaker Oats fire at Peterborough, caused many engineers to question the fire-resisting qualities of that type of construction. The flat-slab type was first officially recognized in a building code by Chicago only as recently as 1914, so that, while it was claimed to be as fireproof as any other type of construction, the Peterborough fire caused some apprehension.

As thirteen flat-slab buildings (with a total permit value of $1,872,000) had been erected or started in Toronto during the past year, T. D. Mylrea, assistant city architect of Toronto, made a thorough investigation into the causes of the Peterborough collapse.

Mr. Mylrea found that it would be easier to explain why the Quaker Oats warehouse fell than why the Edison building stood. Evidence showed that temperatures of over 2,000o F. had penetrated two inches of concrete, and that the working strength of the steel had been reduced by about 80 per cent. "In the columns this would not be of such grave importance as in the floor slabs," says Mr. Mylrea, "but it is probable that the floors failed first and carried the columns with them. It is possible that the depth of the beams and girders and the short spans of the floor slabs in the Edison buildings offered a more effective resistance to collapse, even were the working strengths temporarily reduced."

Mr. Mylrea concludes that it would be incorrect to demand excessive fireproofing simply because one building collapsed under unusual fire conditions. "If a fire is of sufficient intensity and duration to heat a nine-inch floor slab through," he says, "it is evident that even four and one-half inches of fireproofing would have availed nothing. The wiser course would be to have just such an amount of fireproofing as would prevent the steel from being overheated in an ordinary blaze."

The newspaper reports of the fire and the views of the insurance companies' engineers and inspectors confirm Mr. Mylrea's opinion that the Peterborough fire was unusually severe, so there would seem to be no reason for considering it a sign of any deficiency in the flat-slab type of construction.—Canadian Engineer.

Tales From The Birdmen

(BY CANADIAN OVERSEAS)

(From Capt. Bolcke, the Fokker airman, who has brought down 26 aeroplanes. This is from an interview with New York World correspondent.)

"My 20th victim was Capt. Wilson, of the Br. Royal Flying Corps, attached to a division station near Poziers. Wilson was flying over the German lines when I rose to meet him. I not only contrived to outguess him by divining his intentions, but was also lucky enough to manoeuvre and outshoot him. The Englishman dropped to the ground safely landing with a broken propeller, while I came down in his immediate proximity.

As Wilson surrendered he asked for the name of his captor. "Bolcke," I replied. The chagrin and humiliation of defeat and capture disappeared for a moment, as the Englishman put out his hand. As I shook it my prisoner said, "If I had to be shot down, I'm pleased that it should have been by so good a man."

Wilson was sent back to Cambrai and the next day I invited him to lunch at the officer's mess. That night he was sent to a German prison camp.

Only two of the twenty airmen I have fought, unfortunately lived after the fight. They all fought so well I was sorry luck was against them. I think most of the 18 were killed by bullets from my machine, or died in the fall, a few meeting death in smashing on the ground. One Englishman, Wilson, and one French officer, remained alive, the others died for their countries.

As to the comparative merits of the English and French flyers, I have noticed no great difference. Both are courageous and skilful, with perhaps a distinction to be observed in the spirit animating them, the Englishnever lacking the inexplicable spirit of sport, while the French take it fatalistically with the grimmest earnestness. Flying to us is a duty, not a sport, as most Englishmen take it to our bewilderment.

The London papers have credited me with saying, I used to live in America where I was a lift boy and got my flying experience in that way. I was never in America, and never happened to be a lift boy. I lived in Dresseu, did some flying just a few months before war began, liked the work and when it broke out went into the flying service.

I was first an observer, later a pilot and was gifted because of my steady eye and sure nerves, into the fighting detachment, in which division I do nothing but fight off the enemy aeroplanes scouting over the lines, or go to the relief of my own people attacked on observation duty. I always fly alone. There is an observer's seat in the machine, but he never fills it. In fact most of the German fighting flyers fly alone to minimize the risk, and by engaging the enemy give the observation machine a chance to get back with their information.

Of late, circumstances changed and we fly everywhere. Obviously it is always the best tactics to bring down your man behind your own lines so he can be made a prisoner if alive, and his machine kept from the enemy for repairs. But each follow a fight through now, no matter where it takes us.

I use no special formula except to try to get my man before he gets me. Almost all the fighting aeroplanes are similarly rigged, with a machine gun fixed in front of the pilot. I have had five machines smashed from under me, but always vol-planed to earth successfully. My favourite machine has the lines of a bird. Even close to hand it looks tiny, being much smaller than the English or French ones.

On the day following my 20th prize two of my companions were killed trying to stop an English raiding party of eight aeroplanes that flew over the German lines bombarding railway stations. The fight was at 5.30 in the afternoon and showed the courage of the German flyers in taking on such a superior force."

Submarines And United States

Now that Germany has thrown overboard the pledges which she gave to the United States after the sinking of the "Suffolk," and has cast all considerations of humanity to the winds, the United States has been brought as close to the possibility of a war with Germany as the eyelid is to the eyeball. It seems to be generally assumed that if, as the outcome of Germany's submarine policy, there should be a war between the two countries, it would be ushered in by some formal declaration of war. By the U. S. that probably would be; but we are fully convinced that the only declaration of war by Germany would be by a sudden appearance of her submarine in U. S. harbours and a savage attack upon U. S. naval and merchant ships. In other words there would be a repetition, on a larger and more frightful scale, of the torpedo attack on Port Arthur with which Japan commenced her hostilities against Russia. The ships lost by Russia by that surprise attack, so weakened her that Japan at once obtained command of the sea.

It is pretty safe to say that the docks, harbours, naval stations, and even the entrance to the Panama Canal, at the present time, have no adequate protection against submarines. At the present time it is doubtful if there is even a single yard of netting in the United States which has proven so wonderfully effective for the allies' fleets. Why have the German submarines so absolutely unsuccessful in all their efforts to reach the British fleet when in its harbours during the intervals that it is not scouring the North Sea? What would they not give to get in among those mighty ships that are to-day throttling the very life out of Germany? The answer is the vast system of heavy chain nets guarding every rest harbour and making a safe lane from England to France. The U. S. should profit by our experiences and be prepared.

The Hardware And Metal Market

Thirty-one towns served by the Grand Trunk Railway in Ontario are shut off entirely for freight shipments, through the operation of the embargo to points east of Toronto. In these towns there is service by only the one railway. The freight situation continues to be a perplexing one to wholesalers and merchants. Wrought pipe has advanced $4 per ton during the week and spades and shovels have been increased in price. White lead in oil, putty and linseed oil have all been increased in price. Other lines that have advanced include tarred and dry building paper, carpet felt, lamp chimneys and lantern globes, whisks and toy brooms, table cutlery, skinning knives, butcher knives, expansive bits, posthole augers, cross-cut saws, claw hatchets, lath hatchets, puts cream, ash sifters, rat and mouse traps, lamp wicks, heater wicks, repair parts for oil stoves, ovens and heaters. In spite of the handicaps, business has been fairly good during the week.—"Hardware and Metal."

IMPRESSIVE ADDRESSES AT BIG SUNDAY RALLY

came. He was glad to be in Peterborough, but was not glad to see so many young men walking the streets who would not go to the front. After the reputation and sacrifice made by Col. Ackerman, his brother, Heber Rogers and other Peterborough boys he did not see how the others could keep out of the fight.

Here Major Hodge told how at Salisbury he had given permission to pick the best of all the men for his machine gun section and among others had chosen Heber Rogers. His judgment was vindicated, when, months later, he watched Heber Rogers with his face all lacerated and an e-- half blown away, remain at his machine gun, peppering and pestering the Germans, and covering the retreat of the Canadians. He stayed at his gun, saving the lives of many a Peterborough boy, until it was absolutely impossible for him to escape capture. Col. Ackerman and Major O'Flynn both played the game like men at the front. "If I had to go to the front to-night," said Major Hodge, "I tell you honestly I would sooner go under these two men than any officers in Ontario." To those who gave as their excuse that they wanted to join machine gun sections or anything of that sort, Major Hodge promised that they would not be refused this request. If they held back giving that for a reason it was nothing more than a lame excuse.

In England it was one of the biggest disgraces for a young girl to be seen walking around wit ha man in civilian clothes. It is about time that this was true to Canada. "If I were a girl," said the Major, "I would sooner go out West and marry a Doukabour than become the wife of any young man who is scared to put on the uniform and go to the front." He assured the young men that if they thought they were "going over to France to starve to death" they were greatly mistaken. The "eats" were good and there was plenty of them. The last time he was at the front for three months and only three days passed without fresh meat and vegetables."

He concluded with an appeal. The girls must give these young fellows up. Older people must refuse to patronize them in the stores. What the women of England and of France were doing, that must be undertaken by the women of Canada.

TURN RULE.

Chancellor McCrimmon.

"I would like to speak on this matter," said Chancellor McCrimmon, "from active experience at the front. I would rather have the Military Cross of our friend, Major Hodge, than hold the Chancellorship of the McMaster University. I would rather have been in the ranks of that wonderful regiment, the Princess Pats, or any corps like them, than be a lecturer in any university in the world." We must win this fight. That is the first duty of the Christian citizenship of this Empire and of this Dominion. Everything else must take a secondary place. The war must come first. It means a great deal to recognize what kind of trouble we are in. He was reminded in this city, of Lord Nelson, because of the streamer across the main street, "Peterborough expects every man to do his duty." And why shouldn't every man do his duty. Why shouldn't every man face the situation? We must realize the great and awful time in which we are alive. We must see that the life and liberty of the Empire is at stake. Men have come out from the love of the savage. They have emerged from the fetters of tribal bands. They have escaped from political Cæsarism and ecclesiastical despotism, but always their progress has been impeded by those who would be force wrench from the human heart its independence, and appropriate the liberty and freedom of the human soul.

We must not think that victory can be achieved unless we do our part. Germany went into this war with the best army in the history of the world, with their troops equipped right up to the minute, and the whole country fired with the ambition to rule the world. It means a great deal to recognize the character of the foe with which we have to do. Look at the great figures of Prussia (for Prussia has put Germany in her pocket.) Germany has been forced to the front by great forces within her, but now she has turned aside from the teaching of Schiller and Goethe and Beethoven. Bismark knit the German kingdoms together and Prussia's ambition developed from a determination to sit astride the German states, to a greater one—that ambition to dominate Europe. And now the Kaiser goes still farther. Gradually has been evolved this world ambition so that he would sit astride mankind and dictate what you and I shall say, and what you and I shall do and think.

A Recent Attempt.

This was the first recent attempt of this kind. What was it stopped Phillip II, and Louis XIV, and the Dutch and the French under Napoleon? It was the British fleet, and that is what has stopped the Kaiser. That fleet which comes out into the limelight and then disappears again. That fleet which for years has kept the second naval power in the world bottled up and helpless in the Kiel canal. That is the guardian and the bulwark of British liberty and the independence of mankind up to the present time. Not a vessel leaves a port in the world without the consent of Britain, and yet she holds her power with such a nice balance that none have felt compulsion in her dominions. Britain has set to work and set beside her navy an army which the Kaiser no longer dares to call contemptible. That is the fore, and that is the bulwark that we have.

The foreign policy of this world power, from the time of its inception right up until this day has been an immortal policy. Frederick the Great said that in his foreign affairs he did not stop to consider what was right and what was wrong, but only what was expedient. Bismark said, "I do not like to tell a lie, but very often it is necessary." Bismark forged the name of his Emperor to the telegram that caused the Franco-Prussian war, and Von Moltke said, "If I can only lead this army into France the Devil can come and get this old carcass of mine any time." The placing of the responsibility for this war has often been discussed. At any rate it is certain that only one power in the world was ready for war, and that was Germany. Austria delivered an ultimatum to Serbia that no free country could accept. The German Chancellor himself said, "France does not want war." Russia agreed to demobilize if the matter of dispute could be referred to a convention of the nations. Lord Gray was working day and night for peace, and even Austria was opening negotiations that would have led to a peaceable settlement, when Germany said to Britain, "You do what you can with Russia and we'll do our best with Austria to retain peace." On the very same day that she sent that lying message, Germany sent an impossible ultimatum to Russia, "If you don't demobilize within twenty-four hours we will declare war."

A Stirring Appeal.

Germany was fighting that there should be no right or wrong in international affairs. Their conduct has been outrageous, barbaric and immoral through and through. "Do you realize that to us there comes a stirring appeal to your manhood and your womanhood. There are worse things men, after all, in this life of ours than death." It may be the last one hundred thousand that will win this war. How I would hate to have my boy go down to death and the cause for which he died fail because you will not take it up." If we by this war could only bring home to the German people that they should rule themselves, that they should get into the saddle as it were, it would be a great service to mankind.

It was interesting to contrast the statements of British and German officials at the outbreak of the war. The British statesmen to a man declared they were forced into the fight to defend justice, independence, righteousness and freedom. But from Germany comes their pronouncement and admission of guilt. "We are in a state of necessity and necessity knows no law. The wrong we have committed we shall endeavour to make good as soon as our military goal is reached." When we think of that terrible Chant of Hate, we think of Goethe's words, "The hatred of a race is a peculiar thing and burns most violently where there is the most barbarism." That is the judgment we bring upon Germany to-day.

STREET OPINION FAVOURS TRANSFER OF HEALTH QUESTION TO BOARD OF HEALTH

Although the Property Committee of the Council declined to transfer to the Board of Health all questions concerning public health, the prevailing opinion on the street seems to be unanimous that the proposed change would be a step in the right direction. It is admitted that Chairman Saunders was moved by a right and proper principle when he refused to permit the passing from the Council's control of the particular problem of the collection of night-soil, but offsetting that consideration was the reassuring condition that the Board of on the City Council, and the entire Health has a majority of its members Board is appointed by the Council. Hence any reluctance to make the transfer is overcome by this fact that the Council does not lose control of this particular work. It is accepted on the street that all questions pertaining to public health should come directly under the administration of the Board of Health.

The Medical Health Officer and the Sanitary Inspector are always present at the meetings of the Board and they are expected to apply to health questions a professional knowledge that is not the usual possession of the Aldermen. Another point that appeals to the man on the street is the probability that the Board of Health would take a more independent and a fresher attitude of a problem that has wearied the Property Committee.

Probably the members of the Committee have been commended for their action, by citizens with whom they have spoken. The impression on the street, however, recognises the attitude of the Committee, but there would have been no adverse criticism had they decided to permit the concentration of public health matters by unloading them onto the Board of Health. There is no question of the Committee being unable to handle these questions, but there is a feeling that possible over-lapping of effort might be prevented, and that some of the work might be handled to better advantage by the Board of Health.

DISSEMBLING HER LOVE SHE GETS MAN OF HER CHOICE

Having defeated all attempts of her mother to stop her marriage, pretty eighteen-year-old Elsie Marguerite Corbett, daughter of Mrs. Grace Corbett of No. 2779 Berford Avenue, Brooklyn, is to-day the bride of Peter Lloyd Langler, nineteen years old, of No. 1079 Garfield Place Brooklyn.

The girl, to placate her mother, pretended she was about to marry another man, Walter Vaughn, and last Saturday announced she was going to dine with the alleged fiancee at the Biltmore. When she failed to return the mother discovered that Langler and his auto were also missing from his home, and a chase began which ended in failure at Red Bank N. J.

When the mother of the girl returned home she found a telegram stating that the coupel were married. The bride's sister, Mrs. Holmes Holter, eloped in a similar manner three years ago.

It is said Mrs. Corbett will try to have the marriage annulled.

DETROIT MAYOR'S THREAT.

Will Seize Coal Held for Unreasonable Price.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 17.— To relieve a threatened fuel famine here, Mayor Marx, in a statement to the public, announced that if any dealer who had coal on public teaming tracks anywhere in the city refused to deliver it from the cars to the consumer at a "reasonable price" the city would confiscate the coal and deliver it to citizens in need. His statement was given out after a conference with representatives of all railroads entering the city. The railroads promised, the Mayor said, to place the coal on the teaming tracks and have it accessible for hauling Monday.

The Canadian Army in Action and the Advance of the Tanks

THE Official Moving Pictures of the Battle Of Courcelette and Preliminary Operations, Sept. 15-16, as Issued to the People of Canada by the Canadian War Records Office, in Common Tribute to Those of Her Sons Who Fought to Victory and to Those Who Died Victorious, and to be a Living Record in the National Achieves of Canada For All Time.

ON September 15 and 16, 1916, was fought "the Battle of Courcelette," somewhere in France in the region of the Somme.

What signifies the Battle of Courcelette?

The correspondents said something about it—a little—not much. They suggested a great deal more than they said. General Haig praised the soldiers who took part.

What was the significance of Courcelette?

The Battle of Courcelette was part of a larger operation, called the Battle of the Ancre, when Martinpuich, Belmont Hamel, Flers and other villages were taken as well as Courcelette. The Battle of the Ancre, itself a big engagement, even in this war of wars, was but an incident in the Battle of the Somme, which has been raging since the preliminary bombardment last June. The Battle of the Somme again is but a "movement," an emphatic passage in a struggle 300 miles long, stretching across the face of France from the North Sea to Switzerland.

Then, what signifies Courcelette?

Courcelette is a point on the western front. The western front is the chiefest bulwark of civilization at the present time—a 300-mile section of a battle line which encircles Central Europe from the Baltic to the Mediterranean, from Gibraltar to Mesopotamia, and a war that envolves, directly or indirectly, the whole wide world entire.

But what of Courcelette? Was there a great victory there? Does the campaign hinge on the results of that victory? Was there greater than usual bloodshed there? Were the casualties unusually heavy? What is the significance of Courcelette?

COURCELETTE? Yes, it was a glorious victory, there at Courcelette, September 15-16. That victory fulfilled its part in the scheme of the general staff, and great results turn upon every detail in a great campaign. More ground was gained on the days Courcelette and Martinpuich were taken than in any other single operation of the entire previous period of the Somme offensive. There were many casualties in the taking of Courcelette, how many has not been officially disclosed. But they were comparatively light, it is said, in comparison with those of the enemy.

Is this, then, all that distinguishes this battle of Courcelette from other big battles in this, the greatest of all wars?

No, there is something else.

The heart and soul of all Canada lies "somewhere in France." And on September 15-16 last, "somewhere in France" meant Courcelette. It was there that the Canadians were fighting. Canada learned that fact in tears and in exultation from the casualty lists. Not till then, when the name of the killed and wounded on the Somme front, September 15, were published, did the Canadian people know that the Canadian troops had been moved from the Ypres salient to the Somme. The Battle of Courcelette was a Canadian battle all the way. They won it. Many Canadians laid down their lives there. It was a Canadian action, a Canadian achievement, a Canadian victory, and for the people of Canada Courcelette became the heart-centre to the whole world-cataclysm.

AND now comes Canada's first war film. The people of Canada will have a record of the Battle of Courcelette, a permanent historic record. At the request of the Canadian Minister of Militia, at that time, General Sir Sam Hughes, a moving picture was taken of the action by an official cinematograph operator of the British army. This film is crawling over the shell-smashed surface of the earth, crashing through obstructions, bridging shell holes and trenches, facing the hail of machine gun and rifle bullets, spitting death into the German trenches and driving the terrified German soldiers before them in demoralized mobs—this was a new thing in war, and added terror for which there is yet no answer or defense.

The first official film of the Canadians in action shows these monstrous tanks at work. All the world has heard and wondered. Peterborough will now have an opportunity to see what manner of thing is the Tank.

Beginning February 22, the official film of the Battle of Courcelette showing the Canadian Army in Action and the Advance of Tanks—the first picture—will be presented at the Empire Theatre, Transcending in world-wide interest any war film yet exhibited, this picture is the first official production of the Canadian War Records Office, the first showing of our own soldiers actually engaged in battle. These are the men who are striving and dying for you. And this is the first showing of Britain's new engines of victory, the tanks. This film is your national record of these heroic days.

Memorial Window Unveiled In Trinity Methodist Church

Interesting Service on Sunday Morning Was Largely Attended ---Address by Rev. R. G. Peever---A Tribute to the Service Rendered by the Late Rev. T. J. Mansell and Mrs. Mansell.

Earnest, unfaring, willing and successful was the service rendered to the Charlotte street church by the late Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Mansell, and now, bearing testimony to their great work, a beautiful memorial window stands in the Trinity church—an appropriate reminder of the beautiful lives of a Christian gentlewoman and gentleman. The window is a splendid work of art, representing Christ as the Good Shepherd caring for his flock with a deep interest and sympathy. One of the most interesting features with regard to the memorial window is that it has been accepted as a gift from two sons of the parents in whose memory it has been placed in the church, an exemplification of the commandment, "Honour thy father and thy mother; that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee." The appropriate gift, by Messrs. Charles and Dow Mansell, in loving memory of their worthy parents, adds not only a beautiful ornament to the already attractive Trinity church, but is an encouragement and example in the practical testimony from the sons of the love and respect which their hearts hold for their departed parents.

Sunday Morning Service.

At yesterday morning's service, the window, which is a reproduction of Plokhorst's famous painting, "The Good Shepherd" was unveiled, and formally accepted by the congregation among whom the late Rev. and Mrs. Mansell were so genuinely and deeply loved, for themselves and all succeeding congregations of the church.

On behalf of the officials of the church, Mr. R. F. Dowey announced that on Saturday a telegram had been received from Mr. C. A. Mansell, expressing the regret of himself and his brother at their inability to be present at the service. Mr. Downey said that some months ago the two Mansell sons had asked the privilege of giving a memorial window, and the Board had gratefully accepted. "Now," said the speaker, "I accept the window on behalf of the members, worshippers and adherers of this church. No doubt it will be my duty in the near future as recording steward, to send a suitable acknowledgment on their behalf." The late Rev. and Mrs. Mansell really did not need a memorial window to keep thoughts of them ever alive. Their memories would always live in the hearts and minds of this congregation. The Rev. Mr. Mansell was indeed a Good Shepherd.

The congregation rose, and remained with heads bowed in reverence as the window was accepted in the following words: "In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, we the congregation of the Trinity Methodist church accept this memorial window."

Rev. R. G. Peever.

The Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of the George street Methodist church, and a warm friend of the deceased pastor, was present at the service, and after the unveiling of the window, addressed the congregation. "I appreciate very deeply the privilege of being with you this morning. I appreciate the kindly invitation of this people extended to me through your pastor," he said. "To be present and speak at the unveiling of this beautiful memorial window in memory of the Rev. and Mrs. Mansell and a gift of their sons. This service to me is sacramental."

This church, to him had always been, and would always be, a memorial church reminding all not only of the co-operation of the congregation and its present pastor, but particularly the wish, the thought and the dream of Mr. Mansell. With reference to this, Mr. Peever referred his audience to the 7th verse of the 22nd chapter of 1st Chronicles, which reads, "And David said unto Solomon, my son as for me it was in my mind to build an house unto the name of the Lord my God."

Trinity Church.

Those words recurred to him when the thought of this splendid church, erected by the co-operation of the congregation and its pastor, as expressing the desire of Mr. Mansell's heart. Mr. Peever met Mr. Mansell several years ago, after some years of separation, and after the latter had decided to come to the George street church. Mr. Mansell was eager and enthusiastic in describing this city, its church life and particularly his plans for "this very house of God." He told of his hopes and visions. He had been preparing and planning; he had been dreaming a dream. "This I say that this church must always stand a memorial to the memory of the Rev. Mr. Mansell, who for so many years graced the ministry of the Methodist church, and who went so suddenly to the Church Triumphant—the church of the First Born."

Then when it was remembered that this memorial window was a gift from loving sons, both of whom are giving their entire service to God, one's thoughts were taken to the 21st verse of the 15th chapter of Mark, which reads, "And they compel one Simon, a Cyrenian, who passed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his cross." It had been said that of all the hundreds of kindnesses performed to Jesus, the forced kindness of Simon was the greatest performed by any mortal to our Saviour, next to the mother who gave him birth. When he was exhausted and condemned Simon bore these two instruments of execution and disgrace upon his broad shoulders and relieved the tension of our Master in the hour of agony.

A Significant Fact.

It was a significant fact that no act of kindness towards Christ ever went unrewarded. What then was the reward of Simon? We have it expressed in the words, 'Simon, a Cyrenian, the father of Rufus and Alexander." Although Simon's service was a forced service, yet Jesus read into his heart and saw his real feeling. In reward he touched the heart of his two sons Alexander and Rufus. No cup of cold water given in His name, but what has its reward.

What would be the fruitage of the sons who have thus, to-day, remembered their parents? Certain it was that their father had reaped the great reward in the conversion of his boys, and their adoption into the Church of Christ as worthy examples of the religion which their father and mother lived and served and taught and preached. He had reaped as his great reward the conservation of their lives.

"My desire, too," said Mr. Peever, "is that these boys to-day receive the richest blessing of God. My desire is that continuously in this church the members shall stand as worshippers and receive a broader outlook, and a wider vision; that they may stand before the altar of God and see his plans and purposes and regard his visions unto the end."

Rev. Mr. Wilson.

It was a great source of pleasure to Mr. Wilson, pastor Trinity church, to reflect that this memorial window has been placed by two sons in memory of their father and mother. And just as the church had been a dream of the Rev. Mr. Mansell, it had been a dream to a great many of the congregation for a good many years. The memorial window was not only a decoration but should be an education. For the influence of art on religion was proved in the fact that the paintings of eminent masters had ushered in the reformation. The Christ had been painted with such love, strength, divinity and humanity, that the Saviour of the Middle Ages was really divine. It brought back the real Christ; the human Christ—the Christ of God.

On one side was the memorial window representing Christ in the act of receiving and blessing little children, a constant reminder that there is nothing more precious than child life. On the other side of the church was the new window depicting Christ as the Good Shepherd, and ever keeping in our memories his attitude to all people. Christ did not come as a prince as did Budda, nor as a philosopher like Confucius, nor yet as a soldier like Mohammed. We were all his creatures—his by right of creation, and of redemption.

Referring to the thought in the minds of the doners of the memorial window, Rev. Mr. Wilson said, 'May God bless them in their devotion to their father and mother."

Addresses Given To Retiring Superintendents Of Trinity Church

On Sunday afternoon in Trinity Church Sunday School, illuminated addresses were presented to Mr. R. J. Kidd and Dr. M. A. Morrison, retiring superintendent and assistant superintendent, respectively. Although the addresses were read at Christmas in the Sunday School, the illumination and framing was not completed until recently. The former was ably executed by Mr. Kennett of the Trent Canal Office. It is a splendid specimen of the engraver's art.

Mr. Kidd and Dr. Morrison were associated as superintendent and assistant superintendent of the Sunday School for about twenty-five years. During that time the Sunday School expanded and became one of the best in the Conference. Despite the loss of on hundred scholars following the opening of St. James' church the membership now numbers about four hundred. Although Mr. Kidd and Dr. Morrison are both busy men they gave freely of their time and service and well earned the rest which their retirement permits. The service they have rendered to the church and community for the past twenty-five years, although less spectacular than the service rendered by statesmen and others at the head of the country's affairs, it is none the less important to the nation. Only those who have occupied similar positions can realise the sacrifice involved in such a steady devotion to duty.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of the 15th inst., I observe that the City Railway Committee is considering Street Railway extension to be submitted to the Hydro engineers. Why not take into consideration the extension to Lakefield?

There is a fully equipped power station at No. 3 Lock, which is, and has been for some years, idle, with, apparently, no prospect of its being utilized by the owners and, consequently, might be expropriated at low cost. The genius who framed the present G. T. R. Peterborough-Lakefield timetable evidently does not consider the Lakefield (and surrounding country) passenger traffic worth having. At any rate he has taken very effectual means of stopping it.

Yours truly,

"X."

Deutschland Now In British Hands, Says An American

Yankee Ship Engineer Brings Story of Success Against Undersea Raiders.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 19.—That the merchant submarine Deutschland has been captured, and that he saw her in Plymouth harbour with 186 other German submarines, was the statement made here by Wm. Palmer, second engineer of the American transport liner Mongolia. Palmer said that the British had captured 400 enemy submarines, and that 187 of them were in Plymouth chained together and in the centre of a huge network of chains attached to buoys and wharves.

Captain Koenig, commander of the sub-sea freighter, and is crew, are in English jails, said Palmer.

The Mongolia left Plymouth January 27, and arrived at New York, February 7. Palmer was formerly an engineer here with the Chesapeake S.S. Company.

Photographs of the Deutschland wrapped with the chains which held her to others in the harbour were on exhibition, Palmer continued, and it was generally known in shipping circles that the freighter has been captured.

Where Captain Koenig and his crew were detained he did not know, but said all were put in jail as soon as the vessel was brought to port. He did not learn how the Deutschland was captured.

What the Lindsay Post Says of the Turning Point

To Be Presented at the Opera House To-morrow Night

The Turning Point, a musical comedy, presented in Lindsay recently, under the auspices of the Kawartha-Rebecca Sewers, evidently gave entire satisfaction on that occasion. The following is taken from the Post of February 2nd:

The Turning Point, the musical comedy drama under the auspices of Kawartha Rebecca Sewers for the benefit of war relief work, had a most gratifying success last evening when presented at the Academy of Music by local talent, under the direction of Mr. G. L. Neville.

Although but a brief two weeks has been utilized for the preparation of the production, the whole cast showed remarkable finish, which the crowded house constantly critised over, and bent their attention upon the screen in a manner rarely seen before.

The Peter Robinson Chapter Daughters of the Empire are giving the same play with local talent in the Opera House to-morro night.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

CAN THE SOLDIERS OVERCOME THE LEAD?

Start To-morrow Night's Third Round Game With Oshawa With Four Goal Handicap—Game Promises to Be the Most Exciting Struggle of the Year.

Can the Soldiers pull down the four-goal lead and win the round from Oshawa to-morrow night? That is the big question that has been agitating local fans ever since Friday night, and the biggest crowd in years will be at the Brock Street Arena to see the answer to the problem worked out on the ice. The 247th were miles away from their true form on Friday—they lacked everything, even to speed, and looked like a very ordinary team. The result was that Oshawa won a clean-cut victory.

To-morrow night should show a different story if the soldier boys come back to form. The ice will be good and the 247th are a fast-scoring team to whom four goals do not matter very much if they get started finding the nets. They will be out to work from the drop of the hat, and Oshawa will find the Soldier gang a very different outfit from the one they encountered the other night. It will be a great battle and should be the season's be stoffering.

Oshawa will probably have the same line-up as on Friday, while there will be one change in the Peterborough team. Harry Thornton will be out of the game with a sprained wrist and Pat Flanagan will drop back to the defence, while his brother will fill the gap on the forward line, going to left wing, and Evans moving over to rover.

Oscar Bernhardt of Bradford will referee the game which will start at 8.15 o'clock sharp.

AL. H. WILSON—The Great Dialect Comedian and Singer, who comes to Peterborough for the first time next Saturday, February 24, for two performances in "My Killarney Rose."

BUSIEST CURLING WEEK OF THE SEASON OPENS UP TO-NIGHT

The busiest week of curling this season gets under way to-night, when four rinks from Orillia and three from Bobcaygeon play the return game for the Neill-Sheppard trophy and the Fitzgerald-Bottum shield. Peterborough is down 8 in the first series and up seven with 'Cayeon. The Skips for the Orillia games are Lang, Waddell, Campbell and Kay and for Bobcaygeon Sam Ray, W. G. Ferguson, and R. G. Sturgeon. The entire seven ices will be occupied.

OPEN BONSPIEL TO-MORROW

The open bonspiel begins to-morrow afternoon at one o'clock with every prospect of repeating the success of the past two years. Outside clubs are expected to be largely represented, including Orillia, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon, Lakefield, Norwood, Millbrook, Port Hope, Cobourg, Oshawa and other clubs. There is every promise of fast ice and it is hoped that there will be a large number of rinks in the first draw.

THE LINDSAY SKIPS.

The Lindsay Skips for the open bonspiel will likely be Flavelle, Willford, Gregory and Carley.

LINDSAY COMMENT.

The two veterans, Flavelle and Ray are hard to beat.

"Rolly" Waddell skipped a clever game and played many a beautiful stone.—Lindsay Warder.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Aura Lee gained a five-goal lead over Kingston in the O.H.A. junior semi-finals on Saturday night, winning by 7 to 2. Judging from the form shown by both teams in this game, last season's champions should at least enter the finals again. The return game will be played at Kingston on Wednesday night.

Aura Lee led at all stages. It was not until the final period that their opponents scored. The score at the end of the first period was 2 to 0, and the winners added two more in the following session.

Rough play was conspicuous throughout, and at times less than half the regulation number of players remained on the ice. Junior hockey has been good this season, and on Saturday night the largest crowd of the year was in attendance. Few of the spectators approved of the brand of hockey shown by the teams.

Neither team combined their play to advantage. Both goalkeepers gave a good display, but while the forwards were very keen they lacked the condition to carry out a strenuous game. Aura Lee showed a heavier and speedier defence than their opponents.

Hudson was probably the best man on the ice. He scored two goals, and in the third period when only three Aura Lee players remained on the ice against the full team of Kingston he saved a possible score by playing back near the net and giving timely assistance to Forbes. Stinson and Cratton were the best of the visitors and each contributed a goal. The teams:—

Referee—O. Bernhardt, Bradford.

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—This week is one of the most important of the season in the O.H.A. as the teams will be down to the semi-finals in all three series. Every advantage will be taken of the good ice, which is due, it is said, to make a rapid disappearance.

In the senior series Riversides have won their section and have qualified for the final without a defeat. The Dentals play T.R. and A.A. at the Arena here to-night in Section A, Group No. 2 and if they win will play at Preston Thursday and back in Toronto Saturday night in the semi-finals. Sergt. Steve Vair will referee to-night.

If Dents lose they will play T.R. and A.A. again on Wednesday night. It is hoped to play the finals off next week on Wednesday and Saturday nights.

In the intermediate series Oshawa will take a four-goal lead to Peterborough to-morrow night to play the 247th Battalion the return game. O. G. Bernhardt of Bradford will referee. The Owen Sound team will play to-night at Kitchener, and the latter should win the round, as they have a lead of one goal from Owen Sound. Lawson Whitehead will referee. Both of these games are in the third round. Hamilton and the 118th Battalion team of London will begin their home and-home series Tuesday night at London; return game at Hamilton Friday night. F. H. Sproule of Toronto will referee this series. By the end of the week there will be three teams left in this series, and next week the semi-finals will be played.

In the junior series the semi-finals will be complete this week. On Wednesday Aura Lee of Toronto go to Kingston with a five-goal lead. Robert Hewitson of Toronto has been agreed upon as referee for this game. In the west, London will play at Kitchener on Wednesday night, with the return game in London on Friday night. Lawson Whitehead of Toronto will likely be referee.

The finals will be played next week on Tuesday and Friday nights.

The games and referees for the week are as follows:

GOOD BOWLING AT THE WATER STREET ALLIES

Left Overs and Printers Meet in Last Scheduled Game of the League

Last night was a field night at the Water street bowling alleys, when the Left Overs and Printers hooked up in the last scheduled League game. The Printers kept up their winning streak taking all three games, and incidentally hung up two league records. Some good trundling was witnessed by the interested number of spectators present. The Printers spilled the pins in the first game to the tune of 945, thus going the Business Men 68 pins better than their record single game score of 917.

The Printers' grand total was 2,629, which is the best score for a five man match ever made on the alleys here, all the Printers rolling over the 500 mark.

The Left Overs rolled their usual good game, with Solomon leading in scoring. This gentleman also pulled off a most difficult spare.

It is a well known fact that any team playing against the Left Overs has to extend themselves to the limit to win, as Captain Solomon's team always puts up a good argument.

Cairns for the winners had high three game score with 548, Henderson being only one pin behind, with 547. Wilson had high single game score, with 201, and Myland made nine spares in the first game. "Bennie" Moore had hard luck, running into a number of splits but was over the 500 mark at the finish.

If the Business Men win their protest against the last game they played with the De Laval, then the Printers and Business Men will be tied, and a play-off between these two teams will be necessary to decide the championship. The Business Men already have a photograph of themselves proudly wearing the handsome watch fobs to be presented by Mr. Solomon.

A feature of the evening was the receipt of scores of the hockey game at Oshawa, and Mr. Solomon's thoughtfulness in having them provided was much appreciated by the goodly crowd on hand.

The Scores.

The scores of the bowling match were as follows:

Printers—
Moore	187	158	150	594
Henderson	199	174	174	547
Myland	167	165	176	508
Wilson	201	144	137	522
Cairns	191	179	179	548

Totals	758	724	709	2230
Team Average—734.

CHIEF BENDER'S CAR KILLS MAN, APPEARS IN POLICE COURT

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 19.—"Chief" Bender, former star pitcher of the Athletes will be arraigned in police court to-day, following the death of a 14-year-old boy who was run down by Bender's automobile.

It is not known whether Bender was responsible for the accident.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—The automobile responsible for the death of James Curran, a lad of 14, on Saturday night, is said by the police to belong to Charles Albert ("Chief") Bender, the once great pitcher of the Philadelphia Athletics. It is said that Bender was in the car at the time.

It was announced at the detective bureau this forenoon that Bender had surrendered and would be given a hearing to-morrow. The police charge that the driver, after hitting the lad, did not stop, but turned at high speed down a side street and disappeared. The boy died after having been taken to the hospital by another car.

MAY BE DIRECT TAXATION.

Provincial Treasurer of Manitoba Makes the Announcement.

Winnipeg, Feb. 17.—In presenting the annual budget to the Legislature, Hon. Edward Brown, Provincial Treasurer, stated that present revenues were "not sufficient for all present requirements" and that in the near future means must be found to augment the provincial revenues. He intimated that direct taxation might be resorted to, and that in the meantime the House would be asked for authority to issue a short term loan against outstanding revenue. Mr. Brown described the finances of the province as being on a sound basis. There had been a reduction of $440,000 in the provincial debt through the transference of securities from London to New York.

C.P.R. Military Medal Hero

Corporal Ralph G. Murrow, who for four years previous to the outbreak of war was in the Passenger Department, C.P.R., Liverpool, has won the Military Medal.

Corporal Murrow joined the R.L.R. the day war was declared and went to France in February, 1915. Before the war he was a well-known member of the Harrowby Football Club and it is interesting to record the fact that the act which won for him the coveted medal was performed in the rescue of a club mate, A. H. Robertson, who had been seriously wounded. Corporal Murrow picked up his companion and carried him some 500 yards under a heavy fire to the British lines.

Active Campaign Inaugurated For Ensuing Year

Peterborough Automobile Association Formulates Plans For the Ensuing Season—Outing For the Returned Soldiers

200 MEMBERS

Following the annual meeting of the Association on January 30th, at which there was an unusually large attendance, an active campaign has been inaugurated by the Membership Committee. During the past week the committee has been at work and has secured for the coming year practically all of last year's members, as well as a considerable number of new members. There were ninety-two members last year, and at least twice the number is anticipated for 1917, judging from the interest already maintained.

The membership fee for 1917 is three dollars, two dollars of which goes to the Ontario Motor League and one dollar is retained locally for running expenses. The Ontario Motor League retains only one of the two dollars sent it, the other dollar being turned over to the periodical, "The Canadian Motorist," which is mailed monthly to each member. Each local member is provided with a full membership card in the Ontario Motor League, as well as a certificate of membership in the local Association. Any motor owner who is interested in becoming a member may obtain a certificate from any of the following men, who are on the membership committee: R. S. Cotton, C. R. Banks, B. W. Manning, R. J. Munro, R. G. Sturgeon, Robert Doble, Andrew Brown, or Wm. H. Lytle, as well as from the President, Mr. G. A. Gillespie; the Vice-President, R. H. Turner, J. J. Duffus, E. W. Borbridge, P. P. Westbye, or the Secretary, C. E. Canfield.

During the past two years the local Association has issued automobile registration plates, as the agent of the Provincial Government, but this year this work will be handled by Mr. Wm. H. Lytle, who is appointed directly by the Department of Public Highways of Ontario, and who has the hearty endorsement of every member of the Automobile Association.

Returned Soldiers.

After two years of inactivity on the paprt of the local Association, it is believed by the members that a certain amount of wholesome recreation is not inconsistent with a whole hearted support of the various activities designed to help win the war. We can work harder and give more, if we keep our brains clear of cobwebs with fresh air and sunshine. Among the activities planned for, the coming summer will be a general outing for the returned soldiers and their families. Individual car owners have in the past tried to give trips of this kind to our returned soldiers and this individual interest will be kept up during the coming year, but in addition to this, a general field day and outing for all men returned from the front, together with their families, will be planned as soon as the season permits.

In past years motor trips have been carried out for those living in the various homes and institutions for the unfortunate in the city. It is planned to continue these.

A Bve Enertainment Committee, of which E. L. Roy is chairman, has in mind a series of members' runs, with basket lunch accompaniment, at intervals during the summer, which will be announced later.

The Good Roads Committee, the chairman of which is G. Walter Green, will do all in its power to spread the interest in the new "County Roads System," which has been inaugurated by the Provincial authorities during the past year. This system is a good thing for all concerned, and as it does not add to, but actually decreases the financial burden on the County Council, is justifiably hoped for. It may be that the funds of the Association will be used in a small way for local road improvement if the co-operation of the surrounding county road officials can be obtained, but with the small membership fees this year the amount available for this work will not be large. It is designed, however, to use the funds of the Association as consistently as possible for the substantial benefit of the membership and general good of motoring, rather than for entertainment. The entertainment and members' runs will be planned as far as possible so as to be self supporting.

All automobile owners who are in sympathy with the aims of the Association are cordially invited to become members and thus, through their public spirit, help along the good work.

British Calmly Accept Cut in Food and Drink

LONDON.—"You're from Canada, aren't you?".

"No; United States."

"Sorry."

It's easy to get wrong impressions in London. The girl didn't really mean she was sorry. It is the English habit of speech. "I'm sorry," being the universal form for the American "Beg pardon."

The English are on fixed food rations, but that doesn't mean they are suffering the pangs of hunger. They are eating only twice as much meat daily as is the average in America instead of three times as much as used to be the case.

The lid on liquor is more nearly real. The Britisher may drink for only three hours in the afternoon, and three hours at night. He must be all through with his drinking by 9 p.m. But the Britisher isn't suffering, or at least, he is bearing up stoicaly. One wouldn't guess he had not been cramming his drinking into six hours a day all his life and never had known what it was to eat more than twice as much as an American.

Things like these do not in any real sense reflect the tremendous change the war has wrought in England. They are only surface manifestations and give so little idea of the change that a visitor would be impelled to believe no war was in progress were it not for the fact that soldiers in uniform form about 50 per cent. of the men one sees on the streets and in the hotels.

The girls swinging the heavy gates on the subway lifts all day long punch your tickets with a usual air as though girls had been doing that sort of thing all their lives. And they aren't the big, strong girls one might expect to see delegated to such work, either.

The girl on the Hackney Wick bus who said she'd be glad when her bus reached "the Wick," relieving her from duty, had been on the job since 8 a.m. and it was then 10 p.m. And she had not been relieved from duty the night before till 2 a.m., she said.

Taking tickets on a London two-story bus is somewhat harder than might be supposed. It means climbing up and down a twisting narrow stairway on the lurching vehicle every time passengers are taken on; running up and downstairs all day with the element of insecurity and hasard added and the physical exertion made twice as great.

Don't use an earthen baking dish after it has become well cracked, it will be impossible to keep it clean.

A uniform width in curtain and pillow case hems will save time taken in matching different widths of hem.

AUTOBUCKBOARD NEW ARRIVAL IN THE FAMILY OF MOTOR VEHICLES

The automobile family produces something new every week. The Saturday night crowd on Charlotte street were introduced to one of the latest additions to the auto family in the Smith motor wheel buckboard. It is a light two-passenger, four-wheel runabout, capable of a speed of 20 miles an hour, and covering 70 to 80 miles on one gallon of gasoline. Mr. C. R. Banks has secured the agency and has already one sale to his credit. Mr. Banks is also bringing the "autopede" to the city, an enlarged and motorized production of the small boy's two-wheeled contraption on which he speeds along the sidewalk in summer.

BOARD TO BE REDUCED

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 19—The Telegram says to-day that the Ontario License Board will likely be cut to fit its more limited labours under the Ontario Temperance Act. The Telegram intimates that Vice-Chairman W. S. Dingman will likely retire to accept a Senatorship.

FIREMAN BREAKS HIS ARM FLIRTING; WINS VERDICT

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Even if a railroad fireman leans out of the cab of his locomotive to flirt with a red headed woman, and gets a broken arm, he is entitled to compensation under the law, so W. B. Scott, a state compensation board referee, decided in awarding $9,240 to Carl Schneider of this city.

Schneider was hurt several weeks ago near Camp Hill station on the Reading railway, presumably by being struck by a locomotive going in the opposite direction. James B. Hass, engineman of the other train, testified that he saw [illegible] "red haired woman" flirting with some one on Schneider's train.

Russia Hails As Heroes Men Who Slew Monk

LONDON. — Hamilton Fyfe, in a despatch from Petrograd to the London Daily Mail, lifts the veil from recent events in Russia, and more particularly explains why Gregory Rasputin, the scheming monk, who wielded such power over the Czarina was killed.

"Rasputin was killed," says Fyfe, "because he was a most influential member of the small clique—the Camarilla, it is called here—which has wielded an undue influence in the government of Russia for a long time. His influence lay in a certain hypnotic power he possessed, power which made him especially dangerous among women. He had invented a new kind of religion, one article of which was that men and women should bathe together.

CALMS THE CZARINA.

"He pretended to possess miraculous powers of healing, and it is said even induced the Czarina to believe that to him was due the recovery of her only son from his former ill health and weakness. Rasputin pretended to watch over the Czar's heir, and it seems quite certain, the anxious mother's fears for her son, whose infantile illnesses had been more than usually distressing, were calmed by the plausible rascal's pretensions.

"In this manner Rasputin kept a substantial footing in the imperial household and consequently became a very useful tool of the Camarilla. What they wanted they put forward through him. He had access to the court.

"If his requests were refused or his advice neglected he would threaten to take himself off and leave the young heir to the throne unguarded. There was no way possible to free the country from his evil influence save by way of the pistol or the knife.

"HIGH-UPS" IN PLOT.

"The decision to remove Rasputin was not taken by the revolutionaries. Those who resolved to kill him belonged to the very highest families in Russia; some of them to the imperial families. They, and others closely related to the emperor, had urged him to be rid of this evil creature who worked by underground means trading upon the Czar's tolerant good nature and pursuing with vindictive malice those who opposed him until he encompassed their downfall.

"Entreaties failed. The emperor, occupied with the weightiest matters, apparently could not be induced to take Rasputin seriously. It was time to take other measures.

"Rasputin was invited to one of the customary suppers at the palace of Prince Yusupoff. He had to be persuaded to accept the invitation. Some warnings had reached him. He had misgivings and fears. But a woman overcame his hesitation. He yielded to her inducement and went.

TOLD HE MUST DIE.

"The conspirators told him bluntly he must die. He was offered the choice between suicide and execution. A revolver was put into his hand and he was urged to turn it against himself. He refused, fired at a grand duke, missed him, and broke a window. At once he was seized, gagged and bound, and after a short interval despatched.

"The names of those who took parts as judges and executioners are well known in Petrograd, and they will be honoured in Russia as Charlotte Corday in the history of France. That any proceedings will be taken against the executioners is unlikely."

WEDDING BELLS

SCHELL—PEARSON.

The wedding was solemnised at St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. Father Phelan officiating, this morning, at 7 o'clock, of Howard Schell to Miss Catharine Pearson. The young couple were attended by Miss Dora Pearson, sister of the bride and by Wilfred Curtiss. They will take up their residence in Peterborough.

OBITUARY

CHARLES R. NIXON.

Charles Richard Nixon, a prominent business citizen of this city for about twenty years, died yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's Hospital, aged 39 years.

The late Mr. Nixon had been suffering from a nervous breakdown since last November, undergoing a slight operation, and on Saturday week took a bad chill, which hastened his end. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital four days ago, but all efforts to save him proved futile, and he passed away on Sunday afternoon. Deceased was born in Bobcaygeon and on the death of his parents, Andrew E. Nixon and Esther Ashmore, Emily, went to reside with his uncle, Mr. C. R. Nixon of Port Hope, until moving to Peterborough. He was a member of All Saints' Church and of the Fraserville Orange Lodge No. 460, and the Black Perceptory. He is survived by his wife, formerly Ellen Padgett, and six little children, Clifton, Austin, Charles, Mary, Mabel and Robert, and three sisters, Maud of New York, Mabel of Toronto, and Mrs. Glossop of Guelph, and one brother, Wm. A. Nixon, Lakefield.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2 o'clock, from the family residence, 301 Reid street. A short service, conducted by Rev. R. Grobb, will be held at the house before leaving for the Little Lake cemetery.

It takes a woman to observe every action of a man without appearing to know he is on earth.

THE ORGAN

One of the most interesting developments, in that world which devotes itself to the construction of musical instruments, is the impetus that has been given lately to the building of organs. Several things have contributed to this end. Electrical devices of various kinds have made the automatically played pipe organ a really acceptable instrument to many, although naturaly scorned, as are all automatic devices, by the fully equipped performer. Then the organ is in demand to supply the music at the ubiquitous cinematograph show, whilst the value of the instrument as a foundation for orchestral accompaniment is coming to be recognised by many theatre managers. Thus the organ, which, perhaps ten or twenty years ago, confined itself almost entirely to churches and large public halls, is finding new fields.

Now, the history of organs and organ building, from the day that Tuba, first played on the pipes, has been written in many volumes, and it is a long story. In some shape, indeed, the organ is probably the most ancient of instruments. It had its origin, like all smaller instruments of the flute family, in the "Pan-pipes" and, contrary to the general rule in such cases this first essay, as it were, has boldly survived. Thus, in some little side street under the shadow of St. Paul's in London, to-day, the "Punch and Judy man" may be heard attracting a crowd, and incidentally boring intolerably "the dog Toby" by playing on the Pan-pipes; whilst within the cathedral, the great descendant of this modest instrument sends forth, maybe, a vast volume of sound from hundreds of pipes mighty and small.

From the Pan-pipes, blown by the player himself, to the Chaldean wind box, with its pipes ranged along the top, and the wind admitted to each by drawing out a slotted lever, was an easy next step. First of all the air was supplied by blowing with the mouth, next by a system of hydraulics, which until recently was a mystery, but now is well understood, and finally a crude bellows made its appearance. By the end of the fourth century the organ was firmly established as a church instrument. Constantinople and Venice led the way in the matter of building. Then, during the tenth century, the greatest exponents of the craft were to be found in France and Germany, and at about this time some famous organs were erected in England, notably the celebrated instrument at Winchester. Organs had, however, been made in that country earlier. In the eleventh century came the crude lever-key system, to replace the old draw-slide; in the fourteenth century the Halberstadt organ, with its three separate keyboards; and henceforth the story of the organ is full of invention and steady improvement, discoveries by individual organ builders of ways and means to secure better tones and to imitate different instruments. The sound, for instance, from the open metal pipe was well enough, but they sought and found the softer tones in the stopped wood pipes, and then the string tones from the cylindrical pipes of small bore. After this came the pedal bass, and, with the making of the composition pedal in 1809, the modern organ came into being. Since then the art has leapt forward, especially since the invention of the electric-contact system, in the middle of last century.

Such a hasty view of the matter, but a word must be said in fuller detail of one special achievement in organ building, namely, the barrel organ. That barrel organ which is associated with the man from Italy and his red-coated colleague, is still familiar enough to render any description superfluous; but there were barrel organs of another kind, no longer seen or heard, which, none the less, little over a hundred years ago, were the pride of many a countryside in England. They were large and elaborate instruments, often beautiful in tone, and they were set up in churches. Their scope was limited but they were indeed in much demand for the playing of hymns, chants and voluntaries. They have disappeared with the clerk, one of whose duties it was to announce to those assembled the next efforts of the great instrument, which played so accurately, albeit so remorselessly, once it was set in motion.—Christian Science Monitor.

"I HAVE NO LOVER ON THE BATTLEFIELD."

I have no lover on the battlefield,
I do not go with sickening fear at heart,
And when the crier calls the latest horror
I do not start.
I have no lover on the battlefield,
I am exempt from terror of the night.
I can lie down serene and unregarding,
Until the light.

But on the battlefield, had I a lover,
How life would purge itself of petty pain!
And what would matter all the petty losses,
The petty gain?
I should be one with those who suffer greatly,
With pain all pain above:
And I should know, then, beyond peradventure,
The heart of love!

Jessie B. Rittenhouse, in The New York Times.

Among the passengers on a train on a one-track road in the Middle West was a talkative jewelry drummer. Presently the train stopped to take on water and the conductor neglected to send back a flagman. An express came along and, before it could be stopped, bumped the rear end of the first train. The drummer was lifted from his seat and pitched head first into the seat behind. His silk hat was jammed clear down over his ears. He picked himself up and settled back in his seat. No bones had been broken. He drew a long breath, straightened up and said: "Well, they didn't get by us, anyway."—Argonaut.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WIN THE RACE WITH TIME

At a certain age, there are almost sure to be constitutional changes, and one in particular is the gradual weakening of the eyesight. Imperceptible at first, except to scientific test, yet the change is there, and if, at this time, the eyes are given the assistance they need, they are kept strong longer than if left in use without the aid of glasses till a later period. Give your eyes the best chance you can by having Dr. Fowler test them as to their condition.

Ohio Judge Says Coal Shortage Manipulated

Declares Indictable Offences Have Been Committed to that State.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Feb. 19 — The State public utilities commission is in possession of information that certain people have been guilty of indictable offences in connection with the coal shortage situation in Ohio. Judge O. H. Hughes, a member of the commission, told railroad men here at the opening of an investigation of coal shortage conditions.

Judge Hughes asked the representatives of the Ohio railroads to keep with the commission in getting coal to Ohio consumers.

Representatives of the interstate commerce commission, the United States district attorney's office and the Ohio attorney general were present at the hearing for the purpose of gathering information.

TIN PLATE IS GETTING SCARCE

Trade Department Says It Should all be Saved.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19—Officials of the department of trade and commerce state that there is a shortage of tin plate in Canada. This is due to lower production in England and the shipping situation. The department thinks that steps should be taken to collect all the tin available, such as tin boxes and cans, in order that it may be used over again. It is believed that if some systematic plan of collection is adhered to, the shortage of in plate will be largely made up.

400,000 A DAY AT THE KITCHENS IN BERLIN.

Serving food to large numbers at a time is now the custom in Berlin. The municipal central kitchens serve luncheons to 90,000 school children at the noon hour. In addition there are thousands of workmen who are fed at noon and at night. Aside from these, 100,000 lunch baskets and coffee cans are filled daily with food for bank clerks, factory employees, institutes and hospitals. According to official figures, 400,000 persons get the food in Berlin daily. The number is said to be increasing daily.

The food can be had at a slightly cheaper rate, and many families are taking advantage of it. Housewives have found that instead of buying food from shopkeepers to be served at the home table it is a matter of economy to take advantage of the big central kitchens which the municipality has provided.

Probe At Halifax Is Nearing Its Finish

Investigation of the Frederick VIII and the Bernstorff Party About Ended—No Contraband and No Irregularity Found—A Correspondent Balked

KEEP A STRICT GUARD

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 20.—The German party of former embassy officials and consuls enroute on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII., from the United States to Germany yesterday entered upon their third day in the hands of examining Canadian immigration officials. It is understood that their ordeal is nearing a conclusion. Those who had been on the ship, though bound by oath to reveal nothing that transpires there, have found it possible to give a few glimpses of the attitude of the Germans towards their examiners.

It would appear that from Count Von Bernstorff, down through the ranks of the minor consul officials, all expected treatment that would be most humiliating, the sort of treatment it is reported German officials handed out to the British, who left Germany early in the war, and more recently to American officials and their wives, making their way out of that country following the breaking off of diplomatic relations by the United States.

EXPECTED ONLY FORMALITY

This expectation followed on the disillusionment of their belief that the visit to Halifax was to be most formal, taking up only a cursory examination of safe conduct papers, but when it became known that the Frederick VIII. was to be indefinitely detained in Halifax, and that a most rigid investigation was to take place, something like a reign of terror ensued. It is known that the worst fears of the Germans have not been realised, and that they have been surprised at the consideration.

STILL NO ONE ALLOWED NEAR

The officials worked all day Saturday, Sunday and Monday. It is stated that the majority of the German officials on the Frederick VIII. were given permission to attend divine service on the ship while the crowds that went out from Halifax to the spot where the ship is anchored,, got a long-distance view of the detained party as it passed on the vessel's deck for exercise.

Patrol boats circled the ship and a guard was placed on shore. Residents of houses nearby were instructed to hide all lights, while the wireless of the Frederick VIII .was dismantled as soon as the vessel reached the harbor.

Particular attention is being paid to an American newspaperman who boarded the ship at New York, to prevent press messages being sent from the ship.

Thus far, it has been learned the immigration officials have found no irregularity about the papers of the German party on board the vessel, and no contraband has been found in the cargo.

LIBERAL LEADER URGES CARE OF RETURNED SOLDIERS

Should Train Men For Future Life.

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—The cost of Government House, Toronto, figured in the proceedings of the Legislature yesterday afternoon. Hon. F. G. Macdiarmid informed Charles M. Bowman that the site had cost $148,118.77, improvements $182,596.23, cost of building, $650,261.78, other buildings, $35,657.01, and the furnishings, including electric fixtures, $63,470.39.

The urgency of making complete preparation for the care of the large numbers of soldiers returning to Canada was brought to the attention of the Legislature, when Mr. N. W. Rowell, Liberal leader, moved for copies of correspondence between the Provincial and Federal Governments in reference to the care of the returned men. Mr. Rowell thought that instead of providing additional accommodation for men at the Orpington, England, Hospital, maintained by the Ontario Government, it might be to greater advantage to increase the accommodation in Ontario and make the expenditure at home.

Engines Destroyed By Order Of The German Embassy

Captain of Interned Liner So Testifies in Court—$110,000 Damage Done — Six Months to Repair Breaks Made to Prevent Use of Boat by U. S. A.

BOSTON, February 20.—Capt. Charles A. Polack of the North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie testified at a federal court hearing on a petition for the sale of the vessel that he had been ordered by a man connected in an official capacity with the German embassy, to disable its machinery. This was done, he said, to prevent the ship's use by the United States Government in the event of hostilities with Germany. He refused to divulge the name of the man giving the order.

When asked by counsel for the petitioners to give the name of the person from whom the order was received, Captain Polack said: "Your honour, I am an officer of the German navy, and if I should have to disclose the name of this gentleman in this hearing, I might be tried for treason when I went home to Germany. I wish you would not oblige me to answer that question."

Asked if he had told the representative of the German Government that the vessel had been libelled, and was now in possession of the United States court, the witness replied that this had not occurred to him.

ORDER ENGINES DISABLED.

In January, the witness said he again visited New York, and on January 31 had another interview with the parties from whom he was taking his instructions. At the end of the interview he went direct to the Western Union Telegraph office in Hoboken and sent this telegram to his chief officer, Sigmund-Bierans, at Boston: "Tell Peterson everything O. K."

Asked who "Peterson" was, he said, "nobody, it was an open telegram, and was understood because it had been agreed that upon its receipt the engines were to be dismantled."

Captain Polack said he met the embassy official in January at the North German Lloyd offices in Hoboken. The orders to disable the ship were given at that time in the presence of Captain Moller, superintendent of the company's lines in this country, he testified.

TOLD OF DIPLOMATIC BREAK.

Continuing his testimony the captain declared that the embassy officials said to him: "The relations between the two countries are being severed and the condition is very serious."

The witness testified that he inquired whether the machinery was to be disabled immediately, and that he received an affirmative answer. Captain Moller, he said, did not take a share in that part of the conversation.

The Kronprinzessin Cecilie is in the possession of United States Marshal Mitchell pending the determination of a suit for damages brought against the North German Lloyd Steamship Company by the Guaranty Trust Company and the National City Bank of New York for failure of the vessel to deliver a shipment of gold to bankers in England and France, which she had on board at the outbreak of the war.

DISPOSSESSED CREW.

When diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany were severed the marshal, at the instance of the banks, took physical possession of the steamer and dispossessed Captain Polack and his crew, who had made the ship their home since she was libelled. After the crew had left the vessel on examination by experts showed that the machinery had been so damaged that it could not be repaired and made ready for sea for several months.

Franklin G. White, a state inspector of boilers, testified that when he went aboard the vessel on February 3 at the direction of the marshal, he found that the nameplates on parts of the engines were missing, though some of these had been in place when he had made an inspection earlier in the day. There was little water in the boilers, which had steam up, and the pumps had been stopped. Valves were closed and tightened with wrenches and no wrenches were available with which to open them. One main steampipe had been twisted off, the break appearing to be newly made. The lighting plant also was out of commission.

The two high pressure cylinders, the witness said, were damaged by the breaking of pieces 16 by 12 inches out of the throttle valve boss and steam chest. The forward high pressure cylinders were wrecked, the throttle valve drilled out and the main throttle on the starboard side of the engineroom broken.

SIX MONTHS TO REPAIR.

B. Stewart Murphy, a marine surveyor, testified that he examined the ship and found the damage substantially as described by White, and that it would cost $110,000 to repair the visible damage. The damage to the high pressure engine and cylinders could not be repaired in less than six months, he said, and would probably take longer.

Before adjournment for the luncheon recess, Judge Morton stated that if the point were pressed, he would find that the owners had sequestered for the damage to the vessel, and he would hold them in contempt.

Counsel for the owners asked the court to postpone action on the petition for two weeks. He said that after the libel interests had filed a petition for the sale of the ship a cablegram asking instructions had been sent to the directors of the north German Lloyd Company at Bremen, but so far as he knew it was not delivered. He asked the court to appoint a master to assess the damage to the machinery.

DEMANDS $200,000 BOND.

After arguments Judge Morton said he could not consider at this time the question of damage, but would take up this matter on March 3. He ordered the owners to furnish a bond of $200,000 to guarantee that the damage would be repaired, and that there would be no further injury. This bond, he said, must be filed within three days, and unless presented and approved in that time the sale of the vessel would be ordered. The offer of the owners to file a bond of the North German Lloyd Company to be secured by one of the other steamers of the line was refused by Judge Morton, who said that a bond of a reputable security company would be required.

USE SMOKE SCREEN TO FOIL THE SUBS

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—An Associated Press despatch from Baltimore says: The Donaldson Line freighter Lakonia, of Glasgow, provided with the new smoke device of the British Admiralty to render shipping immune from submarine attacks arrived at this port yesterday. The ship also carries a 3-inch gun mounted astern and several trained gunners to man it. According to one of the gunners, the new device can generate enough smoke in several minutes to mask a vessel from the enemy's view for several hours. The Lakonia encountered no enemy craft on the trip to this port, but she was twice chased for several hours on the last outward bound voyage, first by a German ship thought to have been the raider Vineta and again by a submarine in the Bay of Biscay. The Lakonia escaped both times by her superior speed.

DETROIT, Feb. 20.—"I am old, and sick, and alone," James Crinnian,, 56 years old, owner of the Union Bottling Company, 1008 Michigan avenue, wrote in three letters in his room, Saturday afternoon. Then he shot himself through the heart.

The letters were addressed to sisters in Buffalo, N. Y., and Atkins, Mich., and a brother in Detroit. In the letters Crinnian discussed his business affairs ,and made arrangements for his relatives to pay a few bills.

Crinnian went to his boarding house from his office Saturday morning, and retired to his room. It is believed the dead man had a brother, who is proprietor of the Belchamber Hotel at Sarnia. The body is in the morgue.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. BOTCHKISS

"Well, the maker of this map has been able by hook or crook, by accident or reasoning, to relocate the lost San Saba. No richer mine ever existed—if tradition is true. Knowing its worth, he disguised this map; giving the key, or telling it you your father, with promise that it be made over to his daughter Grace. That much seems clear to me. But somehow, this fellow catches on to the secret—how, I can't guess. He goes to your father, who has the paper, and—pardon me, old man, you know the rest. You have struck the key by accident and if Grace Merridale wishes to sell this map she can be one of the richest young ladies in the United States."

"But Merridale?"

"Evidently he also is in the secret and has tried to do with you what Welch tried to do with your father—while either or both are ready to rob the lady."

"But she shall have it—to do what she pleases with it," said Wentworth.

"Of course," returned Harper knitting his brows. "Unless—unless—"

"Unless what?"

Harper got to his feet; his face was very serious as he laid his pointed finger on Wentworth's chest as if to accentuate his words:

"Unless Merridale, Welch et al., severally or together take it into their hands to commit another crime."

"Another crime! Then you think with me that the captain was murdered!"

"Murdered? In the sight of the law—no; in the sight of heaven—yes. But, old man, that subject is to painful for you to discuss at present. However, get that paper under lock and key at once, raise heaven and earth to find Grace Merridae and get it off your hands. Beware of Merridale et al. I'm going home. I'm fagged. I've got to sleep. I'll see you to-morrow and we'll talk some more. So long, old man!"

Harper went out, and somehow Wentworth felt as if the light had gone with him; he had a feeling of having bid him good-bye for an indefinite time. "Damn it!" he said to himself, as he looked around the silent studio. "I believe I am getting to be an old woman!"

CHAPTER VI.
GRACE MERRIDALE.

The mood to work was not on him, and instead of attempting to go on with the half finished landscape which had engaged his attention he sat down at the table and with his focusing glass studied the red paper through the sheet of ruby glass laid over it. But the wording of the map was so filled with the technicalities of navigation that he could make little of it. An arrow marked what was evidently the beginning of a trail and under it was written:

"Old Fort Concho,
125 Miles."

While the line of the trail twisted in a bewildering manner, marked here and there with marginal figures.

Wentworth became interested in tracing out the line, and considering the wide possibilities open to the girl when in possession of the map, so interested, indeed, that he forgot for the moment the advisability of continuing his work of photographing it, and so engrossed had he become that he failed to hear the light tap on his studio door. The tap was repeated several times before he awoke to the fact that someone desired admittance.

Drawing a newspaper over both the plan and glass, he went to the door, expecting to see Thomas, and wondering why the old man had not entered at his call. But it was not Thomas; instead, in the hall stood a young lady, and with a glance Wentworth recognised the girl he had seen in Merridale's flat the day before. In the face of what had happened there he so closely associated her with Merridale himself that he looked quickly up and down the long hall, thinking that as a matter of course her father was with her, but she appeared to be alone.

In his surprise at seeing her the young man gave the lady no word of welcome, nor did he have the common courtesy of speaking at all, nor was it until he was sure she was unattended that he took a second look at her.

Unlike her manner on the day before, there was now no repellent haughtiness in the lady's bearing, or expression. Instead, she appeared to shrink at sight of the man before her. Her cheeks were flushed and her red lips half open as though she were breathless from haste or embarrassment. As she, in turn, recognised Wentworth her dark blue eyes opened wide in astonishment and her beauty was accentuated as the color deepened in her face.

"I—I—thought to see Mr. Wentworth, sir," she stammered, in palpable confusion.

"Yes? I am Mr. Wentworth," returned the young man, with a slight bow but without relaxing his suspicion as to the lady's motive in calling on him. "If I am not mistaken this is Miss Merridale."

"Yes; but I did not know that you—I saw you yesterday with—him." There was a slight emphasis on the final pronoun.

"I have a vivid recollection of being at your apartments," returned Wentworth, with a trace of sarcasm in his answer. He thought the girl would understand. Then realizing the fact that both still stood in the public hall and that it might be policy to know her business and perhaps through her obtain a knowledge of the whereabouts of Welch—at all events, show ordinary decency to the caller, he added: "Won't you come in?"

He turned and led the way into the studio, the girl following hesitatingly. At the man's invita n she seated herself but he did not take his place at her side. All his armour was on; he would teach this evident emissary from an unprincipled ruffian that he was wide awake and entirely proof against such as she. There should be no given act for him.

"Well, madam, what can I do for you?"

The girl gave a fleeting glance at the finely proportioned figure standing before her, then her eyes fell to her clasped hands. "I have made a mistake, somehow," she said. "I—I—did not dream you knew him! I went to your late residence and was given this address. I—I did not expect to see you! Please—please do not tell him I have been here or have seen you since yesterday. I am afraid—"

"Afraid of what?"

"Of—him." Again an emphasis on the pronoun referring to Merridale. The young lady plainly was ill at ease—or acting superbly.

"I cannot account for your evident surprise at seeing me either at the flat or here," said Wentworth; "neither can I pretend to account for your fear—I had never seen your father. I called on him at his written request, not on my own initiative, and—"

"My father!"

"Yes; you saw me there. If I have wounded your feelings by—"

He stopped. The young day, who had seated herself on the edge of the divan, came slowly to her feet, her great eyes opening in something like consternation.

"Did he tell you he was my father?" she asked, leaning forward.

"Yes, after you came in and went out. He spoke of you as his daughter, and pardon me, of your disagreement with your cousin Grace. I am interested in learning of your cousin. I have something for her. I er—forgot to press the question of her whereabouts with your father."

The girl sank back on the divan, and for a moment buried her face in her gloved hands. But it was only for a moment; presently she looked up at the young man who stood over her.

"I am Grace Merridale, Mr. Wentworth—if indeed, you are Mr. Wentworth. When I saw you there I thought you were one of them, or one with them. I am happy to believe I was wrong! I am glad I came if only to undeceive you. That man is not my father; I am sorry to say he is my uncle—but by marriage only."

"Not your father's brother?"

"No. He married my father's maiden sister—my aunt—ten years ago. She is dead. His name is Bagshot."

"You, Grace Merridale!" exclaimed Wentworth, in astonishment. "And his name is Bagshot? Then he has been masquerading! At the risk of offending you, madam, I wish to denounce him as a villain; and, if, indeed, you are Grace Merridale, the daughter of my father's old friend, I am at a loss to account for your being in company with such a character."

The man's voice was hard and uncompromising. The lady looked up at him with an air of perplexity. "Perhaps," continued Wentworth, —"perhaps he sent you for a certain red paper which as Grace Merridale, will soon be yours for the asking."

That his visitor was not without spirit was plain as she quickly caught the undisguised hostility of Wentworth's attitude.

"Excuse me, sir," she returned, with an access of haughtiness. "With you, I am equally at a loss. I know nothing of a paper of any colour—certainly not of that to which you refer. Nor do I recognize your right to either criticise or catechise me. I am Grace Merridale. I came here less in regard to any interest of mine than in the interest of the son of my father's oldest and best friend. And I came at some risk to myself—should my errand be known—to warn you."

In a twinkling Wentworth's attitude—mental and physical—changed.

"You came to warn me! Against what?"

"Against him—my uncle—and Joe Planet. I overheard them talking about you last night and—"

"One moment, please," interrupted the man. "First, tell me; do you know what happened yesterday—in the flat—while you were away?"

"No. I did not get home until after six, and—"

"Then we are evidently at cross-purposes. Let me set you right as to my position." And Wentworth took from the table the letter he had received, placed it in the girl's hands, and seated himself on the end of the divan.

The young lady read the note hurriedly.

"There is no such person in the world as Thaddeus Merridale;" she said quickly, as she finished. "What did he wish?"

"He wished that which is yours, and yours alone; he demanded that which I have been saving for you?...that which will make its possessor rich. I have it here and have just discovered its character."

"I—I—do not think I understand," was the reply, and the tone of the girl's voice was softened by wonder

"I presume not. I would make but a blundering diplomat, I fear," said Wentworth. "I had no intention of offending you." And here he launched into the story of the red paper, beginning where his father had told him of it, and ending with the adventure of the day before. Ere he was half through his visitor had altered her repellent attitude. Her beautiful eyes shone with excitement or turned soft as the story progressed; her bosom heaved, her color came and went, and to Wentworth, who grew eloquent under the flattery of her attention and intense interest, it seemed as if he were looking at his visitor from a new and advantageous angle. He had never had much experience with the opposite sex nor was he ever impressed by a complex personality. He had been at fault with his caller; he saw it now. Surely there could be no duplicity in his more than merely fair listener. It seemed to him that he had never met with a person so innocently transparent or so faultless in face and figure.

As he talked he became more observant. He had had but a fleeting look at her the day before, but now he noted her every detail, from the set of the steel-gray costume that she wore to her golden hair, the fine texture of her cheeks and the daintiness of her small hands which lay folded in her lap. Above her hung the faint perfume he had noticed in her room.

"But you do not know that he had anything to do with your father's death—or that he was your father's tradueer," she said, drawing a deep breath, as he completed the story.

"No. I believe it is a man called Welch."

"I never heard of such a person," returned the girl. "But forgive me," she continued entreatingly, holding out her hand. "I doubted you, but I doubt you no longer. My uncle told me nothing of these things—but we seldom speak; we have nothing in common."

"Then you will admit my right to question. It was for your interest, you see." And Wentworth took the extended hand.

"Yes; and to criticise, perhaps. You asked me how it was that I was with him. Indeed, it needs an explanation. I came north with Mr. Bagshot; it was necessary for me to be here and there was no one else to come with me. He proposed acting as my escort, saying that he had business here. And I am a perfect stranger in New York. We went to an hotel for a week, then went to the flat because he said that it would be cheaper for him. I might have guessed that something was wrong but did not until last night when I overheard him talking with Joe Planet, a Mexican. Now I know he had an ulterior motive for coming; perhaps the flat was meant for a trap. I think so; I know his character. I am afraid of him. He would kill me if he knew I were here."

Good Old Home-Made Family Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind—Easily and Cheaply Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you would hardly have in them all the curative power that lies in this simple "home-made" cough syrup which takes only a few minutes to prepare.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and sugar syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes that line the throat, chest and bronchial tubes, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, whooping cough and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, be sure to ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SHE CHANGED HER MIND

But She Had a Good Reason For Doing So

By RUTH GRAHAM

The full September moon shone down upon a little cabin on the dry prairies of western Kansas, lighting up the faces of a young man and woman who were slowly walking up and down the open space before the door.

"I was so happy, Rachel," the man said, glancing at the strong, beautiful face of his companion, "when I heard your school up in the Wyoming mountains was closed and you were coming home. I thought you were coming to stay this time. I hope so, for, Rachel, I've loved you a long time."

Dan Southard leaned toward the girl to study the effect of his avowal on her.

But Rachel Winton betrayed no emotion.

She merely turned her dark eyes from the man's eager face and looked off across the moonlit prairie.

"I've been working and waiting, Rachel," he continued, his voice husky with feeling, "until I had something to offer you. I was sure you wouldn't give up teaching for just anything—you're not that kind."

"But I've loved you ever since two years ago, when we all came out to these prairies together in our covered wagons. I remember, after we were here, how bravely you worked to help your parents get started off comfortably before you went with your uncle to Wyoming to teach that ranch school."

"Dan," she exclaimed almost sternly, "I haven't ceased to remember our old house, which father lost on that security debt, the house we were forced to leave when we came here! Mother and I were not very brave, for we shed tears most of the way, though no one knew it. We came because it was the only thing to do, but this pioneer life is a hard, hard one.

"In my heart I am at war with it and always have been. It takes away youth and kills all high and noble ambitions. See how mother has aged during the two years we have lived here. It makes me bitter. That's why I go back to teach. I'm going to make enough to take them away from this life."

"But, Rachel," he pleaded, "you shall never work as your mother has had to. I promise it." Then, suddenly, with a catch in his voice, "Say, girlie, there's no truth in the report about your caring for that rich Wyoming ranchman?"

"Mr. Miles has been very kind to me," she answered without pretending not to understand. "He has offered to let father and mother have the lovely home he owns in Denver if I'll marry him. It would be an ideal place for them to end their days in."

"My God, girlie! I couldn't stand it to see you the wife of another!" the young man cried, his strong frame shaken with emotion.

"You mustn't care so much, Dan," she returned, tender pity for his suffering making her tones kind. "Get a better girl to share your home—one who will love you enough to make the best of this hard life."

"Never, never, Rachel!" he answered, with passion. "I love only you. If you could but read my heart and see how much you would surely care just a little for me. Your ranchman, rich as he is, will never love you as I do. Rachel! Never!"

"I couldn't love any man well enough to give up all, I enjoy and settle down to this isolated life, this continual treadmill of drudgery," she retorted, turning away; then in a milder tone, "Forget me, Dan."

Forget her! That he would never do—he never could. There was a time—it was when they lived in their covered wagons and camped at night by the trail; yes, and even after they were settled here—that he had thought she cared for him.

Those had been the happiest days in Southard's life. He had never dreamed that she hated those free, rolling prairies so intensely.

Blind to this, he had been toiling on his new claim to get things in good shape before asking her to marry him.

Bitterly now he felt that it was all labor lost, for without Rachel Winton nothing was worth while.

After gazing at the girl a moment in silent reproach Southard walked over to his tethered horse, mounted and rode away.

The moon climbed higher as Rachel stood looking after the vanishing horseman.

"Poor Dan!" she murmured. "He is so strong and good. Father and mother love him like a son, but I just can't, can't!" And the tears gathered in her eyes.

"I was intended for something better. If I wasn't, why should I dislike the rough, crude ways of pioneer life so terribly?"

With this question on her lips Rachel Winton entered the cabin, where her parents were already asleep, and sought her couch.

For a long time she lay awake, her mind, much against her will, busy comparing young Southard and Mr. Niles.

Dan's clear cut but somewhat boyish face lost nothing by comparison with that of the bearded, middle aged ranchman who had been wooing her persistently for the past year.

Life with one meant the unceasing drudgery of the prairie farm; with the other, wealth to enable her to live wherever she might choose herself and also give her parents a comfortable home.

But which of the men held the key to her heart?

Really she could not tell, but she grew drowsy making herself believe she would be able in any event to compel her mind with its power of judging wisely to control her heart.

Toward midnight she was aroused by a strange pungent smell pervading her little room. Her breathing was not quite free. What could it mean?

She lay for a minute dazed, yet with what sense she could command, trying to discover the cause of the odor that was gaining in strength and stifling power.

Suddenly a great crimson light illumined the small window. With a quick movement Rachel sprang from bed, and as she did so there came to her ears the rapid beat of a horse's hoofs on the prairie road.

Then she heard Dan's voice burdened with awful import.

"Rachel!" he called. "Mr. Winton! Get up! Get up quick! The prairie is on fire!"

"Father! Mother!" the girl called, running to their bed. "Get up! Do you hear? There is a big fire. Yes, Dan," she called from the window as she helped her mother to dress.

"There's not a minute to lose," Southard called back. "The fire is sweeping this way as fast as a strong wind can bring it."

There had been no rain for three weeks, and everything was as dry as tinder.

The Wintons understood the terrible danger impending.

Not only the cabin, but stock, crops, even they themselves, were at the mercy of those leaping flames.

"Bring the blankets, quick!" shouted Southard. Obeying him instantly, Rachel dragged every blanket out of the house.

Dan had ridden his horse to the little spring in the hollow and was rapidly filling every pail he had been able to find about the place.

Acting under his directions, the girl mounted her father's pony, and she and Dan carried water for Mr. and Mrs. Winton to wet the blankets, this being their only means of fighting the fire.

How they worked and fought! It seemed as if the whole world was arrayed against them, and all the while the moon looked down, cold and uncaring, while the fire swept fiercely onward until it caught in a row of dry cornstalks that reached nearly to the cabin. Here the battle must be fought with renewed energy.

The smoke of the burning grass and grain assailed their nostrils, scorched their throats and blinded their eyes, but with hands torn and blistered they toiled on.

When the old couple fell back overcome Dan and Rachel took their places with the heavy wet blankets and worked side by side. Inch by inch they beat back the angry flames.

Even in that terrible situation the girl felt a singular strength and coolness in working by Southard's side. She felt that the enemy must yield to such grand and compelling superiority.

When the fire attacked them from another vulnerable point it was Dan's exhaustless energy that saved the day.

By sacrificing a patch of ripe grain, through a prompt back fire, the foe was met and made to recoil in wrathful flames upon itself.

After a time the great body of the fire swept away northward, having consumed everything of the Wintons' except cabin and stock.

With a thankfulness in their hearts for the preservation of these, the old couple entered the house and threw themselves upon the floor.

Then Southard and Rachel came back with weary, lagging feet from their last successful onslaught.

"Everything's safe now, Rachel," he said huskily, starting toward his horse.

"Dan," she questioned, a queer choking in her throat, "you are not going now?"

He stopped and looked at her. She had never appeared more beautiful to him than now, with the marks of that great fire battle upon her face and tattered dress.

"All we have left we owe to you, Dan," she went on, noting his scorched face, bleeding hands and burned clothing.

Then she placed her blackened hand on his shoulder. How he trembled under that touch!

"I don't feel as if I could bear to have you leave us, Dan." There was a tender pleading in her tones.

"The danger's over, Rachel," he reassured her, "and I must ride all the way to Westfield before daybreak."

"Why to Westfield?" she asked.

Without a word he pointed across the blackened prairie toward his claim.

Only a mass of smoking ruins marked the place where his house and stable had been. She understood.

"You left all you had to come to us, Dan," she said, with a sob. "Now you have nothing left. Without your help everything here, even our lives, would have been sacrificed. Oh, Dan, the light of that fire has given me a sight of my own heart! I see that the true life for me is right here, and if you'll let me I'll help you make another home."

"Rachel!" he cried. "You can't mean it! Do you really love me?"

"I have loved you all the time, my knight of the prairies," she answered as his strong arms gathered her to his breast.

A time came when the home was rebuilt and all the other property restored. The pair lived a new and a different life.

Something Wrong.

"There was a steep embankment on my right and a high wall on my left," explained the bandaged motorist, "Around a curve swept a big touring car full of intoxicated joy riders. I was between Scylla and Charybdis."

"Hold on," interrupted the interested listener. "You told me just now you were on the road between Perkinsville and Jackson's Gap when this accident happened."

BOILERS AND BODIES.

Alike in Many Respects in the Treatment They Require.

The boiler has a certain temperature corresponding with the working pressure it is desirable to use and for which it was constructed.

The body has its normal temperature. Any variation above or below this means too high bodily pressure or a reduced vitality.

The fuel put into a boiler should be that which it is designed to burn. Differently constructed boilers will not economically burn the same fuel.

The body should receive the food it is best able to assimilate. Diverse constitutions require diverse nourishment.

A boiler should be fired with small, equal quantities of fuel at stated intervals; large masses irregularly fed are fatal to satisfactory results.

The body should be fed similarly; overloading the stomach produces imperfect digestion and deranges our physical systems.

Boilers are insulated by brickwork, cellular asbestos, etc., to prevent loss of heat by radiation.

Cellular tissue and fat aid in maintaining our normal temperature.

Some boilers well designed produce good results with a small fuel consumption; others are less economical. The more perfect the boiler the less the consumption of fuel.

Some individuals are so constituted that they exist on small quantities of food; others in the same circumstances consume much more. The more perfect the physical development the less the food required.

The above data, intelligently used, govern good boiler practice.

The above will also secure health and good digestion.—Popular Magazine.

A New Blood-Food Has Been Discovered That Works Wonders

SAID TO PUT NEW LIFE INTO PEOPLE THAT ARE RUN-DOWN.

For years doctors have been searching for a combination that would enable them to inject into thin blood the elements it lacked. This can now be done, and any weak-blooded person can quickly be made strong and well.

Already a small army of ailing people has proved the merit of taking after each meal with a sip or two of water, two chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets. This is easily done, and even one week's use of this wonderful blood-food will prove how nourishing and strengthening and flesh-building the treatment is.

Just think of it—Ferrozone uplifts the entire nervous system, removes the blood, makes it rich and red—gives the sort of aid that's needed in throwing off weakness and languor.

Tens of thousands enjoy the advantages of renewed health through Ferrozone;—if you'll only use it, you'll surely grow strong too; its beneficial action is noticed even in a week. You see it goes right to work, removes the causes of the trouble and then quickly makes a cure.

For those who sleep poorly and have nervous apprehensions, Ferrozone is a boon; it is a specialist in such cases.

Where there is paleness, poor appetite and langour, Ferrozone makes the patient feel like new in a few days.

In tiredness, nerve exhaustion, spring fever and debility, the power of Ferrozone is known from coast to coast and universally used with grand results.

Let Ferrozone build you up, let it win you back to robust health,—it will do so quickly if you give it the chance. Sold by all dealers. 50c per box or six boxes for $2.50. Remember the name—Ferrozone.

Farm Women.

What four women have done to better conditions for the wives of farmers in British Columbia should be widely known. Under the sanction of the Canadian Government, four women were appointed an advisory board to the British Columbia Department of Agriculture. Women's agricultural institutes, to which farm women could carry their problems, were set on foot with results which have remedied many of the problems driving women off the farms and into the towns. Frequent conferences of the four women of the board with the women living on farms have led to such recommendations by the board to the government as have already made rural life more possible and have checked migrations to congested centres. It seems to have paid the Canadian Government to get the point of view of women in answering the problems of the rural regions in the movement.

Stand Taken by Ulster During Peace and at War Is Explained by Leader

"UNIONIST Ulster in Peace and at War; Her Place in the Empire," was the title of an address delivered recently by Sir Edward Carson at a numerously attended gathering in the Grand Hall, Hotel Cecil, under the auspices of the Ulster Association in London.

Sir E. Carson said that he desired to make a non-political speech on a question which greatly savored of politics. He could assure his hearers that he had almost forgotten politics. He thought only, as he believed the majority of Ulstermen did, of the great dangers and difficulties that beset the Empire at the present moment. The loyalty of Ulstermen, their ideals, their sense of duty and of obligation were the same as in any other peaceful and loyal community in any part of our Empire.

Ulster had been too often misrepresented. She had never asked for anything except to be allowed to fill her place in the Empire, and to remain with those who held the same ideals as herself. In peace, Ulster was a great and progressive democracy, the only real free democracy in Ireland. He remembered on one occasion some leaders of trade unionism telling him that they built the biggest ships in the world in Belfast, although they had to import every ounce of coal, iron, and steel. They also said that the men had better conditions than obtained on the Clyde or the Mersey, and that they were more proud of that than of anything. "Under these circumstances," Sir Edward said, "can you consider a statesman sane who asks these people to abandon their position in the constitution of the Empire, and accept something different from that which they have inherited?"

Proceeding, he said that since the outbreak of war Ulster had played a noble part in the history of the Empire. She had sent to the colors during that time more soldiers than the whole of the rest of Ireland put together. As an Irishman, he drew no distinction between any part of Ireland in the pride he felt in the fighting qualities of Ireland's sons. He was just as proud of the men who came from the south as of the men who came from the north when they were shoulder to shoulder, loyally fighting their country's battles. But the operations of July 1 would go down in history as marking bravery and endurance almost unexampled in the history of the British army.

"As for the future—who can tell what lies before us? The future is almost mystical in its obscurity, but the future in our hearts must mean, and will mean, victory for the Empire. A great deal of suffering and trial may be before us ere we reach the goal of peace. How strange the word seems after the two and a half years in which we have pursued this war. Even stranger it appears to us, who for four years before that found our existence threatened in Ulster, and knew that there was no use calling peace when there was no peace. But be the trouble however great, our duty is plain and clear. It is to join hand in hand in a closer clasp at each danger with those who are waging a war of liberty and freedom. And then, when the war is over, when we have won, when we have once more got international peace—what of Ulster? Is it to be peace or is it to be more war? We do not want any more war; we will have had enough of it.

"But we will have shown that our place in the Empire and the United Kingdom is no different from that of any other loyal community that constitutes that Kingdom. And when that time comes—although we have forgotten in our common sorrows all political differences of every kind—if any man dares to lay a hand upon the liberty we will have won I tell you that, if I am spared, I shall not hesitate once more to sound the reveille, and to ask our men once more to come forward and champion the cause for which their comrades have died. But that is the last thing I want. Let us be friends. Let that friendship arise from our common dangers and our common sacrifices, and let us when the war is over have real peace at home as well as abroad—a peace which will enable us to take our share in the great work of reconstruction which may bring home to all our people the blessings of civilization."

If you've heard of a new discovery for the treatment of coughs, colds and bronchitis, as certain in its action on all chest troubles as anti-toxin is on diphtheria, or vaccination on small-pox, wouldn't you feel like giving it a trial?

Peps is the discovery!

Peps are little tablets, containing certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapour, and are at once breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence their work of healing.

French Like Teddy.

"The French took keen interest in the American presidential election," Miss Ethel Thompson, a nurse in the American Hospital Corps, just returned from Neuilly, France, said recently to The Boston Post. "Teddy Roosevelt is to them almost a god. When his picture is flashed on a screen in Paris, it is given more applause than the picture of General Joffre. The French wanted Hughes to win. They were wildly enthusiastic when the first news came that he had won, and they were keenly disappointed when it was announced Wilson had defeated him."

BRITAIN SEES HERSELF

Evils Exposed by a London Journal Mercilessly

A special correspondent of the London Daily Mail wrote from Glasgow as follows: Mid-day scenes at off-license premises in the heart of Glasgow's business quarter throw new light upon the inquiry into the holding up of shipping and delay in the shipbuilding yards on the Clyde. There was a wild rush on the licensed grocers' shops for supplies to carry over two holidays. There is not a respectable citizen or responsible tradesman who does not deplore the discreditable scenes. Women poured in by tramway car and even on foot from far outlying districts and besieged the premises of licensed grocers who make a specialty of retailing bottles of spirits and wines at lower prices than are usually charged in the public houses. At a quarter to twelve the ordinary pavement traffic on one side of Renfield street was held up by at least 500 of these pilgrims.

So great was the crowd in front of one of these establishments that the police very prudently made it stand in the gutter, and a queue four-deep extended for fifty or sixty yards awaiting the opening of the doors. Women of all ages, from the tottering, grey haired beldame to the young wife with her baby in her arms, were there, and many were accompanied by children under twelve years of age. Although it was raining, a large proportion had not even shawls to protect their heads and shoulders.

In the line here and there was a man of the lowest loafer type, shabby and indifferently shod, who preferred to spend what money he could scrape together on cheap alcohol rather than on the more substantial bodily comforts of which apparently he stood in sore need. The decent passers-by with one accord exclaimed "How shocking!" and one woman who returned to expostulate and terminated her reproach with the words, "Don't you realise that we are at war?" provoked a torrent of insult and was told to go home, with the suggestion that she had there a bottle of her own.

Honesty is the best policy—for all your neighbours.

Some men seem to think that a woman's mission is submission.

Success in any enterprise consists largely in knowing when to quit.

ROYALTY'S CHRISTMAS

Very Interesting Incidents of Visit to Military Hospital

The King and Queen spent Christmas Day of 1916 at Buckingham Palace, and so broke a record of very many years' standing. Not within the recollection of the oldest Court officials has the Court spent this season in town. The Royal Family after luncheon visited King George's Military Hospital in Stamford street. As the programme included a presentation to every patient, the task of visiting all the wards on the five floors had to be divided among the royal party. The King took the wards on the fourth floor, the Queen the third floor, Princess Mary the first floor, Prince Henry the fifth floor, and Prince George the second floor. The joint labors of the royal party occupied about two hours.

The Christmas gift to every patient was "Queen Mary's Gift Book," published and sold in aid of the fund for her Majesty's Hospital for Disabled Soldiers and Sailors. But there were interesting ward gifts in addition. In wards "A3" and "A4" the King and Queen have each a bed, and in "A3" the King has a bed. To each of their own beds the King and Queen presented their photographs, and the King hung up his own pictures.

The King, the Queen and the Princess made a point of saying a cheery word to everybody. Their Majesties spoke in French to some French-Canadians and the King thanked a soldier of United States nationality for having volunteered. The King presented to Mr. Goschen, chairman of the hospital committee, a little gold souvenir which he suggested might be worn as a watch chain charm.

WILL OF ASQUITH'S SON

Made on Sheet of Notepaper at the Front

The will of Lieut. Raymond Asquith, eldest son of Mr. Asquith, left unsettled estate of the value of £8,189, of which £3,011 was net personality. Lieut. Asquith, who was 37 years of age and was serving with the Grenadier Guards, was a rising lawyer and a man of brilliant promise. He was killed while fighting in France in September, 1916. In his will, which he wrote himself on a sheet of notepaper headed 10 Downing Street, Whitehall, he gave everything which he might die possessed to his wife. He added: "Many of my friends would like books or other things of mine for remembrance. She will know what to give and to whom." The will was written a month before Lieut. Asquith was killed.

Bishop Visits Germany

Bishop Bury, the Anglican bishop for North and Central Europe, left England to visit British prisoners at Ruhleben. Since the outbreak of war the British Government have allowed five Lutheran pastors to visit German prisoners of war in England, but the Huns up till 1916 strictly forbade any visits from English clergymen. Dr. Bury had had more experience of travel than most bishops. When Bishop of Honduras he had to govern a diocese the coastline of which alone covered 1,700 miles.

As a protest for being fined, a Tottenham man resigned as a special constable and stopped his War Loan subscriptions.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Here is a dress that holds the palm for style and originality. It is in the popular straight line effect with the front in panel form, and gives every evidence that the designers exercise their skill to offer plenty of variety in the one-piece frocks that are so much in request.

Diversity in effect was produced in this model by adding side peplums. The designer, it would seem, is rather special on necks, according to the collar offered; although a bit distant, it is really fascinating. The button and loop decoration of the waist body is effective and embroidery on the peplums is a detail toward perfection. Full length sleeves are set in without fulness and cuffed to match the collar. The closing is at back with small buttons close together.

An elegant afternoon dress may be had by copying this design in charmeuse, satin or similar rich fabric, using chenille, silk floss or wool embroidery, if not beads. Broadcloth, serge, gabardine, wool poplin, &c., are excellent for a practical dress, with satin or broadcloth for the collar and cuffs and braid for embellishment. Although elaborate in detail, this dress is simple in effect and may easily be made at home.

The dress pattern, No. 8,134, cuts in sizes 36, 38 and 40 bust.

To make in size 36 requires 5⅝ yards 36-inch material; ½ yard 36-inch silk, or 4¾ yards 44-inch, all one material.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

PRINCE OF RAIDERS IS EARLESS PETER

Hindenburg Offered $50,000 Reward For Brilliant Russian—German Hosts In Terror

It is—not the Grand Duke Nicholas, nor General Brussiloff, who is the grimmest foe of Hindenburg. It is a man who has slipped like a wraith in among the German lines and done more damage than any of these generals. His name is Earless Peter, the guerilla king, and the Kaiser has offered a reward of $50,000 for his capture, dead or alive. Peter is said to be supernatural. He is able to be everywhere at once. No sooner had the German army discovered his depredations in one quarter, and thrown a cordon around a district, than he reappeared in another locality and makes things as uncomfortable as ever for the Teuton forces. All along the 1,000-mile front between the Baltic and Bukowina he ranges, busy with raids, cutting wires, tearing up roads and railways, spying—and always escaping in the nick of time. Altogether there are 50,000 guerrillas organized in about 300 brave bands with grim and relentless leaders. Bravest is the band of Earless Peter, and grimmest, most relentless of leaders, is Peter himself.

"No Quarter"

Earless Peter is in Russian Pietr Bezukhi. Both of Peter's ears exist and are painfully sound. Peter, in fact, can hear, smell, see, and feel with the abnormal intensity of a Pawnee. He is "earless" merely because he is deaf to appeals for mercy. Earless Peter's two brothers were killed at the battle of Krasnik, the first stiff fight between Russians and Austrians; and to-day Peter gives no quarter and asks for none. He slaughters no prisoners, but he refuses to take them. If an enemy wants to surrender, Peter gives him a fair fight, which often ends in the enemy going under, for Peter tolerates in his band only picked fighters. Peter is careful about his men's food, clothes, arms, accoutrements. Having private funds, he outshines in these details the hard-up rival guerrilla chiefs. He punishes ruthlessly any of his men who shirk or offend. In general, he shows himself as earless to Russian weaknesses as he does to the cries for quarter of German and Austrian foes.

A Merchant's Revenge

Peter obtained money from his rich father, a manufacturer of Smolensk. The father was in despair at the loss of two of his three sons who were killed in battle, and he gave their intended fortunes to Peter on condition the money should be spent in fighting Russia's invaders. Peter was much attached to his brothers. He went to Smolensk, prayed on his knees with his father, and vowed that he would slay 2,000 Germans and Austrians for each brother killed. This was a big order for a band numbering eighty. Peter began in winter near Dvinsk. His eighty men were in white uniforms or covered with sewn sheets; their boots were covered with white fur, and their rifles painted white, so that nothing but dark eye-slits showed.

Before the year was out Earless Peter and his gallant band had accounted for near upon 4,000 German troops. This extraordinary young man, who was less than two years previously a merchant leading a quiet life in a provincial town, has acquired all the habits and weaknesses typical of the Slav outlaw. He is religious, a drunkard, charitable, fierce, grim, frivolous, and pleasure-loving. He has done no military service, and as he could not get taken as a volunteer, he started a guerrilla corps of his own.

BRITAIN FINDS A PITT

Mr. Lloyd-George has torn aside the veil in Great Britain, and our neighbors are proceeding to solve their difficulties in their own way, which so often has been successful. The man of energy, as Mr. Lloyd-George has shown himself to be, has appealed to public opinion, and he has placed the problem before the public and the nation. An English speaker has said: "One does not wage war, and such a war as this, as though it were a game." Here is, in fact, the gist of the whole matter. In the grave periods of her national life Great Britain has always found a Black Prince, a Queen Elizabeth, a Cromwell or a Pitt, who has grasped like a sword the energetic soul of that noble people.—Le Figaro, Paris.

FAMOUS GENERAL SMUTS

The "Admirable Crichton" of South Africa

Soldier and statesmen, Jan Christian Smuts is the "Admirable Crichton" of South African affairs. He is a barrister, born in 1870, and a native of Cape Colony. Returning to South Africa after a singularly brilliant career at Cambridge, he became State Attorney to President Kruger, and in the Boer War commanded the burgher forces in Cape Colony, where he won great distinction as a dashing cavalry leader.

After the grant of responsible government to the Transvaal in 1907, he was General Botha's right-hand man, first in the Cabinet of that province and later in the Union Government. In the Union Ministry he filled with equal efficiency the offices of Colonial Secretary, Minister of Finances, and Minister of Defence. At the time of the great Syndicalist outbreak in Johannesburg in 1914 he took the drastic step of deporting to England without trial nine of its leaders. The prompt suppression of the De Wet rebellion was largely due to his firm hand, and he played a prominent part in the Southwest Africa campaign before going to East Africa. Smuts was always a keen student of world politics and a master of strategy.

A man whose appeal for exemption was dismissed by an English military tribunal, said he plated the scabbards and hilts of military swords and gilded naval swords.

It is easier to make a mountain out of a mole hill than it is to convince some people that they are wrong.

LONDON'S AMBULANCES

Volunteer Society Which Does Much For Wounded Soldiers

Among the myriads of ways in which England's people try to repay a little of the gratitude owing to the soldiers, and not the least trifling, is that chosen by the workers who have charged themselves with the duty of meeting the trains of wounded at London's main stations to convey the broken soldier in comfort and security to hospital. They call themselves the London Ambulance Column, and they owe their existence to the fact that when the war broke out few means for taking soldiers to hospitals were available.

When the first train of wounded and sick from the front arrived in London, the whole of the transport facilities at the command of the Column were two motor ambulances and a couple of private motor cars loaned by their owners. The wounded, other than those exceedingly bad cases, which the motors dealt with, were taken in store carts to various hospitals. So the organizers of the Column borrowed vehicles, and were presented with others, until they had 110 private cars at their disposal, and fifty ambulances, which have been presented to them.

Many cars are driven and kept in repair by the owners themselves, and they also undertake to supply all the petrol necessary for their running; other owners have loaned their cars and their chauffeurs to the Column, while still other cars are loaned without drivers—in which case they are staffed by the Column.

The drivers are all men ineligible for service. It would be impossible to employ women drivers, for the conditions of the work are arduous, and the hours frequently extensive. Sometimes it is necessary to take cases right out of London altogether, in the small hours of the morning, and the vitality of women would fail. The organizers of the Column, Mr. and Mrs. Dent, placed the whole of their private house at its disposal. Furniture has been warehoused to provide offices and store rooms for pillows and blankets; their garage has been turned into a repair shop, for the care of injured vehicles.

GIRLS' RUSHED MEALS

Only 25 Minutes For Lunch in English Recruiting Offices

"The inadequate mid-day meal intervals allowed to women clerks in Government Departments is having very serious results on many of the girls," said Miss Isabel Basnett, secretary of the Association of Women Clerks and Secretaries. An army instruction had been issued to sub-recruiting offices in the London area that only twenty-five minutes was to be allowed for the mid-day meal. If more is taken an hour's overtime pay each day is deducted.

"At the headquarters of the London District, at the Horse Guards, no mid-day interval is allowed at all. The girls work from 9 o'clock to 7.30, at the rate of $6.75 a week with 50 cents war bonus, for 42 hours, the remaining hours being compulsory overtime. A girl may work from 9 to 4 without an interval or from 9 to 5 with an hour off, and after 4 or 5 p.m., as the case may be, she begins her overtime. Many girls come to town by workmen's trains in order to save a few pennies, and they never leave their offices during the day, bringing food which they eat at their desks."

Size of Armies in 1066

Asking how many men there were in William the Conqueror and Harold's army during the Battle of Hasting, 1066, a correspondent learned that according to Creasy's account of the Battle of Hastings, William of Normandy set out with 50,000 knights and 10,000 soldiers of inferior degree. Harold's army is described as being "far inferior in number." Harold had just fought a costly battle with Harold Hardrada in the north of England; defeating the Norsemen who came in several hundred ships. Harold had to make a forced march south with a "small army" and practically no cavalry to meet the Norman Knights. Bulwer Lytton's "Harold" (a splendid story) says that the Norman army consisted of three divisions and the English army of two divisions.

A LUMBERMAN'S OPINION.

"I was troubled with palpitation of the heart and sleeplessness," writes Wm. Pritchard, Lumber Inspector, Lansdon Mills, Ont., "and used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food with very great benefit, as my whole system was strengthened and built up. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood and restores the feeble wasted nerve cells.

CHRISTMAS EVE SAW MANY CONSCRIPTED

Married Londoners Cheerful When "Called Up" Before Even Plum Puddings Were Tasted

Thousands of married men in London and the country left their homes in response to the army call-up, and they spent their Christmas learning to become soldiers. On the third Christmas of the great war the army authorities were not disposed to allow any sentimentality to delay the drafting of every available man into the army. In 1915 recruits who joined during or just before Christmas week were allowed to remain at home until the festivities were over.

But the war spirit of Great Britain has become sterner since then and the men who left their homes took their bad luck bravely and made up their minds to make the best of it. It was a brutal morning, a sickly fog leaking with dirty rainwater, and there was almost a look of Flanders about the streets. The recruits, with their coat collars turned up and the water trickling off their bowlers, accepted it all quite cheerfully, assembling before nine.

"Really is a War on"

"I never thought I should have been called up like this," said one man. "This is the sort of thing that makes you believe that there really is a war on. The wife and the kids didn't half make a fuss about it, but I told them that there were some fathers who did not spend last Christmas at home or the Christmas before either, and that it was about time that some of those who have been stopping at home all this while put up with some inconvenience." Another man was wondering what sort of Christmas dinner would be served out in the army.

No Cheering or Bands

The recruits had their belongings in small bags or brown paper parcels, and they left the recruiting offices in a tramway car. There was no band to play them off and no crowd to cheer them on their way. "Of course we are sorry to call up men on a day like this," said one recruiting officer. "In special circumstances a man can get extra grace if he has any domestic trouble in the home which requires his attention.

"The authorities are always very considerate in such cases, and you may be sure that men have not been torn from homes where their presence there is imperative." All over London the little groups of recruits were marching to the stations with railway warrants to destinations throughout the country.

YOUNGEST OF ADMIRALS

Daring Adventurous Kolchak Led Russian Black Sea Fleet

The commander of the Russian Black Sea fleet, Vice-Admiral A. V. Kolchak, who replaced Admiral A. E. Ebergard, was not only the youngest vice-admiral in Russia, but in the whole world. He was born in 1874, entered the naval service in 1891, and three years later was promoted to officer's rank. In 1903 Lieutenant Kolchak organized the expedition for the relief of Baron Tod and his companions from the yacht Zaria (Dawn), who had wintered in Rennet Island, and here in a simple whale boat with a crew of seven men he accomplished the crossing of the Arctic from the mouth of the Lena to Rennet Island and back. Having satisfied himself that Tod had perished, he removed part of his collections and memoranda. For his labors in exploring the ice of the Kara Sea and Arctic Ocean Kolchak was awarded a prize by the Academy of Sciences.

After receiving a series of military distinctions during the Russo-Japanese War for his share in the defence of Port Arthur, Kolchak from 1906 to 1912 worked on the Naval General Staff, only just instituted, and took a most active part in the organisation of the resuscitated Russian navy, but in 1908 and 1911 he interrupted his Staff activity to take command of the transport Vaigach. For two years before the war Vice-Admiral Kolchak commanded successively the torpedo boats Uzsuriets and Pogranichnik.

During the present war the distinguished military gifts and gallantry of this young officer attracted general attention and won for him a series of martial awards, including the Fourth Degree of St. George. On April 10th, 1916, Captain Kolchak was promoted to rear-admiral and confirmed in a high independent command in the Baltic, and two months later he was promoted to vice-admiral and Commander of the Black Sea fleet.

TURK CANNOT SURVIVE

"Out of Europe" Means Out of the World

An Italian publicist writes: The German Foreign Minister, Dr. Zimmermann, was quite right; the expulsion of Turkey from Europe means its dismemberment. When chased from Europe, where she is an invader, Turkey will not find herself at home in any other part of the world. Turkey is a hollow name, like Austria and Hungary; there is a Turkish tyrannical and criminal Government, in the hands of a minority of dishonest people of various extractions, who, through force and by means of misery, superstition, and ignorance, impose their hateful rule on the most tremendous mixture of different nationalities. But there is practically no Turkish nationality. Nowhere is the Turk in his own territory; nowhere is he liked. When European Turkey, Armenia, and Central and Northern Asia Minor become Russian, when Mesopotamia becomes English, Syria French, and Western and Southern Asia Minor Italian, there is no more room for the Turkish band of criminals, unless they prefer to fall from the frying pan of a European protectorate into the fire of the armed and centuries old hostility of the Arabs.

"It must be a war for the end of war," said the Bishop of Chelmsford.

ENERGY PERSONIFIED IS SALLOW GOURAUD

Pale-eyed, Lame, "Lion of the Argonne"—Lost Arm at Gallipoli—A Picture

What sort of men are the generals of France is a question of importance. Here is a picture of one: "The General invites you to dinner," said the staff officer who had accompanied us from Paris on our way to Verdun. We had stopped for the night at C., a small dark town on the Marne, where General Gouraud, who commanded the army of the Champagne, had his headquarters. During the Gallipoli campaign he was at the head of the French forces until an exploding shell carried away his right arm. Before that he had commanded in the Argonne during the guerilla warfare that went on in that wooded region the first winter of the war. He was then nick-named "The Lion of the Argonne." He is a soldier by profession and one of the best administrative minds in the French army.

No Display or Luxury

While the regular headquarters were being repaired, General Gouraud lived in a private house, very much as General Joffre had lived in a private house at the General Headquarters. We were admitted without ceremony by a soldier-butler. After 8 o'clock, when the General returned from his offices elsewhere in town he came directly into the parlor, and was introduced to each one of his guests, all foreign newspaper correspondents, with the exception of one, who was a Spanish Deputy.

General Gouraud gives the impression of being still a young man. He is not so tall, as one would expect from his pictures, being only of the average height of a Frenchman, but he stands very erect. He wears a full beard, but it is not so thick as photographs make it seem. It is long and scrawny. The skin is wrinkled and the complexion sallow, an effect of life in the tropics. What is most striking is the extremely pale blue eyes, being almost skim-milk colored. The expression in them, however, is one of force and resolution.

Dignity and Power

General Gouraud possesses a natural dignity that is independent of uniforms and decorations. In general, his appearance is very striking. It is evident he has suffered a great deal, but has overcome it by will power. He impresses one as a double six-cylinder energy put into a two-cylinder body, which, however, has to serve or "bust." His empty right sleeve, his limping walk, aided by a stout cane, and his sallow, wrinkly face, heighten this impression.

Saving $2,500,000 in a Day

Public attention has been directed to the urgent importance of greater economy in the consumption of meat, announces an English journal. It is pointed out that the present consumption of beef, mutton, pork and bacon by the civilian population amounts in value to close on $2,500,000 a day. A reduction of one-seventh—the equivalent of doing without meat of any kind for one day in each week—would mean a saving of $2,500,000 a week, even if prices did not fall as a result of the smaller demand. It is surely possible for everyone, by substituting other foods, to so re-arrange their meals as to reduce the amount of meat eaten by at least one-seventh.

Houses For Disabled Men

A scheme for building houses for totally disabled Worcestershire soldiers and sailors was inaugurated by the Mayor of Worcester, who has given a site in the city for the purpose. Similar houses will be built in other parts of the county.

The Germans at Liege deported Senator Magnette, a Grand Master of Belgian Freemasonry in whose house documents were found concerning German outrages.

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing quantities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FRENCH CAPTURE MANY PRISONERS

Sweden's Final Protest To Germany

Surprise Attack Nets Many Prisoners For French Forces

Paris Announces the Success of an Attack---"Whoever Dares Penetrate the Barred Zone Perishes" Declares German Press Bureau---American Ambassador Penfold Asks Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office What Attitude That Government Will Take on Submarine Warfare Question.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS (French Official Communique), February 20.—"Many prisoners" were captured in a surprise raid north of Flury and west of Waterville, the French War Office statement declared to-day.

In the Oise and Aisne regions there was considerable artillery firing, but elsewhere it was calm.

AMSTERDAM, February 20. — American Ambassador Penfield, at Vienna, has demanded of the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office what attitude that Government is taking on the submarine warfare, despatches from the capital declared to-day.

BERLIN, February 20.—"It must be repeated again, that whoever dares penetrate the barred zone perishes," declared the official government press bureau to-day, in a statement discussing British claims that the submarine war has failed.

LONDON, February 20.—The Newfoundland fishing schooners Mayola, 146 tons, and Dorothy, 57 tons, have been sunk, it is announced to-day.

GENEVA, Switzerland, February 20.—Appeal to the Poles in the newly proclaimed kingdom to enlist in the Polish army and fight under Austro-German banners for the new states has fallen on deaf ears, according to recent information brought from Warsaw by neutral and German visitors. The Poles have refused to fight under the Kaiser's standard.

Washington to Ask For a Safe Conduct

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, February 20. — This Government will shortly ask Turkey to obtain safe conducts from Austria and Germany for the passage of the United States naval collier Caesar and the gunboat Des Moines to Beirut, where about 1,000 Americans are awaiting transportation home.

WASHINGTON, February 20.—Major-General John J. Pershing, the latest man in the United States army to attain that rank, is expected here to-day to be given permanent command of the Department of the South, succeeding Major-General Frederick Funston.

Pershing automatically passed into temporary command of the Department with the death of General Funston.

COPENHAGEN, February 20:—The Swedish Minister at Berlin has been instructed to make formal protest to Germany with a demand for compensation for the loss by torpedoing of the Swedish steamer Varing.

Announcement to this effect was authorized to-day.

New York City Hall Is Stormed

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, February 20.—Crying "we want bread, we want bread," more than 300 women, bare-headed, scantily clad, their warmest garment being a shawl thrown about their shoulders, stormed up the steps of the City Hall here to-day, demanding relief from Mayor Mitchell from the high cost of food. The Mayor was not available.

Some declared their families were starving.

Most of the women carried babies, their faces showing the pinch of hunger, in their arms.

The women were headed by Mrs. Ida Harris and Marie Ganz, known as "Sweet Marie."

Marie Ganz was later arrested. The women eventually returned to their homes when promised an interview with the Mayor to-morrow.

Three Men Are Gassed In Ottawa Fire

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., February 20.—Three men are in a hospital gassed, and twenty-four suffering from fumes, in what is said to have been an explosion of crude oil in the National Mfg. Co. plant here shortly after noon to-day.

Causes The Government Some Concern

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20. — The formation of a coalition government under Premier Hughes of Australia, has caused some consternation in the Government camp here. Canada now occupies the unique position of being practically the only belligerent country which has retained intact and unchanged the ordinary party government which was in existence before the war. It is realized by the Government forces here that Australia's action will considerably strengthen the hands of the body of Canadians now advocating reconstruction along more national and less partisan lines.

The Ottawa Journal press, the Government's organ at the capital, voices fear of the precedent set by Australia, which is felt by the Government, and strives to anticipate the argument which may be based on Australia's action by pointing out differences in the respective situations.

CONSERVATIVES IN CAUCUS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, February 20. — The Conservative members of the Legislature were in caucus for two and a half hours to-day. In addition to the extension of the franchise to women and soldiers, it is understood the Government's Bill authorizing the appointment of a commissioner of agriculture was also the subject of debate.

REV. AARON SALTZMAN HAS RESIGNED HIS PETERBORO' MINISTRY

Mr. Saltzman Has Had Charge of the Peterboro' Hebrew Congregation Since Last July—Regrets Relinquishing the School Which He Established For the Children

RETURNS TO KANSAS

Rev. Aaron Saltzman has resigned his position as minister of the Peterborough Hebrew Congregation and will return to his former home in Kansas City, Missouri. The Rev. Mr. Saltzman has been in Peterborough since last July. He realized from the beginning the limitations of the local field but had hope that a church would be secured and the congregation augmented by new members. Some time ago the congregation had an opportunity to secure the building on Aylmer street formerly occupied by the Christian Scientists, but for some reason or other the project did not materialize. This had the effect of hampering the work which Rev. Mr. Saltzman had planned to do.

REV. AARON SALTZMAN
Minister of the Peterborough Hebrew Congregation, who has resigned and will return to his home in Kansas City.

Mr. Saltzman regrets leaving the children for whom he established a school. The children did well under his ministration and instruction, and Mr. Saltzman regrets having to leave them in the middle of their work.

"A person cannot sacrifice himself altogether," said Mr. Saltzman. "The field here is too small and the failure of the congregation to provide a church constitutes a big handicap. Mr. Saltzman has nothing but praise for the friendship that has been extended to him since coming to Peterborough. He desires to express his thanks to all his friends here irrespective of creed, and especially to the Florence family, whom Mr. Saltzman says he will ever remember for their kindness.

Mr. Saltzman will leave Peterborough some time this week. At present he is staying at 207 Simcoe street. He hopes to return to Peterborough some time in the future and find a church and the congregation well established. Mr. Saltzman promises to give a lecture should such a condition exist when he returns.

DR. GRENFELL'S WORK

This is the Week of the Annual Appeal on Behalf of the Labrador Mission

Once more the "Grenfell Week" has come. For the next six days either of our local papers will receive the annual offerings of the people of Peterborough for the work of the Deep Sea Mission. This is one interest in which we stand united. Dr. Grenfell and his workers are not supported by any single denomination. The doctor has given his life for the fisherfolk on the Labrador Coast. No mission has ever presented a greater responsibility or been more fruitful in results. The healing of the bodies of thousands has opened the way for spiritual healing among this lonely people in the Northern Wilds. So great has been the results that all over our land the people welcome the coming of "Grenfell Week."

There was a time when the people of Peterborough attempted to do their share by arranging a Festive Evening. Later the conviction came upon us that the cause was worthy of another kind of benevolence. The newspapers of our city were glad to contribute space and to receive the gifts of the people. The success of this plan has made it a permanent arrangement. This is the week—February 18th to February 25th. If you leave your offering early it will render a double service for its acknowledgement will keep the enterprise before the people.

This is a time of many offerings, but surely it is no person's plan to drop such an interest as this because of the multiplied calls of war time. No; these are not days of "changed giving," but of "increased giving." We have put our hand to the plough and will not turn back. In days to come when the clouds that now hang so low have lifted, we will be glad that we did not neglect the self-sacrificing workers of "The Deep Sea Mission."

Send your gifts to-day to the "Review or Examiner." They will be acknowledged by Mrs. James Wood, the Secretary-Treasurer. This appeal has the unanimous endorsement of the Peterborough Ministerial Association.—J. R. W.

DANCE INVADED BY OFFICERS OF 247th BATTALION

Recruiting Drive For Recruits For Peterboro' Unit is Being Energetically Carried On—Poolrooms Are Visited—Bandsman Walno Painfully Injured in Hockey Game —To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The 247th Battalion opened an energetic recruiting campaign in the city yesterday, and from now on the eligible young men of the city are liable to hear the summons to arms in many different forms. A recruiting squad is at work on the streets, pool rooms were visited yesterday, and Capt. Belton and other officers invaded the dance at the Conservatory of Music Hall last night and addressed the men present. Col. Ackerman remarked this morning that certain articles that have been appearing in a local paper were used by some of the young men approached last night as a reason for not joining the colours, and the commanding officer of the 247th stated that the articles in question were proving detrimental to recruiting. However, the 247th officers are sticking to their guns and are sparing no effort to bring men into the battalion. With the list of war-tried officers on the strength of the 247th, the Peterborough unit should appeal more strongly than any other battalion to the young men of this district.

Lance Sergt. Dan Douglas recently transferred from the 2nd Battalion, C. E.F. to the 247th Battalion, has been promoted to Co. Sergeant-Major in the 247th. Sergt. Major Douglas has seen much service at the front.

Bandsman Fred Walno, of the 247th Battalion Band, was the victim of a very painful accident in a hockey game between the Band and A Company of the Battalion yesterday. His hand was badly gashed by a skate, an artery being severed. Seven stitches were necessary to close the wound, and he will be on the hospital list for several weeks.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.:

Orders for Tuesday, February 20, 1917:

1. The following extracts from "District Memo" 3 M.D. 26-2-5, of February 16th, 1917, are published for information:

Fitting of clothing—C. E. F.

Officers commanding units will be held strictly responsible that the garments of all soldiers under their command are correctly fitted, and that the jackets, in particular, will be loosened up to permit the wearing of a Cardigan jacket and of such extra clothing being worn underneath in cold weather, and also to allow possible shrinkage of material."

The attention of officers commanding units and details is especially directed to this matter.

2. Duties:

Orderly Officer for Tuesday, Feb. 20th, 1917, Lieut. J. F. Strickland.

Next for duty, Wednesday, February 21st, 1917, Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

A. E. BRITTAIN,
Lieut., Adjutant.
247th O. S. Battalion, C. E. F.

Ottawa, Feb. 19.—According to an announcement by the Military Hospitals Commission to-day, there is now available in Canada accommodation for 2,955 convalescent soldiers in a chain of 29 institutions stretching across the continent. One of the latest additions to the list is the Ontario Government institution at Whitby, which can already accommodate 450. Accommodation is also in sight for 2,200 more convalescents, viz.: Whitby, additional 750; Guelph Provincial Government institution, 500; Halifax, main building of Dalhousie University, 200; Winnipeg, old Agricultural College, 600; Saskatoon, Y.M.C.A. building, 150. The actual number of convalescents under the Commission's care on February 3 was 1,930, besides 105 in other hospitals, and 1,021 out-patients. There is also accommodation for 620 cases of tuberculosis in thirteen sanitaria, is 394.

For bed, or "active" hospital cases which will begin to arrive from England shortly, at a rate of about 300 per week, accommodation has been secured for 1,589 in nineteen hospitals, from Quebec to Victoria. A clearing hospital for 550 men has been provided at Halifax, and accommodation for 2,225 more is being prepared at Montreal, Kingston, St. John, Halifax, Toronto and Winnipeg. The total accommodation for bed cases will thus be 4,364 to which 780 may be added by transferring four of the convalescent institutions to the "active" hospital class.

Total accommodation available or in sight for all classes of cases is 10,683, exclusive of the Quebec clearing depot, where there is room for 600. The number under the Commission's care is 3,563, including out patients.

134 Pairs of Socks Sent By Kitchener League To France

The Packing Committee of the Canadian Kitchener League wish to report that they shipped on Tuesday last 134 pairs of socks to the boys in the trenches. The League would be pleased to receive addresses of the boys in the different units so that every one in need might be remembered.

The following were the addresses shipped on Tuesday last:

Pte. J. P. Horton, 4th Can. Batt., 14th Platoon, B Co., France.

Gunner W. D. Doupe, 4th Sec., C. F. A., 2nd Div. Am. Coy., France.

Pte. P. Maynard, 15th Platoon, 52nd Batt., France.

Pte. V. E. Tobin, C. Co., 5th C. M. R.

Driver D. Coons, 26th Battery, 7th Brigade, C. F. A., France.

Pte. S. J. Curtis, 52nd Battalion, Grenadier Guards, France.

Pte. Robt. Sheridan, 5th C. M. R., France.

AMERICAN STEAMERS IN BARRED ZONE

LIEUT. WM. R. ELLIOTT, son of Mr. Wm. Elliott, Peterborough, and nephew of Mr. T. C. Elliott. As announced in the Examiner some weeks ago, Lieut. Elliott, who went overseas with the 109th Battalion, Lindsay, won the Military Cross at the front.

"Orleans" and "Rochester" Both Carrying Cargoes Held Contraband by Germany Are in the Path of the Submarines.

U. S. WAITING WORD

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:
(By Robert J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—America's real danger of clash with Germany cannot be removed until the Kaiser's government revokes its decree for submarine warfare. The detention of Americans in the Yarrowdale case and other issues, themselves admittedly serious, are regarded by the administration as practically collateral to the main proposition.

There was the highest authority for this statement to-day. More than two weeks have now passed without an "overt act," but officials were inclined to believe this might be due to the fact that there was scant opportunity for the commission of such an act, rather than to any purpose of Germany.

To-day, however, there are at least two unarmed American merchantmen in Germany's barred zone. They are the steamers "Orleans" and "Rochester." Both carry American crews. Both bear American cargoes held contraband by Germany.

Their safety from now until definite word of their arrival at port is made, will be the subject of the liveliest interest in officialdom.

In meanwhile, it is pointed out that in a great measure Germany has achieved, in part, at least, one of the main objects of her submarine blockade. She has kept American ships in American ports, due to fear of American skippers of sinking. Thus she has cut down on trade to the Allies.

LOCAL PENSIONS IN TWO DAYS AMOUNT TO A TOTAL OF $2,016

Wife of Private William T. Rowe of Lakefield, Receives $744 a Year For Herself and Four Children—Should Be Ample For Needs of Families

VOLUNTARY SYSTEM COSTLY

Another pension is announced to-day, the beneficiary being Mrs. M. A. Rowe, of Lakefield, wife of the late Private William Thomas Rowe, of the 93rd Battalion. The amount is for $744 a year, commencing from the 11th of October, 1916. This pension provides for Mrs. Rowe and four children, aged respectively, 8, 6, 4 and 2 years. Private Rowe went over to France with the first draft from the 93rd and was one of the first of the Peterborough battalion reported killed.

Mrs. Rowe, it is understood, will follow the demand of the Children's Aid Society and move to Peterborough, where the care of her children will be under the fatherly supervision of the Society. The children were recently taken in charge by the Society and are still at the Shelter.

Four Pensions in Two Days.

The pensions announced yesterday and to-day are as follows:

Mrs. J. E. Cross, Norwood	$888.00
Mrs. W. T. Rowe, Lakefield	744.00
Fred Long	288.00
R. J. Mahood	96.00
Total	$2,016

The first two pensions illustrate in their amounts the final cost of the voluntary system which accepts men with large families, while unmarried men remain behind to keep the home fire burning. Private Cross left seven children and Private Rowe four, and it is worthy of note that the pensions for these eleven fatherless children are apparently liberal enough to provide for their needs. When the boys reach sixteen years and the girls seventeen, their allowance, the pensions automatically terminate.

Women's Suffrage At Once

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO—It is understood that at the Conservative Government caucus to-day it was decided to introduce women's suffrage immediately.

PROGRESS.

ST. ANDREW'S PATRIOTIC SOCIETY GETS EMPIRE PROCEEDS WEDNES. AFTERNOON

Wednesday afternoon's proceeds to the Empire Theatre will be donated by Dr. F. L. Robinson to St. Andrew's Patriotic Society, under whose auspices the programme has been arranged. The first concert will be given at 3 o'clock and the second at 4.30. The programme will consist of a musical number by good local talent and a five reel Mutual production entitled "True Nobility," based on Tennyson's lines:

"Howe'er it be, it seems to me
'Tis only noble to be good,
Kind hearts are more than coronets
And simple faith than Norman blood."

This is an inviting bill and should attract a large attendance on Wednesday afternoon.

The 4.30 programme is for the convenience of the students of the Normal and other city schools.

Married Then Goes Under Knife of the Surgeon

Special to The Examiner:

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 20.—Immediately after the marriage to-day at Hotel Dieu Hospital, of John Morrison, Grand Trunk conductor of the Montreal-Chicago run, to Annie Moriarty, trained nurse of Brockville, the bridegroom had a serious operation on his hand, which was crushed between cars at Gananoque last Friday. Their wedding had been scheduled for to-day and both insisted that it be carried out. After he recovers they will have their honeymoon.

"Peterborough Prospects Possibilities Unsurpassed."

TUESDAY FEB. 20, 1917

THE MAYOR'S SYMPOSIUM.

The invitation issued by Mayor Duffus to "an informal dinner," on Thursday night, "to afford an opportunity for a number of citizens to meet and confer, and to give and receive suggestions as to the best policy and methods for advancing the city's interests," did not mention the hour.

The hour is 6.15 p.m., sharp. Sharp's the word. And it represents the object of the gathering. It needs sharp and prompt cooperation of Peterborough citizens pulling all together in a civic tug of war. One man does not know it all; nor does one set of men, and our aldermanic board is human in the limitations of its knowledge. It is the right step to get interested and thinking citizens together, to take counsel together, to evolve new ideas, or adapt old ideas to practical possibilities. If the gathering of next Thursday night at Hooper's palm parlours measures up to its possibilities, the occasion may be made of immense help to our Aldermen, whose desire to do the best for the city will be strengthened to practical ends by the advice and help and sympathy of public spirited citizens.

WAR TIME ELECTIONS.

A general election is on down by the sounding sea, to wit, in New Brunswick. Because it is brought on by a Conservative government is no reason for declaring it untimely, or launched at an inopportune time—a war time election. At first blush it seems to be a bad thing—it is likely to divert public attention from the work upon which it should be concentrated—the winning of the war; it would tend to create antagonism, which would put an end to the unity of action upon which persons of both parties and all parties, except the Nationalist wing of the Conservative party, is concentrated.

In the case of New Brunswick, a general provincial election does not subject a war time election to the objections that would have proper application to the wider scope of a Dominion general election. New Brunswick is one of the smallest provinces, about a 136th part of the Dominion, the area of New Brunswick being, in round figures, 28,000 square miles, and the Dominion 3,500,000, and the ratio of population is similar; so that if the little province is turned topsy turvy by an election, the scope of the disturbance will be limited.

Besides, it is to be considered that a general election there is, in one sense, a part of the big fight. The big fight is waged for right and justice, honesty and honest methods in international relations; the fight in New Brunswick is for right and for honest government. The record of the present government, Conservative, is one of considerable bad administration. The new premier, who is appealing to the people, Hon. James A. Murray, owes his promotion to the face that his predecessor, Hon Mr. Fleming, was virtually dispensed with by a Royal Commission, which found him guilty of extortion from railway contractors, and approving of the milking of timber limit holders to the tune of nearly $100,000. So that virtually the general election is a fight for honest methods in government, and promises to have a similar purifying effect to the recent war-time election in British Columbia.

CANADIAN POTATOES FOR CANADIANS.

The Examiner has persistently advocated, as the true national policy for this country, the policy of Canada for Canadians, especially in regard to the intensive exploitation of our natural resources at home—the manufacture or refinement to the virtually ultimate form of every ounce of our national, natural resources and production. The refinement of all our minerals at home, the manufacture to the form of paper of all our pulp products, and the grinding into flour of all our wheat, as far as possible, is an alluring aim of policy. The reason for this is the greater value we would receive from the employment of labour and capital, increasing the value of articles many times over, and leaving, in the country, immense sums for wages and incidental supplies to increase the total of home wealth.

The Examiner has instanced particularly pulp wood; and has called upon the Government to see that the export of pulp and paper should be limited in a way to provide for an adequate supply for home purposes, with the double object of avoiding a paper famine, and the production of inordinately high prices. The Government deserves credit for having taken the right action. A press despatch informs us that the Government has taken measures to insure an adequate home supply of paper, and, incidentally, the government deserves approval for having taken ground against wholesalers and producers dictating the price at which retailers must sell their products, in order to keep prices at a high level.

But the Government has neglected, and is still neglecting its duty, in the matter of potatoes, the most important and most widely used food supply. We know there is scarcity; it is reflected in the outrageously high prices. This condition has lasted for months and is continuously growing more vexatious; yet the Government has not seemed to pay any attention. It could, as it very properly has done in the matter of pulp or paper, restrict the exportation of pulp and paper; it could still do the same with potatoes. Considering the shortage and high prices the Government might have promoted importation from abroad by removing the duty of from 12 1-2 to 20 cents per bushel. The high prices for food would have justified this action, as it would have justified the Government to relax its rules to allow the importation of margarine. But it has been obdurate.

The Government is gravely to blame for its failure to deal with the potato situaiton, which it might have done, with good excuse, under the circumstances by forbidding their export. Within the past five months, according to a Government report, Canadian potatoes, to the value of nearly a million and a half dollars, have been shipped out of Canada to Cuba, as shown in a despatch from Ottawa, printed in yesterday's Examiner. In one week $21,508 sacks and barrels of New Brunswick poptatoes went out of Canada to Cuba. "These shipments," the Government official report says, were sold for $136,552, at Havana," (which the infidel Review is informed is the capital city of Cuba), "and," the report adds, "are the most valuable Canadian shipments of potatoes that ever arrived in one week."

With potato scarcity in Britain and almost as bad scarcity in Canada, it seems to be nothing short of criminal for a government which has the power to prevent it, permitting Canadian potatoes to be shipped to a foreign country. The million and a half dollars' worth of Canadian potatoes shipped to Cuba, if they had been kept at home and distributed amongst Ontario people, would have been a veritable God-send. It is not too late for the Government to take action—if there are any potatoes left in Canada.

But if the Government is blessed with as much blunder-head scepticism as the Review, it will not believe even the report of its own agent at Havana, who formally asserts that within five months there had been shipped to Cuba 200,000 sacks and barrels of Canadian potatoes, which were sold for upwards of $1,400,000.

WHO DOCTORS HIMSELF IS UNWISE.

As a result of the season and the sort of weather we have been having, affections of the respiratory organs and channels are just now prevalent in this city and vicinity. In many cases these maladies are serious, and in all they have serious possibilities. Unfortunately they are just the maladies which, especially in the beginning, most people who do not ignore them as much and as long as they can, think themselves competent to treat without the assistance of a doctor.

Everybody knows something that is "good for a cold." By no means all of this knowledge is valueless, else, probably, would the race have been extinct long ago. But for the proper use of most of the popular remedies there is need of more discrimination than is commonly possessed, and not infrequently treatment that is commendable in itself becomes quite contrary unless incidental risks are understood and guarded against. It is to be regretted, too, not that information as to scientific medicine and its armamentarium is now more widely diffused among the public than it used to be, but that too often the extent of its acquirement is exaggerated in the minds of those to whom some of it has come. In consequence of that, powerful drugs too often are taken or administered by "laymen" who know their effects, or some of their effects, in a general way, but are quite ignorant of the perils that accompany their benefits and of the precautions that must be taken to restrict or modify their action.

These amateur doctors will not learn the lesson there is for them in the fact that when a real doctor is ill he realizes that he is not in a condition to prescribe for his own woes, and gets another real doctor to do it. Practice and theory in this matter are not always in accord, but when they are not, it is the practice not the theory, that is wrong.

Especially should the untrained abstain from doing themselves with any of the new synthetic drugs. Some of them are so much more dangerous than others that the others pass for harmless, and are sold so freely as flour or salt. In reality, however, even the most innocent of the lot need the sort of watching that only th physician can give, and the chances are that when they do no harm in inexpert hands they do no good. Meanwhile, precious time is wasted and cure is made more difficult.—New York Times.

WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES HAVE NETTED MORE THAN A MILLION

The sale of war savings certificates in small denominations has in three weeks realized for the Dominion treasury more than $1,000,000. This is a good record, although apparently a marked demand for the certificates is not equally common to all parts of the country. The Dominion government's advertising of these securities, while a trifle conservative in its tone, considering it must appeal to the masses, is undoubtedly directing considerable attention to the certificates.

A substantial volume of sales will not likely be made, however, unless the co-operation of employers and employees in general. According to Ottawa despatches, there is a tendency for manufacturers and other large employers of labour, to encourage their employees to save and to invest in the war savings certificates and so aid their country in carrying out its part in the war.

Some firms are said to have decided to pay their bonuses in war savings certificates instead of in cash. Others have arranged to act as bankers for employees who wish to put by money for the purchase of the certificates. In other places of business, again, groups of men have adopted a system whereby each shares the cost of buying a war certificate a week and each in turn receives the certificate. In such ways as these will the sales reach a substantial aggregate.

In connection with the British "Victory" loan, the subscriptions to which close to-day, the National War Savings Committee drew the attention of all employers of labour, who were considering schemes for enabling their employees to make investments in the 5 per cent. war loan by instalments, to the facilities afforded by the Post Office Savings Bank for the purpose. In such cases the employer could invest a lump sum on behalf of his employees, who will repay him by instalments, as may be mutually arranged, and the Post Office Savings Bank will, at the direction of the employer, transfer the stock to the names of the individual employees in such amounts as may be desired. In connection with the previous British war loan, many employees were thus enabled to acquire holdings, which otherwise they would have been unable to secure.—Monetary Times.

Cheap Tea Not Economical!

Many people complain about the poor flavor of the cheap tea they are using, but are trying to put up with it because they think they are saving money.

In reality, cheap tea is rarely more economical, often less economical, than Red Rose Tea.

While Red Rose Tea may cost a few cents more, or even 10 cents more per pound, than common tea three teaspoonsful of Red Rose Tea are equal to five teaspoonsful of common tea.

Less Red Rose Tea is required in the tea pot, because this master blend of Indian-Ceylon teas consists largely of the famous hill grown teas of Assam, India.

These Assam teas excel in vigor, richness and strength. Their leaves yield more liquor and a fuller flavored liquor. Blended with Ceylons they make the ideal tea for flavor and economy.

Try a sealed package of Red Rose Tea and keep count of the extra number of cups it yields in comparison with cheap teas. You will find that Red Rose is worth every cent asked for it—and that it costs no more to use this delightful tea,

Portugals's Aid To Allies

10,000 Workers to Go to France in Addition to an Army.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Portuguese troops are probably now fighting side by side with French, British, and Belgian soldiers on the western front, if the republic's formal decision to dispatch an expeditionary corps to France has been put into effect as quickly as indicated in the wording of the proclamation announcing that fact signed by President Bernardino Machado and the members of his Cabinet and published in the Diario do Governo on Jan. 17. Already on Aug. 19, 1916, Major Norton Mattos, the Portuguese Minister of War, announced that Portugal was about to send troops to France, but the activities of the pro-German and Monarchist element in the republic which culminated in some sporadic revolts against the Government in November and December seem to have delayed their departure. In its proclamation the Government says:

"The departure of the first expeditionary corps is about to be effected. For the first time in a hundred years the flag of Portugal will again wave over the battlefields of Europe. It is rather early to estimate the possible advantages of the attitude assumed by Portugal toward the European conflagration. Of one thing, however, it may be entirely sure. And that is of having shown itself a people worthy of the traditions of its past and of its hopes in the future, worthy of the noble civilization of which it forms a part and in which the ideas of right and justice are sacred and inviolable.

"This war has already been called the war of the small nations, and that is correct, because all German imperialism knew how to do was to weaken small peoples. Portugal is one of those small nations, with deep historical roots and a colonial patrimony conquered through heroism which has been of great benefit to humanity. Portugal defends its life and its patrimony. For this it will spill its blood to the last drop, whose patriotism and valor repose

"The Portuguese Government salutes the soldiers about to depart. It salutes the army and navy in the security of the mother country. It salutes the nation. The honour of representing the nation in this supreme moment of the national existence is enough to compensate it for the bitter features of the mission which it has been called upon to fulfill."

The Lisbon newspapers do not give any exact figures regarding the size of the expeditionary force, but as far back as Oct. 7, A Capital of that city printed data on the work of mobilization and training, showing that there were nearly 120,000 men ready to take the field on short notice. The commander of the expeditionary corps is General Fernando Tamagnini de Abreu e Silva, and his chief of staff is Major Roberto da Cunha Baptista.

Besides sending troops to France, the Portugueses government is facilitating the efforts of the French authorities to list workers in Portugal for service in the munition factories of the sister republic up to the number of at least 10,000. O Mundo reports that in so doing, however, the Portuguese authorities have taken great care to see that only men above 32 years of age go to France for this work, and that those who go are to get good wages and be well cared for by their French employers.

In the meantime the scarcity of food, coupled with its high cost, is making life very difficult for the poorer classes in Portugal, and the press is demanding that the authorities take still more dratic measures to curb the profit lust of some of the bakers and provision dealers. Print paper is also very scarce, and many of the newspapers appear to be on the verge of suspension.

WAR HITS THE MIDDLE CLASS

BERLIN, Feb. 18. — According to a report to the General Committee of the Prussian Diet, the class of taxpayers hardest hit by the war is that with a yearly income of $750 to $1500. The number of these has decreased remarkably during the last two years. They represent the large middle class in Germany.

The lower classes of taxpayers have increased greatly.

Very large fortunes seem to remain almost untouched by the war. The wealthiest man in Prussia, who is not named, is taxed for a yearly income of 25,000,000 marks (nominally $5,950,000.)

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Use "Tiz" for tender, puffed-up, burning, callousedfeet and corns

People who are forced to stand on their feet all day know what sore, tender, sweaty, burning feet mean. They use "Tiz," and "Tiz" cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. "Tiz" is the only remedy in the world that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet and cause tender, sore, tired, aching feet. It instantly stops the pain in corns, callouses and bunions. It's simply glorious. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel after using "Tiz." You'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't tighten and hurt your feet.

Get a 25-cent. box of "Tiz" now from any druggist. Just think! a whole year's foot comfort for only 25 cents.

Sketch of W. E. Traill of Hudson Bay Service

A Native of Peterborough, and a Son of the Late Catharine Parr Traill, the Noted Nonogenarian Authoress

In a recent issue of the Manitoba Free Press appears a tribute to the "Four Peacemakers and pioneers who took part in the transformation of the Great Lone Land, who have of late passed beyond the vale." Amongst these is one who possesses an interest for Peterborough people, because he was born and educated here. Reference is made to William Edward Traill, who died, at his fine farm at Meskanaw, in the Brince Albert District, on January 14th, 1917. The late Mr. Traill, born and educated here, with a large share of the literary ability associated with the names of Traill, Moody and Strickland, was a son of the late Catharine Parr Traill, the noted authoress, whose ninety-eight years of distinguished life was reached in intimate association with Peterborough and this district. He was also a brother of Miss Traill and Mrs. Atwood, Lakefield. He leaves two sons, Walter Traill, Big River, Manitoba, and Capt. William MacKay Traill, enlisted at Winnipeg, for overseas service, with a Boer War record, with the Strathcona Horse; and two grandsons, both in the forces, one in the trenches at the front, and one in training. The late Mr. Traill's biographer in the Free Press, says of Chief Trader Traill of the Hudson Bay service:

"He was my most intimate friend from 1867 to 1869, while we served the Hudson's Bay Company together on the great buffalo plains. Stationed at different posts, we only met occasionally, at intervals which formed red letter days in our solitary lives in the Great Lone Land. In 1869 he was transferred from the plains of Swan River district to those of the Saskatchewan. After passing scathless through the many dangers of that period on the plains, at Port Pitt, in the spring of 1870, he was nearly decapitated by an axe in he hands of a French half-breed, who stealthily attacked him from behind in revenge for punishment meted out for mutinous conduct.

Traill lingered long between life and death, and only the devoted nursing of his wife at length restored him. When able to return to duy, he was appointed to establish a farm and a store in the settlement of Prince Albert, which a few years previously had been begun a Presbyterian mission by the Rev. James Nisbet. This charge was probably intended as a recognition of Traill's meritorious services as a fur-trader, but he was a farmer at heart, having had experience in the art before leaving Lakefield, Ont., to join the Company's service.

A Post of Danger.

Before he had well got under way at Prince Albert he was called upon to take charge of Carlton House, the chief trader there having suddenly decided to visit civilization. The change, however, gave Mr. Traill a post of danger which he nobly filled as is fittingly recorded in the report made March 10, 1871, by Lieutenant (afterwards General) W. F. Butler, to the lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, which is appended to the famous book, "The Great Lone Land," specially mentioning Traill in the following words:

"The circumsances attending the progress of the epidemic at Carlton House are worhy of notice, both on account of the extreme virulence which characterized the disease at that post, and as also no official record of this visitation of smallpox would be complete which failed to bring to the notice of your excellency the undaunted heroism displayed by a young officer of the Hudson's Bay Company, who was in temporary charge of the station. At the breaking of the disease, early in the month of August, the population of Carlton numbered about 70 souls. Of hese 32 persons caught the infection, and 28 persons died. Throughout the entire period of the epidemic the young officer already alluded to, Mr. William (Edward) Traill, laboured with untiring perseverance in ministering to the necessities of he sick, at whose besides he was to be found both day and night, undeterred by the fear of infection, and undismayed by the unusually loathsome nature of the disease."

It is noteworthy that nearly all of the sick he so unselfishly attended were of the same race as his would-be murderer at Fort Pitt.

Returning, after the plague had abated, to Prince Albert, he devoted himself to the Company's farm, till a good officer being required to manage the important trading post at Lesser Slave Lake he was transferred to and remained for a number of years there, to the advantage of both the Company and the natives. By this time he had been promoted to the position of Chief Trader, and had become a "wintering partner" of the big concern.

New Caledonia.

From his pleasant post at Lesser Slave Lake he was ordered across the Rockies to take the management of the difficult New Caledonia district. With all his devotion to the Company's interests, the new task was more than he could tolerate, and after a total of over 30 years of faithful service, he applied for permission to retire on the limited half-pay of a chief trader, at which rank he had remained while men of entirely inferior merit had been raised to higher grades.

Like so many other pioneers of Rupert's Land, Traill was of Orkney origin paternally. A scion of the family of a long line of lairds of the name, his father came with other officers of the army disbanded after Waterloo, to Upper Canada. His mother was one of the literary family of Stricklands.

Mr. Traill made a very happy marriage and to him and his good and faithful wife (daughter of the universally respected and popular Factor William McKay of Fort Ellice and Fort Pitt) was born a worthy family of sons and daughters, who all survive him. They and other intimate friends may be comforted with the recollection of him as a progressive pioneer, who amid all danger and temptation, passed through life a brave and blameless Christian gentleman.

WOMEN FEEL LIVING'S COST.

Dependents of German Soldiers in Switzerland Want Larger Allowances.

How the steady increase in the cost of living has forced the women dependents of German soldiers living in Switzerland to organize for the purpose of trying to compel the Government to raise their war time allowances is described as follows in a recent issue of the Basle Vorwartz:

"What we saw coming a long time ago has finally occurred. The soldiers' women dependents are in revolt against the wholly insufficient relief that they receive from their home Governments. Due to the constantly rising cost of living their scanty allowances become less and less adequate and want and misery are becoming unendurable. All attempts by individual women to obtain an increased allowance are roughly blocked at the consulates, particularly the German. If their allowances no longer suffice, the women ought to go back to Germany. This is the consolation they receive at the consulate. That is the thanks they get, after their men have fought for thirty months on the battlefields of Europe.

"At a meeting of some fifty women relatives of soldiers held on Thursday it was decided to begin a systematic agitation among the other women suffering from the shortage of allowances for the purpose of forcing an increase in the relief given by the consulates. The Central Labour Secretariat has taken charge of the work and will organize it systematically."

The New Home Treatment For Ugly, Hairy Growths

(Boudoir Secrets)

Here is a simple, yet very effective method for removing hair and fuzz from the face, neck and arms: Cover the objectionable hairs with a paste made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. Leave this on for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. No pain or inconvenience attends this treatment, but results will be certain if you are sure to get real delatone.

JULE AND JAY J. ALLEN PRESENT

The CANADIAN ARMY in Action and the Advance of THE TANKS

The Official Moving Pictures Of The Battle Of COURCELETTE

BEGINNING THURSDAY and continuing throughout the week of February 22-24 inclusive, the official moving pictures of the Canadian War Records Office will be presented by The Empire Theatre.

An extraordinary attendance is expected, as these pictures transcend in interest the "Battle of the Somme." All reports from England unite in declaring them to be the most successful moving pictures of the war yet secured, being thrilling, close-up—d aringly so—and remarkably clear and distinct.

The Empire Theatre will be the scene of the presentation of these pictures in Peterborough, and the doors will be open matinee and evening. The film is 5,000 feet long, and from first scene to last will occupy about one hour and a quarter on the screen. Those who can possibly do so should come during the afternoon, as the rush of those who are busy until 6 o'clock is expected to be unprecedented.

While the film as a war film is the best yet, in addition it has two special features—for us and for all the world.

FIRST—THE CANADIANS.

This is the first moving picture of the Canadian army in France, actually engaged in battle. It shows the Canadians in the attack of September 15-16 last, when, in conjunction with the imperial forces, they swept the Germans out of their fortified trenches and villages on a total front of 29 miles and to a depth ranging up to six miles—the greatest gain of any single British operation during the war. The faces of the men will be recognizable in thousands of cases by people in Peterborough and throughout Canada. Children will see their "daddy," parents will see their boys—there will be friends, neighbours, sweethearts and relatives of the men on the screen in every theatre in Canada where the pictures are shown.

SECOND—THE TANKS.

This is the first moving picture to reach this country showing the tanks—those wonderful new engines of war which the British threw into the battle on September 15 last. They were distributed along the line of attack where it was known the German lines were strongest and opposite the machine gun fortifications of the villages. Several of them were apportioned to the Canadian section, and the film shows them in action with our own soldiers. The world has wondered what sort of a thing a tank was. Peterborough, Toronto, Montreal and Ottawa will see them on the screen simultaneously for the first time on this side of the Atlantic. The moving pictures show them in action, crossing No Man's Land, anad scaring the Germans out of their dens in the trenches.

Tank Crossing a Shell Hole. Photographed on the Field of Battle.

Beginning Thurs., Feb. 22, Daily, Matinees and Evenings.

RECIPES WORTH KEEPING AT HAND

A hot meat dish in the middle of the day is most welcome during cold weather, when the body demands heating food. And yet the housekeepr objects to having a meat dish both at noon and in the evening, partly because an excess of meat is unwholesome and partly because it is expensive. Here is where the meat "extras" are a solution as they provide the basis for an appetizing meat flavoured dish, minus the exptnse of heavy protein value of steak or roast.

Meat extras, so-called, are the liver, heart, kidney, tongue and also sausages, and while all of these items are not cheap they are used in smaller quantities than meat and hence their total cost for a meal is less. The best liver is calves' liver, and can serve for several meals in an average family. However, usually the butcher is willing to cut the liver and sell it by the pound or in any quantity desired. Beef liver is larger than calves' liver, has a stronger flavour, and is not quite so tender, but it costs less; and pigs' liver is the cheapest of all.

Grapefruit.
Liver Curry. Parsnips.
Hot Rools.
Tea. Apple Amber.

Liver Curry.

Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and when hot add liver cut in small pieces, cooking for five minutes. Then add two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-half of small onion, sliced, one tablespoonful of curry powder, salt, pepper, cayenne.

Cook two minutes, then add one cupful of stock, allow to boil, and then pour over toast.

Parsnips.

Boil parsnips in plenty of water, cook till tender, drain and mash fine. Add a generous lump of butter, salt and pepper to taste and three boiled potatoes and mash all together. Add rich milk.

HIS COUGH EXPELS LONG MISSING TOOTH.

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 20. — In a violent fit of coughing Assemblyman George Blakely ejected from his throat a hard rubber plate, which had been lodged in his thorax for some nine months.

While he was making a political speech last May Assemblyman Blakely's artificial tooth and the plate holding it in place became dislodged and slipped into his throat.

All efforts to dislodge it failed, and the Assemblyman's voice was so affected that he could speak only with difficulty and had to abandon his campaign, although he was re-elected for his fourth term.

When the obstruction was removed Mr. Blakely recovered the full use of his voice. He and his family and friends are happy over the outcome.

Whatever your trials and disappointments, keep them to yourself; they only worry your friends and vex those who have no claim upon your confidences. Keep a bright face, a cheerful word and a hopeful heart. Carry in your bearing the dignity of self-esteem and let the air of prosperity fit you like a garment. Extend to the world a cordial hand, and remember that life is for the most part what we make it.

Two Cases of Eczema and How They Were Cured

Further Proof That Dr. Chase's Ointment is a Positive Cure For Chronic Eczema

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is not to be classed among ordinary salves and ointments.

By actual curing itching, stinging eczema in many thousands of cases it has stood the most severe test to which any ointment can be put.

Mr. J. Brice, Temperance road, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just a line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She has been suffering from eczema in her head for two years, and has spent no end of money with doctors and for ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this Ointment the trouble has left her entirely, so we have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment."

Mrs. W. G. Dowden, Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suffered with eczema on my hands, and for eighteen months was so bad that I could not use a needle to sew or do anything. I could scarcely dress myself. Though I had lots of salves from doctors, I could never get much benefit from them. Then I sent for a sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found it very different in action. It was not long before my hands began to heal, and four 60c. boxes made them well. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, and frequently give some to others to get them using it, for I know that it will cure."

In the home Dr. Chase's Ointment is of almost daily usefulness, for by relieving chafing and irritation of the skin it prevents eczema and similar itching skin diseases. Applied to all cuts and wounds, it prevents blood poisoning and heals the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

SPRUNG SECOND WEDDING ON SURPRISED PARTY

When Cupid was bombarding the home of Miss Marie Lenore Taylor, of New York, her brother, John Charles Taylor, of the same address, formed an alliance with the little god to try his archery against the home of Miss Dorothy Madden Ratcliffe, granddaughter of the late Peter De Lacy.

It all came out as plain as day when Miss Taylor, with Miss Ratcliffe and her bridesmaid, and Thos. Murray Quinn, jr., of New York city and Lexington, Ky., with John Charles Taylor, brother of the bride-to-be, as best men, marched into the Church of the Holy Trinity, in West 82nd street, to be married. When the ceremony had been performed by the Rev. Terence E. Gilmartin and everybody who had a right to do so was getting ready to kiss the bride, John Charles Taylor and Miss Ratcliffe stepped up to the altar, and Father Gilmartin again started to read the marriage service.

He read it right through, and Mr. Taylor and Miss Ratcliffe answered him when it came their turn to say anything.

Meanwhile the new bride and the new bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Quinn, and all the wedding party looked on in astonishment. Nothing like this marriage had been expected. Were they pleased? Mightily. For years Miss Ratcliffe and Miss Taylor were great friends. Now they are sisters.

It developed that Mr. Taylor and Miss Ratcliffe have witnessed much of Mr. Quinn's courtship. It sounded good. They liked each ober immensely, and they tried the thing which Mr. Quinn persisted in doing and which is commonly called 'making love.' When the date of the wedding of Miss Taylor and Mr. Quinn was fixed, Mr. Taylor and Miss Ratcliffe decided that they would surprise every one by getting married immediately afterward. Only Father Gilmartin was in on the secret. He kept it. That was why he was the only person in the Church of the Holy Triniy who was not surprised when the second marriage took place.

Mrs. Quinn and Mr. Taylor are children of John C. Taylor. She is a niece and he a nephew of the late Right Rev. Matthew A. Taylor, of New York City. Mrs. Taylor is a daughter of Mrs. Alice Ratcliffe of 310 West 86th street, and a granddaughter of the late Peter De Lacy.

ASSEMBLY HALL

Mr. Robert McClintock and Mr. James McMullen of Toronto, two preachers of Christ's Gospel who have been in these parts for the last few weeks "preaching peace by Jesus Christ He is Lord of all," unexpectedly arriving in the city yesterday morning from Campbellford, will conduct a special meeting in the above hall on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and on Thursday and Friday at the same hour, and on Sunday night at 7 o'clock will preach the Gospel. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come to these meetings and hear the word of the Lord. All the Lord's people in the city are specially invited on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The Assembly Hall is on the first floor of the old Opera House Building, George street, and a hearty welcome awaits all who care to come.—Com.

Fashions of Women Pernicious To Virtue

MONTREAL, Feb. 20.—"Extravagance in living has assumed alarming proportions," says Archbishop Bruchesi in an Episcopal or Lenten letter which was read in all the Catholic churches of the Montreal diocese Sunday, "while no one can deny that frivolity and indecency are so rampant that healthy morals and Christian sentiments protest. We have condemned feminine fashions which nothing can excuse, and whose effects cannot be other than pernicious to virtue and if they have disappeared somewhat from our churches they persist elsewhere to contempt of good taste and correct living."

The archbishop's letter also condemns attendance at theatres where questionable plays are given, and "questionable dances in hotels where amusements are the means of attracting profitable custom."

Slackers Buy Veterans' Bottons

Slackers Pay as High As $200 — A Criminal Offence.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 20.—The latest in Ottawa is to buy a returned soldier's button. Prices rule as high as $200, and the Returned Soldiers' Association is taking steps to investigate the extent of the traffic. A few cases have been alleged where men have come home are in need of ready money and have not hesitated to sell their buttons to slackers.

This is a criminal offence, punishable by three years' imprisonment, and if the parties can be located the law will be applied to the limit.

There are signs of a revival in the sheep industry in the Eastern States. The first thing in order is the making of more stringent dog laws.

Be sure that the colts are coming into winter quarters fat and hearty. A little grain every day in a box in the pasture will accomplish this end in a very economical way.

URGE GERMANS TO SELL GOLD

Germans Also Asked to Dispose of Their Jewels.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 20.—The Nord Deutsche Algemaine Zeitung of Berlin prints prominently an appeal to the president of the German Imperial Bank for all German men and women to sell their gold valuables to the Imperial Bank and dispose of all jewels held by them in neutral countries through a dismond agency.

The appeal says the sacrifice of gold and jewels which the bank demands form a part of the necessary supply work, but that all classes do not fully recognise the necessity of this further sacrifice.

The president in his appeal adds that he does not yet need to demand the sacrifice of gold ornaments of especial historical, artistic, or ethical interest, but he does require all gold ornaments outside this category.

SASKATCHEWAN'S CRIME DECREASED WITH PROHIBITION

Interesting figures regarding the working of the liquor laws of Saskatchewan, and the result of their operation, are contained in a report furnished Mr. H. C. Brodie, of the Dominion Textile Company of this city, in a report by W. F. Gold, Inspector under the administration of the Saskatchewan Liquor Act.

Commenting on the comparative statistics which follow, an explanatory note says:

"Years for comparison cover 1913-13-14-15 and 16. It has been thought wiser to take a period of time rather than make comparison between one year and another until these years fall into three distinct periods, 1912-13 were years of great prosperity; 1914-15 were years of depression, together with the effects felt from the war, whereas 1916 was the year during which our Liquor Act became operative.

In all these different years here mentioned the statistics given are for six months only, namely, July 1st to December 31st. It is therefore noted that statistics show actual convictions only. The number of arrests will be found greatly in excess of the number of convictions given.

ACID IN STOMACH SOURS THE FOOD

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion.

A well known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion is nearly always due to acidity — acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases, which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Pedigree counts in the selection of live stock, but to pedigree must be added performance. A cow of illustrious lineage which does not make good at the milk-pail might as well be a scrub.

"LONG AND NOT AN EASY ROAD" HELFFERICH WARNS GERMANY

LONDON, Feb. 20.—Dr. Karl Helfferich, German Imperial Vice-Chancellor, speaking at a plenary meeting of the German Agricultural Council is quoted by Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent as saying:

"England's war of starvation has from the first brought clearly before the eyes of the German people the fact that Germany stands or falls with its agriculture. Owing to the activity of the submarines and the failure of the harvests, England, too, is thrown back upon her agriculture, and while I believe the English farmer will do his utmost to meet the situation, I prophesy his failure."

Regarding the submarine campaign, Helfferich declared: "We considered the matter carefully and have dared. We are certain of success, and will not allow that success to be wrested from us by anything or anyone."

After appealing for fresh efforts by the agriculturalist, he added: "Until the next harvest comes there is still a long and not an easy road to travel. Even the best economic plan for the next year and the most stubborn work and sacrifice on the part of the farmer for the coming harvest do not relieve us of the iron necessity of managing for a number of months with what we have in hand."

SUB CREW ATTRACTED BY THE LAW'S CARGO

ROME, Feb. 20. — Captain McDonough and the crew of the American schooner Lyman M. Law, recently sunk by a German submarine, arrived in Rome on Friday evening, and were interrogated at the American Embassy. Captain McDonald repeated the story of the sinking of the schooner, adding that the vessel had a large supply of canned goods, especially meat, chickens and vegetables, which doubtless attracted the officers and the crew of the submarine in their search for food.

Describing the approach of the submarine the master of the American schooner said:

"If my ship had been armed with a five pounder I could have destroyed the submarine as easily as buttering a piece of bread. Neither myself nor my men lowered our dignity by showing any resentment. I did not ask them to spare the ship, and left her smilingly, while the Germans also smiled."

The captain and his crew shortly will be sent to the United States. Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador, listened to their story with great interest and has sent a report on the sinking of the American vessel to the State Department at Washington.

TWO BIG STARS FOR THE GRAND

Al. H. Wilson Here on Saturday and Fiske O'Hara on Monday Night

Owing to a very singular booking, local theatre-goers are to have an opportunity of hearing at early dates two of America's greatest dialect comedians and singers.

On Saturday next at the Grand Opera House for two performances, Al. H. Wilson will present "My Killarney Rose." This is the first time Mr. Wilson has had an opportunity of visiting Peterborough. In fact only the larger Ontario cities, such as Toronto, Hamilton and London have so far had an opportunity of hearing him. This season he entered Canada from the East, playing in Montreal last week, and this week Ottawa, Kingston, Belleville and Peterborough will have an opportunity of hearing him.

Next Monday, Feb. 26th Fiske O'Hara comes to the "Grand" in a new play, entitled, "His Heart's Desire." Mr. O'Hara and his splendid company has visited Peterborough so often that it is hardly necessary to say anything in connection with his performances, which are always clean and bright, and always draw capacity houses.

Theatre-goers who have had an opportunity of hearing both Mr. Wilson and Mr. O'Hara are somewhat undecided as to which of the two performances they like the better. However, local patrons will now have a splendid opportunity of making comparisons, particularly as the two stars play here so closely together.

The seat sale for Al. H. Wilson opens on Thursday morning at 10 a. m. and for Fiske O'Hara on Friday morning at the same hour.

POTATO GLUTTON CAUSED A ROW IN BERLIN CAFE

When the order was issued in Berlin that potatoes would be served in restaurants only on production of a potato-card the restaurant proprietors recommended that customers bring their own potatoes with them to be cooked with the meals ordered by them. Acting on this suggestion a certain Berliner took his modicum of potatoes to a restaurant in Teltow and handed them over to the waiter to be cooked, or prepared in some way, to eat with his frugal meal. The meal was brought but there were no potatoes.

Polite inquiry was made at other tables, but no diner had apparently a larger share of potatoes than was his due. Yet the kitchen authorities declared that the potatoes had been cooked and sent up to the dining-room.

But it so happened that there was a dishonest customer there to whom a waiter had delivered the missing potatoes. Unwilling to repudiate such an unexpected gift from Fortune, this unscrupulous man promptly covered the potatoes with his serviette until the hue and cry should be over.

Unluckily for him, the man who had lost his potatoes, was, unknown to him, his neighbour at the next table. When, therefore, he thought the coast was clear, surreptitiously withdrawing the precious tubers from under his napkin, he prepared to enjoy them, when his neighbour, recognizing his lost property, without demur attacked the thief. Result—an action for assault, when the details of this regrettable incident were brought to light.

Combing Won't Rid Hair Of Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

Collegiate Students' Concert in Aid of The Memorial Fund

The students of the Collegiate Institute are preparing a programme for a concert to be given on Friday night in the assembly hall in aid of the ex-Students' Memorial Fund. It is doubtless generally known that twenty-seven former students of the Collegiate have made the supreme sacrifice for the Empire, and following Mr. Kenner's suggestion, fourteen splendid pictures have been secured and hung in the corridors of the second floor of the Collegiate. The remaining pictures are in preparation or have been arranged for, and in a short time it is expected that the entire twenty-seven pictures will grace the walls of the old school. With a few exceptions these pictures are being provided by the students, and the proceeds of Friday night's concert will be used to defray the expense of the work. It is hoped that there will be a large attendance to encourage the students, and as an expression of regard for the boys who have given their lives in the fullness of their promise. Further announcement of this concert will be made later.

PRICE FIXING IN FRANCE.

PARIS, Feb. 19. — The Food Ministry has decided that after Feb. 19th maximum prices are to be fixed throughout France for milk, butter and cheese. In the Department of the Seine, including Paris, the price of milk must not exceed 10 cents for a litre—about a pint and three-quarters—if bought in a shop, or 11 cents if delivered. The maximum prices for butter vary from $1.12 to $1.34 per kilo—roughly two pounds—according to the quality and the source.

The only cheese prices fixed so far are Cammembert, from 13 cents to 26 cents the small box, according to the quality, and Pont l'Eveque at slightly higher prices. All prices must be conspicuously displayed in the shops concerned.

There will be no celebration of Mardi-Gras next Tuesday, but all the theatres will be permitted to give both morning and evening performances.

The two course meal regulation, applying to all the hotels and restaurants, goes into effect to-day.

Presentation To Pte. Oliver

An interesting event took place at the home of Mr. Wesley Oliver, 2nd line of Smith, on Saturday evening, when a number of friends of Mr. Oliver's son, Pte. Albert Oliver, gathered to say farewell to him on the eve of his departure. Pte. Oliver enlisted in the 223rd Railway Construction Battalion and left with the draft yesterday morning for Toronto. A very enjoyable time was spent on Saturday night in games and music. During the evening Pte. Oliver was presented with a military wrist watch, the presentation being made by Mr. Fred Steinkrauss, while the following address was read by Mr. Stanley Cann;

Lily Lake, Peterborough, Feb. 17.

To Pte. Albert Oliver—

Dear Albert:— A number of your friends, having learned that you had enlisted to go overseas in the service of your King and Empire, desire, before your departure, to give expression to the high esteem in which you are held in the neighbourhood and wherever you are known, and of their appreciation of your action in offering yourself for service in the Expeditionary Force. We know that whatever you can do for the cause will be most willingly and zealously done, and we earnestly hope that you and your comrades may meet with every success, and that our enemies, who with such deliberate malice brought on the war and have since carried it on with such atrocious cruelty, will be completely defeated and peace once more reign throughout the world.

As a small token of our esteem and of our good wishes for you we ask you to kindly accept the accompanying wrist watch which we hope will help you to remember us while you are away.

With earnest wishes for your continued good health and a safe and speedy return after a full completion of the duty you have taken upon yourself, we remain,

Yours most sincerely,

Signed on behalf of your friends of Lily Lake,

Stanley Cann.
Fred Steinkrauss.

The gathering sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King" before dispersing.

Fire Victims Number Six

Special to The Examiner:

TABER, Alta., Feb. 20.—Six members of the family of Fred Dose, a wealthy farmer of German extraction, were burned to death to-day when a stove in their home overturned. Gas from the stove overcame the family and prevented their escape from the burning building.

EARLIER DAYLIGHT SAVING.

LONDON, Feb. 20. — A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen says the German authorities have decided to begin the daylight saving schedule on April 15 instead of May 1.

The schedule will continue until September 15th.

Some of the brilliant sports colours are slightly dulled with black.

Supple satins will be much in favour for spring afternoon dresses.

Fabrics are used instead of leather whenever possible for shoetops.

An indefinable sense of well-being is always given by a silk petticoat.

Call To Rev. T. H. Mitchell

Temporary Pastor of St. Andrew's is Wanted by Old St. Andrew's Toronto

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—At a meeting of the congregation of Old St. Andrew's church, Carlton street, last evening it was unanimously decided to extend a call to Rev. Thomas H. Mitchell, B.D., of Peterborough, to the pastorate. Rev. Mr. Mitchell has been temporarily in charge of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, and formerly pastor in London, Ont. He is a native of Stouffville, Ont. He is a graduate of the Universities of Toronto and Winnipeg, and took a post-graduate course at Harvard. He is about fifty years of age, and has a reputation as a thoughtful preacher.

The pastorate of Old St. Andrew's has been vacant since the death of Rev. Dr. Harper Gray in August last. Rev. Prof. Law, who was associated with the pulpit during Dr. Gray's ministry and in the interim, will continue his old relations with the church under the pastorate of Mr. Mitchell.

LIFE.

Man comes into this world without his consent and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings. In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up. In his duties he is a damn fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a cheque he is a thief and the law raises hell with him. If he is a poor man he is a poor manager, and has no sense; if he is rich he is dishonest, but considered smart; if he is in politics he is a crafter and a crook; if he is out of politics you can't place him—he is an undesirable citizen. If he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church he is a sinner. If he donates to foreign missions he does it for show; if he don't he is a tight wad. When he first comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him—before he goes out everybody wants to kick him. If he dies young there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age he is in the way—only living to save funeral expenses. Life is a funny proposition after all.—"The Booster," Canada Metal Co., Toronto.

SPRING SITTINGS OF THE HIGH COURT OPENED TO-DAY

Mr. Justice Sutherland is Presiding—Three Criminal Cases Are on the List—Serious Charges Against Westwood Girls

The Spring Sittings of the High Court opened this afternoon at one-thirty o'clock in the City Council Chamber. Mr. Justice Sutherland is presiding. The Crown Prosecutor is Mr. Gordon N. Shaver of Toronto. Three important criminal cases are on the docket, involving Annie and Alice Douglas, of Westwood. The two girls are charged with the following offences:

It is charged that on the fifth of July last Annie Douglas did murder her infant child contrary to the criminal code.

Alice Douglas, a sister of Annie Douglas, is also charged with the same offence, and in addition is charged with attempting to conceal the birth of the said child.

The Grand Jury.

The following comprise the Grand Jury: W. J. Porter (foreman), J. Atchinson, S. Carver, A. Davidson, G. Evans, C. Graham, R. M. Glover, E. H. Morrison, E. C. McIntyre, W. J. Parker, E. Young, W. H. Clement, and W. Davidson.

W. L. Buck and W. F. Doan were absent when their names were called.

His Lordship in addressing the Grand Jury outlined at length the functions of their particular office. One of their duties consists of a thorough inspection of the gaol, House of Refuge and other public institutions. He also emphasized the gravity of their responsibilities in connection with the three indictments before the court.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell is appearing for the defence in the Douglas case. there are no civil actions on the list.

A MOTHER'S WORK

Mothers as a rule spend so much time in looking after their children and in household work that they overlook the absolute necessity for that rest and relaxation upon which their health depends. The consequence is that soon they find their health breaking down. The daily humdrum of household life as a mother knows it, with hurried meals and family and household cares, quickly thin the blood and weaken the nerves. Then follow headaches, pains in the side and back, swollen limbs, palpitation, a constantly tired feeling, and often an inclination to fretfulness. These symptoms are the sign of poor blood, and are the inevitable penalty of overwork and over anxiety in the care of children and the affairs of the household.

Whenever a mother finds her health failing and household duties becoming more than she can comfortably manage; whenever extra demands are made upon her strength she should adopt the safe and simple expedient of enriching her blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are especially valuable to the nursing mother and the woman worn out with household cares. They renew her blood supply, strengthen her tired limbs, and drive away the headaches and backaches that have made her so miserable. They have restored thousands of despondent women to good health and bright spirits, and will do for you as much as they have done for others if you will give them a fair trial.

The local platoon have commenced training, commencing on Monday last 12th inst, which will occupy their time from 9 to 11 a.m. and from 2 to 4 p.m. The training will consist of physical drill, squad drill, route marches, and lectures on personal hygiene, department discipline, duties, organisation and recruiting.

Pte. J. B. Barnard to be Acting Sergeant.

Pte. Ted McKay, who left here with the 8th Mounted Rifles in 1915 returned to town last week. He was wounded in the third battle at Ypres on June 2nd, 1916. Since that time he has been in the English hospital. German shrapnel, which injured his leg, was responsible for his transfer home, as unfit for service. After a brief holiday with friends here, he will go to the Kingston Convalescent Hospital for further treatment. The Havelock citizens are indeed glad to welcome the brave boy back again and hope that he may fully recover the use of his knee again in the near future.

Photography in Warfare.

Another use for photography in war has been found by the Serbians in connection with their prisoners. The Bulgars, with the remembrance of their own cruelties to the Serbs weighing on their minds, at first feared to surrender to the Serbian army, their impression being that the Serbs would not take prisoners.

Such as did give themselves up were, of course, treated as well by the Serbians as by any other section of the allied army, and to show other Bulgarians that they incurred no danger by surrendering, the Serbs had a photograph taken of long files of Bulgarian prisoners drawing rations, each man holding a loaf of bread and a bowl for soup.

Two thousand copies of this photograph were printed, and the Bulgarians who had surrendered were invited to write messages on them to their comrades saying how they had been received. The 2,000 picture postcards were then dropped by aeroplanes into the Bulgarian lines.

Since then surrenders have been much more frequent, and the men who give themselves up always try to bring with them a copy of the photograph, which they regard as a sort of safe conduct. One man said that he had paid fifteen francs for his, and that he carried it always with him in case he should be captured.

She Did Not Buy.

Mrs. Jenkins had a passion for the old and curious. One day when rummaging about in a bric-a-brac shop she noticed a quaint figure, the head and shoulders of which appeared above the counter.

"What is that Japanese idol over there worth?" she asked.

The salesman replied in a subdued tone:

"About half a million. That is the proprietor."

Had Severe Cold PAIN IN CHEST SPASMODIC COUGHING

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away in a day or two. This is a mistake for before they know it, it has settled on the lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, otherwise it may cause years of suffering from some serious lung trouble.

Mr. A. George, 30 Blevin's Place, Toronto, Ont., writes: "Having greatly benefitted from your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I take the liberty to write you a few words about the effect of that wonderful syrup. Two years ago I caught a severe cold followed by a spasmodic cough and pain in my chest. I was treated by many doctors but without any benefit, and also took many proprietory medicines which all failed to cure. One of my friends recommended Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles I was completely cured. I recommend it to anyone as a God-sent remedy."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

Western Canada's Growth.

With the exception of Regina, none of the larger cities of the Prairie Provinces has much reason for complaint concerning increase in population as shown by the quinquennial census taken this year. The figures are published in the current issue of The Census and Statistics Monthly. Since 1911 Winnipeg has increased its population, in round figures from 136,000 to 163,000; Brandon from 13,800 to over 15,000; St. Boniface from 7,000 to 11,000; Moose Jaw from 14,000 to 17,000; Saskatoon from 12,000 to 21,000; Calgary from 43,000 to 56,000; Edmonton and Strathcona from 36,000 to 53,000; Lethbridge from 8,000 to 9,500, and Medicine Hat from 5,600 to 9,200. Regina was credited in 1911 with 30,000. This year its population is placed at 26,000. It is the only city to show any decrease. Possibly there was some "padding" during the boom times of 1911, when census figures were used to sell real estate. When it is considered that thousands of men are absent at the front and that this is a year lacking in all the boom elements the growth in the population which the census shows may be regarded as a conservative indication of Western Canadian development during the past five years.

RECORD CROWD FOR BATTLE WITH OSHAWA TO-NIGHT

With a fast sheet of ice available, the 247th team four goals behind on the round, and the biggest crowd of the season certain, to-night's third-round Intermediate O. H. A. battle between Oshawa and the 247th, promises to be the hockey classic of the season. It will be a fight from the drop of the hat as the Petes will go out determined to overcome the lead, while the Oshawa gang, cocky over their win on Friday night, will be full of fight. If the Soldiers show the speed and pep they did in the last game with Kingston, the Oshawa lead should disappear about as fast as snow before a Chinook wind. Friday's defeat has stung the local outfit, and they should have a full assortment of their best ware out there to-night. It will be a game to talk about for months and, judging by the talk around town, not a fan will be absent to-night. The game will be started at 8.15 o'clock, with Oscar Bernhardt handling the bell, and the teams lined up as follows:

Oshawa		247th
	Goal
Childs		Legros
	Right Defence
Riordan		P. Flanagan
	Left Defence
Bowen		Halpin
	Rover
Fair		Evans
	Centre
Hall		Armstrong
	Right Wing
Venini		Adams
	Left Wing
Hambly		A. Flanagan

Referee, O. G. Bernhardt.

"A" COMPANY WON FROM THE 247th BAND

To quote a famous naval communique "there was a certain liveliness" at Brock Street Rink yesterday afternoon, when the band and A Company of the 247th Battalion clashed in mortal combat in what was unofficially reported to be a hockey game. The musicians succeeded in demonstrating that as a hockey team they are a pretty fair band. A Company walloped them to the tune of 7 goals to 2. Chief Rooter, Harry Worratt claimed the band were not up to concert pitch and he may be right. A Company uncovered some likely looking material with Corp. Cole the rover as the star. He scored five of the seven goals scheduled to his team, while Edwards and Moore were best for the band. There were several casualties among the musicians, the wounded including Dallin and Wolno, the latter receiving a bad gash in his thumb from a skate, requiring medical attention.

PETERBORO' CURLERS DEFEATED ORILLIA AND BOBCAYGEON

The Neill-Sheppard (Peterborough-Orillia) and Fitzgerald-Bottum Peterborough-Bobcaygeon trophies remain with the local curling club's silverware for another winter as the result of last night's games. Two rinks from 'Caygeon and four from Orillia played the return games for both trophies the local curlers winning from Bobcaygeon by 17 shots, which with 9 up in the previous game gave Peterborough the Fitzgerald-Bottum trophy by 26 shots.

Orillia came down 8 shots to the good, but were set back 17 shots last night, leaving Peterborough 9 up and the retention of the Neill-Sheppard trophy.

Sensation in the N.H.A. Over Players Of 228th Battalion

MONTREAL, Feb. 19—The appearance in Montreal over the week-end of Gordon Meeking and Eddie Oatman, two of the stars of the hockey team that represented the 228th Battalion of Toronto in the first half of the National Hockey Association schedule, caused something of a surprise. These two players were thought to have gone overseas with the battalion but were given their discharge at St. John, N.B.

OATMAN WANTS $700 BALANCE

Both complain of their treatment, and Eddie Oatman claims to have a balance of $700 salary coming to him. He says that he enlisted to play hockey with the battalion, and claims to have had an agreement with Col. Earchman's signature promising him $1,200 for the hockey season, of which he received $400. Both players spent the week-end in Montreal. Oatman leaving to-night for his home in Tillsonburg, while Meeking is still here.

Gordon Meeking does not complain of the salary question, but of the manner in which he was treated by the battalion. He enlisted as a private and says he was assured that if he qualified and played hockey with the battalion he would be given a commission as Lieutenant, and during the recruiting of the battalion he wore an officer's uniform.

Meeking stated that at a meeting of the officers of the battalion and the hockey players it was agreed to divide the surplus from the hockey at the conclusion of the season. At this meeting, he says, he agreed to play without receiving anything for his services other than the commission for which he had qualified.

MEEKING REDUCED TO RANKS

On the Friday on which the battalion was given moving orders Meeking was informed that his appointment had not been made and was ordered to get into a private's uniform. This he was unable to do, as the clothing had been packed and shipped. He says he informed the commanding officer of this and was advised to remain over in Toronto, and follow the battalion at a later date, which he did.

To his surprise on his arrival at St. John he was handed his discharge as being medically unfit and he claims that he was not given transportation back to his home in Toronto. He secured a ticket to Toronto, but on his arrival in Montreal decided to remain here, as he did not feel that he could face those who had given him a send-off under the opinion that he was on his way overseas.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19.—There may be another upheaval in the National Hockey Association as a result of the revelations of Eddie Oatman, who turned up at Montreal to-day with the announcement that he was never a member of the 228th Battalion that he had signed to play for $1,200 and that there was still due him about $700.

Oatman was allowed to play in the N.H.A. because he was alleged to have been a member of the 228th Battalion, but, as it turns out, he was not attested and was, therefore, the property of the Pacific Coast League and ineligible for any of the N.H.A. teams.

One of the Ottawa officers intimated to-day that the Senators, in view of Oatman's statements, would ask the N. H. A. to reverse its decision anent the Ottawa-228th Battalion game on January 31, which was charged against Ottawa as a defeat because they had played Cy Denenny. In fact, Ottawa take the position that all the battalion's games should be thrown out. Oatman will likely revert to the Pacific Coast League.

Ottawa forwarded to President Robinson to-day their protest in connection with the game which they lost at Quebec last Saturday night. It is expected that there will be a special meeting of the league to deal with the Ottawa protest and to adjust the situation arising from Oatman's confession that he and the 228th Battalion "flimflammed" both the Pacific Coast League and the National Hockey Association.

THIRTY-SIX RINKS DRAWN IN LOCAL BONSPIEL TO-DAY

Curling Clubs of Midland District Well Represented and Promise of Lively Contests to the Finals

The open bonspiel got under way at one o'clock this afternoon with thirty-six rinks on the even footing at the scratch line. The following clubs were represented: Lindsay, Lakefield, Cobourg, Fenelon Falls, Stroud, Bobcaygeon, Napanee, Campbellford, Port Hope, Millbrook, Norwood, Keene, Stouffville, Peterborough.

The draw was made by J. D. Flavelle of Lindsay, and the grouping by J. H. Renwick, who specializes in that particular delicate operation. The first games were begun at 1.30 and the second series will begin at 4 o'clock and the next about six o'clock. They will continue until late to-night, with some of the consolation games probably drawn before the evening is over:

The Draw.

The draw resulted as follows:

Ridpath, Lakefield, vs. McDermid, Peterborough.

Wightman, Peterborough, vs. Mather, Stouffville.

Meredith, Stroud, vs. Kennealey, Keene.

Gregory, Lindsay, vs. Davis, Bobcaygeon.

Campbell, Peterborough, vs. Needler, Millbrook.

Hare, Oshawa, vs. Saunders, Stouffville.

Ray, Peterborough, vs. Strickland, Lakefield.

Hetherington, Bobcaygeon, vs. De Laney, Cobourg.

Kay, Peterborough, vs. Lang, Peterborough.

Howson, Keene, vs. McKelvie, Norwood.

McCallum, Fenelon Falls, vs. Matthews, Peterborough.

Finlay, Norwood, vs. Wetherup, Lindsay.

Evans, Oshawa, vs. Tait, Campbellford.

Waddell, Peterborough, vs. Clifford, Oshawa.

Smith, Campbellford, vs. Flavelle, Lindsay.

Humphries, Campbellford, vs. Rosevear, Port Hope.

Sturgeon, Peterborough, vs. Maybee, Napanee.

Hicks, Peterborough, vs. McFadden, Lindsay.

Dr. Wightman defaulted his game. His rink was composed largely of school teachers, who were unable to be present.

Bonspiel Notes.

Only two local rinks were drawn against each other in the first round, Alex. Kay and W. M. Lang being the skips.

Ford Moyhes, of the Lindsay Warden is down with the Flavelle men.

The games go twelve ends until the finals are reached.

The ice is in splendid shape, and while the weather was fair and clear this afternoon it is likely to remain satisfactory throughout the 'spiel.

MR. ROBERT HICKS, chairman of the Open Bonspiel committee, which has charge of the arrangements for the games begun this afternoon.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WIN THE RACE WITH TIME

At a certain age, there are almost sure to be constitutional changes, and one in particular is the gradual weakening of the eyesight. Imperceptible at first, except to scientific test, yet the change is there, and if, at this time, the eyes are given the assistance they need, they are kept strong longer than if left in use without the aid of glasses till a later period. Give your eyes the best chance you can by having Dr. Fowler test them as to their condition.

Social and Personal

The marriage is announced to take place on Wednesday, February the twenty-eighth, of Miss Ivey, formerly of Peterborough, to Mr. Melvin G. Carveth, of Claydon, Saskatchewan. The latter is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Carveth, of Dummer, and now of Lakefield.

Miss Ada L. Ward, who is returning to give another of her very interesting lectures in George Street Methodist Church, February 21, will be entertained during her stay in the city by Mrs. E. E. Harvey, 212 Brock street.

Miss Hattie Dawson, Bailieboro, is the guest of Mrs. A. J. Throop, 546 Aylmer street.

Mr. L. Walker, of Toronto spent the week end with his sister, Mrs. J. E. Firth.

Miss Florence Scott, soloist in Murray Street Baptist Church sang Elgar's "Land of Hope and Glory" at the recruiting meeting, which was held in the Opera House on Sunday evening. Miss Scott's singing was very much appreciated by the audience.

Miss Margaret Stevenson is spending a few days in Toronto, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Beck.

Miss Phyllis Cumberland has taken a position as munition inspector in the Fairbanks Morse munition factory, Toronto.

Mrs. W. R. Morris returned last night from Windsor.

Major and Mrs. O'Flynn arrived yesterday in Peterborough and have taken a suite at the Empress.

Mr. D. O'Connell is in the city on business, registered at the Empress.

Capt. Sims, Ottawa, was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Collins.

The Canadian Kitchener League will hold their Weekly Tea on Wednesday afternoon, February 21st, from 3 o'clock to 6, in the Oriental Tea Room, Hunter Street, Mrs. Kimberley will be hostess for the afternoon.

Mrs. G. A. Patoine, of Quebec City is in Peterborough, the guest of her son, Mr. J. W. A. Patoine, 599 Harvey street.

The Misses Binnington, Lennox, and Bryans, Havelock, who have been the guests of Mrs. Knox, Gilmour street, returned home to-day.

The many friends of Mr. Pattick, who has been seriously ill for some time, will be pleased to learn he is so improved to be able to sit up.

Mr. R. J. Knox of Munition Works, Hamilton, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Knox, Gilmour street, recuperating after a serious operation.

The Dayton, Florida News, has the following reference to Peterborough visitors in the sunny south:

Preceding the dance at the Clarendon Saturday night, Betty Burnham, the little grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kendry, of Peterborough, Ontario, who are season guests at the hotel, gave an interpretive solo dance. "The Song of the Robin." With Elfin grace, little Miss Burnham interpreted for her audience the story of a child at play with a robin, with a spontaneity that was the incarnation of music. Her gestures and movements were perfectly natural and unstudied, and her poise notable. For an encore she gave "The French Doll," a characteristic solo dance. Betty is a pupil of Miss Delta Boice. Saturday night Miss Boice will give a recital which is being anticipated with much pleasure.

Mrs. Hugh Waddell left yesterday for Toronto, where she will address a missionary meeting to-day in St. Andrew's church. She will give an address in Port Hope on Friday.

Mrs. Fair and Miss Lily Fair, who have been in Pembroke visiting friends, returned home to-day.

OBITUARY

MRS. JANE CONNELL.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 19. — Mrs. Jane Connell, aged 86, native and resident of Peterborough, Ont., for about fourteen years, died late Saturday following an extended illness at the home of her only son, Peter Connell, here at 645 Gifford street. Deceased also leaves one daughter, Mrs. James Burns, of New York city, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret Sheehan, of Lyons, Iowa, thirteen grandchildren and eighteen great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held Monday morning at 9 o'clock from her late home, and an hour afterward from St. Lucy's Church. Interment will be Tuesday afternoon in Marcellus, N.Y. After removing from Peterborough the late Mrs. Connell came to Camillus, N.Y., where she spent the greater part of her life, coming to Syracuse about twelve years ago.

MRS. CHARLES LIEBERS.

The death occurred last evening at the family residence, 240 Carlisle avenue, of Loretta Powers, wife of Mr. Charles Liebers. Deceased, who was thirty-six years of age, leaves besides her husband, one small son. She was born in Otonabee and was a daughter of Mr. Thomas Powers.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning at nine o'clock from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, East City, to St. Peter's cemetery.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

(SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER)

TORONTO, Feb. 20.—Live Stock Market—Receipts very light, trade fair. Hogs, fed and watered $14.40, off cars $14.65 to $14.80, f.o.b. $13.75. Others unchanged.

An Irishman was returning with his family from Liverpool to Dublin, and had reported at the steamship office to register his baggage as required. He addressed the English attendant in charge, an official of some height and stiffness. "I have come to register my luggage!" said Pat.

"What is your name?" demanded the attendant, brusquely.

"Sure, me name's on the luggage," replied Pat no less curtly with a nod in its direction.

The clerk hesitated a moment then he stepped over and inspected the baggage. Returning he said:

"I see your name is obliterated."

"Oblitherated!" exclaimed Pat; "your eye, man, me name's O'Brien!" —National Magazine.

AUSTRIAN-AMERICAN SITUATION IS CRITICAL

BLOCKADE WILL NEVER SUCCEED—Admiral Lacaze

Climax of Austro-American Crisis Is Now Near At Hand

Holds Centre of the International War Stage To-day---Submarine Blockade a Failure Declares French Minister of Marine---Same Number of French Mercantile Ships Have Been Arriving as Before February 1st.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 22.—The Austrian-American situation to-day held the centre of the international war stage. The climax of this silent drama which has been going on since the United States broke with Germany, appears to be at hand.

Within forty-eight hours, it is now generally believed this Government will know whether the scope of its diplomatic relations is to be extended to Austria-Hungary.

Says Sub. Blockade Is Complete Failure

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, February 22.—In a long interview with a correspondent of the United Press here to-day regarding the German submarine war, Admiral Lacaze, French Minister of Marine, said:—"If the German people are looking to submarines for peace, let them take cognizance of the fact that since the beginning of the blockade—about the same number of French mercantile ships have been arriving at our ports, as heretofore—the blockade will never succeed."

Five Americans On Submarined Steamer

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER

WASHINGTON, February 22—Five Americans were aboard the Swedish steamship Skogland sunk by a submarine off the coast of Spain on Feb. 18. The Skogland sailed from Norfolk with a cargo of coal for Bagnoli, Italy.

Holt Liner Perseus Sunk By a Sub.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, February 22.—The Holt liner Perseus, 6,728 tons, has been sunk. Three Chinese and one European of those aboard are missing.

Lloyd also announces the sinking of the British steamer Corso, 3,242 tons. Paris despatches tell of the submarining of the Dutch steamer Ambon, 2,598 tons, the Norwegian steamer Alice, 800 tons, and the Russian steamer Sigrid, 2,194 tons.

Yarrowdale Prisoners Have Been Released

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER

LONDON, February 22.—A Reuter despatch from Berlin via Amsterdam to-day declared that the American prisoners aboard the Yarrowdale have been released.

Canadian Women Must Stay in England

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER

OTTAWA, Ont., February 22.—The Militia Department to-day points out that six months ago it issued warnings that wives and children of Canadian officers and men should not go to England, and if there should return immediately. Officials are sorry for those who didn't heed the warning, but can do nothing for them now, following the British ruling that no women and children will be permitted to cross the Atlantic.

Ambassador Gerard Arrives At Madrid

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

MADRID, Spain, February 22.—American Ambassador Gerard arrived here to-day en route home. He was accorded an official reception, many representatives of the Government and King Alfonso being present.

British Repulsed, Says Hun Statement

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, February 22.—The German official statement to-day says:—"South of Armentieres, after a strong fire, several English companies enthrust. While cleaning our trenches, 200 dead Englishmen were counted. Thirty-nine men were brought back as prisoners."

PETROGRAD, February 22.—The repulse of a strong enemy attack west of Dornavatra in Roumania, was announced in to-day's statement officially.

OTTAWA, Ont., February 22.—It is announced the Dominion Parliament will reassemble on April 19. Premier Borden, whose safe arrival in England is announced, is expected to return before that date.

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, February 22.—Gold being contraband of war, the passengers on the Frederick Wilhelm, including Von Bernstorff and party, are being relieved of currency of this species, and furnished with other money of equal value. It is expected the inspection will be completed this week.

NEW YORK, February 22.—With nearly two score American passengers brought safely through the German submarine zone, the American liner Philadelphia docked this afternoon, bringing a story of the White Star liner Celtic having struck a mine when twelve hours out from Liverpool a week ago. Passengers and members of the crew understood the Celtic had been damaged and put back to port, and with assistance was believed to have reached safety and quickly made ready to sail again.

WASHINGTON, February 22.—Despite the personal appeal of Secretary of State Lansing, the Senate Judiciary Committee to-day turned down the bill which would have given the President power to handle the international situation after Congress adjourns without recourse to war.

FIRE DESTROYED THE HOME OF A LAKEFIELD SOLDIER

Children were Carried out of the Burning Building—Loss will be About One Thousand Dollars

PARTLY INSURED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 22.—Early last evening, fire destroyed the home of Mrs. Garrett, wife of a soldier, who is now overseas. The loss will be about one thousand dollars and is partly covered by insurance. Several children had a narrow escape. They were found in a room in which some blankets were burning and were carried out. The fire spread rapidly and the house was quickly destroyed. It was owned by Mrs. Nicholls.

BOMB WRECKS CHICAGO SALOON

Examiner Special:

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—A bomb placed in the rear of Barney Crogan's saloon, exploded early to-day, completely wrecking the place and damaging buildings for blocks around. Many people were thrown into a panic, rushing into the street in their night clothes.

Hamilton Times Said To Have Libeled 129th

HAMILTON, Feb. 22.—Lieut.-Col. W. E. S. Knowles of Dundas, commander of the 129th Overseas Battalion of Wentworth, Tuesday issued a writ against the Times Printing Company for unstated damages, alleging libel in the publication of a letter from England, which, he says, seriously reflected on the officers of the battalion. He also asks for a mandamus to compel the paper to publish an apology.

ANOTHER CAUCUS

Conservative Members of Legislature Met This Morning

TORONTO, Feb. 22. — Caucus of Conservative members, the third since the Legislature opened, was held this forenoon, lasting for nearly two hours. It was called hurriedly and the meeting of the committee on standing orders suspended in consequence. It is understood woman's suffrage was again discussed. One Conservative member, who has been to the fore with suffrage legislation, announced with a significant smile, after the caucus, that woman's suffrage was 'coming along.'

DR. GRENFELL AND HIS GREAT WORK

Once again the people of this city are asked to support this heroic enterprise on the part of Dr. Grenfell and his associates by leaving subscriptions at the office of The Examiner. We are accustomed to-day to hear of noble deeds. We are proud of our Canadians because, upon the battlefields of Europe, they have maintained the standard of the British fighting forces. So we may say of men like Dr. Grenfell, they have done their duty, because they have lived up to the traditions of a long list of missionary heroes in all parts of the world. We who cannot go into the fighting line, do what we can at home, for those who cheerfully and willingly bear the "heat and burden" of the day. But words of appreciation and sympathy, though they have their place and position, will be of little avail, unless we go still further, and not forget the principles for which these lives have been laid down. Love, justice and mercy. It is for these that our soldiers and sailors have laid down their lives, and this is the Gospel message which men like Dr. Grenfell are trying to carry "into all the world" and "preach to every creature."

PTE. SHARMAN OF THE 93rd BATTALION IS DANGEROUSLY ILL

Well Known Former Member of Military Police of Peterboro' Unit Admitted to Casualty Clearing Station in France Suffering From Pneumonia--Five Peterboro' Recruits For the 247th Battalion--To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Mrs. Florence Sharman, 483 Homewood Avenue, received official word from Ottawa this morning that her husband, Pte. Arthur Sharman, Canadian Infantry, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, has been admitted to No. 22 Casualty Clearing Station, on Feb. 20th, dangerously ill from pneumonia. Pte. Sharman went overseas as a member of the military police of the 93rd Battalion, and was drafted to another Canadian battalion at the front. His many friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

A letter was received this morning from a Canadian Officer, training in England, to the effect that he had heard that all Canadian military officers now in England and not employed, were to be sent back to Canada, to be employed here later on. This looks as though it was intended to inaugurate a new military movement in this country.

The recruiting efforts of the 247th Battalion this week are beginning to make themselves felt. Yesterday three Peterborough men were added to the strength of the battalion and this morning two more from the city joined the local unit. The city has not been doing anything like its share, and the addition of five men from Peterborough is appreciated by the officers of the battalion.

The list is as follows:

Pte. Frank Wormald, Montreal House.

Pte. John King, 380 London street.

Pte. James French, 104 Lansdowne Avenue.

Pte. Herb. Henshaw, 640 George street.

Pte. Floyd Vosbourgh, 691 Stewart street.

Three of these men were recruited by Pte. Deline, while Pte. Dunnette was responsible for the other two.

A recruiting meeting was held at the corner of Hunter and George streets last night, at which Capt. Belton delivered a forcible address.

Lt.-Col. Ackerman, O. C. of the 247th Battalion, is in Kingston on official business.

Acting Sergeant J. B. Barnard of the 247th Battalion, is promoted to Sergeant in to-day's orders, while Lance Corp. G. J. Spence is promoted to Corporal.

All persons having accounts against the 247th Battalion for board, are asked to present them to Capt. Thomson, the paymaster, at the Armouries, on Friday or Saturday of this week.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieut.-Col. Ackerman, commanding 247th Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.:

Orders for Thursday, Feb. 22nd. 1917.

1. Records.

The attention of officers is drawn to the "Record of Officers Services" in the Orderly Room, and they are requested to sign the personal particulars contained therein as early as possible.

Officers at Headquarters can do so during Office hours; those on command, at the earliest possible date.

2. Duties.

Orderly Officer for Thursday, February 22nd, 1917, Lieut. J. F. Stricklland.

Next for duty, Friday, Feb. 23rd, 1917, Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

A. E. BRITTAIN,
Lieut., Adjutant.
247th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

Brantford, Feb. 21.—Word was received to-day from the Militia Department that the 125th and 215th Overseas Battalions will henceforth be known as the 1st and 2nd Battalion, respecively of the 38th Dufferin Rifles of Canada. The local militia regiment and the local officers of the Duffs are very much pleased with the announcement, as it will mean that the militia regiment will act as mother to the overseas forces, and honours won by the latter will revert after the war to the Brantford corps.

St. Catharines, Feb. 21.—At a meeting of the Soldiers' Aid Commission here this afternoon reports of the Chairman and the Secretary showed that not only had good positions been found for every returned soldier reaching here, but that there were more positions available than there were returned men to fill them. This negatives criticisms some times made that men who do their bit are neglected after they come back. The Great War Veterans have formed an association of their own and are working with the Commission, for as much patriotic work is now being done to take care of all who return and of their families as in getting men to enlist.

London, Feb. 20.—Chaplain A. G. Emmett has gone overseas; Chaplain F. J. Moore is posted at Epsom Hospital; Chaplain Benoliel goes to Hastings; Chaplain Vipond to Uxbridge; Chaplain J. O. Murray to Eastbourne. Colonel Richard Steacy of Ottawa, who has succeeded as director of chaplain service by Col. Almond, has taken extended leave and will probably be offered a senior chaplaincy in an English Canadian camp, but may prefer to return to Canada.

Major K. C. Folger has been appointed Acting Director of Ordnance.

At the regular meeting of the Millbrook Mission Band, held on Friday evening, Mr. Alvin Richards who has recently joined the 247th Battalion, was the recipient of the following:

To Pe. Alvin Richards.

Dear Alvin,—We, the members of the Millbrook Mission Band, feel that we cannot let you go from among us, without showing in some way our appreciation of your work here.

For three or four years you have been the president of our Band, and during that time have endeared

SUBS ARE HUNTED BY A GREAT FLEET

Three or Four Thousand Boats of All Descriptions Take Part in the Battle Against German Underseas Boats.

70,000 MEN IN CHASE

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—It is because Britain has defeated the submarine campaign in her home waters, forcing Germany to range the open sea in search of victims, that the United States faces the possibility of war over the renewed U-boat ruthlessness, according to Alfred Noyes, English poet and lecturer. Mr. Noyes arrived here recently from an inspection tour, lasting between eight and nine months, in the course of which he cruised on submarine-hunting trawlers.

Mr. Noyes said that the best figures he had been able to obtain from official British sources entitled him to estimate that one U-boat was lost for every four vessels sunk, and he suggested that this proportion offered a fair basis of estimating the number of subsea boats sunk since war began. In the first six months alone, he said, there was a gathering in Britain to celebrate the sinking of the fiftieth U-boat. He himself had seen in the homes of many officers at naval bases beautifully polished periscopes serving as receptacles for flowers, or otherwise as household ornaments. Each had come from a German U-boat. They are made of brass and take a high polish, which, he said, made them really ornamental. He thought at least 200 submarines had been destroyed.

MANY PATROL VESSELS.

There are between 3,000 and 4,000 patrol vessels guarding the British Isles against submarines, he said, and these are composed of fishing boats or trawlers, private yachts, and whalers from Canada and the other colonies. Each is armed, usually with a Hotchkiss gun of the 12 to 14 pound type, which discharges an explosive shell. Each carries, besides, between 1,000 and 1,500 yards of steel net, weighted to sink to the bottom, and equipped with devices which render them immune to an attempt by a submarine, even the new sharp-nosed type, to cut through them, and with other devices. Mr. Noyes asserted the censor forbade him to speak of these last, which, apparently, cause the destruction of anything that becomes entangled.

"Just how they dispose of a U-boat I am not at liberty to say," declared Mr. Noyes. "but it must be easy for you to realise that ways have been found. Can't you imagine your Mr. Edison devising a way of destroying anything that struck one of his nets?"

He would not admit that the nets were electrically charged as it was suggested his remark seemed to intimate.

"Many of the skippers of these trawlers and patrol boats are Scotchmen" said Mr. Noyes. "In fact, there are between 60,000 and 70,000 fishermen who already have been uniformed, trained and practised, even in gunnery, for anti-submarine service. All are seamen who range in age from the twenties to the three score and ten."

JUDGMENT RESERVED IN BETTING PLACE CASE ARGUED TO-DAY

Mr. Gordon Claimed That Charge Laid Under Interpretative Clause That Provided No Penalty

NOT COMMON BETTING PLACE

Magistrate Dumble reserved judgment this morning after hearing the argument of Crown Attorney Hatton and Mr. G. N. Gordon in the case of Yeates brothers, charged with keeping a common betting house. No evidence beyond that of the two Oshawa men at yesterday's police court was put in by the prosecution, nor were any witnesses called by the defence. Mr. Gordon claimed that the charge was laid under a section of the code that merely defined or interpreted the word 'common betting house,' which did not provide for a penalty. He contended that the Yeates cigar store was not a common betting house, with in the interpretation of the word.

The evidence showed that several bets had been made at the store, but there was no evidence that betting had been previously carried on there. Mr. Gordon argued that it was not proved that this was a common betting house.

Mr. Hatton pointed out that the bets had been made, placed, and recorded at the cigar store and that it was sufficiently shown that this was a common betting place. One of the proprietors had been pointed out in Oshawa to an Oshawa man as one who would bet on the Oshawa team and coming to Peterborough had gone directly to the cigar store.

MR. JOHN RIDDELL SUSTAINED BROKEN ARM IN A FALL

Mr. John Riddell, of Homewood avenue, fell on Hunter street on Monday afternoon while passing the stone cottage east of St. Peter's Cathedral, and sustained a broken arm. An X-ray examination by Dr. Moor located the fracture near the shoulder. Mr. Riddell is progressing favourably and hopes to be out again soon. His friends will regret to learn of this accident to Mr. Riddell, who is an elderly and prominent citizen, and will hope that he may soon recover.

Well Known Surgeon Arrested

If you were a surgeon and were offered $20,000 to allow a rich patient to die during an operation, would you accept, or would you have the man arrested who bribed you? This is only one of the questions for which you will find answers in Pathe's, "A Modern Monte Cristo," which will be shown at Strand Theatre for three days, commencing Monday, Feb. 26. Don't miss this.

An Amazingly Vivid Portrayal —"Merely Mary Ann," One of Zangwills' Masterpieces—At the Royal To-night

The first portrayal, in Peterborough, of the stirring drama, "Merely Mary Ann," is the attraction at the Royal Theatre to-night. This photoplay goes to the heart of all "Movie" lovers. Exquisite screen stars will be seen and give ample opportunity to display their artistic talents.

Friday and Saturday another strong bill will be presented at the Royal, including the new Charlie Chaplin's latest success, "The Review."

WOMAN'S KINGDOM.

Woman is certainly coming into her Kingdom—if the right to vote is to be regarded as the last step to the throne. In Peterborough there are dozens of petitions in favour of woman suffrage being circulated, and being almost unanimously signed by men; the only refusals, being from those men who say they have not thought of the subject—and the ladies feel that it is only from people who do not think that opposition, or even indifference, is to be expected. Such petitions from all over the province will be presented to the government by a monster deputation of women on March 6th, and then we may "expect doings."

There does not seem to be much doubt that woman suffrage will become law this session. Both parties of politicians seem to be "falling over each other" in their eagerness to champion the cause of women votes. They are even fighting for the honour. It is charged that the government is so anxious to "hog" all the glory of parentage of woman suffrage, that it has "outraged the constitution" and jockeyed the Liberal leader out of the credit of being a ladies' man by ruling his woman suffrage amendment to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, "out of order."

This anxiety, however, to convince the ladies that "Codlin, not Short, is their friend," will not bar the Opposition from voting for Mr. Johnston's woman suffrage bill, which the government will very probably adopt, and which will, in that event, undoubtedly become law.

And the rivalry to get credit for woman suffrage legislation is not confined to the leaders—the private members put in their claims. Mr. Johnston of West Hastings, referring to his bill, declared, "this is my child; I was present at its birth." This was denied by Mr. Studholme, the solitary Labour member. He said he was in the House ten years ago, and one Smith of Peel, "was the father of the child at that time." So that if woman suffrage in the Ontario Legislature, has not two fathers, it has got a father and a grandfather, giving it the dignity of a pedigree.

But the anxiety of political leaders and legislators to claim credit for the woman suffrage idea, is not the only indication of the probability of woman coming into her kingdom; but there are, so to speak, collateral evidences of woman's increasing prominence in the arena of action heretofore sacred to men.

Woman's rights have taken root in what would be considered the most barren and arid soil in the world—in the British House of Lords. The despatches tell us that a measure permitting women to practice as solicitors, fathered by Baron Buckmaster, has been introduced into the House of Lords—the last word in stolid and impregnable conservatism, antediluvian mustiness and hoary prejudice against innovation.

Less astonishing, but more significant of woman's capacity for service, and her ability for doing her bit in the war, is the fact that British women will be enlisted and sent to the fighting zone to do much of the non-combatant work at the front. This is equivalent to actual fighting, for it is estimated that the enlistment and employment of women will release 30,000 men now engaged in cooking, stores-keeping and clerical work, and enable them to take their places in the trenches. This will mean the addition of a division and a half to the fighting forces.

Another despatch states that a woman, supplied by the Department of the Interior, has been assigned to help the Association of Ontario Land Surveyors, by the compilation of azimuth tables. We don't know exactly what an azimuth table is, but it is an astronomical matter involving in its compilation abstruse, or the employment of abstruse, mathematical knowledge, erstwhile assumed to be confined to the more robust mentality of men.

To all these examples of woman's new ascendancy and prominence in world affairs, taken from one day's news despatches, may be added another from the same source. A Toronto girl, a Miss Edna Macdonald, has won the Royal Templars of Temperance "diamond" medal for oratory. This is not so remarkable an achievement for woman has never had any noticeable difficulty in the exercise of her lingual powers.

Altogether woman has made a good case in respect of her rights to equal political privileges; and her prospects are excellent for her realization of the boon of suffrage equality; especially with the party politicians fairly fighting for the privilege of giving it, or for credit for giving it. This anxiety conjoined with the widening vision of public men in all countries and with the splendid reasons for recognition in virtue of woman's magnificent work in connection with war interests; her splendid exhibition of capacity for organised and sustained effort and interest, her patient perseverance, even in the dull monotony and sameness of service, has given her right and claim to the best we can bestow.

This war, that strikes woman at her strong and her weak points—her heart and her home—has demonstrated the fact, which is no venture to assert, that if the men of Canada had on their part and in their way done their duty, one half as whole heartedly and with one half the thoroughness and efficiency with which woman has done her part, the end as far as Canada's contribution is concerned—the victorious end—would be much nearer than it is to-day.

OPTIMISM.

Rev. Dr. Symonds of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, formerly of Peterborough, is still an optimist, as he was known to be when he held the pastorate of St. Luke's here. He was large minded; and breadth of mind is one of the essentials of the optimistic mood or quality. In the course of a sermon in memoriam of the late Sir Melbourne Tait, Rev. Dr. Symonds combatted the prevalent idea that men and times were getting worse. He said:

"We form such opinion from a superficial view of society; but if we look down deeper and a little farther, we shall find that there is a great number of men and women who are sincerely religious, actuated by a true sense of duty, and a desire to advance the welfare of their fellow-men."

This is characteristic of Rev. Dr. Symonds, who in regard to his fellow men and fellow Christians, could, and did, and does, see good in most of them. Reared and trained in, and a member of, a church extremely conservative in regard to its ecclesiastical autonomy, he was an eloquent advocate of church union; and in all his public and private relations, broad minded and zealous of the spirit of true altruism.

This same spirit is called for now; here and in all the land; a higher regard for each other in our domestic, social, civil, religious and political relations. This great war has impressed upon us a deep sense of the oneness of our interests; and this unity of interest should mean unity of aim, which is only consistent with mutual unity of regard. At the beginning of the war we declared a political truce, which simply meant that the two parties resolved to see good in each other, a more easy accomplishment with the mists of partisanship dissipated in the full light of a larger patriotism. Both parties, if they had not done so before, saw more good, more loyalty to the right, and higher aims in each other. If we could all adopt a new attitude of charitable judgment towards our fellow men in all the associations of citizenship, the machinery of society and even of public administration would run more smoothly. If we were more inclined to see the good in our neighbours, take them on trust, and if they did the same by us; if we emptied ourselves of superficial judgments and prejudices and uncharitable suspicions, in most cases unfounded, we might, and would, realise the beautiful optimism of Shakspere—"find * * * sermons in stones, and good in everything."

TO MAKE EGGS EGGS.

At the annual meeting of the Canadian Produce Association, held in Montreal last week, a resolution was adopted, asking the government to provide by legislation—

"To legaline standards for all Canadian eggs, and provide such inspection as may be necessary to enforce such legislation; and also that this legislation prescribe regulations to provide against the sale of eggs unfit for food, making allowance for reasonable deterioration."

There is personal and national significance in this action. Canadian purchasers should be protected in the procuring at its best of so wholesome, palatable and concentrated food as the egg; and in view of the fact that Canada is becoming a large shipper of eggs abroad—mostly to Britain—in this case, as in the case of our cheese, butter, fruits and other commodities, it is desirable that the standard of quality be maintained at the highest possible point, in order to meet the competition in the British market of Holland, Denmark and Russia. It is hard to establish a good name for quality of product, and it is harder to live down a bad name.

The Produce Association might have gone further and demanded some regulation of the size of the eggs. A dozen eggs may mean a dozen eggs by count; but the quantity may be lacking. It is possible to find a difference of a good many ounces between a dozen of small eggs and a similar number of large or larger ones. In one case the purchaser gets value in quantity of egg content; in the other he or she pays for what is not got. Why is it not possible to have a legal definition of what constitutes a dozen eggs—a certain standard of weight or of size. If eggs are sold by weight the buyer pays for what he gets. If this is impracticable, have a size standard. A road engineer in specifying material demands stone broken to a point that will pass through a ring of a certain size. If a similar way were legalised to determine the size of merchantable eggs to constitute a legal dozen, the purchaser of a dozen eggs would get value for his money; a very important consideration with egg selling for from 45 cents to 50 cents, and even 60 cents per dozen, large or small.

Leading Bank Tells How Saving And Thrift Can Help Allied Cause

(From the Bank of Commerce Monthly Commercial Letter.)

During January the Minister arranged to offer to the public War Savings Certificates in denominations of $25, $50 and $100, maturing in three years, and issued at $21.50, $43 and $86 respectively. Up to the end of January 5,000 applications have been received, totalling $400,000. To the first war loan 25,000 individual subscriptions were received, to the second 30,000, and it is hoped that the interest aroused by the issue of these certificates will lead to a more general participation in national loans. The great possibilities in this direction are evidenced by the lavishness so obvious in domestic and personal expenditures. It is of such great importance that the war debt should be assumed to as large an extent as possible by the people of the Dominion itself, that no apology is needed for reiterating the necessity of real personal sacrifice to attain this end. The Premier of Great Britain, in speaking upon this question, on January 18th, said:

"Men and women * * * the first charge—the first charge—upon all you surplus money over your needs for yourself and your children should be to help these gallant young men of ours who have tendered their lives for the cause of humanity. (Cheers.) The more we get, the surer of victory. The more we get the shorter the war. The more we get, the less it will cost in treasure, and the greatest treasure of all, brave blood. The more we give, the more will the nation gain. You will enrich it by your contributions—by your sacrifices. Extravagance—I want to bring this home to every man and woman—extravagance during the war costs blood—costs blood. And what blood? Valiant blood—the blood of heroes. It would be worth millions to save one of them. (Cheers.) It means better equipment for our troops. It means better equipment for the Allies as well, and this—and I say it now for the fiftieth, if not the hundredth time—is a war of equipment. That is why we are appealing for your subscription. But what we can do, it is our duty, it is our pride to do."—Bank of Commerce, Monthly Commercial Letter.

Good Tory Journal Gets "Galling" "Jolt" Over Potato Export

"Export of Potatoes to Cuba in This Year Above All Years is Rubbing It In With a Vengeance"

During these days of anxiety and stress when food is dear and no more plentiful than it should be in Great Britain, France and Canada herself, it gives one a jolt to learn from the Weekly Bulletin of the Trade and Commerce Department that during the last five months Canadian potatoes to the value of $1,400,000 have been shipped to Cuba. It is to be presumed that most of these are the product of New Brunswick.

Potatoes are abnormally dear in Canada and the Allied countries and they are scarce. It is therefore difficult to understand why some means was not taken to see that these potatoes were retained for the use of the Allied countries. The $1,400,000 worth more potatoes in Canada at the present time would have made all the difference between comfort and discomfort and even between comfort and hardship. Surely it is possible to prevent this necessary of life finding its way to a neutral country which eats the potato as a luxury rather than as a necessity when it is badly needed by ourselves and our Allies.

It is the more galling to find that in this year above all years the export of potatoes to Cuba has greatly increased. This is "rubbing it in" with a vengeance.

There have been efforts made by public bodies in Canada to impress upon the Government the necessity of preventing the export of food products to foreign countries when the food was required by Canada or the Allies. A report approving of such action by the Government was presented to the Ottawa Council by its cost of living committee of last year and endorsed. Nothing, however, has come of these efforts, and it is now quite apparent that the best interests of the country demand defensive action of some kind.

The potato situation has been given a good deal of attention by Mr. W. F. O'Connor, the cost of living commissioner, and it would seem to be timely to instruct him to proceed at once to lay bare the ins and the outs of the whole potato trade of Canada. In a producing country like Canada a potato situation like the present should be made an impossibility. We protect our industries, but occasions arise when the people have to be protected from some of these industries, and this appears to be one of them. If the potato manipulators have so little interest in the needs of the people at home as to deliberately starve them of this commodity, a way should be found of compelling them to observe one of the first principles of national life and defence.—Ottawa Journal, Conservative.

German War Deficit $891,500,000 For 1917

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22.—An explanatory note respecting the German budget of 1917, issued in Berlin says:

"The necessary means for carrying on the war will be raised when required by means of special war credits. The extraordinary expenses in connection with the State debt require at present 3,566,000,000 marks, (891,500,000, nominally, in order to effect a balance.

In the ordinary budget the revenue from hitherto existing war taxes is not sufficient and the deficit of 1,250,000,000 marks ($312,500,000,) will be covered by a new war tax. It is intended to impose an ad valorem tax on coal on the output of the collieries and as an extraordinary war tax, to impose a sur-tax on passenger goods traffic on railways and internal shipping.

"In the extraordinary budget the amount of 81,000,000 marks will be voted to the redemption of the debt by purchase. With regard to the redemption of the war loans, this will be decided after peace has been concluded.

"Credit for Exchequer bills is increased to 3,000,000,000 marks, and the uncovered contributions of the Federal States are estimated at 52,000,000 marks.

"On Feb. 1 the Relatives' insurance Fund amounted to 21,000,000 marks.

"Regarding the revenue, the increase in customs is estimated at 41,000,000 marks; total receipts, 754,000,000 marks; increase in tobacco, 2,200,000 marks; war sur-tax, 87,000,000 marks; increase in stamps on bills of lading, 65,066,000 marks, and in stamps on the Dutch goods trade 225,000,000 marks.

"The tax on wealth is expected to produce 90,000,000 marks, and the shares of the State in post and telegraphs, 225,000,000 marks.

"The estimated revenue from all war taxes namely 1,250,000,000 marks is 77,000,000 marks in excess of the previous year.

"The ordinary budget amounts to 4,941,000,000 marks or 1,282,000,000 marks more than the previous year.

"In the extraordinary budget, 7,250,000 marks are yet to be covered by loan."

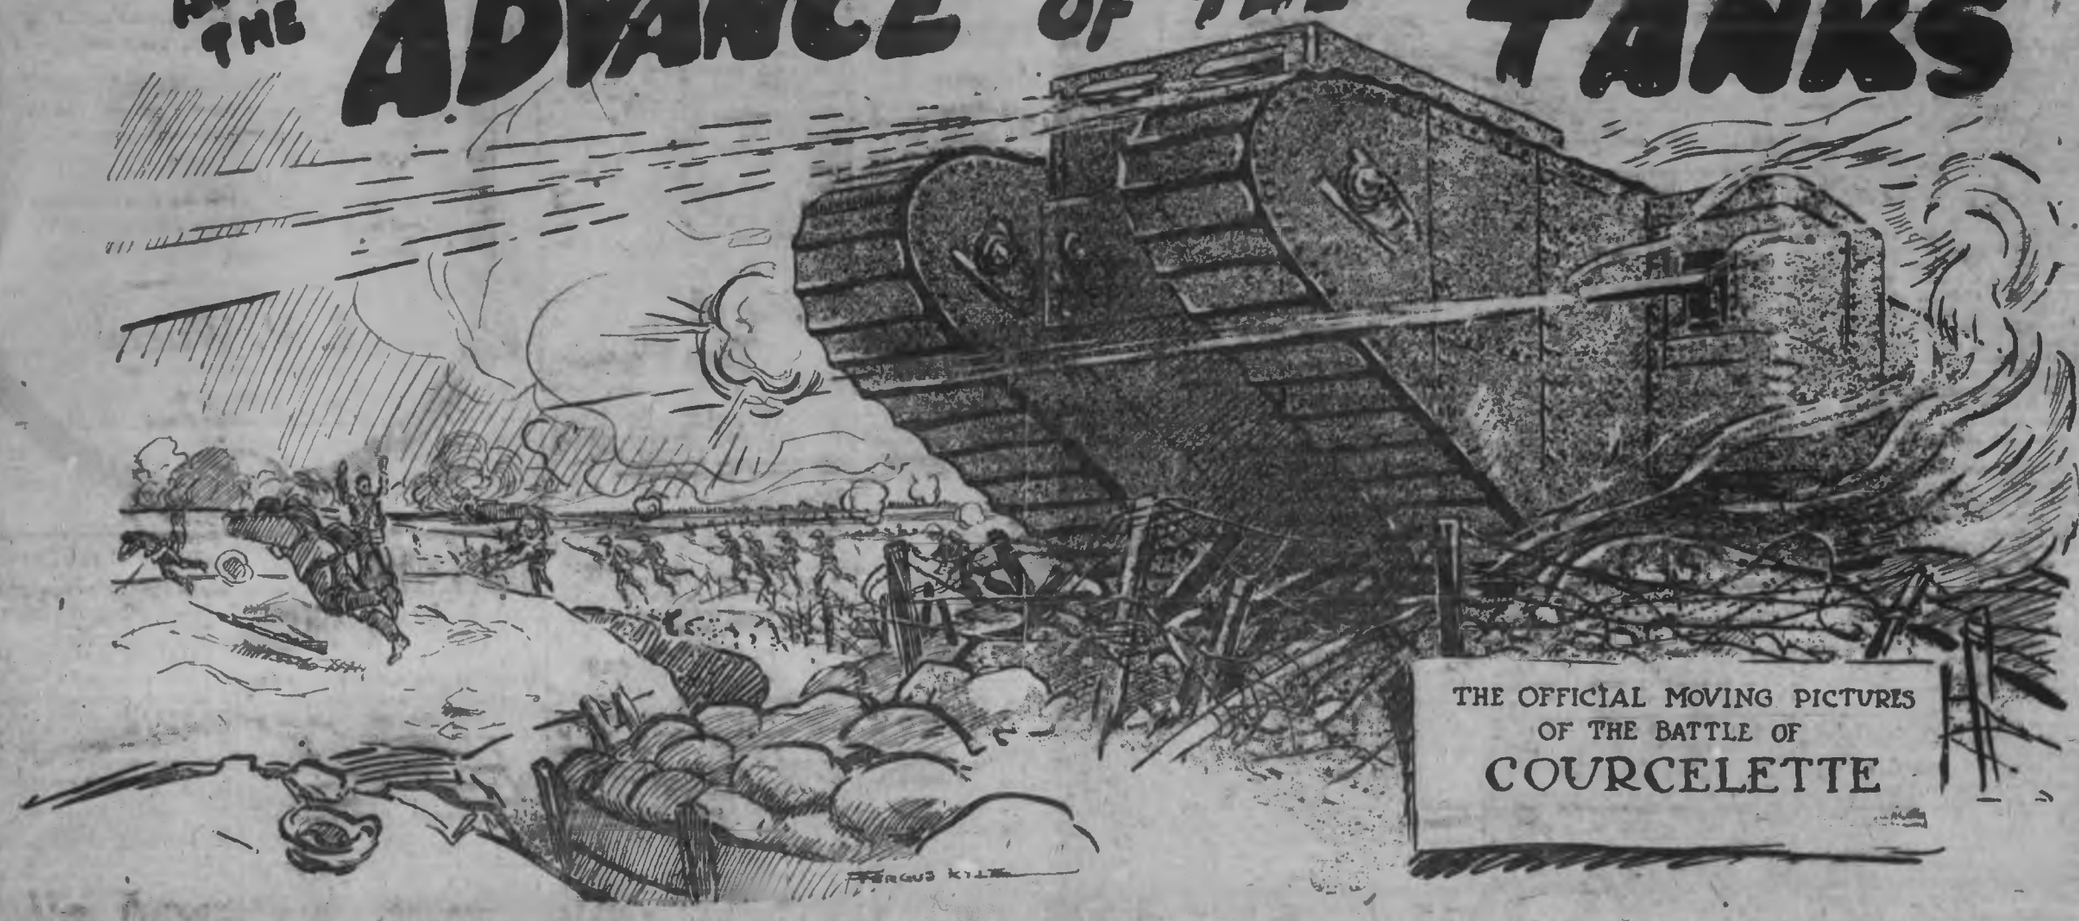
THE EMPIRE THEATRE PRESENT

THE CANADIAN ARMY IN ACTION AND THE ADVANCE OF THE TANKS



The Behemoth of Modern Battles, the British Tank, Has Revolutionized Man's Conception of War on Land

TODAY At 2.30 a. m. & 7.30 p.m. AND BALANCE OF WEEK

Will be presented the official film of the Canadian War Records Office, showing the Canadian Army in action in France, and the advance of the Tanks as photographed for motion pictures September 15 and 16, 1916, at the Battle of Courcelette, and issued by authority to the people of Canada as a record of the bravery of her soldiers and a tribute to their glory

These pictures have been seen and endorsed by the King and the Imperial, Civil and Military authorities, and are endorsed also as official by the Canadian Government. The Duke of Devonshire, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Quebec and the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario all witnessed the presentation of these pictures.

THE KING'S MESSAGE

"These pictures will help to bring home vividly to all in Canada the nature of the great sacrifice which their fellow-citizens in the Empire are making in its cause and in that of honour and justice. I hope that the greatest success will attend the efforts of those who have organized this means of spreading throughout Canada news of the progress of the great war."

These pictures show the Canadian troops marching to their positions for the attack; show the bombardment which preceded the attack; show our soldiers "going over the top"; the charge across "No Man's Land"; the struggle and the victory. They show the huge Tanks come wallowing up and into the storm of bullets; show the terror-stricken flight of the Germans and their shell-smashed and deserted trenches, and the victorious Canadians cheering and triumphant that day at Courcelette last September.

SUNNY SIDE RED CROSS SOCIETY HAS DONE GOOD WORK

KEENE, Feb. 21.—On Thursday afternoon of last week the "Sunnyside" Red Cross Society held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Adam Pimmett. The executives of the Villiers and Keene Patriotic Societies were present.

Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, president of the Keene Society, was asked to preside and opened the meeting with an address of welcome and a short talk on patriotic work.

Mrs. T. F. Matthews of Peterborough, was also present and gave a most interesting address on Red Cross work, and an outline of the work done by the Red Cross in England, which she had seen while there.

The ladies of the visiting societies of Villiers and Keene feel very much indebted to the ladies of the sixth line society for the opportunity of hearing Mrs. Matthews, Mrs. (Dr.) Harrison, Miss Bryer and Miss Howson rendered several fine solos during the afternoon.

The following is the report of the Sunnyside Red Cross Society for the past year: 50 shirts, 41 hospital gowns, 18 pyjama sets, 6 pairs slippers, 54 pairs socks, 70 property bags, 30 pillow slips, 22 pillows, 17 gauze shirts, 500 pieces of cotton wipes. Shipped 1 box in November, value $60.00; shipped 1 box in February, value $120.00. Amount of money raised since organizing, $317.00.

Mr. Duncan Kerr of Chicago, was a guest a few days last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Anderson.

Messrs. Byers and Moore were in Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. Patrick Roche and daughter Clara spent the week end with friends at Port Hope.

Miss Jean O'Neil spent the week end with friends at the Victoria House.

Miss Isabell Scriver of Whitby, is the guest of Miss Mary Burley.

Miss Lillian Moore of Peterborough, was at home over the week end.

Mr. Alex. Campbell of Peterborough, spent the week end at the home of her son, R. H. Campbell.

Mrs. Felix Roschotte and little daughter Joan, of Tweed, spent a few days last week with friends at the Victoria House.

The Norwood junior hockey team played the Keene team on Saturday night, Keene winning the game by a score of 7 to 0.

Miss Kathleen Clancy of Peterborough, was the guest of Miss Pearl McCann over the week end.

Mr. Harold Weir, who underwent an operation at Brayleford on Saturday is, we are pleased to report, doing nicely.

The Keene Ladies' Patriotic Society gave an entertainment and social on Wednesday night last and took in at the door $53.00. On Friday night the ladies served lunch in the Foresters' Hall and made $14.

Miss Eric Roberts of Alberta, and Miss Pearl Montgomery, are guests of Miss Belle Howson.

Miss Agnes McCrea was called to Peterborough on Friday on account of the illness of her cousin, Miss Bessie Reid.

The Keene correspondent wishes to correct an error in a report sent in a couple of weeks ago, to the effect that the proceeds of a ball given at Lang at that time were to go to the improvement of the Lang Hall. The proceeds were given to the Sunnyside Red Cross Society.

Word was received on Saturday by Mr. Henry Hatcher, that his son-in-law, Pte. John Wilson, of the 83rd Battalion, of Toronto, had been killed in action in France.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Downer returned from Chicago last Saturday, after spending a couple of weeks on their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Manley left on Monday for their home in Saskatchewan.

Mr. William Short, who has just recovered from a severe illness of typhoid fever at Toronto, was able to return to his home here last Saturday.

Mrs. Fred Bolin and daughter Clotilde are guests of Mr. and Gus. Bolin.

Miss Pearl McCann was shopping at Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. Dillon of Peterborough, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walsh.

Mr. and Mrs. William Harris of Saskatchewan, are guests of Mrs. James Secord.

The funeral of the late Miss Elizabeth Reid was held at the Presbyterian church on Monday afternoon. Services were conducted by the pastor of St. Andrew's church, Peterborough, and the pastor of Keene Methodist church. The pallbearers were Messrs. James McNeil, John Land, Andrew Shearer, William Shearer, David Armstrong and William Miller. Interment in Keene cemetery.

Mr. Frank Brown of Peterborough, is home from Peterborough, where he has been spending the past three months.

Mr. John Edwards of the Sixth Line, had the misfortune to have his leg broken while working in the woods on Monday afternoon.

New Britain Is Under Martial Law

Examiner Special:

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., February 22.—New Britain is under martial law to-day with two companies of State guardsmen patrolling its streets, following nine simultaneous fires in different parts of the city last night. Two men are under arrest on suspicion of having started fires. New Britain has many manufacturing plants which have been making munitions for the Entente Allies.

PETERBORO TALENT VISITS MILLBROOK

Mr. Frank Whitehouse and Mr. Frank Clarke Participated in Red Cross Concert

MILLBROOK, Feb. 22.—The entertainment, given in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Millbrook Red Cross, was one of the best treats ever given the music-loving people of this vicinity. The hall was filled to the doors with an appreciative audience.

Through the kindness of Mr. Frank Whitehouse, of Peterborough, those who attended this concert had the pleasure of listening to that musical gem, the Aeolian-Vocalion, the most perfect of all talking machines. The Many selections given were enthusiastically applauded, showing the appreciation of the 500 people present.

Mr. Whitehouse is a most clever violinist and his perfect playing of such selections as "Calif of Bagdad" (Balfe), and "Melodi" (Pachaikowsky), proved him to be thoroughly efficient, and so great was the applause that he was compelled to respond after each of his numbers on the programme.

Mr. Whitehouse's violin playing was of such a meritorious order that he has been engaged to take part in the Byron Stauffer entertainment here on March 12th, in the Methodist Church.

Mr. Frank Clarke, a leading jeweller of Peterborough, played two banjo solos entitled "Moonlight Serenade" and "The Water Melon Song," and to say that the audience was delighted is putting it mild. Mr. Clarke, a few years ago, was one of the leading Ministrelists of the Dominion, and although he has not been in practice of late, he has not forgotten the art of entertaining. His old plantation song was great and sent the audience into raptures. — Millbrook Minor.

MILITARY NEWS

yourself to all, by your steady adherence to principle, as well as your faithful work as our head, and to-night we feel that the Band is richer for having had our years of service.

And as you go out into a sphere of greater usefulness we wish you to take with you this fountain pen, to remind you of the many happy hours we have spent together here.

We pray that God's richest blessing may rest upon you in your chosen work and that you may be kept unspotted from the world."

Signed on behalf of the Mission Band—May Mitchell, Supt.; May Byam, V.P.; Mary Higgs, Sec.; Basil Richards, Treas.

Pte. Richards made a suitable reply, thanking the donors for the kind words in the address, and also for the very fine and useful gift.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 21. — In word received from England it is learned that Capt. A. E. Sutton, R.A.M.C., of Bethany, who had just returned after a six weeks' leave in Canada, has been awarded the Military Cross for services rendered on November 13, during the taking of Beaumont Hamel. Capt. Sutton graduated in medicine at the University of Toronto in 1909. He joined the Royal Army Medical Corps in November, 1915.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In this great war in which Canda is so mobly assisting in maintaining the integrity of the British Empire, the Cavalry have already played a wonderful part, and before this war ends, will have to play a much greater.

It seems that little is known of the Canadian Cavalry, and I am taking this opportunity to point out to you a few of the advantages of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

The Royal Canadian Dragoons is the oldest regular Cavalry Regiment in Canada, organized in 1883. They saw service in the North West Rebellion, and South Africa, and went overseas with the first contingent, C.F.E., September, 1914. Through all these years the Regiment has obtained an esprit de corps, which it is impossible to expect in newly formed units.

The Depot is stationed at Stanley Barracks, which is a regular Barracks, and not a make-shift. The work is interesting, and a man is not held back at elementary work if quick to grasp it. Being part of the Permanent Force of Canada, well-conducted men are allowed certain privileges, and at the same time, no longer period of service is entailed than in the C.E.F. The pay is also quite as good as in other units; $1.10 per day, and for married men a separation allowance of $20.00 per month.

Drafts go overseas continuously, enabling a man to go right over as soon as fit, without having to wait unil the whole unit is up to the mark. Promotion is therefore rapid. This should appeal to ambitious young men.

Why walk when you can ride? If you can't ride, we will teach you.

I hope this will meet with your consideration, because it must be understood that the war cannot be brought to a successful and speedy termination without your assistance. Think it over.

Applications for enlistment can be forwarded to Royal Canadian Dragoons, Stanley Barracks, Toronto, or to 152 Bay Street, Toronto.

Yours truly,
FREDERIC A. WARREN,
Lieut., R. C. D.
Officer I. C. Recruiting.

SCHEDULE OF INCREASES TO RESUME

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 22.— Hon. T. W. McGarry, Provincial Treasurer, will, it is said, announce in the budget speech in the Legislature this afternoon, that the government will at once resume the schedule of increases in salaries to civil servants in vogue before the war. Since the war began these increases were suspended.

Food Rioting In Philadelphia

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PHILADELPHIA, Penna., Feb. 22.—Food rioting broke out in Philadelphia this afternoon. Shouting 'it's robbery, robbery,' several hundred Jewish woman attacked the dealers who had advanced prices. Push carts were overturned and several shops on 7th street were entered by the women. Several were arrested.

LILY LAKE CONTRIBUTIONS

The contributions of the Lily Lake Red Cross Auxiliary, which were handed in to the Peterborough Public Library for the months of December and January, consisted of the following articles:

27 suits of pyjamas.
14 pairs of socks.
72 pillow covers.
12 hot water bottle covers.
24 many-tailed bandages.

COAL SHORTAGE IS ACUTE AT WINDSOR

WINDSOR, Feb. 22.—In spite of all attempts made by railroads to relieve the coal shortage in Ontario by employing all available engines to move coal the situation in Windsor is worse than at any time during the winter.

Coal dealers admitted there is scarcely a pound of coal, hard or soft, on hand, and no relief is in sight. Hundreds of homes which are heated with coal are on their last day's supply, and the Windsor natural gas company is being swamped with applications for service. Natural gas is also at premium, the company only having sufficient pressure to take care of its regular customers.

Several apartments and rooming houses will close unless the dealers are able to obtain a supply.

"We have thrown up our hands," admitted officials of Windsor Ice and Coal Company. "The dealers have done their best to get a supply, but the situation has now reached a climax."

Charles Askin, manager for Windsor branch of Hurley Bros., stated his company had no hard coal in its sheds.

Arthur W. Jackson, ex-mayor of Windsor, stated he had only a 24-hour supply of coal in his bins, and declared the situation is so serious as to demand civic action.

SOUTH END RED CROSS

On February 12 the South End Auxiliary of the Red Cross Society sent to headquarters at the library, its monthly shipment of work consisting of:

322 towels.
83 sheets.
34 many-tailed bandages.
54 pairs socks.
42 pyjama suits.
7 personal property bags.

The rooms at the cornor of Park and Reid streets are open every Wednesday afternoon, and every lady intersted in the work will receive a hearty welcome to the meetings.—Mamie J. Laing, Secretary.

Everday Reading

Being submissive to, and learning of Jesus, who is the Word, that was made flesh and dwelt among us; and living under the law of the Spirit are one and the same thing. Jesus said "take my yoke upon you and learn of me, and ye shall find rest." It is almost needless to say, that the cause of unrest and condemnation is sin. There is no condemnation to those who are in Christ Jesus, for the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus, makes us free from the law of sin. The law of God is holy, just and good, and by the law is the knowledge of sin. In the sense, the law of God, becomes to us a law of sin; in that by the law shall no flesh be justified, and if not justified, we must be condemned. Not being able to fulfil the requirements of the law, God in His wonderful love has provided the way, whereby the righteousness of the law can be fulfilled in us, who walk after the Spirit. This way is found in receiving Jesus in His entirety. Jesus who was a Jew came unto the Jews, and the Jews received Him not, but as many as received Him to them He gave power to become sons of God. As many as are led by the spirit, they are the childern of God. So we see in receiving Jesus and coming under His control, we are actually coming under the law of the Spirit; for the Spirit and the Word (that was made flesh) always agree. Unreservedly surrender to Jesus and trust Him as your complete Saviour from sin—purity, freedom and power is your heritage in Christ Jesus. With gladness take possession of your blood-bought rights.

VICTOR.

In Aid of St. Andrew's Red Cross

The proceeds of the Empire Theatre were yesterday afternoon devoted to St. Andrew's Church Ladies' Aid through the courtesy of Dr. F. L. Robinson. The Empire was well filled at both performances to see the splendid film which Dr. Robinson had procured specially for the purpose. Mrs. P. A. Kerr kindly played for the first and Mr. Asa Huyoke the second half, of the performance. A vocal solo by Miss Emma Worth, and a piano selection by Miss H. MacLaren, were greatly enjoyed.

The Coal Situation In Better Shape

In a conversation with Mr. Hicks to-day he stated that the coal situation was rapidly becoming normal. Coal will be reaching the city in such quantities as to relieve the tension that has existed for some time back. Telephone orders are being taken and it is looked for that there will be no very great difficulty for the balance of the winter.

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—How would it be if Capt. Burnham, instead of raising a regiment of women for France, would raise a regiment of one and go out in the country, settle on a farm and raise potatoes. He has never had much use for women, and now he wants to send them out of the country.

Yours, etc.,
SLACKER.

Editor Examiner, City,

Dear Sir,—I was pleased to see Mr. J. H. Burnham's letter in reply to the attack made in the Review upon the 93rd Band, and certain officers who have not yet been sent to the front. The attack in the Review was a veiled one against Mr. Burnham himself, and was totally unjustified, so far as it related to himself and others.

Ex-Postmaster Stratton has not forgotten some things which happened within the last few years, and will take a quiet slap at Mr. Burnham whenever he gets a chance.

Yours truly,
Liberal-Conservative.

Peterborough, Feb. 21, 1917.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Allow me a space in your paper. I want to ask the Police Commissioners and the Aldermen of this city to imagine themselves in my place on Friday, February 16th, also any citizen to be in a like position. A law-abiding citizen to be arrested, put in prison, given no opportunity to make an explanation, and every time I answered one of the questions asked of me, was told by the Chief of Police and detective that I was lying, and was advised by the Chief that my signature was at the Express Office, and that my lies would be looked after by the court; then to be searched, everything removed from my pockets, put into a cell (which had closed windows) and stifled by heat from a radiator.

Perhaps I had better give the readers an explanation of this scandalous affair. On December 13th, a man telephoned from Belleville to Mr. Gillespie of Peterborough Creamery to ship a quantity of butter. It is said that Mr. Gillespie shipped butter to Belleville, neglecting to demand cash on delivery. When the money was not forthcoming a search to find the accused began. Our Chief, for some unknown reason, has picked me out from the entire population of the Dominion of Canada, as being the guilty person. He sent for a man from Belleville to identify me, placed him in Mr. Hogan's hotel, and after remaining some hours he is supposed to have returned to the police and told them I was the man, even though he had never seen me in his life and I had never been by Hogan's that day. When going to town after dinner Mr. Meagher arrested me. This man from Belleville whose work it was to identify me, accompanied Mr. Meagher. Now, Mr. Editor, to show you what a blundering crowd the Chief and his assistants are, the day that I was charged with being in Belleville, I was actually summoned and appeared in the police court to give evidence.

Now, sir, when I asked who this villain was that came from Belleville, the answer I received was that he was a God-fearing man, and with a slur from the officer that he knew his business.

Even like like a criminal, my fingers were examined. When two of my relatives called to find out the trouble they were curtly refused an interview with me. Only by a stroke of good luck word was given to a friend, so that I was bailed out that night. I thought if God were looking down on this ridiculous state of affairs in a civilised city like Peterborough (?) that He would turn His head away.

Mr. Editor, if a report came out that a man received such treatment in Germany the press would urge the young men, even more, to enlist, and try and put down such tyrannical rule. Now, all I want is that the citizens of Peterborough will see that I receive justice in this case.

Thank you, Mr. Editor, I remain,
THE VICTIM.

WOMEN POLICE A SUCCESS

Have Won a Permanent Place in England, Their Leader Believes.

LONDON, Feb. 22.— "I think we have won a permanent place for the policewoman in England," said Miss A. Damer Dawson, commandant of the Women's Police Service. "We have proved our usefulness. We are growing steadily in power and influence."

The Women's Police Service was founded at the beginning of the war to train a body of women who might be used as "substitute police," especially among women and children.

"At that time," said Miss Dawson, "there seemed almost no opening for a practical demonstration of what women police could do, as there were still many policemen on duty. In three years the change has been rapid. Some eight or nine cities have installed trained policewomen as parts of their forces. The scope of their activities has steadily increased. Perhaps the biggest opening has been found in the munition factories. Here many hundreds are required.

"The policewoman in the munition factory is detective, chaperon, welfare worker, constable and watchman. In the main, however, her work concerns the young women workers and is covered by the expression, 'preventive and protective.'"

The course of training for policewomen is exacting—attendance at police courts to learn methods and duties, first aid, with stretcher and fire drill and patrol work on the London streets.

"The policewomen in the factories," said Miss Dawson, "keep the gates, examine workers' passes and stop and escort visitors. There are generally two gates to a big munition plant, one controlled by men police, the other by women police. In some factories the women police do most of the work of patrolling the factory area. They protect the younger workers from the rougher element and they travel on work trains to prevent rowdyism."

To season the labour of cotton pickers a Virginian has invented a low-wheeled truck on which a person can sit close to the plants and push himself along, the vehicle also holding a bag to receive the cotton and an umbrella for shade.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it formed stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

GIRL OF 12 IS 6 FEET TALL

JOHN HOPKINS PHYSICIANS BELIEVE SHE WILL BE A GIANTESS.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 22—A girl who has been growing for the last three years at a phenomenal rate and is now more than six feet tall, although she is only 12 years old, is interesting the physicians of John Hopkins Hospital, who expect to see her become a giantess, without loss of normal mental powers.

For the last three years the girl's growth has been phenomenal, surpassing all records at the hospital and cases known to the scientists there who are studying giantism. Until she was nine years old she was simply a large girl. She now weighs 117 1-2 pounds and is above the average in intellect.

Dr. William Thayer and Dr. Lewellys Barker, professors of clinical medicine, have made a study of the case. The girl's mother is stout, and her father is larger than most men, but is not a giant.

Equine Heroes of the War As Numerous As The Human

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Feb. 21.—It would be difficult to find a more pampered lot of beings than the war horses. In the stress of battle they suffer with the men, but the number of equine "casualties" among the hundreds of thousands of horses employed is very small.

There are veterans among the horses who have been wounded three or four times; there are even those who have suffered nervous breakdowns from the shattering shock of shells. If they were men in khaki they would have gold stripes of honour upon their sleeves, but the faithful old horses go back to the front time and time again, asking nothing in the ways of rank or distinction.

What they get instead is the very best of food and plenty of it, the kindest of care and the keenest appreciation of the services they render. Visitors to the battle zone invariably express amazement at the appearance and condition of the horses. Just now they are snug and warm under the self-protection of their long winter coats. They are fat and strong muscled. They plod and splash contentedly through the mud to twos, threes, fours or twelves, dragging guns and heavy waggons behind them with never the necessity of a harsh word or a whiplash from their drivers. The men come to love the horses. Officers who have been here from the beginning, and there are still a few left, say that in all that time they have never seen an act of cruelty toward horse or mule.

DISEASES STAMPED OUT

One reason for the splendid appearance of the horses at the front is the fact that the moment one begins to show signs of over fatigue or debilitation he is taken out of service and sent back to a hospital to recuperate. Occasionally, too, the horses come down with mud blisters upon their backs, with an injured foot that may not have been noticed in time, or with some of the diseases that equine flesh is heir to. It is a great tribute to the veterinary services, however, that most of the old contagious diseases that used to decimate the ranks of horses in war time have been effectually stamped out and no longer give concern. Glanders, for instance, once a dread scourage, is now a thing of the past. None of the horses in France is infected. Occasionally a case comes with a new shipment from abroad, but it is quickly eliminated.

At the end of two years of the South African war fully ninety per cent. of the horses had been affected by the mange. During two years and a half of the present war, with the number of horses engaged multiplied by thousands, less than two per cent. have been affected. The mules have been even less involved. As a matter of fact the mules are so tough and hardy they seldom enter into the veterinary statistics.

The hospitals provided for them by the army must very nearly approach the horse's idea of heaven. It is a joy to go into one of the convalescent "wards," especially at meal times. Sometimes the convalescents stand almost nose to nose, and if the horse across the way gets his hay first there is a terrible hullabaloo. A particularly ravenous patient now and then not only will eat his portion of hay but the rope net that surrounds it. A few nights ago one had such a healthy appetite he tried to eat the blanket off his nearest neighbour.

FED FOUR TIMES A DAY

All the horses in hospitals are fed four times a day. The more debilitated ones are fed five and six times. When they are particularly run down and in danger of being mistaken for a sort of boneyard hatracks, the patients get nothing but cooked foods, and they fairly revel in them. They have tonics, too, and it is remarkable to see the improvement in their condition that a few weeks work. The diet for "debilities" consists of oatmeal gruel, linseed gruel, boiled turnips and scalded oats. Later they get crushed oats and chopped hay, and almost before they know it are in the convalescent ward.

The operating rooms with their big beds spread upon the concrete floors are as cheery and immaculate as if intended for human beings. For all except the most minor operations an anaesthetic is administered.

"The horses take the chloroform remarkably well," said the officer commanding one of the hospitals to the correspondent of the Associated Press. "I don't think we have lost but one patient in the last six months."

"Patient" seems a most appropriate designation for the horses. They are very pictures of pateince until they reach the stage of convalescence. Each patient has a little aluminum tag and a hospital chart which tells his age, colour, where he came from, what he shall have to eat and drink and take, when he shall have a nice hot bath, and various notations as to his condition and behaviour. There is a personal touch about the treatment of the horses which in itself bespeaks the esteem in which they are held. Walking about the wards the "O.C." had a kind word or two for his patients. It seemed a particularly human thing to do. And he patted most of them and called many by name.

A GLASS EYE FOR ONE.

"This old charger," he said of one, is a great favourite in the hospital. He has been one of the bravest of the brave, has lost an eye in battle, and so we call him Nelson. I am going to send to Paris and get him a good glass eye before he goes back to the front, so none of the other horses will have a chance to 'swank' it over him. It won't really be a glass eye, because they are made of a composition, not so fragile. The horses do not mind the artificial eyes at all and they look awfully well in them."

So thorough is the work of the veterinary service that if a patient develops a contagious disease all the horses in the unit from which he came are called in for disinfection and examination. So successfully is the work that 82 per cent. of all sick cases and "casualties" are returned to active service.

"If we were dealing with human beings" said the officer commanding, "we could run the percentage up to the nineties. But unfortunately, in dealing with the horses we have at times to weigh their cases in the scales of pounds, shillings and pence. In other words, we have to decide whether it will pay to save the animal. Is he too old to be of much service when he is cured, or will the course of treatment be so long and expensive as to outweigh the value of future usefulness? In striving for war efficiency and the highest potentiality of horse power all these things must be considered. It is the old, old story again of the survival of the fittiest. There is no other way.

Some idea of the number of American horses "doing their bit" in the war can be gained from the fact that 40 per cent. of all admitted to hospital come from the United States.

PRINGLE'S

Sanitary Fruit and Fish Store

The friends you most admire,
Who play the squarest game,
Are those who've earned the title;
They're always just the same,
And this holds good with fruits
And vegetables as with a full bag
The people know they'll get it
With, FROM PRINGLE'S, on the tag.

The price of good old fruits
And fish, Halibut and Salmon,
Have mounted up like rockets
And will stay up—though a famine,
But cheap goods don't attract us
Poor grades with us cannot be found.
The label tells the quality
When, FROM PRINGLE'S, it's all sound.

In face of higher prices
We keep faith with the trade;
From start to finish our label
Means double A1 grade.
We're out to hold the business
With one set honest plan,
The quality will never change
With, FROM PRINGLE'S, on the can

When quality is mentioned
Who asks for greater fame
Than honest worth and service
Have given to our name,
Come war, come peace, come plenty,
In winter or days that now grow warmer
What else betide, no matter where
With PRINGLE'S on the corner.

INTERESTING ADDRESS GIVEN IN GEORGE ST. METHODIST CHURCH

Miss Ada Ward Speaks of "London in War Times"—Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Occupied the Chair

The George Street Methodist church was filled last night to hear Miss Ada Ward speak on "London in War Time." Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., chairman of the evening explained that Miss Ward, having already captivated Peterborough, she hardly needed an introduction.

Miss Ward was not in London when war broke out, but holidaying in Norway. It was here she heard the first mutterings of unrest. A wireless message, "trouble in Ireland" came first, later a more ominous wire, "Austria declares war on Serbia," but she comforted herself with the thought of "letting the foreigners fight their own battles." However, things looked daily more serious and the captain became uneasy. France became involved and Miss Ward's party was advised to get across the North Sea before England was in. They did so and after an adventurous trip, arrived in the Tyne docks on the eventful August 4, 1914 to hear war had been declared.

LONDON IN KHAKI

Her arrival in London will always be remembered, for from the peaceful city she had left it was transformed into a khaki clad populace. Groups of little boys mobilised into a miniature army, carrying banners, "skin the sossijes" paraded the city with biscuit-tin bands. The wonderful music of these she said was brought back to her by that of the 247th on the street. At Woolwich she saw a continuous khaki-clad stream of the artillery pass from 7 a.m. until 9 p.m., and witnessed London coming out of the shell it has been in for hundreds of years, bringing these soldiers tea and an old apple, and all women presenting apples with the dignity of the Kaiser presenting iron crosses.

LONDON'S BUSY STREETS

It is hard to believe in London, a bloody conflict is going on only half a day away, that the rumble of distant guns can be heard; but the close observer can see differences in little ways. You can occasionally cross the streets without a policeman. The motor busses are absent to a great extent. And a strange Dickens-like phenomenum has reappeared—the horse bus. The motor drivers have given their places to girls in uniform and in this capacity the girls are often the victims of such jests as, "what are you doing in that uniform—trying in for there are as many men and always ready with a "no" for all the young men have gone to the front.

THE STORES IN WAR

"Never in all my life have I seen such stores as London, Berlin, Paris, New York, Chicago, none have their equal," said Miss Ward. They have all the historic statuary, the graves ing in, for there is as many men and women and what they look at is different. Jewels, ribbons, lace all have disappeared and are replaced by relics of battle fields and the latest dispatches. The very language of the crowd is changing to a strange, new mixture of Belgian, English and French.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Whitehall, with its wonderful secrets the war office with its direful casualty lists, before which the most pathetic scenes are witnessed. They are watched by strange new guards. The picturesque horse guards so long a sight, have gone and are replaced by khaki. Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, all the great buildings are crowded by bomb proof netting. All the beautiful things in the Abbey all the historic statuary, the paves of Kings, all are covered by sand bags. The stained glass windows are gone, the gems of art are buried. I would not advise any sight-seer to visit London at present.

THE PRINCE AND CARDINAL MERCIER.

Miss Ward was struck by the simplicity of the Prince of Wales. Unguarded, shy, modest, a rosy cheeked boy he passed with an air of "don't look at me," so different from the haughty Crown Prince and the poor little maimed Russian heir. She saw the reception of Cardinal Mercier, when a mighty crowd, of every creed, assembled and received his benediction.

THE PARKS AND NIGHT

The parks are changed. Before the war, London boasted one single search light; now every park has several, every park, as well as building boasts a gun ready for the dreaded 'Zep' raids The city at night is black, until a warning of the dreaded visitor comes. Miss Ward told several interesting tales of her own experience in these aerial raids.

Miss Ward hoped the Prime Minister would speak the one word necessary for prohibition soon in England

A vote of thanks, moved by Major O'Flynn and seconded by S. R. Armstrong was passed, both of whom thought it surprising if Miss Ward's lecture did nothing for recruiting. A song by Miss Callahan was much enjoyed.

EVA BOYLE IS SENT FOR TRIAL AT KING'S BENCH

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—Eva Boyle, the waitress, who is charged with the murder of Albert Haynes, who was shot through the heart on Pine avenue near the reservoir on January 9th, appeared before Judge Lanctot for voluntary statement looking much improved since she was heard at the inquest, when she shuddered as the name of Haynes was pronounced by one of the witnesses.

There was an absence of fear in the bearing of the girl, who had been cheered as much as possible by her counsel, Mr. W. M. Couper. He told her in her cell that friends were coming to her assistance, and that nothing would be left undone to plead her case before a jury.

She was calm under the ordeal of making her voluntary statement, a task which must be performed while standing. She stood before the court while Clerk Paquette read out the long form of voluntary statement.

Through counsel she pleaded not guilty to the charge of murdering Albert Haynes, and was remanded for trial at the March term of the Court of King's Bench which convenes on March 1st. She was taken at once to her cell, from which she was removed to the woman's jail.

Tells of Career.

For the first time since the murder the young woman spoke of the crime to her counsel. She is a married woman, her husband living in Scotland. Three times she came to this country, the last being about two years ago, when she met Haynes.

"I did not mean to kill him, and was frightened when he fell to the ground without speaking."

The young woman was overcome with emotion at this point in her narrative of the events, and she was not asked to continue her talk.

HUNGARIAN ARMY SCANDAL.

Minister of National Defence Removed—Army Rations Diverted.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam says it is reported from Vienna that Baron Hazai has been removed as Hungarian Minister of National Defence, (Major-General Von Saurmay having been appointed in his place. This change and also the removal from command of the Austro-Hungarian army of Field Marshal Archduke Frederick, who has been made second in command of the Emperor, are reported to have been in consequence of a scandal in the army management, which was revealed recently at headquarters by the fact that large bodies of troops were without food for upwards of a day.

According to this report, food intended for the troops was misapplied with full knowledge of the higher command. The Emperor is said to have decided to proceed with many additional cases which are described as being of a sensational nature.

LOSES HIS VOTE BY LEAVING PLACE

Mr. Justice Tellier has ruled that a farm labourer who leaves his employer's house to take up work elsewhere, thereby loses his real domicile and cannot have his name inscribed on the voter's lists of the locality where he formerly resided.

Avila Lafreniere worked for Joseph Laporte at St. Norbet, County of Berthier. In August, 1916, he decided to go to Saskatchewan to do harvesting. He left his trunk and other belongings at Laporte house Some weeks later the voters' lists were revised and the town placed his name on the list Objection was made and suit ensued. Mr. Justice Tellier upheld the suit. Lafreniere returned from harvesting November 1, 1916. His Lordship ruled that by going to Saskatchewan and taking up domicile with a new employer he had lost his domicile in Quebec.

DREADED NEURALGIA

Most people think of neuralgia as a pain in the head or the face, but neuralgia may affect any nerve in the body. Different names are given to it when it affects certain nerves. Thus neuralgia of the sciatic nerve is called sciatica, but the character of the pain and the nature of the disease are the same. The cause being the same, the cure to be effective must be the same. The pain in neuralgia is caused by starved nerves. The blood which carries nourishment to the nerves has become thin and impure and no longer does so, and the pain you feel is the cry of the nerves for their natural food. You may ease the pains of neuralgia with hot applications, but you can only cure the trouble by enriching the purifying the blood. For this purpose we know of no medicine that can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich blood and thus act as the most efficient of nerve tonics. If you are suffering from this most dreaded of troubles, or any form of nerve thouble, give these pills a fair trial, and see how speedily you will be restored to good health.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MILLION TO BUY FOOD.

Mayor of New York Will Try to Relieve Starving Women.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—After Mayor Mitchell had been informed by East Side housewives to-day that their children were "starving to death by hundreds" because of the high cost of food, he promised to place before the Board of Estimates on Friday their plea that $1,000,000 be appropriated by the city to buy food for distribution at reasonable prices.

TRENCHES NEAR VIENNA HOME OF DESERTING MOB

ROME, Feb. 21.—A despatch from Berne reports an extraordinary state of affairs in Vienna.

The trenches around the city which the government fearing invasion, dug after the Russians had taken Przemysl and which have since been neglected, have become infested by deserters who live there defying the enfeebled police, and coming into the city to loot shops.

JOINED BY THIEVES.

These men, who have been joined by thieves and denizens of the slums, constitute a grave peril to the public safety.

Many of the food stores have closed owing to an entire lack of provisions. The remainder keep their shutters down, hoping to protect the scarce contents from the looters, but the food owners hide their stocks underground or in any other unlikely place, while citizens in general declare that they would prefer the Russians round the city to the marauders in the trenches.

COWS GIVE NO MILK.

For a week Vienna has been milkless, even the hospitals being unsupplied.

The farmers say their cows cannot give milk owing to malnutrition.

The factory hands refuse to work unless their employers give them potato rations superior to those allowed by the government, consequently the employers have entered the potato market with the result that the rest of the population is compelled to go without them.

Cold and hunger reign in Vienna, Grata and other large cities, causing intense discontent.

Declined West Point Job; With Allies At Front

CARLISLE, Pa., Feb. 20. — An unusual surprise was in store for a teacher at the Carlisle Indian school, when she received a New Year's post card with this address: "1033198 P. P. C. L. I. Army P. O., London, Eng." The front cover had on it the words, "God defend the right," with the British Union Jack in the middle.

The other side revealed that the sender was Lieut. Long Lance, a graduate of the school in 1912, and a full-blooded Indian, noted for his clean habits and clean speech, and above all else for his politeness, but now a lieutenant in Princess Pat's regiment — "Somewhere in France."

SENDS GREETING IN VERSE.

Lieut. Long Lance was sending his New Year's greetings, and he did it in these words:

Kind remembrances and best wishes for the New Year.
I've just come out of the trenches,
Where we made the Germans dance,
And I'm sending this greeting to let you know
That he is still alive. Yours truly,
Lieutenant Long Lance.

Alive and fit as can be,
Though fighting's not all sport,
And manners 'Made in Germany'
Aren't quite what you and I were taught.

Sincerely,
Lieut. S. C. Long Lance,
Princess Pat's Regt., Somewhere in France.

DECLINED WEST POINT PLACE

It was known that Long Lance had army ambitions for after attending Conway hall, Carlisle, on graduation from the Carlisle Indian school, he entered St. John's military academy, at Manlius, N. Y., and although appointed to West Point by President Wilson, did not accept.

He is rated at the Carlisle school as "a young man of high ideals and aim in life," and was a former captain of the cadet battalion.

MAY HAVE TO CLOSE THE BLIND FACTORY

OTTAWA WOMEN ARE NOT BUYING THE PRODUCTS OF THE SIGHTLESS WORKERS.

If Ottawa housewives, in buying brooms, do not take greater interest in the appeals issued by the Association for the Blind, and insist on having the brooms made by the blind persons of the city, the factory operated by the association will be forced to close.

This statement was made in a letter to the Ottawa Council of Women, read at the last meeting, by Mrs. Adam Shortt, who urged the members to support this charitable cause. Several of those present said that they were using the brooms and found them to be equal to any and better than some on the market.

"FLESH PRODUCERS" PAY $30,000 FINES

Two Manufacturers of Sargol Sentenced for Fraudulent Use of the Mails.

AUBURN, Feb. 21.—Wylie B. Jones and Herbert E. Woodward, both of Binghamton, who were found guilty in United State Court for fraudulent use of the mails in selling Sargol, an alleged "flesh producer," were sentenced by Judge George W. Ray to-day to pay fines aggregating $30,000.

In view of the fact that Judge Ray did not impose jail sentences, the defendants announced that they would waive all appeals and paid their fines promptly. Jones paid $20,000 and Woodward $10,000, and both were discharged.

The trial lasted thirteen weeks, and hundreds of witnesses were called from all parts of the United States Nearly every chemist and pure food expert in the country appeared at one time or another.

In sentencing the defendants Judge Ray stated that the fine imposed by him did not cover half the cost of the trial to the government. The government through United States Attorney Frank A. Cregg, determined to establish a test case in the so-called flesh producing patent medicines.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, Feb. 14th, at the home of Colonel Birdsall, when his only daughter, Ruth, was married to Mr. Elmhirst.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties by Rev. Pickford, of Brighton, a former rector of Norwood and Westwood.

The happy couple left on the evening train for Ottawa andp oints east, and on their return will reside at Birdsall.

Mr. H. G. Buck and Master Glenford were in Peterborough on Monday.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY, ST. THOMAS' CHURCH.

The February meeting of the Women's Auxiliary, was held on Monday, the 19th, at the home of Mrs. Charles Needler. Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the attendance was small, but nevertheless a pleasant and profitable evening was spent by the few who were there. The members were pleased to see their president, Mrs. Allen, in her accustomed place again. After the devotional exercises, the regular business of the meeting was gone through with, and arrangements made for the annual meeting to be held next month. The answers to the questions of the missionary competition were then read by Mrs. Needler and Miss Macnamara. The meeting closed with the Doxology.

Mr. Harry Bland of Mount Pleasant gave the Mirror a call on Monday.

The Mount Pleasant School held a successful patriotic concert on Friday evening. The programme was interesting from start to finish. The proceeds amounted to $25.

The following is the order of the services in the Methodist church, at Millbrook, next Sunday. At 10.30 a. m., the pastor. At 7 p.m., Rev. D. Paten. Miss Alice Suggett, of Fenelon Falls, will sing at both services. Zion, 2.30 p.m., the pastor; Fallis Line, 3 p.m., Rev. D. Oaten.

Waste of War In Invaded France Put in Figures

The Minister of the Interior of France has caused an estimate to be made of the amount of materials destroyed or rendered useless in the invaded regions.

The investigation was carried out in the following departments; Nord, Pas de Calais, Somme, Oise, Seine et Marne, Aisne, Ardennes, Meuse, Meurthe et Moselle, Vosges, that is to say, in 790 communes, to which the inhabitants have returned.

From the operations were, perforce, excluded 250 evacuated communes in the army zone and 2,500 communes still in the occupation of the enemy. The figures in tons and cubic yards are as follows:

Total masonary destroyed cubic yards	4,680,000
Stone, cubic yards	2,080,000
Lime tons	297,000
Bricks	548,000,000
Sand, cubic yards	1,845,000
Copper work, cubic yards	313,500
Timber, cubic yards	591,500
Joinery, cubic yards	195,000
Iron frame work, tons	27,350
Bolts, locks, etc, tons	5,000
Tiles	91,000,000

STAY-AT-HOMES DO BRITISH GRUMBLING

WAR DISCOMFORTS CAUSE MORE COMPLAINT AMONG CIVILIANS THAN MEN IN TRENCHES.

CHAMBERLAIN UNDER FIRE

Along With Minister Prothero, He Is Now a Target of Journalistic Dissatisfaction.

(By Charles H. Ghasty, in the New York Times.)

LONDON—My friend, the crippled Coldstream Guardsman, who is the Prime Minister's doorman, agreed with me that the frost was quite record-breaking for England, and that the trenches across the Channel were no place for a lover of comfort. "But," said he, "it's luxury compared with what it will be two or three weeks from now when the thaw comes. There's no way to drain the water out of the trenches and you've got to stand in it, almost sleep in it. When staying in the trench is like that, you don't have to be told twice to go over the top. There's a sort of warmth in schrapnel, and Fritz-hunting does make your blood circulate a bit."

That is talk with a sporting flavour. The point of view of men bred at games is bound to be a sporting one. England is a social aristocracy, but it is a sporting as well as a political democracy. The Olympians of society are not above taking on a team of plumbers and shoe-makers for a game of cricket. This war has shown that game-playing in peace time has put something very fine into the English Tommy in war time.

"American readers will have had the story of the seventeen-year old Jacky from the Laurentic, not yet thawed out from hours on a winter sea in an open boat, clad only in shirt and a pair of breeches, walking into the public room of the tavern to which survivors were brought, and instantly taking possession of the piano, upon which he gayly thummed the war tune. "Pack your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile." The rest of the survivors crowded round and joined in the singing. When the cigarettes were being passed a Tommy who was present said, "No, sir! None for us, please! This is Jack's day."

While the men who are suffering the hardships are taking them lightly, the stay-at-homes make the row. These latter have never been "blooded" as the gallant chaps in the field have, and many of them keep up a constant grumble at the inconveniences that war brings in its train. My fruiterer is a well-fed, prosperous man. He happens to live in a flat across the street from my own. In his grate there blazes a cheerful fire, and he and his family live in comfort. But he poisons the fruit which I buy from him with his hard-luck story of the effect of the war upon importation and sale of his particular commodity. Be assured, however, that he passes all inconvenience on to the customer in increased prices.

The grumbling of those who are pricked, without being lamed, by war produces some of the commotion that often passes for public opinion. Upon such a ground swells a partisan or sensational press may easily blow up a nasty sea. Dropping metaphor, there are at the moment signs of journalistic dissatisfaction. Neville Chamberlain, Director General of National Service, and Mr. Prothero, Minister of Agriculture, two men whose appointments were conspicuously for merit and absolutely removed from politics, are the target. Up to date, however, criticism is in a very minor key as compared with that directed against the Asquith Government. As a matter of fact this kind of attack would appear to be less dangerous than the more in sorrow than in anger brand that some of the Liberal editors have been using.

Meanwhile the Lloyd George Government goes on efficiently. Englishmen cried out for initiative. They have got it. They wanted concentration. The War Council decides the biggest question at a single sitting. I should say that the present Government is the strongest, both in point of its own merit and in public acceptance, of all of the belligerents'. Of course it is too new as yet to have made a record, but as far as it has gone it looks like a war-winner. The most obvious danger to its complete success is the difficulty sustained cohesion and co-ordination inherent in a double-headed body, but the Prime Minister's combination of insight and mastery of details, his human sympathy and grasp of affairs, are standing him in good stead in accomplishing the difficult feat of making a new system of Government for war.

There is no doubt that President Wilson has stimulated the Allies to thought, and in that sense they have profited. Whether America has profited by this last stimulation, which was offered at a moment when a notable diplomatic victory had just been scored by the President, is not yet apparent. It seems reasonably clear already that the gist of his argument for universal democratization went home. Force will not vanish from the world, but the very best guarantee to go with the "reparation and restitution" upon which peace is to be conditioned, is liberalism. If enduring peace is to come among the Europeans, it must come through breaking the backs of the autocracies.

Is Not Murderer Of Mazie Colbert

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.—Pte. Frederick J. Farrell, of the Army Medical Corps, did not murder Mazie Colbert in her apartment in Philadelphia, some months ago. Bernard W. Lewis, a young millionaire, committed suicide at the time the police were searching for him and according to them by that action acknowledged his guilt.

Farrell gave himself up to the Montreal police a week ago, declaring that he had murdered Mazie, but Detective Callaghan of the Philadelphia force came and upset Farrell's story completely. Mazie Colbert was murdered on December 29 and Farrell said that from December 4 to January 14 he was in the Middleton Hospital and afterwards came direct to Montreal.

KENTUCKIAN TELLS OF SOMME FIGHTING

CONVALESCENT IN LONDON.

Sergeant, Decorated for Bravery, and Soon to be a Lieutenant, Will Spend Furlough In America.

By Charles H. Grasty in N. Y. Times.

LONDON, Feb.—I have been spending part of this Sunday afternoon with a boy who like myself, was raised under the ministry of Marse Henry Watterson in the blue grass region of Kentucky. Madame, the wife of the American Ambassador, who takes a deep daily interest in these boys from home, told me about him. In Ward K 4 of King George's Hospital he is a number—177,378. In Fayette County, Ky., he is Alexander McClintock. His home is that loveliest of all human habitations a blue grass farm. The place is called Longridge and it is on the Lexington-Maysville turnpike. His father and mother are at Longridge waiting for him. They belong to the Breckinridge clan. Before I went to the hospital I recalled that a grandson of John Breckinridge has recently come here to do some work in the embassy. I called him up and he went with me. So the afternoon in our part of King George's Hospital was a kind of old Kentucky home reunion.

We found Sergeant McClintock precisely what a Kentucky boy ought to be. Perhaps it is the same limestone that makes the blue grass; something puts love of fight into the typical Kentuckian. Here in faraway London lay this bright-eyed, well-setup boy of 23, a bit of shrapnel still in his thighbone, though the biggest piece had been cut out, smiling as he related his adventures and game for more of the same.

"Why did I go in?" he asked back. "Oh, I wanted to go in from the first."

That was all the why he knew. He was operated on at Rouen late in November and shortly afterward brought to London. He is convalescent now and hopes that he will be allowed to spend the interval between being able to walk about and being fit for trench duty in the United States. He would just love to go back to Lexington for a few weeks before taking a hand in the drive that is going to make Fritz homesick. What would add to the interest of a trip home is that the King has just given him a medal for going into the German fire to bring in two wounded men. Also the Sergeant is shortly to become a Lieutenant.

We asked the questions, McClintock answered them, and this is the story:

Going "Over the Top."

"On Oct. 21, north of Posieres, on the Somme, my battalion 'went over the top' after nine counter assaults by the Germans. We got to the Regina trench, one of the most famous out there, and we stayed there for forty-eight hours. The first lot took it but couldn't hold it because they didn't have the artillery; then the second battalion went in and came out, and the third did likewise; the fourth, which was mine, held it because we had the advantage of broad daylight and we had the artillery behind us, guided in their fire by the aeroplanes flying above and spotting the German trenches.

"I got out of that adventure all right. At 6:10 A.M., on Nov 18 we again 'went over' behind a barrage. The 600 of us who were left from the first stayed in the second line of trenches. I was in charge of the second wave, known as the 'mopping up' wave. The first wave doesn't stop, but the second and succeeding ones have details to attend to. I got through the first line of trenches, but as I was going to the second I stepped at a shell hole where four men, confused by the firing and uncertain what to do, were lying. I had just time to order them forward when I got a piece of shrapnel in my thigh. I had the four men go on, and I lay in the shell hole, where I bandaged myself., I didn't lose consciousness, and after two hours I saw a lot of German soldier prisoners going by under guard, and I commanded four of them to come to me, pointing my revolver at them to make step lively. They put me on a rubber sheet and carried me five miles to Pozieres. My wound was not very painful, except when I was shaken by my carriers. They dropped me a couple of times when they ducked in the shell holes to escape the fire. That hurt."

"What is the spirit of the German soldier as observed by your American eyes?" I asked.

DEPRESSED BY SOMME OFFENSIVE.

"They are downhearted. The Somme offensive has depressed them. German soldiers, though excellent in many respects, will not fight at close range. Just before I was wounded, when my lot got to the first trench, there were about thirty German soldiers in it. All of them held up their hands, excepting one officer, who was using his small arms at a very lively rate. I had the satisfaction of bayonetting that officer in the back. I never found whether he died or not, but he stopped his shooting and fell in the trench; and I myself was wounded shortly afterward.

"Most of the casualties are from counterattacks; Fritz has the range of his own trenches, and that is where we catch it. When we can, we dig a new trench some distance away, but in November the ground is too hard. In the nature of things we suffer a good deal from our own artillery fire. It's part of the game and can't be helped. At 200 yards we have to stoop as we go forward, so as not to get hit by the barrage. When we are within fifty yards of the German trench and when the barrage, which has been keeping up a lively fire, half of it shrapnel, so as to make Fritz keep his head down—the very second the barrage lets up we have got to make a rush for it."

Sergeant McClintock said that in his battalion 50 per cent. were citizens of the United States, many of them born English. He thought that about 10 per cent. were native born Americans. He said that it was generally understood and accepted that there were 40,000 native-born Americans fighting in the armies of the Entente Allies. McClintock is deeply attached to his battalion.

"What is the worst thing that you met with?" he was asked.

"The dead ones," he replied. "The ground is full of them. I have counted as many as sixty-two lying unburried in a ten-minute walk. Once, in a trench, when I was digging a funk hole, I struck two corpses. Usually they are thrown in shell holes and covered up. It's not much use burying. The shells kick them right up. Sometimes we tried to make a bayonet into a cross for an officer, but it doesn't stay long. A shell seldom hits a trench, but when one does land it starts something. I saw a five and-nine-tenths shell, a 'coal box' we call it, hit a trench and kill three men. We couldn't gather enough of these three men to fill a hat.

"About the most unpleasant thing, next to the corpses, is trench feet. I have stood as long as seventy hours continuously in water up to my knees. Even if you wear gum boots the water soaks through and your feet swell up. You get plenty of bully-beef and potatoes, and, one of the best things of all, two drinks a day of rum, that helps ward off germs and malaria. There is always a glass of rum just before you go over the top. As for sleep, we don't have it, in the ordinary sense of the word. It is more like cat-napping. Some of the men try to woo sleep in their funk-holes, but after my experience trying to dig one I gave it up. The maximum of bathing is one bath a month, with a change of underwear."

All this story the young Kentuckian told with a lively sense of humor and a twinkle in his eye. He seemed to have a pretty good feeling, on the whole, for the German soldier, whom he always spoke of as "Fritz." He told the story of the prisoner to whom an English soldier said: "You are on your way to England, too."

"Yes," replied Fritz, but I have no return ticket."

Sergeant McClintock was very proud of his Canadians and Americans, I asked him "Who is the best soldier of them all?"

"Many people say the Australians, who are certainly a daredevil lot, and then there are the French Canadians, who are afraid of nothing on earth, but have no discipline. Take them up one side and down another, I think our Canadians are the best."

J. W. McDermid's Rink Won Bonspiel Silver Trophy and the Individual First Prizes

Overwhelmed Tait of Campbellford in the Final Game by 22-5, Counting on Twelve Successive Ends—Review of the Work of Finalist Rinks.

MR. GIROUX PRESENTED PRIZES

The highest honours of the bonspiel were captured by a Peterborough rink. Skip J. W. McDermid lead his rink easily through the final game with Tait of Campbellford at 12:30 o'clock last night, wining by the wide and uneven score of 22 to 5.

The personnel of these two finalist rinks was as follows:

Peterborough.	Campbellford
M. Comstock	M. Curry
L. Bowes	Dr. Haig
W. J. Thompson	J. A. Stewart
J. W. McDermid, Skip.	D. E. Tait, Skip.

The score by ends:—

McDermid .. ..2121224111222—22
Tait .. ..3*2— 5

Such in brief represents the final game of the primary competition of the bonspiel. Both rinks had come through a heavy day's work, but went into the concluding games on even terms and with a string of victims in their trails. It was fully expected that the game would be as interesting, at leabt, as any of those played by either of the finalist rinks in their way to the top. But in that respect it was a complete disappointment. Tait scored three on the first end and then never touched the chalk for twelve ends. He was conceded a chance until about the eighth end. At first the gallery were under the impression that the Campbellford rink were temporarily in the air, but after the eighth end it became a question behind the glass as to how many blanks McDermid would score. In fact, the attention of the crowd was soon diverted to the Consolation game in which Maybee and DeLany were battling.

The primary final should have gone sixteen ends, but at 12:30, when Tait had made his second score in the game, he threw up the sponge. With only two more ends to go and a score of 22 to 5 showing on the board there wasn't a chance to win.

How They Reached the Top.

McDermid played six games to the first prizes, and four of them followed in close succession yesterday.

Tuesday afternoon he defeated Ridpath of Lakefield in the preliminary round, and just barely nosed out a win, although the score was 12-7. Five in the last end gave him that game.

In the first round he defeated Mather of Stouffville by 15-7.

Yesterday's draws were as follows:

9 a.m.—Defeated Davis of Bobcaygean by 20-6.

2:30 p.m.—Defeated Campbell of Peterborough by 16-9.

4:30 p.m.—Defeated DeLany of Cobourg by 11-6.

10 p.m.—Defeated Tait of Campbellford by 22-5.

Thus McDermid's rink won over its opponents by the aggregate of 86-40.

Tait's Good Work.

Tait had to batle for practically every one of his earlier victories. In the first round he defeated George Evans of Oshawa by the score of 11 to 10. On the last end he was down four, but counted five on that end and won out by a single shot.

He next defeated R. M. Waddell's tankard rink by 15-14, and in the next round won from McCallum of Fenelon Falls by 15-14. In the semi-final game with Maybee of Napanee he ran up his bigest score, getting 18-5. It will be observed that the Campbellford rink was not lacking in the real fighting stuff in the tightest corners. But then came McDermid, and as some of the old-timers stated, they had never seen anything like it in a final, and rarely in any other game. Twelve straight ends without a score.

McDermid's rink was right on edge. Manson Comstock had the measure of the front rings or the button, and dropped his first two stones right up in position end after end. Bowes was also in fine form, and Vice-Skip Thompson displayed some of his best curling this year, and in real form few of them are more dependable than Thompson. McDermid again demonstrated that he is one of the steadiest skips in the local club. There was nothing fluky about any of his games. He handled his rink well, received the best of support, and came through with some beautiful shots on his own account. He displayed the essential temperament of curling, the imperturbable spirit, and by the way his rink, individually and as a unit, apeared to be similarly constituted. When he was behind "Mac" kept plugging away, just as carefully and as cheerfully as when away out in front.

The final score does not really represent the game. Tait came near scoring many time, but he lacked the punch. His best curling seemed to have been spent, and the support of his rink was at times erratic. On the other hand McDermid played his strongest in this game and his rink got everything.

The Prizes.

With only a handful of fans remaining this morning shortly before one o'clock, Mr. George Giroux was called upon to present the prizes in the absence of Mr. Hicks and Mr. Morrow. Mr. Giroux congratulated both rinks upon their play and presentd four automobile rugs to McDermid's rink, and the big Bonspiel silver trophy. Tait's rink received four auto-strop safety razors. Both skips made short speeches acknowledging the prizes.

If Hamilton Wins They Will Meet 247th In the Semi-Finals

But If London Wins Peterboro' Team Will Get the Bye and Go Into the Finals Against the Western Winners---Dates Will Be Announced on Saturday.

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—It was announced last night at O. H. A. headquarters that if the 18th Battalion team of London win the round from Hamilton in the third round of the intermediate series, which finishes to-morrow night at Hamilton, they will meet Kitchener in the semi-finals, home-and-home games, and the 247th Battalion team of Peterborough will get the bye. Should Hamilton win, however, the Ambitious city seven will go up against Peterborough's soldier team in the semi-finals, and Kitchener will get the bye. Dates will be announced on Saturday, whichever way it goes.

O. C. Bernhardt of Bradford will referee the O.H.A. senior semi-final to-night at Preston between Dentals of Toronto and the home team. Lawson Whitehead of Toronto will referee the return game in Toronto on Saturday night. Total goals count on the round.

If Hamilton wins the series from London it is expected that the first game of the semi-finals will be played here on Tuesday night.

KINGSTON WON GAMES BUT LOST ROUND

KINGSTON, Feb. 21.—Kingston defeated Aura Lee, of Toronto, in the junior O.H.A. semi-finals here to-night by 5 goals to 3, but Aura Lee wins the round by 10 to 7, and enters the championship finals with the winner of the Kitchener-London series.

There was a big crowd at the game, and the ice was fast. Had Elmer, the Kingston rover, who was injured in Toronto last Saturday night, been able to play, the locals would in all likelihood have overcome Aura Lee's lead of five goals. Gratton had to be changed from the wing to rover, and McKelvey took Gratton's place, but he was not fast enough. The time-keepers, E. Hartrick and Capt. Woolett, during the first period had a dispute, and were replaced by J. Fleming and R. Carr II. There was but one penalty handed out by Referee Hewitson, McKelvey being sent to the fence for tripping.

The first two periods resulted in tie scores. When Aura Lee led off in the third period Kingston sent its whole team outside its goal to play on the line and succeeded in notching three goals, Stinson doing the scoring from places close to the Toronto nets.

Stinson also figured in Kingstons first score, passing to Gratton. Lye made Aura Lee's first goal from a wing shot which eluded Walsh. Shewell scored for Kingston in the second period from a scramble in front of the visitors nets, and Hudson opened up with one from quite a distance out. The teams:

Referee—R. Hewitson, Toronto.

LINDSAY COMMENTS ON TUESDAY'S VICTORY

The Lindsay Post has the following to say about the Oshawa-Peterborough game.

Coming from behind to overcome a four-goal lead, the 247th Battalion team of Peterborough defeated Oshawa Tuesday night seven to nothing in their second battle of the O.H.A. intermediate fixture. Not only did they shut them out, but they beat them at every angle of the game and only the wonderful work of Childs in goal saved a larger score.

The wonderful work of Armstrong for Peterborough at centre, was easily the feature of the game. He was all over the ice and never let up from gong to gong. Adams and Pat Flanagan also played brilliant hockey as did Legros in goal. Evans who was shifted from wing to rover, never played a better game of hockey, and was always effective. For Oshawa Childs was easily fifty per cent. of the team, and he put up the best exhibition in goal that has been seen around these parts for some time. Riordan also put up a good game in flushes, but the rest of the team were simply outclassed, and there isn't any question about it the better team won and pas away off by themselves.

Two thousand people saw the game Tuesday night. It looks like a big year for Jack Meharry.

Not only is Armstrong a wonderful hockey player, but he is a game one. He took a lot of hard bumps Tuesday night but he just went on and played hockey without ever letting up.

Halpin and Pat Flanagan, the "Gold Dust Twins," put up a great game on the defence. They are a hard pair to beat.

Oscar Bernhardt refereed a nice game Tuesday night and the players didn't get away with much.

That Peterborough bunch will take some beating.

What we are trying to figure out is how Oshawa got that four goal lead.

Clinton Childs has a reputation as a goaler and he certainly deserves it. He outclassed the rest of the team.

The Oshawa bunch left a lot of money in Peterborough Tuesday night as a result of that four goal lead.

HEADLIGHT RULES IN VARIOUS CITIES

INQUIRIES MADE OF FIFTY-EIGHT AS TO WHAT REGULATIONS WERE IN EFFECT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—That anti-glare regulations are a good way from standardization is shown by a census on this subject, taken by J. B. Replogle of the Society of Automobile Engineers. Mr. Replogle made a report of his investigation to the society.

"Letters," he said, "were sent to the authorities in fifty-eight cities. We received a very generous response, including ordinances from twenty-three cities. Of the total number communicated with, 55 per cent. have no ordinances. Some of the remainder cover the matter by rules as follows:

"Boise, Idaho—Blinding lights or searchlights prohibited.

"Buffalo, N.Y.—Dazzling or blinding light, or a lamp or light exceeding 20 c. p. with or without reflector, prohibited.

"Cheyenne, Wyo.—Should not give forth a blinding glare, but should shed a rather subdued light.

"Chicago, Ill. — Unlawful to use acetylene, electric or other bright headlamp the rays of which shall be intensified by any parabolic or condensing reflector, unless such headlamp shall be properly shaded so as not to blind, dazzle or confuse other users of the highway or make it difficult or unsafe for them to ride, drive or walk thereon. Inspection Board provided..

"Cincinnati, Ohio—Similar to Chicago, but shading or dimming upper half of lens is deemed a compliance.

"Cleveland, Ohio—Lighting device is prohibited that concentrates and projects any part of the light into a beam, unless the said lighting device is so adjusted that at a point, a distance of 75 feet or more in front of the vehicle, no part of the reflected beams of light shall be visible more than 3 feet above the surface of the roadway.

"Denver, Col.—Same as Chicago.

"Grand Rapids, Mich.—Same as Chicago with the addition that the use of amber glass (so called) as a screen shall be deemed a compliance when effective.

"Louisville, Ky.— Dazzling or glaring headlamps prohibited.

"Milwaukee, Wis. —Lamps prohibited that project light rays above a plane that shall strike the roadway more than 200 feet forward from base of vehicle on a horizontal roadway.

"Omaha, Neb.—Headlamps must be so focused and directed that the uppermost rays shall not be elevated more than six feet above the surface of a level roadbed at a point 100 feet ahead of the lamp. Must be dimmed by being suitably shaded or covered so that there shall not be a glaring or dazzling effect.

"Portland, Ore.—Headlamp shall be so controlled that it will not blind, dazzle, or confuse other users of the streets to make it difficult or unsafe for them to ride, drive, or walk thereon.

"San Francisco, Cal.—Must be so dimmed or covered that the glaring effect of headlamps shall be done away with.

"Salt Lake City, Utah—Light prohibited of such power or strength as to dazzle pedestrians or drivers of vehicles moving in opposite direction.

"Toledo, Ohio.—Same as Chicago.

"The City of Baltimore, Md., has gone into the matter more thoroughly than any other city from which I heard."

The maximum standards in the Baltimore ordinance are defined as follows:

"No motor vehicle in use in Baltimore City (including motor cycles) shall be equipped with any electric bulb or other lighting device of a greater rated capacity than thirty candle power, no matter how the same may be shaded, covered, or obscured.

"No 'side light' shall be equipped with any electric bulb or other lighting device of a greater rated capacity than four candle power unless shaded, covered or obscured as hereinafter provided.'"

NEW AUSTRIAN NAVY CHIEF

Vice Admiral Njegovan Succeeds to Late Admiral Haus.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22.—Vice Admiral Maximilian Njegovan has been appointed commander of the Austro-Hungarian war fleet and Vice Admiral Karl Kailer von Kaltenfels has been promoted to be chief of the naval section, according to a telegram received here from Vienna.

These appointments ensue on the death of Grand Admiral Anton Haus commander of the fleet.

OBITUARY

EARLE FROST.

Earle, the 10-months-old son of Mrs. Thomas Frost died last night at her residence, 513 Albert street. What adds to the natural sense of bereavement is the fact that Mrs. Frost has to mourn the death of her husband, Pte. Thomas Frost of the 93rd Battalion, who died in England. Mrs. Frost's double bereavement will bring out the deepest sympathy of all her friends and neighbours.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. A short service conducted by Rev. Mr. Greatrix will be held at the house before leaving for the Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. NEIL POWERS.

Mrs. Neil Powers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McAuliffe, of this city, died this morning at her home Lot 3, Concession 12, Otonabee, after a short attack of grippe, aged 31. She is survived by, besides her husband, two sisters, Mrs. Geo. Guiry and Mrs. Neil Murray, Downeyville, and two brothers, Patrick and Martin McAuliffe, Emily.

The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock to the Sacred Heart Church, thence to the Ennismore cemetery.

Two Girls Sought Adventure, Sent Home From P. Hope

Two local girls of about seventeen years, apparently looking for trouble under the lure of excitement, shook the snow of Peterborough from their feet on Tuesday to wander far abroad, perhaps. They got as far as Port Hope where they started panhandling yesterday when their pin money became exhausted. At one of the hotels they were registered under assumed names. The police quickly picked up their trail and notified Chief Thompson to whose care they were returned last night. One of them is in jail to-day and the other in the Shelter. The former has been on the Chief's carpet before. The girl appears to be at the parting of the ways, and the Chief is anxious that she select the right path.

For houses of limited room a combined kitchen sink and bath tub has been invented, the former being mounted on top of a cabinet that is moved out of the way when the latter is used, the same faucets and outlet serving both.

Town Topics.

While nothing has transpired to cause new selling, it is likely that recent buyers will be disposed to take profits on further advances in sufficient numbers to cause fair reactions here and there especially in view of the holiday. At that we must bear in mind that stocks are selling far beneath reasonable valuations in most cases and pools may take advantage of market inaction at times to give their specialties big lifts. Stocks like Crucible, Republic, Steel Foundries, Va. Coal, Burns Bros., Marines, Atlantic Gulf, should be especially watched and should certainly be bought on all good reactions, along with the general run of war, steel, copper, and equipment issues. Government interference with the natural course of prices of commodities may look very bearish, but we should think of the greatest good to the greatest number. Our corporations are making too much money when operating in raw materials. Some curb would help manufacturers, railroads, and people as a whole. Baldwin and Lehigh make indifferent annual reports. Pacific Mail made 63 points in one year on its million dollar Panama line investment. Our navy shells will be made at home. Enameling may get its 3 p.c., which, as a dividend, has been discounted but better things would be in the longer prospect. National Lead looks cheap. Va Chem should do better. We expect still higher cotton and grain prices.

The government is encouraging experiments in France with a device to protect against hail, essentially a large lightning rod of pure copper, which is said to so affect atmospheric electricity that hail stones cannot form.

Annie Douglas "Not Guilty"

Spring Sitting of the High Court Concluded Last Evening—One Case Traversed

"Not guilty" was the verdict brought in by the jury last evening in connection with the case of Annie Douglas, who was charged with the murder of her infant child. The case was heard at the spring sittings of the High Court, with Mr. Justice Sutherland presiding. Mr. G. N. Shaver was Crown Prosecutor, while Mr. Daniel O'Connell conducted the defence.

The case against Alice Douglas, who was indicted by the Grand Jury on a charge of attempting to conceal the birth of her sister's child, was traversed until the next sitting of the Court.

The High Court sitting came to a conclusion last evening, following the verdict of the jury in the case of Annie Douglas. The Grand Jury has yet to make a report on the result of their findings.

Mr. and Mrs. George Laing, Baltimore, Ont., announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Jane Tinny (Lena), to Mr. Robert Scott Douglas, Saskatoon, Sask., the marriage to take place quietly at their home on March 2.

Peterboro' Man Was Mistakenly Identified Here

A Peterborough man, who was charged with having sold a crate of butter in Belleville under an assumed name, was honourably acquitted in police court. It was stated by the authorities that he had been arrested under mistaken identity. No evidence was submitted and the case was dropped. Some person in Belleville 'phoned to the Peterborough Creamery for a case of butter to be shipped under a certain name. The crate was forwarded and received and resold by the stranger to R. D. Watson, of Belleville. The Peterborough man, who was wrongfully arrested, was pointed out here as the man who sold the butter in Belleville to Mr. Watson, but as stated above, it was a case of mistaken identity. Whoever got the butter from Peterborough, also got away with the money Mr. Watson paid for it.

WONDERFUL WAR PICTURES AT EMPIRE

Lady Identified a Soldier Friend on the Screen This Afternoon

The wonderful Canadian war pictures, "The Battle of Courcelette and the Advance of the Tanks," authorized and guaranteed by the Canadian War Records Office were shown for the first time in Peterborough at the Empire Theatre, and delighted a big crowd. The pictures are remarkably clear, so distinct in fact that one lady in the audience was able to identify a friend who was shown among the crew of one of the famous tanks. Doubtless a number of Peterborough men will be detected, as battalions in which the boys from this city are fighting, are shown in the films. No one should miss the chance of seeing the pictures, which will be at the Empire for the balance of the week.

MORE LOCAL SOLDIERS HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Ald. F. H. Dobbin received a telegram stating that Pte. M. Morrow, 302 Water street, Pte. Jos. Vollans, 118 James street, and Pte. Earl Robertson, 205 Bethune street, three Peterborough soldiers home from overseas, left Quebec at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Unless they have to go to Kingston to report the three should reach Peterborough to-morrow.

New Fire Hose Tested Yesterday

Yesterday afternoon at three o'clock the Fire, Water and Light committee of the City Council met at the Central Fire Station and inspected the new consignment of 1,200 feet of fire hose. The hose was tested up to four hundred pounds pressure. The committee spent the remainder of the afternoon at the station and inspected both the station and equipment. Everything was found to be in first-class order.

Sam Ray in the Consolation Finals Early This Evening

The final game of sixteen ends in the Consolation competition of the Bonspiel will likely be commenced about 4:30 this afternoon with Sam Ray meeting the winner of the Clifford-Maybee game, which was in progress at the time of going to press, with Maybee up four shots in seven ends.

Clifford's rink reached the semi-finals this morning after defeating J. C. Strickland of Lakefield. The Oshawa skip won his own game with his last shot. Strickland was one up coming home but Clifford cut out the Lakefield counter on the final end and by two winning by 14-13.

The score by ends was:

Strickland . . . . . 12x04x3x1x1x—13
Clifford . . . . . xx3xx4x1x4x2—14

Strickland's vice-skip was Levi Payne, 75 years old and the oldest man in the bonspiel. He played a splendid game throughout and was responsible in a large measure for the good showing made by the Lakefield rink.

In the semi-finals this morning Sam Ray eliminated W. D. Campbell in one of the best games of the bonspiel. It was closely contested all the way, and was anybody's game up to the last stone.

The score:

Ray . . . . . 1x3x11x1212x—12
Campbell . . . 0 . . . x2x1xx5xxxx2—10

THE PERSONNEL.

Men of North Talk Old Times in Old London

A little group of former Canadian Northwest Mounted Police came together in a brief re-union on the long trail of the war, says the London correspondent of the Chicago Herald.

Together they fought the merciless Arctic ocean at the northernmost outposts of law and order. Before a hearth fire in Reggie Moreton's drawing room they travelled the old snow trails again.

Moreton, known as "Dick" in the Northwest, has now retired to private life and less strenuous work for his country. In his home at Kingston, a suburb, he holds open house for his old pals drawn from odd corners of the globe by the magnet of the war.

Though the host wears spats and a high collar, he is the same Moreton who once held the Canadian tennis and amateur heavyweight boxing titles. He still illustrates his speech with American slang, learned as a soldier in Cuba, and as a policeman in the Hudson Bay country.

"Lizzie" Jacques came to London from a training camp to meet the others, but Sergeant-Major Billy ("Peggy") Hope had spent his leave and returned to France before Jacques arrived. "Lizzie is only his "service" name; he is really E. M. Jacques, a lieutenant in the Canadian-American legion and an ex-soldier of the 14th United States Infantry. Sergt. Harry Walker, 84th Canadian Battalion, is the other voice in the accidental round up.

THE OLD DAWSON DAYS.

Hope and Moreton rode together back in 1900, "before they got electric lights and radiators in Dawson."

"Hope was magistrate, mayor and midwife among the Eskimos near Fullerton, Hudson Bay," said Moreton. "He was the farthest north tribunal, a week's ride from the nearest white settlement.

"Walker left the force several years ago and started to make his fortune with a farm of silver foxes. He caught a pair and caged them up in a fox run with wire running deep into the ground. With the little fox juniors in good health, he had a good business in hand.

"One day he went into Dawson and learned that war had been declared. He never saw the foxes again—just turned them over to a friend—fortune, future and all, to join up.

"We were in the riding escort that conducted the present King and Queen of England 700 miles overland during their tour of Canada. That was a parade job. But I rode farther than that in the Fournier and La Belle murder case, which wasn't any parade."

EXPECT "DICK"

During the coronation tents were pitched in Moreton's garden in London and some of the old-timers here to ride in the procession were kept busy with a social programme of two weeks. They carried back reports of "Dick" and the men of the force coming here expect he will look them up if he hears about them.

The present meeting is short. Hope had been eighteen months in France before coming here and Walker had seen active service. Moreton is considerably over army age.

"Hope will never be hit," Moreton said. "Not Peggy. He's the luckiest devil on earth."

MUSEUM STILL CRACKING

Masons and Bricklayers Seek to Save Parliament's Temporary Home

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 22.—The Victoria Memorial Museum, which has been temporarily housing Parliament, is now in the hands of a staff of masons and bricklayers, endeavoring to arrest a spreading defect in the construction of the building. It has never been determined exactly whether the trouble is due to the original foundation or to the building itself, but always since it was put up, seven or eight years ago, there has been no little apprehension by those located in the structure. The settling was constant and a huge crack developed. Fears that the big tower would collapse caused it to be taken down, greatly minimizing the architectural beauty of the building. The difficulty has not ended, apparently, for during the present session, there has been more settling and cracking of walls. New supports are now being introduced to carry the load.

The museum was built in the days of the late Government by a contractor whose figures were away below the estimate. He "went broke" in carrying out the contract, but it was done under the supervision of Government inspectors. The primary fault, it is thought, may be in the character of the sub-soil on which the museum stands.

Steady Decline In Wheat Market

Good Demand For Ontario Wheat —The Cattle Market

All the best efforts of the crop killers yesterday failed to prevent a steady decline in wheat prices to-day. Reports of still further railway embargoes, and the fact that to-day is a holiday for the States, encouraged the bears, who never let up in their attacks. Cash wheat at bay ports is 1 1-2c lower. Ontario wheat firm with a good demand.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.96 1-2, track, bay ports, No. 2, $1.93 1-2; No. 3 $1.88; No. 4 $1.79.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W. 71 1-2c to 72c; No 3 70 1-2c to 72c; extra No. 1 feed, 70 1-2c to 72c; No. 1 feed, 69 1-2c to 71c, all rail delivered.

American corn—No. 3, $1.15, subject to embargo.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white 63c to 65c; No. 3 white 62c to 64c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, per car lot, $1.75 to $1.77; No. 3 $1.73 to $1.75, according to freights outside.

Peas—No. 2 nominal, car lots, $2.45.

Barley—Good malting, $1.90 to $1.22; feed barley nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal $1.28.

Rye—No. 1 commercial, nominal; No. 2 new, $1.40 to $1.42.

Manitoba flour—First patents, in jute bags $9.50; second patents in jute $9; strong bakers in jute $8.80, Toronto.

Ontario flour—New winter, 7.25 to $7.35, in bags, track, Toronto prompt shipment, $7.00, bulk, seaboard, export grade.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered Montreal; shorts $42; bran $37; feed flour per bag, $2.80.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots, No. 2 $12; mixed $9 to $11; straw $9.

CATTLE MARKET.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 30 cars, with 278 cattle, 198 calves, 1,053 hogs, and 55 sheep and lambs.

A succession of light runs this week is keeping the market very strong, and prices were again another good 25c higher than Monday's prices. All grades of cattle are equally in demand. A choice wad of steers topped the market at $11.25.

Calves—Strong.

Sheep and Lambs—Strong.

Hogs—Very strong, at $14.75, fed and watered.

Huns March To Western Front As To Gallows

Allied Method of Shelling and Attack Has Made German Trenches Abode of Certain Death—Victory Certain as the Dawn—Bad Weather Merely Postpones the Thrust But Does Not Relieve the Bombardment.

"NO INDECENT HURRY"

The course of war upon the Western front has developed entirely new methods of using existing arms besides bringing into play a variety of entirely new military devices. These latter inventions such as tanks, trench mortars and aerial torpedoes are possibly more sensational in their appeal to the lay mind, but the enormously important factor that strikes the soldier as the dominant development of the war is the completely new system of artillery work.

The French have rushed their science of gunnery to a pitch of perfection hitherto undreamt of. Not only are their weapons superb, but their systematic development of the artillery attacks has created an entirely new military outlook.

The essence of the efficiency of the French artillery methods depends upon their observation of fire effect, and so well arranged is their system that to all intents and purposes the fall and effect of every shell fired is noted. In the main they rely upon direct observation by means of powerful glasses and optical instruments, but long range fire and indirect fire upon objects or areas not normally visible is observed by means of aerial reconnaissance, the co-operation between the flying service and the artillery being exceptionally close.

HOW IT IS DONE.

The main principle of an up-to-date attack is complete artillery preparation and perfect synchronisation of the advance of the infantry under a "barrage."

This is the term applied to the curtain of artillery fire behind which the infantry advance to the assault. The modern battle between entrenched lines is a specialised affair of artillery work completed by the actual assault of the infantry. It is a costly business, but is counter-balanced by the fact that the enemies' losses are tremendous. The object of this war from the purely military point of view, is to kill, disable or capture as many Germans as possible. This is being admirably effected by the use of modern artillery methods.

All this continues for days during the period of preparation. So intense is the fire that the stretch of front line trench and its supports is to all purposes isolated. The garrison remain in a veritable hell with their defences and dug-outs crumbling around them. Neither food, water, nor reinforcements or supplies reach them, for attempts to bring up supporting parties fail to pass the barrage.

Frequently during the Somme battle the Germans strove to reinforce threatened sectors, but their men melted in the murderous barrage fire and the front lines remained isolated. In the read, all too is in disorder. The troops blown out of their billets try to camp under canvas in the open and are subject to nightly bombardments and aeroplane raids. Their railways are blown up, bombed and paralysed, and troops are forced to march up from distances a day and a half away, no nearer detraining point being accessible. There is neither rest, safety, nor supplies; all is in confusion and their morale fails rapidly.

THE CHARGE.

When the artillerists consider that the preparation has been accomplished and all resisting obstacles annihilated, orders are issued for the infantry attack. The bombardment continues as usual, neither quicker nor slower, so that the element of surprise is maintained.

There is no pause, no lifting of the barrage, but close upon its heels the infantry follow across no-man's land and into the tumbled debris of the enemies' line. The whole secret of success lies in keeping the infantry attack so close to the edge of the barrage that the enemy who survive have no chance to get their machine guns up from the dugouts and in place again. It is, indeed, better to risk casualties from one's own artillery fire than to run into hostile machine gun fire.

The attack is pushed to its set limit, the ground consolidated, and a halt in the battle ensues before the next thrust is made. The long range artillery has meanwhile developed its destruction, the villages and fortifications such as redoubts and field works are practically demolished.

Later these too come into the front line and are further destroyed, but the fire of the heavy pieces has already done most of the work. Thus a modern attack proceeds slowly, inevitably and murderously forward in successive pushes after each of which the guns move forward and again repeat the previous performance.

A SENTENCE OF DEATH.

The effect upon the Germans is prodigious, for they know that it is simply a matter of time before retribution falls upon each of them. To be sent to the trenches on the Western front is tantamount to a sentence of death. The steady, murderous pressure of the Allies keeps on. Bad weather merely postpones the thrust but does not relieve the bombardment.

The German knows that he will be either isolated for days in a front line trench, doomed to fall at last before the victorious bayonets of the enemy, or that he will be sent to his death through one of the barrages in a vain attempt to relieve a threatened sector. Nowhere is there the slightest loophole for hope. The best that he can expect is quick death or ignominious surrender.

Day and night, week by week, month by month, the steady pounding and steady grinding away of strong lines continues. In "rest billets" there is no rest. Anywhere within range of the giant guns is perilous. Death threatens at all times till the German looks forward to its coming as a release from hell upon earth.

"NO INDECENT HURRY."

It is the black muzzles of the Allies' guns that bring this talk of peace. It is the work of millions of industrials and women workers that is restoring Peace to the world. The Germans attempted to stay civilization, but now it is the forces of civilization that are striking back. The French and British soldier that lays his piece, the divisional general of Artillery who directs the whole body of fire, know they are victorious. The tide has changed at last and the word "barrage" is but a twentieth century word for just retribution.

Blinded, maimed, saddened and demoralized, the German survivors are herded from the trenches. Their fortified lines are but a death trap for them and the slaughter and capture of Germans will continue until they choose to mend their ways. The Allies are in no indecent hurry. Territory counts for little in this war; it is men that count, and the guns eat up the German men.

A SIMPLE WAY TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

PRESENTATION TO MR. THOS. CLEMENTS

Warsaw Merchant Who is Removing to Peterboro' Remembered By His Friends

As Mr. Thomas Clements, who for many years has been a merchant and one of the highly respected citizens of the village of Warsaw, has recently removed to Peterborough, the Methodist Sunday School presented him with a leather bottomed oak chair and a pair of miltary brushes, accompanied by the following address:

Dear Mr. Clements,—It was with deep regret we learned of your removal from our village, and we feel that we cannot let you go without showing in a small way our appreciation of your labours in our Sunday School and Church. We have found you ever ready to assist in any worthy cause, and as we look back over the years you have been in our midst, we have pleasant recollections of your association with us, both as a worker in the Master's service and as a worthy citizen in all the walks of life. As a slight token of our appreciation of your work and of our esteem will you accept this chair and brushes from the Warsaw Methodist Sunday School, and as your family and you sever your connection with us, be assured, you carry with you our best wishes for the prosperity, health, and happiness of you all, and in making new friends in your future sphere of life, we trust that you will not forget the old, and although you are leaving our immediate neighbourhood, we are glad that we shall occasionally meet you from time to time. We pray that God may ever prosper you and yours through the years to come, and that you may be blessed in all the work you undertake for the advancement of Christ's Kingdom.

Signed in behalf of the Sunday School:

R. SOMERS,
MRS. D. R. CLARE,
MRS. G. G. TAYLOR.

ORDERED TO DRIVE OFF SUBMARINE, WAR SHIP MAKES DASH TO SEA FROM BASE

Mysterious Cruise of U.Boat in American Waters Stirs Naval Forces at Torpedo Station to Unusual Activity, But Result of Scouting Vessel's Mission is Not Revealed.

OFFICERS AND CREW ENJOINED TO SECRECY WHEN CRAFT RETURNS AFTER NIGHT TRIP

NEWPORT, R.I., February 22.—That there is one or more Prussian submarines in American waters, ready to prey upon merchantmen or to begin hostilities if the United States and Germany go to war, is indicated by the mysterious and quick cruise of a war ship from the Newport Torpedo Station and the secrecy with which naval officers guarded her errand and its result. It is known, however, that the war ship could have plunged the United States and Germany into war and, further, that she was prepared to do so if necessary.

Great excitement prevailed at the torpedo station at one o'clock on Saturday afternoon when Captain Kenyon, of the Coast Guard Station, sent a message to Commander John G. Robison, in command of the torpedo station, that a Prussian submarine had been sighted a few miles south of Brenton's Reef lightship.

Little time was lost by Commander Robison in order Lieutenant Harold R. Stark to take a ship which has guns of small calibre and submerged torpedo tubes and go to sea.

SINK HER IF NECESSARY, THE ORDER.

Lieutenant Robison was ordered first to determine if the U-boat was within the three-mile limit. If she was he was to hold her up and demand an explanation of why she was there.

"If the answer is not satisfactory you are to sink her."

That was the order given to the commander of the American vessel.

When Lieutenant Stark went on board his ship, ordered the flag run up, called his officers and men to attention and imparted to them the nature of their mission there was great enthusiasm. Men on board other vessels at the station heard the crew cheer, saw them throw their caps in the air and hurry to their stations when the order to start was given.

The vessels passed out at three o'clock in the afternoon, making all the twenty-one knots of which her engines are capable. After passing the lightship she went to the eastward until abreast of Point Judith, when land observers lost sight of her.

When Lieutenant Stark and his command returned after dark there was much excitement at the torpedo station. The lieutenant suppressed his emotion as he came ashore, but it was apparent that he carried important news.

On the way to Commander Robison's headquarters an officer of his own grade intercepted Lieutenant Stark and questioned him, but he refused to give him any information, saying he must report only to his superior.

CREW DETAINED ABOARD WAR SHIP.

Lieutenant Stark went direct to Commander Robison and was closeted with him a considerable time. Excitement ran high at the station, but efforts to learn from other officers of the returned vessel or from the crew any news of what they had seen or done failed. No one was permitted to go ashore.

When Commander Robison was seen by a reporter he said:—

"I can't talk of these things at this time."

Lieutenant Stark had returned aboard his vessel and could not be reached, and Captain Kenyon, of the Coast Guard station, apparently had been instructed to tell nothing of what led to his message to the torpedo station, for in reply to questions he said:—

"I refuse to discuss the affair."

Rear Admiral Sims, commanding this naval district, would not talk about the incident. It was understood that his orders to Commander Robison were such that the Commander could use his own judgment in sending out vessels.

The torpedo station has been alert since the Prussian U-58, following its surprising call at the torpedo station, caused such havoc among allied shipping off Nantucket Shoals lightship. On that occasion Commander Robison sent a flotilla of torpedo boats to sea to pick up the crews and passengers of the vessels sunk by the U-58.

Much activity at the torpedo station has been observed since Captain Kenyon's message was received there that a Prussian submarine had been sighted off the coast.

All efforts to learn what Lieutenant Stark's vessel did at sea have failed. The Navy Department has secured that secret by a strict censorship. From the secrecy many shipping men believe that one or more submarines are waiting off the coast to sink shipping and that it would be construed as an un-neutral act to warn merchant vessels of their peril, as many held at the time the U-58 made her raid.

Very Effective Method For Banishing Hairs

(Modes of To-day.)

At very little cost any woman can rid her face of hairy growths if she will use the delatone treatment. This is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This paste is spread upon the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm results from this treatment, but care should be used to buy real delatone.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. MOTCHKISS

"No, sir!" exclaimed the other, springing to his feet as if he had read the young man's intention, and planting himself in the path before Wentworth could get half way across the studio. "I am on to your game, sir. You will not arm yourself. You will come to my terms this instant or I will take other steps. You don't know me, young man; if you did you wouldn't wait long to decide favorably on my offer."

He lifted his cane threateningly. Wentworth recoiled a pace.

"Would you have me repeat my performance of yesterday?" he asked.

"Do it, if you can! I know my position, sir—I want your answer now!"

"Then have it now!" shouted Wentworth, losing his hold on himself. "If you know your position, so do I, and I know you. Your name is Bagshot; you are no better than a blackleg,—and, by God! not for twice ten million shall you have that paper from me. Now, get out of my way; more than that—leave this room at once or I will call in the police."

Bagshot's light blue eye seemed to turn smaller as he heard his name, and his open defiance. His breathing became audible and he was about to say something, when from behind his own back, Wentworth heard these words:

"Ah! Aqui esta lo encoutre!"

He did not understand the language but the exclamation was forcible and he turned in time to see the little foreigner, now by the table, sweep the newspaper to the floor and fully expose the ruby glass. He saw the fellow slide the paper from under it, fold it and put it in his pocket, and noted the sallow countenance light with triumphant animation. The thing had been done in less than five seconds.

Bagshot's hard features suddenly relaxed into a grin that was nothing less than repulsive, then the devil of greed leaped into his face as he stepped toward his henchman. From Wentworth's heart the blood went with a rush. He had lost, or almost lost, the precious map, and the quick rage which took possession of him was an unholy thing though it sprang from a righteous cause. For a brief instant he had no plan of action, but tamely to permit the paper to be taken from the studio was far from his intention.

At that moment the face of the girl seemed to appear before him—a face filled with mild reproach. But she was still hidden—the dark room door was still closed, and he knew this to be a figment of his brain born of excitement.

But he would not have her point her finger at him. He was no coward—he would fight for her.

It was all in an instant. His muscles seemed to knit together of themselves, and as Bagshot stepped by him, as if in contempt of his presence, the violently angry man drove his fist into the Southerner's fat neck, striking him just below the right ear, and sending him to the floor with a crash.

Westworth did not stop to mark the extent of the injury he had done. With a bound he was at the hall door, and which he looked, dropping the key into his pocket, then with a slow and determined step, he advanced on the Mexican, all the blood in his body seemingly surcharging his brain. He would kill this fellow with his bare hands, if necessary, but he would have that map. The law would justify him—Grace Merridale would thank him.

He passed Bagshot as that individual was struggling to his elbow, one hand to his head, his face filled with bewilderment, like one recovering from a swoon. As Wentworth came near the table the Mexican, who had stood as one petrified when his patron went down, suddenly became active. With the quickness of a cat he whisked to the other side of the table, putting the heavy piece of furniture between them, his hands on it, his beady black eyes shining with fear and malignancy—his body bent for a leap in any direction.

To Wentworth his action was enlightening as by it two things were made plain, first that the fellow was intent not on attack but escape; and second, that in all probability he was unarmed and had looked to his patron for protection.

But armed or unarmed, it made little difference to the outraged athlete as he sprang around the table, though like a flash the lithe Mexican eluded him by running around the edge, calling in Spanish to his companion who was trying to recover his senses and his feet. Twice did the two circle the broad mahogany and Wentworth, recognising that such a chase would be futile made a short cut of the affair by lifting the heavy obstacle and tipping it over toward the foreigner.

The massive table crashed to the floor just as Bagshot recovered himself sufficiently to stand up, and the Mexican abandoning his now useless intrenchment, fled across the room to the hall door where he tore at the knob in a vain endeavour to get out. But the door was fast, and as Wentworth now dominated by uncontrolled rage, ran towards him, in desperation the Mexican turned to meet him. There might have been something in the American's eye that told of his intention for with one look at Wentworth's face the Southerner let out a shrill scream of terror, then like a wild animal driven into a corner he sprang and grappled with his pursuer.

For a moment the two swayed over the floor, the Mexican squirming and twisting from hold after hold until at last his silent and earnest opponent had him firmly by the throat. Westworth held the man, bending him backward, until he saw the glaring black eyes bulge from their sockets, and the tongue start from the thin, open lips. It was just as he was ready to drop his limp victim and recover the stolen map that he felt a sickening blow on the back of his own head. The room seemed to flare with a sudden crimson flame, his stomach turned to water, and everything went dark. He loosed his hold, staggered against the wall, hung there for a moment, then slid unconscious to the floor.

CHAPTER VIII.
THE PLAN.

When Wentworth came to himself he awoke to the fact that he lay on the floor, that Miss Merridale was bending over him, and that his head was wet with the water from the sponge she was using.

He struggled up so that he rested against the wall though his exertion had caused the room to whirl in a mad revel.

The girl's face was a study. It was colorless and held an expression of deep solicitude, but there was nothing tremulous about the sweet mouth and round, firm chin. As the young man opened his eyes her lips parted in an exquisite smile, and her face became animated.

"How—how long have I been this way?" asked John.

"Barely five minutes—not more," she said gently.

"It must have been a glancing blow—and your hair saved you. I cannot find an wound."

"Who struck me?"

"Bagshot with his cane. When he fell I pushed open the door a trifle. You must have knocked him down. He got up and struck you from behind while you were struggling with Jose."

"Then it was Planet?"

"Yes. What has he done?"

"Done? He has outraged me and robbed you."

"You mean he has stolen the paper?"

"Yes. He found it where it lay on the table—fool that I was not to have taken it. I was fighting for it."

The girl drew back, but a wonderful tenderness shone from her countenance.

"Ah! Fighting—for me?"

"Ay, for you; for what else, or whom else? Did they see you?"

"No—or, no! I dared not show myself; the result would have been awful for me. Planet stood still for a moment, rubbing his throat and then trying to speak and Bagshot bent over you. I watched him go through your pockets until he found the key to the hall door. He did not say a word, but in a few seconds he took Jose by the arm and hurried him out. They did not wait for the elevator for I heard them running down stairs. Then I got some water and came to you. I—I was frightened at first, but am glad it is no worse. And you really risked your life for me! How can I ever thank you?"

"You needn't," said Wentworth, pulling himself up. "Let us say it was for you than for the principle of the thing. My father's spirit would reproach me if I had been weak enough to come to terms with that man. And you are robbed of a fortune! Now, by all the gods of mythology!" He got no further, for the room started to whirl again, and he fell back against the wall.

"Don't attempt to talk now," whispered the girl. "Let me help you to the divan." And in her feminine solicitude, which made her blind to the conventionalities she put her strong arm around him and helped him to the couch on which he fell heavily, sick and faint.

After an interval he opened his eyes. "I will soon be all right," he said, detaining the hand that bathed his face. "You are a ministering angel—but what are you going to do now?"

"You mean about the map?"

"Yes."

"I hardly know what to do," she answered, disengaging her hand from his. "Open defiance would gain nothing. My uncle is not without ingenious resources if he is without principle; that is why I did not raise the alarm. He would say that he had stolen nothing; that he struck you in self defence after you had assaulted him. There would be colour in that. And I cannot prove my right to the paper, while unfortunately your word alone would not go far in law. It is true he could not prove his assertion that I have transferred my right to him, for I have never done so, but if worse came to worse he would copy the essential parts of the map and destroy the original. I could not prevent him and—"

"But I can and will," interrupted Wentworth. "My father would never forgive me if I dropped the matter here."

"But Bagshot has the paper."

"And I have no copy!" groaned the man. "What you say is true. We are defeated—unless you will be directed by me and have the spirit to act."

"And what would you have me do, Mr. Wentworth?"

"I mean this," said Wentworth, struggling to a sitting position. "That which may not be gained by force or law might be gained by subterfuge. One must sometimes fight fire with fire."

"I do not—I do not understand," she faltered.

"I see how it can be done," was the quick reply. "It is well that Bagshot does not dream that you witnessed his coming or knows you are here; well that you raised no alarm. There is but one way. You must steal that paper from your uncle—for of course he, and not Planet, has it by this time. You must play the innocent. Take Lady Macbeth's advice to her husband—look like a flower but be a serpent. Stick to him. Your chance will come. As for me I have a grievance apart from yours, and it will be but a few hours before I face that fellow again." The speaker's enthusiasm made him stronger. "I will corner him by Heaven! and before he has time to copy the map! I will play against him openly while you work in secret. That brute shall not get that which is yours—that which is my duty to see that you get—so long as I can fight for you."

The young lady's face colored deeply as she listened to this outburst of modern knight errantry. "Ah, but I have found a friend!" she said, quick tears filling her blue eyes. "Do not think I lack spirit. I see your plan, and indeed under the circumstances, it is more feasible than to resort to violence. I will do it. I will stay by him through everything—and watch for my opportunity."

"You will steal it?"

"I promise, though it would not be theft. He shall not profit by that paper, even if I have to destroy it. It is not wealth I wish. I have ample means besides my ranch, but it would be a sin to let him triumph in this. I shall follow him like a shadow."

She appeared equal to that, and more, as she stood up and held out her ungloved hand to Wentworth. "It is best that I go now," she said.

The young man took the extended hand and on an impulse raised it to his lips. It was done in perfect respect. The girl flushed rosily but the hand was not snatched away in prudish haste. The act was like the sealing of a compact between them.

"If the Lord lets me live, I will see you to-morrow," said Wentworth, as the smooth fingers slid from his grasp.

"Be careful—oh, be careful!" she exclaimed.

"Have no fear for me," returned John, with the ghost of a smile. "I shall not be alone this time—and I am stronger with a new strength."

She left him, but her cheeks were like roses as she turned away.

If John Wentworth had not been a perfectly healthy animal, the shock of his experience would have led to a fever, but instead of worrying over past events he allowed the prospects of the future to comfort him. He was still too weak and miserable to attempt to lift the overturned table, or even gather its scattered contents, and lay back on the divan until nature took him in hand and sent him into a restoring sleep. It was late in the afternoon when he woke with a start to find Thomas standing over him.

"I have a letter for you, sir," said the discreet butler, as his master opened his eyes. He appeared not to have noticed the condition of the room.

Wentworth sat up and looked all around in the dazed and comical way of one aroused from a deep slumber. His brain was clear, albeit his head was sore and there was a lump on it, but he was in good humor.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Kiss In a Coach

In the Days Before There Were Railways

By F. A. MITCHEL

I have always had a fancy for looking back into the past for items concerning those from whom I have descended. The doings of these persons who lived and moved and worked and loved and quarreled, just as others of my family are doing today, have always been of interest to me. I have before me a portrait of one of my grandfathers painted when he was the age that I am now, and one would suppose that he and I were twin brothers instead of being two generations apart. He was young in the last century, when the railroad was coming into vogue as a mode of travel and shortly before the use of electricity in telegraphing. Among family documents, of which I have collected a great number, there is one written by this gentleman which I prize more than any of the others. I give it just as he wrote it except for a little editing where he referred to himself, for as an autobiographer is always at a disadvantage in this respect. I need to say that the writer at the time of the happenings narrated was twenty-three years old and considered handsome. His narrative reads:

I started to cross the Allegheny mountains on a business trip to Cincinnati, then the principal city in the west, and expected to be gone several weeks, having planned to spend a week in Cincinnati and a week returning. We left at 6 o'clock in the morning from the Antlers' tavern, there being eight insides and four outsides on the coach.

There was some shifting of passengers during the day, and at evening the positions of those inside was as follows—I give them minutely, for they are pertinent to an understanding of my narrative: I sat on the front seat, riding backward. There was one other person on the seat with me, a middle aged lady. She sat on my left. On the middle seat, facing me, but on the other side of the coach, was an elderly gentleman, eminently respectable looking. The other two places on the middle seat were occupied by a young woman, very precise looking, whom he called Amelia, and his daughter, a girl of about eighteen. On the back seat were a man and two women. I do not describe them, for they have no part in what I am going to record.

The first night in a coach is very uncomfortable; it is only when one gets somewhat accustomed to the jolting and has met with sufficient loss of sleep to render him hungry for slumber that he can lose himself sitting straight up and continually bumped. But I on this first night ascending the mountains, having been up late several evenings preceding my departure, slept fairly well. The horses were obliged to proceed at a walk.

In the middle of the night I was awakened by a pair of arms thrown around me and a pair of lips pressed against mine. My faculties not taking in the situation at once, it did not immediately occur to me to detain whoever kissed me, and by the time I proceeded to do so it was too late. The arms about me were unlocked and the lips removed from mine.

Not only was there no light in the coach, but the night was very dark. I could not see my hand before my eyes. All I knew of the episode was by the sense of touch. There was no doubt in my mind that I had been kissed by a woman, but the principal evidence of this was that the lips that were pressed upon mine were soft and there was no beard. Had the matter occurred when my faculties were normally alive doubtless I should have lain awake the rest of the night deliberating as to who had favored me. As it was, my deliberations, assisted by the monotonous breathing, not to mention snoring, of the passengers put me to sleep.

In the morning we stopped at a tavern, and after cold water thrown over my face and a good breakfast of fried chicken, various kinds of game and buckwheat cakes, for which I expended a Spanish silver half dollar, on returning to the coach my adventure of the night came back to me, exciting not only curiosity, but other emotions. I had scarcely seated myself when I made a careful survey of those persons some one of whom might have given me the kiss.

There were three women sitting sufficiently near me to have committed the act. There was the middle aged lady beside me, whose name I do not know; there were Amelia and the young girl, her niece, whom they called Agnes. I did not doubt that one of the three was the perpetrator. I scrutinized the face of each, but could see no trace of guilt. The lady beside me and Amelia met my gaze without a quiver, but Agnes, who sat opposite me, lowered her eyes.

I made up my mind that Agnes was the culprit, partly from this bit of evidence and partly because I preferred to believe that it was her red lips that had been pressed upon mine. We had all become well acquainted, and the woman beside me was very cordial in her manner toward me, while Amelia was rather reserved. As to Agnes, she acted as any young girl would have acted toward a young man under similar circumstances. She certainly appeared to be the personification of innocence. But still waters run deep, and I am free to admit that I was influenced by this adage.

The journey was especially interesting to me, because I had a problem to solve. I reckoned that the guilty one would betray herself before we arrived at the Queen City of the West. But the only one of the three who could have kissed me who showed a special predisposition for me was Agnes, and she gave no sign of guilt. At all events, it seemed to me that I had made a very favorable impression upon her.

On arrival at Pittsburgh those of us who were going further west took a steamboat to descend the Ohio river. Among those who were aboard were the elderly gentleman, whose name by this time I had learned to be Shotwell; his sister and his daughter. In the coach, crowded together as we were, there was no opportunity for a tete-a-tete between me and Agnes, but on the steamboat was plenty. We sat together on the guards outside the ladies' cabin, and at times on deck. The Ohio was called by the early French settlers La Belle Riviere, and justly so. At the time of this journey, the autumn, her waters were clear, and the foliage on the multitude of hills on her banks was of many colors. No affair of the heart could have taken place under more propitious circumstances.

One evening, when the air was out of the south, Agnes and I went on to the hurricane deck, which is the highest deck of all. No one was there but ourselves. We stood looking out on a moonlit scene. The sounds were the throbbing of the engine below and the striking of the paddle wheels at the sides of the boat upon the water.

Now, I had not thus far regarded my affair with Agnes Shotwell as any more serious than those I had had with other girls. I had by this time made up my mind that she had given me a kiss in the dark and that her innocence was assumed. Acting upon this theory, I suddenly clasped her in my arms and rained kisses upon her cheeks and lips.

A man may sometimes kiss a girl without having declared himself and not appear disrespectful. I, having assumed that Agnes had overstepped the boundary of feminine modesty, gave her too many kisses.

As soon as she could release herself she turned from me without a word, went to the steps leading below and disappeared. There was that in her manner to tell me it would be useless to follow her; that she was incensed beyond measure and if I obtained forgiveness I must wait and strive for it. Had I known her better I would not have feared that she would make it unpleasant for me with the others of her party, but my limited knowledge of her made me fear that she would.

I confess I was very much disgruntled. To have made such a mistake troubled me very much, for I was at an age when a man is especially sensitive to the good opinion or condemnation of women. I brooded over the matter during the day and lay awake thinking of it at night.

I did not see her again till the afternoon of the next day, when I approached her while she was with her father and aunt. She received me neither kindly nor unkindly, there being nothing in her manner to indicate to the others that she was offended with me. But when I again met her alone she passed me without recognition.

I was now badly cut up. I knew from her manner that she was not acting a part, and it was plain to me that the kiss given me in the coach had not been imparted by her. I was in a dilemma. I must either acknowledge myself a culprit or excuse myself by telling her of the kiss in the coach, a story so improbable that it was not likely to be believed.

Very soon after my offense we arrived at the landing at Cincinnati. That Mr. Shotwell did not know of anything amiss between his daughter and me was made plain by his giving me an invitation to call at his house. I looked at Agnes to note if she acquiesced, but saw no sign that I would or would not be welcome. We parted on leaving the boat, the Shotwell party driving to their home in the city, I to my hotel.

After much brooding over the matter I concluded to make the call. I had in me the consciousness of not being quite so bad as I appeared and I must bide my time for an opportunity to explain. Upon entering the Shotwell residence I received the surprise of my life. Agnes came into the drawing room alone and with a very different look on her face from any I had seen there since my transgression. It was very cordial.

I was of course relieved, but puzzled. I did not believe for a moment that Agnes had pretended to be offended with me, and yet as a sensitive girl how could she suddenly return to her former treatment of me without even an apology? I started to make one, but she checked me and went on talking about something else.

By this time I was madly in love, and love overcame curiosity. Be she good, bad or indifferent, Agnes possessed me. Instead of staying a week in Cincinnati, I remained there a month. When I left I was engaged to Agnes. After our engagement I asked her why she had forgiven me without my having asked to be forgiven. She only said, "Let that pass." But a moment later she added, "Forgive me for my part in that matter, will you?"

I forgave her and felt very complacent at my magnanimity. I left her to be gone till the following spring, then returned for our wedding.

Nov. 15, 1855.—My wife's Aunt Amelia died a week ago. This morning Agnes came to me and told me that the change toward me without explanation or apology for my transgression was due to her aunt's having confessed to her that she had kissed me in the coach.

Surprisingly Good Cough Syrup Made at Home

Costs Very Little and Easily Made, but is Remarkably Effective.

You'll never really know what a fine cough syrup you can make until you prepare this famous home-made remedy. You not only save $2 as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a more effective and dependable remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat or chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) from any good drug store, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Here you have 16 ounces—a family supply—of the most effective cough syrup that money can buy—at a cost of only 54 cents or less. It never spoils.

The prompt and positive results given by this pleasant tasting cough syrup have caused it to be used in more homes than any other remedy. It quickly loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and bronchial tubes, and relief comes almost immediately. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis, croup and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A Timely Warning.

Across the line there is a peace society which is very active in its clamors against the continuance of this war.

A lady who belongs to the society sent to a Canadian friend the society emblem—an American flag, with an olive branch painted across the stars and stripes.

The Canadian studied the thing out, and, without wishing to reflect on the lady's artistic ability, wrote a note of thanks for the emblem, but added this little sting to it: "I would suggest, however, that those who paint an olive branch on the American flag should take care not to make it look like a white feather.—Canadian Courier.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PASSED STONE FROM BLADDER

"During August last, I went to Montreal to consult a specialist as I had been suffering terribly with stone in the bladder. He decided to operate but said the stone was too large to remove and too hard to crush. I returned home and was recommended by a friend to try

Desolate Islands Seldom Visited

PRESENT events are making people so forgetful that it scarcely seems odd that the world should occasionally overlook an island. Such is the case of Tristan Da Cunha, an island in the South Atlantic remarkable chiefly for its isolation. A steamer on passage from South Africa, bound for Buenos Aires, chanced to call there recently. The last vessel that had touched its rather bleak and unpromising shores was a French barque, and that was last March. Neglect it seems is rapidly reducing the inhabitants (some 200 in number) to the role of Robinson Crusoes. Their foodstuffs are very short, especially flour, rice, tea, and coffee, and even cloth is none too abundant. Report hath it that "a British war vessel calls at this isolated British settlement once a year," but, according to the inhabitants the island has had no such visitation since the Boer War. Though bullocks, sheep, and geese are reared in this isolated spot, the disappearance of whalers and other sailing vessels has made it difficult to trade.

"They have only two frail boats," writes the captain of the latest boat to call, "made of canvas over wooden framing. Their lifeboat was lost with all hands (17) some thirty years ago, while going off to a ship during heavy weather. The men are expert boatmen, as is proved by their going off in any possible weather to intercept any vessel sighted, and they occasionally visit the inaccessible and Nightingale Islands, some twenty miles distant, in search of seals. A few days before our visit they caught a whale, but were unable to tow it home with their frail craft. They say that from June to September whales are frequently seen, especially the right whale, with its valuable bone. There is no whaling station or factory on the island. The acquisition of a whale or surf boat would be a great boon to the people. They state they will come off at any time during the night if a vessel will make a signal or show a flare.

"They have no new signal code or book, and as the old one they possess is now obsolete it is useless to them.

"They have two clocks on the island, which I augmented by the gift of a Houston Line clock."

Another Island, more romantic but as remote as Tristan Da Cunha, has also succeeded in attracting the attention of civilization by the account of a recent visitor. The statutes of Easter Island, in the southeast Pacific, some 2,000 miles from the coast of South America, have remained the mystery of the Pacific since the first European discoverer of the island, the Dutch admiral, Roggeveen, alighted if on Easter Day, 1772, said Mrs. Scoresby Routledge, relating to the Royal Geographical Society her work during a residence of sixteen and a half months in the island.

All round the coast are the remains of what were known as the stone terraces, numbering about two hundred. These terraces consisted of a long wall on the side to the sea, about 300 feet in length and eight to twelve feet in height, flanked on either side by a paved slope of masonry. The wall consisted of a central portion and two wings, and on top of the centre portion was a level platform on which stood the images. They had their backs to the sea, but not one of the statues was now in place; they had fallen forward and lay in a row on their faces. It had been suggested that the images were thrown down by an earthquake, but nothing was found to confirm such an idea. Some of the images had been more than thirty feet in height, but from about twelve feet to twenty feet were more usual measurements. In the quarries on the south-west portion of the mountain Rano Rarku the statues could be seen by scores at every stage of completion, left precisely as they were when the work was stopped. In all there were about 150 partially-finished statutes and in the detritus below the quarries a large number had been set up, and they all stood with their backs to the mountain. The statues had not been oriented, nor were they erected after any particular method, being simply set up in the spot most convenient to the quarry, or sometimes in the quarry itself. The present inhabitants of the island knew nothing of the origin of the great works; they simply took the statutes for granted, and they were of no particular interest to them. The mystery of Easter Island was a puzzle of many places, and a large number of them must be sought outside the island itself.

Becoming.

"That dress is becoming, my dear," said the man who thinks he is a diplomatist.

She looked at him coldly for a moment and then replied:

"Yes. It is becoming threadbare."

Great Japanese General Who Won Lasting Honors In Two Important Wars

A FEW days ago death overtook Field-Marshal Prince Iwao Oyama, commander-in-chief of the Japanese armies during the Russo-Japanese War, and regarded by military men as a great strategist. In the estimation of the Japanese he ranked with Field-Marshal Prince Yamagata, the victor of the Japanese war with China, a decade prior to the Russian war; and like Yamagata and most of the other great Japanese generals, he was by birth a samurai of the mighty Satsuma clan, instinct with the self-sacrificing chivalry and valor which were the key-note of feudal Japan. He was born in the thirteenth year of Tempo (1842); and he saw his first active service as a captain under his cousin, Count Saigo Takamori, in the rebellion against the Shogunate which liberated the Mikado and led to the re-establishment of Imperial, and eventually constitutional, rule, in Japan.

In 1870 Oyama was sent by the Japanese Government to Prussia to study the German army organization, and he was with von Moltke throughout the Franco-Prussian War until after the siege of Paris. Upon his return to Japan he was appointed Vice Minister of War, and charged especially with the reorganization of the Japanese army. In 1877 came the Satsuma rebellion, again led by his cousin Count Saigo, against the Emperor this time. It was the last expiring breath of the haughty clan spirit, which had found the Shogunate too powerful for comfort and, having dethroned this system, now turned against the Emperor who had been set up in its place. Oyama was a great admirer of his cousin, but he did not shrink from heading a brigade of infantry in the fierce struggles which quelled the revolt, at a cost of 6,000 lives and $50,000,000.

At the termination of the rebellion he was promoted lieutenant-general and appointed Chief of the General Staff. In 1880 he became Minister of War. When war with China broke out in 1894 he was appointed to command the Second Army, which was sent against Port Arthur and Wei-hai-wei. His campaign was considered by European military experts to have been perfect.

In the Russo-Japanese War he again distinguished himself. His tactics which were aimed to flank and crush the Russian army would have ended the war much more quickly if they had succeeded. It is held by army officers that Oyama's plan was flawless, but because of lack of sufficient superiority in men and guns he was unable to perfect his turning movement to the intended maximum, which would have involved the practical destruction of the Russians; and Kuropatkin was able to withdraw in time, taking with him his wounded and most of his artillery.

Oyama sent orders to Nogi to force the pace at Port Arthur, that he might be released to come to the assistance of his brother-generals, and called upon the Imperial Government for reinforcements. In less than a month the Russian army, with its morale intact, assumed the offensive against him, but Oyama swiftly checked this move, resumed the offensive himself, and swept the Russians back across the Sha River to their base around Mukden. Again, however, he was hampered by lack of sufficient numbers to drive the blow home, and the approach of cold weather induced him to intrench and go into winter quarters.

In the meantime, Nogi, in the face of heavy losses, was wearing down Port Arthur's resistance, and the fortress capitulated on January 2, 1905. His army was rushed to the front before Mukden as rapidly as possible, together with a fifth army, organized in Japan. By mid-February Oyama had more than 210,000 effectives, just about the number Kuropatkin could rely upon. On February 25 the great battle of Mukden began.

The Japanese strategy was the standard modern plan of prolonging his flanks until he had gotten around and behind the enemy. Oyama intended in the final outcome to weld a complete circle about Mukden and pin the Russians within it. By March 10 the circle was complete, but the Russians had escaped. And once more the trouble was lack of sufficient numbers to overpower the Russian resistance in the necessary time.

This was the last battle of importance in the war. After the peace of Portsmouth, Oyama was made a Prince and showered with other honors by a grateful people, who realized that it was largely the impressiveness of his efforts with limited means which had induced the Russians to give in. Even after he retired from the army he was an active power in Japanese affairs. His outlook always was thoroughly western, and with his wife, who is a graduate of Vassar in the class of 1882, he worked to develop the old Samurai spirit along lines of modern enterprise and endeavor.

INCREASE YOUR WEIGHT RESTORES LOST STRENGTH PREVENTS ILLNESS

Every day come new converts to that great army of men and women who rejoice in new-found health that came to them through the use of that wonderful blood-renewing preparation called "FERROZONE". Very simple how it acts. All you have to do is take two small chocolate-coated tablets with a sip of water at the close of each meal.

Ferrozone is a marvel. It contains just what thin blood lacks—lots of iron, but mark you, the kind of iron your blood is able to absorb. Ferrozone puts life and vim into the blood. Makes it rich, red and nourishing. Naturally the body is better fed and grows stronger day by day.

Of course digestion must be improved, and probably the stomach will require aid as well. Ferrozone serves the purpose admirably. Those who use it, enjoy appetite and digestive powers far beyond the ordinary.

That tired feeling is replaced by the buoyant, joyous sensation of health and vigor. Day by day as your strength increases, you feel new energy surging through your veins, and know that a great tonic of great merit is at work.

No remedy more nourishing or uplifting, no treatment so sure to bring lasting health, good spirits and contentment. Ferrozone contains just what run-down folks need; it cures because it supplies more nutriment than you can get in any other way. 50c per box or six for $2.50 at all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Safety for the Birds.

Approval of the treaty for the protection of migratory birds recently ratified by the Governments of the United States and Canada has now been given by Great Britain. Nothing now remains to put it into effect save the formal exchange of ratified copies by the two countries involved. Therefore it may be said that the final step has been taken in what is probably the most important movement for the protection of birds ever instituted in this country or the United States. The treaty will be in force for fifteen years, and will automatically renew itself from year to year after that period, unless one of the contracting parties gives twelve months' notice of a desire to terminate it. It is not probable that such a contingency will ever arise.

The most vital provisions of this treaty are:

"That no bird important to agriculture because it is an insect destroyer shall be shot at any time.

"That no open season or any species of game birds shall extend for a longer period than three and one-half months.

"That both the United States and Canada shall so restrict open seasons on game birds as to prevent their being taken during the breeding season.

"That there shall be no shipment from one country to the other of birds which are taken contrary to law."

Under a treaty such as this it is apparent that not only will the many valuable species of game birds which journey annually across the border in their migratory flights be adequately protected, but also that the even more important insect-devouring birds may go and come in entire safety. By the consequent service to the farmer this treaty may easily have a favorable influence on the cost of living in both countries.

Make the Liver Do its Duty

Nine times in ten when the bowels are right the stomach and bowels are right.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gently but firmly compel a lazy liver to do its duty.

Cure Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness, Dizziness, Sick Headache, and Distress after Eating.

Small Pill, Small Dose, Small Price.

Genuine must bear Signature

Indigestion Resulted From An Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and, thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N.B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this malady. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I cannot praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Discussing the prospects of seed potatoes, the Sun of Toronto say:

Just where Ontario's seed potatoes will come from is something of a problem, so far as we can see at the present time. It is certain at any rate that they will not be cheap. From $4.50 to $5 per bag is suggested as the price that will have to be paid, and if a man is to put in ten bags it means that he casts down a nice little lump of gold. If a good crop were assured, and a good market, it would still pay to do this, but if the crop is a complete failure, as it was last year, or if there is an abundant crop to pull prices down, the planter will stand to lose, either coming of going. For the present buyers seem to be standing off until they can size up the situation better.

Local dealers report firmer prices approaching further advances. No relief is in sight.

The market has undergone but few changes this week. Eggs and butter have remained steadily around 50 and 45 cents respectively.

CREAM AT TORONTO.

With the present activity on the butter market a brighter outlook prevails in the cream section of the trade and should the present conditions continue and the butter trade increase in strength there would be no question about the 47c cream continuing also. However, the Toronto Creamery is making no "rash promises" as the market is still a little uncertain.

There is a better demand for sweet cream than has been prevalent during th last few weeks though not sufficient to raise the price above 50c per pound of fat, delivered at Toronto.

New Dahlia By Burbank Named After Oakland

OAKLAND, Cal. Feb. 20.—Luther Burbank, whose plant magic has made his name known around the world, has just succeeded in propagating another flower wonder. It is the largest white dahlia ever produced. It is to be known as Burbank's Oakland dahlia, being thus named because of the great horticulturalist's kindly feeling for this city.

Burbank offered Oakland its choice of a new rose he has recently developed, the dahlia, or a magnificent gladiolus. The Oakland Chamber of Commerce, to which the offer was made selected the white dahlia.

PLANTING A FETE EVENT.

The planting of this official flower of Oakland will be made a fete event. It is planned to bring Burbank to this city on his birthday and make the day a municipal holiday. State, city and county officials will be on the reception committee, and the school children will turn out en masse in greeting.

The dahlia is to be planted in one of the big public parks in Oakland. This detail is not yet decided, but popular sentiment favours the city hall plaza.

It was in this park that the oldest oak in Oakland—its age was variously estimated at from 200 to 500 years—recently died from senility. Its place has been taken with a sturdy young oak from the foothills of the coast range of mountains.

ASK TREE OF 27 OAKLANDS.

It is hoped to make the plaza a typical Oakland park, for the chamber of commerce has requested each of the other twenty-seven Oaklands in the United States to send it a tree to plant beside the central oak. The request for oak trees followed the refusal of the other Oaklands to surrender their name to this city.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE NIGHTGOWN.

By Anabel Worthington.

Women who have begun their sewing for the winter's needs will include undergarments for the family, to be assured of the best results as to "fit"—it is a most important feature in a nightgown or other undergarment.

The gown in the illustration, No. 8,057, is certainly everything that a nightgown can be expected to be. Its first advantage is that it is cut in one piece with the widest part to the front, and you will notice that it is slashed almost to the waist line in front for conveniently slipping on over the head. The neck fronts are rolled back and bound with ribbon; the fastening is with silk cord frogs arranged on alternate sides with buttons as pictured. Ribbon finishes the short sleeve also.

English long cloth makes a very substantial undergarment, so does albatross—now so much used for cold weather gowns of a character such as is the one pictured. White flannelette with a soft fleecy nap is another popular fabric and a very reasonably priced one, too. Albatross may be effectively embroidered and for this reason as well as because it launders easily and well is voted a success for a dainty nightgown.

The pattern of gown No. 8,057 cuts in sizes 36, 40 and 44 bust. To make in size 36 requires 3½ yards 45 inch material and 2½ yards ribbon.

To obtain the pattern send 20 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Why We Want Church Union in the Prairie Provinces

By President WALTER MURRAY,
University of Saskatchewan

IN a municipality in Saskatchewan settled fully twelve years ago there are about 5,000 people. The main line of the Canadian Northern Railway runs through it. In this municipality there are 33 English-speaking ratepayers, and about 1,000 Community Doukobors. The religious needs of 4,000 people are ministered to by one Polish priest, one Greek Catholic and a student missionary for a portion of the summer. Beyond the borders of the municipality are two towns with a liberal supply of clergymen.

In the prairie provinces there are at least 150,000 Ruthenians. They are looked after by approximately thirty Uniate priests, a half dozen Greek Catholics, about a dozen Protestant ministers and students—a total of possibly fifty. One shepherd to 3,000, on the average. As a matter of fact, there are large districts unvisited by priest or parson.

The immigrants to Western Canada bring with them the memory of their national religion. There are Norwegian Lutheran, Swedish Lutheran and two German Lutheran religious organizations, each distinct and separate. There are German Catholics, French Catholics, Polish Catholics, Ruthenian Uniate Catholics, Greek Orthodox Catholics. The fragments uprooted from their national soil and cast upon Canadian shores are left many of them uncared for by the National Church in Europe. What more natural than that they should look to the national churches in Canada or remain neglected. There are, I have been told, groups of the finest people from Europe who rarely see a clergyman oftener than twice or thrice a year. Is it not time for the churches in Canada that are national in spirit (if not in organization and name) to get together and work as one for the religious upbuilding of the new nation in Canada? To these European peoples religion is a national necessity.

One person in every three in Western Canada has a mother tongue other than English. In large districts English is as little known as it is in Austria.

A Presbyterian Superintendent reports one hundred and fifty mission fields closed for lack of men and means; while a Presbyterian Principal wrote that in other Presbyterian mission fields the average number of communicants in a station is about four. The Methodist stations have probably no more. Union in Alberta would save between $15,000 and $20,000 a year, a quarter of that Synod's contribution to the schemes of the Church. In Okotoks four Protestant ministers shepherd 325 people and draw $1,350 from mission funds. In Lemberg 302 people are divided into 6 denominations.

Co-operation by delimitation worked well where there were few or no people. In Northwestern Alberta the Presbyterians went in with one railway line, the Methodists with another. All was harmonious until crowds settled in the towns. Then co-operation chafed and when the hope of Union became faint, it galled.

Co-operation by withdrawal worked for a time in older Saskatchewan. The two clergymen lived in the town, one preached there in the morning and went into the north country for the evening; the other was in the south country for the morning and preached in town in the evening. It worked better than competition over the same trails.

In oldest Manitoba and Saskatchewan Union alone will reduce the evil. The fields overlap so much. "30% of the mission fields overlap," "90% of districts where there are two churches want Union." A score of strictly Union congregations have been formed, and unless Union comes soon they will develop into a new church and will sweep Western Canada. There are also two score more which were formed under or in one of the two churches by the two peoples who prefer Union even at the cost of withdrawing from their old church.

The people of the prairies have been forced by economic necessity, by the loneliness of large spaces to co-operate in marketing and buying. Witness the Co-operative Elevator Co., the largest grain handling company in the world. The little towns have lived and thrived only by developing a community spirit and a community pride. Racial differences have intensified the desire of compatriots to get together.

Racial difficulties, the co-operative spirit, the community interest are driving together all who prize religion and patriotism.

IT'S ALL OR NOTHING

BY HARRY LAUDER

I have just seen passing below my window a battalion of soldier lads off for the front. Some of them will never come back, poor lads! They were all of them laughing and singing. They will land in France laughing and singing they will march into the trenches laughing and singing; they will fall, if fall they do, laughing and singing. What is it gives them the power?

And as I watched them I thought of my own brave lad, and the last cheery farewell he waved me from the train.

Why did he and so many, many more go out to fight? What had they, individually, to gain by it? Tell o'er the tale of the risks of the soldier, and then name his common reward! This boy of mine, and how many, many more gained death. Seeking nothing but clean honour and their country's good, these brave lads, bright-eyed and strong, marched away. And there they rest now over in France.

"I BELIEVE."

This war is going to turn us, all of us, either into devout believers or into raving Atheists. I have been down into the depths these last days. And, man, I tell you, I believe in God.

Take God out of it, and what our soldiers have done and are doing is sheer lunacy. They might better have stopped at home with those careful men who, having learned what was done to the women of France and Belgium, and what might well be done to their own women folk, have decided that it is wrong to kill.

But they—they put away all thought of profit, or safety. They choose a life of certain hardships and hourly danger; they walked shoulder to shoulder with death. Either they were fools, or else God reigns and holds in His hand earth, heaven and hell.

They died that Britain might be free. They died for us. They died for their old Mothers, their pure sweethearts, their helpless little children. They died for the old home and all the memories that cling round it; for the lighted hearth, the clean board and the prattle of the brains for the thought of those far-away days when a dear mother happed them round and crooned them asleep with an old-world song.

They died for Britain, which is made up of many such homes; for Britain, which is something more than all those homes put together.

Was it worth while? Are all or any of the noble deeds of life worth while? Or is the world a hideous nightmare, where men struggle blindly for their own selfish aims?"

THE GREAT SACRIFICE.

Yes, it was worth while Thank God we that have suffered have the strength to say that to-day—though we would far, far rather say it with arms in our hands. It is a great sacrifice. It behoves the nation to be worthy of it.

It is a great sacrifice, and for a moment, we who have given what we love best feel lost. I feel to-day that I am looking into a great black chasm. Far down below there I hear a low sound. Will something ever come out of it and grip me by the hand and say "Be happy!" I hope so. And meanwhile we—you and I who know now what war means—must keep on fighting.

I look at it this way: Harry Lauder has made millions of people laugh in his time. And now he has made many people weep. The tokens of sympathy he has received show him that his loss has brought him nearer to others who have suffered. Such things open our hearts, make us feel brothers and sisters with a common burden, and so strengthen us for the fight. That may be a reason why a share of the burden fell upon me.

SHALL WE BETRAY THE DEAD?

And perhaps now I may light a flame in your hearts from the flame that burns in mine.

Rob a lioness of her young, and beware of her! And shall we who have been robbed of our young lick the hand of the murderer?

The sacrifice has been made. Has it been made in vain? We suffer, is it for nothing? Shall we become weary and falter with the blood of our dearest and best unavenged? These lads died for Britain. Shall Britain betray them? Shall we make terms with Hell, and balance bargains with those whose hands are red with the blood of our sons?

It is all—or nothing. Either we do what we set out to do—or we fail. Either we slay this evil beast—or we let it escape. Either we keep faith with our dead—or we betray them. There is no half-way house there is no compromise possible. Treaties, pledges, terms; what are they to a German? Cut him down!

What is our most precious possession? It is our heritage of clean, honour and valient freedom. For that our sons have died, for that let us live or die. The generations behind us spur us on. The dead battalions of our armies spur us on. The unborn generations call to us: "Shall we be ashamed of our sires?"

ALL OR NOTHING NOW.

It is all—or nothing. Let us give all we have as these gave—our last penny, our last ounces of efforts, our last drop of blood. We give nothing if we hold back part of the price. Whatever we have we owe to our country, and what she gave we give back to her. "Take! take! Old Mother!" Let that be our cry! "Take all that I have! take me!"

Buckle on your harness, then! Whatever sacrifices are demanded of you, make them bravely, cheerfully. Be steadfast till the end.

The word of the day is: "Victory!" If we falter before our debt to our dead sons is paid then shall we be marked beyond redemption as a declining nation, a degenerate stock. Let us prove to-day of what stuff we are made. Let us not pause in our endeavour until absolute victory has been gained.

HARRY LAUDER.

GAS UP IN KINGSTON.

Advances 20 Cents, Owing to Increased Price of Oil.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 20.—Owing to the increase in the cost of oil, the Civic Utilities Commission has been forced to raise the price of gas from $1 to $1.20 per thousand cubic square feet. With the increase in the price of oil, it has been costing the plant $1.17 for manufacture. Dollar gas was inaugurated here ten years ago. This new rate will be lowered as soon as oil takes a drop.

CANADA'S BAND OVERSEAS

British Centres Welcome Soldier-Musicians and Praise Their Work

The members of the Canadian Divisional Band in England were immensely pleased at the cordiality of their reception wherever they appeared. On a visit to Aldershot they were given a civic reception, a reception from military headquarters; the townspeople presented the band with a gold mounted baton and the Royal Artillery presented Bandmaster Shares with a gold match box, handsomely inscribed. The volunteer firemen banquetted the Canadians. Our band was also royally treated at Bournemouth, where Dan Godfray, the son of old Dan Godfrey, was the town's musician.

The Aldershot News, in its reference to the visit, said: "The cordiality of the town's reception to the Canadian Divisional Band on Sunday will remain one of the pleasantest memories in the history of Aldershot. The visit forged a peculiar and happy link between the greatest military centre in the Empire and the great Dominion of Canada. On the part of the Canadians there was a warm-hearted desire to do something to help the Aldershot Patriotic Fund, which has been founded to assist townspeople who may suffer as a direct result of the war. On the part of the town there was a laudable desire, carried out to a happy conclusion, to express how much the Canadians' visit was appreciated, and how great is the national admiration for the splendid loyalty and courage of our comrades in arms from overseas in the great war still raging. It is difficult, indeed impossible, to pick holes in the rich musical treat Mr. Stares provided, a program that was as delightful for the interpretation of the music as for the excellent choice of items, and the generous appreciation showered upon him and his men was compatible with the feelings engendered by the faultless interpretation of peerless music."

OTTAWAN HITS TURKEY

Aviator-Golfer's Remarkable Flight From Aegean to Adrianople

At the outset of the war Lieut. Jack Devlin, of Ottawa, a son of Mr. R. J. Devlin, and formerly known as a brilliant young golfer, took up aviation and was attached to the Naval Aerial Service, being appointed to one of the coast stations for defensive work. He did splendidly there and was subsequently transferred to the near East. He was in the Balkan campaign for some time, with headquarters on the island of Imbros. Later he was among the aviators who carried out a dangerous night flight, which resulted in the destruction of several big bridges, about twenty miles south of Adrianople.

The flight was made from Imbros at a height of about ten thousand feet. Reaching their destination, one of the railway bridges over the Maritza River, Lieut. Devlin and Flight-Lieut. Harriot, descended to within 800 feet and dropped their bombs, several of which were direct hits. The destruction of the Maritza River bridges severed communications between Turkey and Bulgaria, except for the mule trails and pontoon service. Several attempts to hit Turkey and Bulgaria thus had been made, but that by Lieuts. Devlin and Harriot proved successful.

Their flight was about 100 miles, but, though subject to a heavy fire from anti-aircraft guns, the daring aviators returned safely to Imbros, though Lieut. Devlin had both hands severely frost bitten. Earlier one British aviator made the trip and damaged the bridge considerably, for which he was awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

FIRST CHEMONG TO DIE

One of Five Brothers, Indians, Who Went Overseas

Pte. Isaac Taylor, a Chemong village member of the 93rd Battalion, who was reported seriously ill of wounds, was later reported to have died. He was the first of the Chemong Lake Indians to give his life for his Empire. He was one of the five sons of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, Chemong, who joined the colors and went overseas. A brother already had been wounded, and his uncle, Pte. Chas. Taylor, and a cousin, Pte. Russell Taylor, were also in the casualty list.

The "Fighting" Fools

Major H. H. Armstrong of Hamilton, returning from the front, said: "There will be a big show on the Western front, and the Canadians will be the king-pin of it. Among the allies the Canadians are known as the 'Fighting Fools.' It is a term of commendation. The Canadians will fight anywhere and anything that is to be fought."

Some people spend a lot of time in explaining things they know nothing about.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys, and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

750 Pairs Of Socks Knitted By The I.O.D.E.

Hastings Branch Has Been Busy During the Past Year

HASTINGS, Feb. 21.—From the annual report of the local Chapter of the I. O. D. E. we learn that during the year 750 pairs of socks were knit and distributed. The members are hopeful that the knitters will still continue in the good work. The Chapter has a balance on hand of $65.88, which is a very creditable showing considering the demands that have been constantly presenting themselves.

Rev. D. A. Thomson attended the ordination services of Rev. Mr. McIntosh, formerly of Guelph, into the pastorate of the Presbyterian Church in Campbellford, on Thursday last.

The many friends of Mr. John Johnson will regret to learn that he is still in a very critical condition, and wish for him a complete restoration to his wonted health.

Mr. Walter Petrie was in Washington during the week, completing his patent for the quick tanning of leather, and has severed his connections with the Hastings tannery. Mr. and Mrs. Petrie have many friends in town who will regret to learn of his decision. His position as Manager has been transferred to Mr. Charles Jones, who has been in the company for some time.

Mrs. Fred Hubbs has been in Peterborough attending the funeral of her mother, Mrs. S. R. Price.

Nurse McGuire of Campbellford is in charge of Miss Kathleen Lambert, who is in a very critical condition, suffering from a complication of diseases.

Sergt. L. Learmonth has returned from Kingston Hospital, where he has been under treatment for wounds received while on active service.

We are pleased to know that Mrs. (Dr.) Hess is recovering from a severe attack of la grippe.

Mr. Joe Oakley has taken to himself a wife in the person of Mrs. Hamblin. Their friends extend hearty congratulations.

Mrs. Wm. Baker spent Wednesday in Peterborough visiting her sister, Miss Moore, who is just recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

Mrs. Nolan of the United States, is visiting friends here, the guest of her brother, Mr. Fred English.

Miss Mildred Howson of Norwood spent the week-end at the home of Mrs. N. Beavis.

On Sunday evening Evangelist Kathleen Norton preached her farewell sermon to a very large and appreciative audience. Miss Motion is a very efficient speaker and easily holds the attention of her listeners. In the morning a reception service was held for those who had signified their intention of uniting with the Church.

Miss Morton left on the 7 o'clock train Monday morning to recuperate at her home in Toronto, before beginning a new campaign in one of the city churches.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid. Fisher of Campbellford, spent Friday in town.

Mrs. Walker Fowlds is lying quite ill from the after effects of la grippe.

Mrs. Moore of Oak Heights is with her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Baker.

Mrs. Stillman of Campbellford spent Sunday in town.

British Had 40 Fights With Submarines in 18 Days Carson Tells House

Gave Some Interesting Details Regarding the Encounters With Enemy Pirate Ships—Explains Work That the Navy Has Accomplished.

SEAPLANES DO GOOD WORK AGAINST SUBS; WINSTON CHURCHILL URGES MORE SHIPBUILDING

LONDON, February 23.—Sir Edward Carson continuing his speech in the British House gave more details regarding the work of the British Navy.

Citing forty encounters of British ships with German submarines in the last 18 days, he gave interesting details. While admitting that in some cases the evidence of actual sinking was vague, and doubtful, nevertheless he considered that an enormous achievement.

HOW THEY SINK.

He said that a few days ago British destroyers attacked an enemy submarine which was hit, the captain being killed. The submarine dived but was so injured it was obliged to rise again, and was captured, and its crew taken prisoner. Another submarine was sunk by a transport. In still another instance two patrol boats reported the sinking of two enemy submarines, without themselves suffering any casualties. The full report appeared to establish that one of these had been actually sunk, but there was doubt about the second.

Sir Edward gave instances of other cases in which submarines were attacked, without committing himself as to the result of the attacks. He said that the degree of evidence of reported sinkings varied enormously. The Admiralty did not desire to conceal anything, but wished to avoid publishing misleading information.

ARMED ONES ESCAPED.

The navy's figures, Sir Edward stated, showed that 78 per cent. of armed vessels escaped after a submarine attack, while only 24 per cent. of unarmed vessels escaped.

TOTAL TONNAGE LOST.

Including smaller vessels, said Sir Edward, the total number of ships lost, both allied and neutral during the first 18 days of December, the first 18 days of January and the first 18 days of February, were, with their tonnages, as follows:

Months.	Ships.	Tonnage.
December	118	223,000
January	91	198,000
February	134	304,000

The total number of vessels plying to and from United Kingdom ports during the first 18 days of February was 12,949; the number of arrivals being 6,076, and of departures 6,873.

The estimated number of ships in the so-called danger zone at any one time was 3,000.

In the face of all these sinkings and the accompanying sacrifices and trials, the First Lord of the Admiralty said he had not heard of a single sailor who had refused to sail. That was what was going to win the war, he declared. Neutrals might be nervous and frightened, but they would follow the British example and he believed would shortly resume their sailings.

PUBLISH LOSSES DAILY.

Sir Edward said he proposed in the future, daily if possible, to publish together the number of losses by mine and torpedoes and the number of merchant ships entering and leaving the ports of the United Kingdom. He would also publish a list of vessels which had been attacked by and escaped from submarines.

Sir Edward said, he believed the problem of the submarine menace could be solved, but it could only be solved if the nation acted in the way he indicated in conjunction with the navy. That it would be solved, however, he was certain.

FORTY FIGHTS WITH SUBMARINES.

In announcing that he had received reports of forty encounters with submarines in the first eighteen days of February, Sir Edward said: "The fact that we got to grips with them more than forty times in eighteen days was an enormous achievement."

Sir Edward quoted from some of these reports dealing with the various encounters to show the varying degrees of certainty or uncertainty as to the fate of the submarines. As an instance in which the result positively was known, he cited the capture by a destroyer of a submarine and her crew. Two other cases from which he quoted disclosed some of the methods adopted for fighting the submarines. In one of these he referred to reports from an airship which had dropped bombs where a submarine had submerged. A similar report came from a seaplane which had used the same method against another submarine.

No Slip Left Idle.

Referring to shipbuilding, Sir Edward said that not a single slip would be left unoccupied during the coming month, and that steps would be taken to meet the demands in this respect both of the admiralty and the mercantile marine. He appealed to the workers to labour with unremitting energy and to the nation to consent to the restriction of imports in order to make easier the task of the admiralty.

The arming of merchant ships, said Sir Edward, involved an enormous amount of work, but was progressing more rapidly each week. Of the armed merchantmen, he said, 78 per cent. escaped the submarines after attack, while of the unarmed ones, 24 per cent. escaped.

Commenting upon the figures showing the losses of shipping from submarine attacks in the first eighteen days of February, Sir Edward said:

"Our losses are bad enough, but they are not equal to the blatant extravagant bravado of the German account of them."

In conclusion, Sid Edward Carson said there was not a particle of truth in the allegation that the Government had forbidden the publication of the losses of shipping, and that, so far as he was concerned, he would not be a party to a concealment of these losses.

Teutons Don't Like Silence.

Turning to the desirability of giving details of enemy losses in submarines, Sir Edward said the policy of silence was a policy least liked by the Teutonic Allies.

Starving In Midst Of Plenty, Cry Women Of New York East Side

Many Thousand Women Attended Mass Meeting and Nosily Approved Message to President Wilson Demanding a Reduction in the Cost of Living—Whole East Side is Seething With Discontent and Police Are Fearful of Serious Trouble.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

NEW YORK, February 23.—The women of the New York tenements have taken the food situation in their own hands and planned a series of public demonstrations to convince the Mayor and city officials that something must be done to reduce prices. One of the wildest protest meetings the city has even known broke up after making arrangements for a great parade of women and children to march through Wall Street and Fifth Avenue.

An appeal was sent to President Wilson and a committee was appointed to demand that the city appropriate $1,000,000 to be used immediately for buying and distributing food among the poor at cost. Impassioned speakers called upon the poor of the east side or organize and pledge the financial support of the Hebrew trades union. The capitalists were blamed for the high cost of food on the ground that they were amassing wealth by sending it to Europe.

Mass meetings and demonstrations continue. The police are on the alert to prevent a fresh outbreak of rioting such as put many push cart vendors out of business on Monday and Tuesday. Mayor Mitchell, who was absent when several hundred women tried to force their way into his office, promised to receive the committee if it came quietly.

A thousand or more women attended the mass meeting and at least 5,000 more fought to get into the hall. Two hours elapsed before there was order enough for the transaction of business. The following appeal to the President was carried with a shout:

"We, housewives of the city of New York, mothers and wives of workmen, desire to call your attention, Mr. President, to the fact that, in the midst of plenty, we and our families are facing starvation.

"The rise in the cost of living has been so great and uncalled for that even now we are compelled to deny ourselves and our children the necessaries of life.

"We pay for our needs out of the wages of our husbands, and the American standard of living cannot be maintained when potatoes are seven cents a pound, bread six cents, cabbage 20 cents, onions 18 cents, and so forth.

"We call to you, Mr. President, in this crisis that we are facing to recommend to Congress oro ther authority measures for rleief."

ZEPPELIN RAIDS FOUND UNPROFITABLE BY GERMANY

GENEVA, February 23.—The Zeppelin campaign against London has been found to be unprofitable. The cessation of German air raids on the British metropolis after the latest appearances of the big dirigibles over the city last fall has been due not to fortuitous circumstances but to the deliberate determination of the German leaders to abandon the attacks, as has been done in the case of Paris.

The correspondent, who was then in Berlin, was informed from a trustworthy source a few days after the final raid on the metropolis of the decision to send no more Zeppelins and sister ships of the Schuettelanz type against London. Air raids against England, the correspondent was told, would not be abandoned entirely. They were considered to be of great service in holding at home guns, aeroplanes and men of the British aerial defence which otherwise would be freed for service in France, but in future the attacks would be directed against the provinces instead of London. The next and final expedition of the year, on November 27, was directed against the midland counties, in accordance with this prophecy, and resulted in the loss of two Zeppelins.

The predominant reason for the decision to discontinue attacks on London probably is the increasing strength and efficiency of the air defences of the city, but the effect of the raids on neutral opinion, in view of the then contemplated peace overtures, may also have been a factor.

It may be interesting in this connection to record a bit of unwritten history of the war. In the early days of the conflict, when the air raids were just beginning, President Wilson caused to be conveyed to Emperor William and the German government a personal and unofficial message which set forth that airship and aeroplane raids upon populous cities were looked on with disfavour by the American people and contributed largely to stirring up anti-German feeling in the United States. In view of this the wisdom of their discontinuance was suggested. The message did not fall entirely on deaf ears, but the views of the military party prevailed and the air attacks, then the only German means of bringing home the realities of war to the people within the British Isles, continued. Later they ceased for a time, to the displeasure of an element which openly accused Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg of sheathing his weapon in deference to neutral opinion.

The element was appeased but little by Count Zeppelin's published letter to the Chancellor, wherein the Count disavowed responsibility for the accusation. The raids were resumed with the object of tying up the islands and eliminating from the Somme offeusive as large a number of anti-airship guns, aeroplanes, search-lights and men to equip them as possible.

Aside from that service, which is of considerable military value, the role of the Zeppelins in land warfare is now regarded in expert circles in Germany as decidedly secondary to their great value as scouting agents for operations of the fleet.

British Raid German Trenches With Success

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Wm. Philip Simms.)

With the British Armies Afield, Feb. 23.—To the hunting call blown on a tallyho bugle, clerks and stenographers, part of a London battalion, on Tuesday at dusk raided the Germans between Hill 60 and the Bluff.

They took 119 German soldiers and one officer, with seven machine guns, and destroyed a mine shaft and numerous dug-outs, in which there were several hundred men who refused to come out.

A British officer remarked to-day that the Londoners carried out the raid with the same methodic thoroughness that they formerly cleared up a day's mail.

The zig-zag nature of the British lines necessitated the attackers lining up on the open ground. The city chaps stood calmly, merely tightening their helmets as they awaited the blast of the hunt horn, while shrapnel from German guns was bursting about them.

At the sound of the tallyho they charged, bending in a 500 yard circle behind the enemy's line. Their German prisoners stood agape at such incomprehensible conduct.

The prisoners were all of the 185th Prussian regiment.

ECZEMA ON FACE

WAS SO BAD HAD TO STAY IN HOUSE

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble and the entire system becomes affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well-known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me, so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured, and have a lovely skin.

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

"A letter, Thomas?"

"Yes, sir. I found it in the box."

"I think the rooms needs a little of your care, Thomas," said Wentworth, tearing the flap of the envelope.

"I dessay, sir," said the butler, without moving, but his fine old face was troubled.

"And, Thomas, I have a very bad head."

"Yes, sir. Quite natural, sir," was the imperturbable reply. "Shall I get you some soda, sir?"

Wentworth looked up quickly, and caught the expression of doubt and solicitude on the old man's face. "Why you superannuated old idiot!" he exclaimed with affectionate banter. "You think that I have been on a spree! Not on your life, Thomas, I simply had a brief interview with the parties who tried to flim-flam you last night, and I got a blow on the top of the head."

"Good Lord, sir!" Thomas' face turned pale. "And I was not here!"

"That was fairly evident to me. No one was here—of consequence—to defend me."

"God bless my soul, Master John! And did they rob you?"

"Personally I think I lost nothing—and yet, Thomas, I may have. But I feel pretty sure I have their goat."

"Their goat, sir!" Modern slang was lost on the old servitor. He glanced quickly around the room as if expecting to see one of the genus Capricornus, then looked into the face of his master, the trouble deepening on his own.

"I am speaking metaphorically, my good friend. I do not refer to an animal, but to a condition. Of course nothing will prompt you to mention what I have told you."

"Yes, sir; of course, sir. But if the police—"

"Never mind the police, Thomas. I will take care of that end of it. Now, if you will run out and get me some witch-hazel I will try and reduce this bump of combativeness on my head.

"Yes, sir, certainly, sir; and—" He stopped as his eye caught sight of something on the floor. He stooped and picked it up gingerly his face becoming set as he recognized and held out a lady's embroidered handkerchief. "I beg pardon, sir."

"Strange!" said Wentworth, putting down the unopened letter and taking the dainty square of fine linen held toward him. "I wonder how this thing got here. It must belong to a lady!"

"Yes, sir. I fancy so, Master John."

"I see! One of those gay Lotharios must have dropped it in the scrimmage. It is valueless except as a clue."

"Perhaps Miss Lothario might have—"

"Never mind, Thomas. Now for the witch-hazel."

The old man went towards the door, walking slowly. In the hall he stopped, looked back at the studio, shook his white head, sighed profoundly and went on his errand. As for Wentworth, he emphasized the worthlessness of the handkerchief by inhaling its delicate perfume, folding it thoughtfully and putting it carefully in the breast pocket of his coat. That done he turned attention to the neglected note.

It was from Harper, and had evidently been sent by messenger. It read:

Dear Jack:

Got home to discover things in a devil of a pother owing to the governor being down with a sudden and severe attack of gout. He is as irascible as the deuce and won't let me out of his sight. Will try and see you tomorrow but may not make it until the next day. Hope you have a good photo, and make original safe.

TOM.

Wentworth smiled grimly and gently touched the protuberance on his head. "I fancy it is safe enough from me!" he muttered. "And the chances are that I will have to work without you, old man!"

He was impatient to start out on his campaign of revenge but he felt his present inability and uselessness. When Thomas returned he allowed the old man to bathe and bandage his head, refusing in set terms to have a doctor; then he ate sparingly, dismissed the butler, and went to bed early, is mind was fully made up as to what he would do the following day, but in the morning he found himself with but little energy, though the swelling on the side of his head had gone down, and was less sensitive. The hours were lost in hoping and waiting for Harper, but as that individual was not forthcoming, Wentworth determined to act alone.

By noon he felt better and went out to lunch, after which he started down town. Knowing the power of money and its probable necessity in carrying out his purpose, he called at the bank, and drew three hundred dollars mostly in small bills, then hailing a taxicab he gave orders to be taken to the police headquarters. He had determined to run no further risks and his next act should be backed up by the arm of the law. He had been assaulted. Perhaps the arrest of Bagshot might bring that individual to terms: at all events it would soothe his own hurt pride and make some amends for the lump that came just within the leather of his hat.

In front of the stone palace on Centre Street he dismissed the taxi, and entered the building.

CHAPTER IX.
ANOTHER LETTER.

Wentworth's next step was a technical blunder though in the end it proved a fortunate one. Instead of asking for the chief of police he requested an interview with the head of the detective department, and after being passed from hand to hand, was finally ushered into the office of that functionary, only to find that he was out of town. Wentworth was about to inquire of the clerk as to who represented the chief, when the door of the room opened and a young man softly entered. For a moment the two looked at each other, and then the stranger spoke.

"This is Mr. Wentworth?"

"Yes," said John. "I have seen you before, somewhere, but unfortunately I cannot place the occasion."

"And small wonder," returned the other. "I saw—but for an instant on the night of—of your father's death. You may remember that I had something to say to you, but you were in no shape to listen and the inspector choked me off. You went upstairs."

"Ah, yes. I have an indistinct recollection of it."

"Are you here, may I ask, on that business?"

There was something in the frank and respectful manner of the young fellow that caused Wentworth to warm toward him; moreover, it was a relief to find one in that place who was not an utter stranger. He remembered that the man had said he was a detective but there was little of the air of a thief catcher in his open countenance, his clear blue eye, and his fresh colored and almost boyish cheek.

"The matter may be distantly related to my father's death," was the reply. "I need help and came here to get it."

"By heaven, sir," said the other with enthusiasm, "we are both lucky. I was about to look you up, Mr. Wentworth. I expected to see you the day after that affair but on my coming back here I was at once sent out of town on a case. I returned this morning. Would you mind coming to my quarters for a few minutes? Perhaps I can help you in the way you wish; anyway, I have something important to tell you."

"Something important?"

"Yes, sir. If you will step into my room I will explain."

Soon after the two were seated in a little office in which there was no furniture save a desk and two chairs. The walls were bare and there was nothing in the surroundings either to stimulate imagination or interfere with thought. The detective closed the door, kicked a black bag out of the way, and seating himself at the desk, opened a drawer, took out a box of cigars and offered it to his visitor.

"My name is Bunson, Mr. Wentworth," he said, throwing himself back in his chair after the two had lighted up. "You never heard of me, of course, because I have done nothing to make my name thunder, and have not yet got on the advertising side of the reporters."

He smiled, showing a fine set of teeth.

"Let us get right down to business. I will first tell you what I have to say, then listen to you. The night that I went to your house I heard that you had stated your belief that Captain Wentworth had been murdered, but by the others who had arrived before me your idea was ridiculed; no convincing evidence of violence had been discovered. But I never take the opinions of others as a guide to my own conclusions, and as a member of a force or which few know much, and the public knows absolutely nothing, I generally keep my conclusions to myself until they can be verified."

He looked fixedly at Wentworth; the young man made no reply beyond a nod of understanding. "Now, sir," continued the detective, impressively, "on the night that I visited your house I made an important discovery, and one that inclines me to believe you were right in thinking your father was murdered."

He paused to let the statement have its full effect; and that it did have was apparent in the set, white face of the visitor. What was coming? For a moment Wentworth stared at the detective, then his lips formed rather than spoke the question:

"By whom?"

"By a man named Bagshot. Perhaps you know—What's the matter, sir?"

Wentworth had risen to his feet like one confronted by a ghost.

"Bagshot! Bagshot!" he ejaculated. "It was about him that I came here! What do you know?"

"Nothing that is absolutely certain," said Bunsen, as Wentworth resumed his seat, "but I have suspicions—well-founded suspicions. I have kept them to myself so far. We of the New York police force are human, sir—jealous, if you please. I have no intention of sharing any possible glory I may get from my profession. The evidence I have found I have kept secret until I could see you."

"And what have you found?" demanded Wentworth, gaining strength of voice as his heart steadied.

"This, sir," returned the other, opening the wallet that he took from his pocket and extracting a paper. "I happened to be the only one who had the wit or the wisdom to look under the blotting pad on your father's desk. I was alone when I found it. Of course I was searching without definite hope of getting evidence to carry out your theory, but I think the evidence is here. You will see that this paper is dated the day of your father's death, and by comparisons I know it was written by Captain Wentworth—you will see that it is unfinished, as if he had been interrupted while writing it—that he had hidden it temporarily under the pad, and intended to complete it."

Bunsen opened the paper and laid it on Wentworth's knee. The young man was fairly trembling in his eagerness. Surely it was his father's writing. He knew it at once. It read:

Mr. Simeon Baghot,
West 84th St., City:

Sir:

You asked me for a definite answer to your demand of two days ago but I have waited until now to reply to you because I have had a struggle with myself. And, sir, I have won. Shall I, on the threshold of the grave, succumb to the demands of such a monster as you? to such a poltroon! Never. You have taken most of my fortune; is not that enough? In addition to the loss of my reputation you speak of violence, if I do not meet your wishes. In plain terms, you threaten to murder me. I laugh at the threat, though morally I believe you equal to the attempt.

Before you receive this I shall have passed the paper in to the hands of my son, and will have given him a full explanation, as I should have done years ago. In future you may deal with him—if you dare—for the—

Here the letter ended abruptly and it had evidently been hurriedly placed under the pad without being blotted, for the last line was blurred.

"The bottom of the pad has ink on it," said the detective quietly, as John finished the reading. "A small matter, but something."

Wentworth's hands were trembling. "My Heavens!" he ejaculated under his breath; "and I have had my hands on Bagshot twice since this was written."

"You? On Bagshot! How?"

"I will tell you; but first let me get control of myself," said the young man, rising and striding up and down the confined limits of the room. In a few moments he recreated himself and point by point told the story as he told it to Harper, but now adding the adventure of the day before. Bunsen listened attentively, his eyes lighting with intelligence, but otherwise his face was sphinx-like. When John had finished the detective rose to his feet.

"We have hardly enough in this to make it plain that Bagshot saw your father at all that night, though the letter speaks of threats against the colonel's life. But with your story and this letter we have enough to at least cause the man's arrest on suspicion.

"You want him for assault and robbery if for nothing else. He has got what he was after, and you can bet he'll act quickly now. We have no time to lose. What do you know about Planet? Had you seen him before yesterday?"

"No," said Wentworth, but, as he uttered the word a light burst upon him. "Yes—yes!" he exclaimed. "I have seen it—I did see him—I remember. It was on the night of the murder, by Heaven! He was in front of my father's house! He asked me the hour! I could swear to him!"

"Wait here a moment until I can report my absence!" cried Bunsen, jumping to the door. "I will go with you at once. We'll nab our man within an hour!"

Sloan's Liniment KILLS PAIN

This Ointment Possesses Power To Heal The Skin

Two Cases Which Prove the Extraordinary Healing Power of Dr. Chase's Ointment

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully satisfactory because you can actually see the results accomplished. It is surprising what change can be brought about in a single night by this great healing ointment.

Mr. George Beavis, 119 James street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "As a healing ointment, I consider Dr. Chase's the best obtainable. I had a large running sore on my leg, and although I had tried all the prescriptions of two doctors I was unable to get any relief from the pain or to get the sore healed. One day my druggist handed me a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I used it with such good results that I decided to give the ointment a fair trial. Altogether I used four boxes, and am glad to be able to say that the sore on my leg is entirely healed up. Since this experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment I have recommended it to many people."

Mrs. W. W. Oliver, Port George, Annapolis Co., N. S., writes: "I am going to tell you my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. There was a spot came on my face something like a mole, but it kept getting worse, and several doctors whom I consulted said it was skin cancer, and that it would have to be cut or burned out. I intended having this done, but changed my mind when my brother recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. Before I had finished one box, of the ointment this skin trouble had gone, and has not bothered me since. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too much, and you are at liberty to publish this letter."

If you have never used Dr. Chase's Ointment send a two-cent stamp for a sample box, and mention this paper. Price sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Start Tomorrow and Keep It Up Every Morning

Get in the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

We're not here long, so let's make our stay agreeable. Let us live well, eat well, digest well, work well, sleep well, and look well, what a glorious condition to attain, and yet, how very easy it is if one will only adopt the morning inside bath.

Folks who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when they arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning, before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It clears out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the water and phosphate is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of inside-bathing before breakfast.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Minstrel

By F. A. MITCHEL

There was a kingdom belonging to the eastern Roman empire the sovereign of which was at a certain period a young girl named Eudoxia. She was twenty years old and very beautiful. For many generations the royal family had intermarried among each other. This had resulted in keeping up certain hereditary diseases among them, and they had been very much thinned by death.

When the queen was urged by her nobles to marry that there might be an heir to the throne the heralds were instructed to hunt up some person of royal blood whom she might wed. It was found that there was no man living whom her majesty might marry who was not tainted with some hereditary disease. But a man, Harmodius, was discovered, who had descended from another branch of the royal family, who was young and wealthy. It was represented to the queen that if she did not marry this person she could not marry at all. Furthermore, if she did not have an heir Harmodius would be the only person who would have any claim whatever to the throne.

Now it happened that not long before this marriage question came up Eudoxia had been sitting in the royal gardens one summer day when from beyond the wall came sounds of music. A man was singing, accompanied by a lute. The princess listened and when the song was finished sent an attendant to command the singer to come to her. He did so, and his face and figure proved to be as charming as his voice. The queen kept him singing for awhile, then dismissed him with a gift, which he refused.

Eudoxia resented this refusal, though in her heart she admired the man the more for it. She had intended to command him to come again to sing for her, but since he would not take pay for doing so it was beneath her royal dignity to accept the service. Nevertheless she could not forget either him or his music. Finding herself pining for him, she tried to drive him out of her mind. Not succeeding in doing so, she resolved to have him introduced into the palace surreptitiously, for should it be known that she was accepting a favor from a subject it would create a great scandal.

She sent one of her attendants whom she could trust to the musician with instructions to tell him the circumstances which compelled the queen to send for him privately and admonish him to keep the secret. This allayed a feeling of resentment that her majesty had not before invited him to sing before her again, and he went to the palace, where the queen received him attended by a single maid of honor who was in the secret.

When it was announced to Eudoxia that there was but one man whom she could legally marry she had become madly in love with the musician. She put her ministers off as long as possible in the matter of marrying Harmodius, and when she could do so no longer directed them to bring her his portrait. This encouraged them, and they set out to obey the royal instructions. They returned much disconcerted. Harmodius declined to furnish his portrait.

Eudoxia was not disappointed at this, for she was every day becoming more and more infatuated with the handsome singer who by royal command came frequently to the palace in secret to sing for her royal mistress. However, the cabinet insisted that the queen should marry, and since Harmodius was the only man she could marry she must marry Harmodius. She resisted their demands until they threatened that if she did not yield they would get up a revolution and put Harmodius on the throne.

One day when the minstrel came to sing for the queen she told him that it was the last time she could listen to him. She confessed her love for him, but added that she was obliged to marry or lose her sovereignty. The minstrel begged that he might sing one farewell song to her. He was permitted to do so and sang, expressing his love so pathetically that the queen broke down and told him that she would give up her kingdom for him. He told her that his love for her would not permit him to accept the sacrifice, and they parted.

The queen now informed her ministers that she would wed Harmodius or any one they chose. Preparations were made for the wedding, while the queen wept in secret. She was solicited to receive Harmodius before the ceremony, but declined. When the marriage came off she would not look at him. After they had been pronounced a married couple her husband said:

"My queen."

Eudoxia started. The voice was that of the minstrel. She looked up, and there beside her was the man who had won her heart and for whom she had offered to give up her kingdom.

Harmodius had learned before any one else that he was the only man the queen could marry and, being possessed of a winning voice, had sung to her from beyond the wall of the royal garden and found her heart an easy prey.

The two ruled as King Harmodius and Queen Eudoxia till the Turks overran that part of Europe in which their kingdom lay.

The story of King Harmodius and Queen Eudoxia was long told as an illustration of the power of music, especially over a woman's heart.

ROSE FROM THE RANKS.

Splendid Record of Clever Nova Scotia Soldier.

A young man from Truro, N.S., has made rapid progress since the outbreak of war. P. H. Lawrence, who was a Canadian express messenger in 1914, and enlisted with the first Highland regiment to cross overseas, is now Lieut. P. H. Lawrence, R. E., technical assistant, T. W. R., ministry of munitions, London, and at last account was on a special mission to Petrograd.

In brief, this is the story of Lieut. Lawrence's progress: He was present at the first chlorine attack made by the Germans, and fell a victim to the fumes, but was dragged to the rear, and as he had only inhaled a small quantity he quickly recovered. Within a few days Lawrence, who had been promoted sergeant, and a chum, entered a German trench and secured a gas projector and incidentally added to the number of widows in Germany.

The sergeant was of an inventive turn of mind and after examining the German machine carefully he decided that he could go Fritz one better. He planned out his improvements and then went to his commanding officer and so impressed him that that dignitary said: "This is no place for you; report in London and see what they can do for you." The sergeant went to London. He got the ear of the War Office after much heart-breaking untangling of red tape, and the War Office was impressed and gave Sergeant Lawrence orders to remain in London. He remained in London week after week without hearing any news. In the meantime some officials at the War Office decided they could go ahead with Sergeant Lawrence's new device better than he could. They made a test machine and took it out for a trial. The machine was effective and one of the men was killed. After some further delay Sergeant Lawrence was sent for and told to go ahead in his own way. He did so and the test of his machine proved that he had a device which one man could easily carry, which could send out the most deadly gas for a half hour if necessary and which also could project a flame of such heat that barbed wire entanglements could quickly be burned up.

The War Office then issued to Sergeant Lawrence an order to prepare a number of these machines.

Early in the present year Sergt. Lawrence was given a commission and attached as a technical assistant at the office of the ministry of munitions. In May last he was sent on a special mission to Petrograd. Since entering the imperial service he has been engaged in work which requires the utmost secrecy and beyond an occasional brief note regarding his changing addresses, his relatives on this side of the Atlantic hear little regarding him.

Canada's Share in War Has Aroused Interest of the World.

War in the role of press agent for a country has perhaps never been thought of, let alone seriously considered. Yet the great god Mars must now be looked upon as publicity man extraordinary to Canada; for in the last year through war's agency Canada really has become known to the world far more than in years of peaceful growth. The following extracts from an article in the Utica Saturday Globe is typical of the eulogies which Canada's share in the war has earned in the press of the neighboring republic:

Until the war, very little was really known of Canada by people in the United States and other countries, though the Dominion Government had for years been conducting expensive publicity campaigns, which were augmented by almost as extensive ones carried on by the various provinces, says the writer. Of course, these publicity campaigns made the country known in many lands, but chiefly to prospective emigrants, at best a very small percentage of the entire population, and even these did not acquire any vivid conception.

It required Old Mars, with his thunderous voice summoning to arms, the clamor of preparation and the rattling of war chests, to bring Canada into the limelight. Directly after Canada had become known as a participant in what comes near to being a world war, the various nations sat up and took notice. The Dominion began getting free space and plenty of it in papers from New York to Berlin, from San Francisco to Constantinople. Informed of what Canada was doing, the average German, Austrian, Russian, Frenchman, Italian and Turk and American, became cognisant that this land must be more than a wilderness peopled only along the coast lines—an opinion held by many.

On August 4, 1914, the country was perhaps the most peaceful, the least prepared of any in the world. Military training was almost a dead issue; there were not arms ready to supply more than an army of 30,000 men.

August 4, 1915, this same country, populated as it was with only 8,075,000 people, had accomplished what other nations were pleased to designate as wonderful.

In less than a year's time 170,000 men were mobilized, armed, equipped, and trained. One hundred and ten thousand were at the front or in England ready for active service. And all this from a nation of 8,075,000 people, nearly a quarter of whom were foreign born, or of foreign descent only one generation removed. Not only the Government, but the people individually from newsboy to millionaire took an active interest in helping on the cause of war. Over 1,000 machine guns, worth on the average $900 each, were bought by the public at large and presented to the Government as additional artillery for the Canadian troops. Farmers throughout the great grain producing areas of the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta set aside from one to ten acres of their seeded lands in the spring of 1915; the proceeds from which are now being presented to the Government. The various provinces made various donations of millions of bushels of wheat and oats and hundreds of thousands of bags of flour, as well as hay, fruit and other products produced therein. A patriotic fund amounting to $6,285,000 in aid of soldiers' dependents was subscribed to by the people, and, even with plenty of things to take their money, the Canadians still hastened to further empty their pockets by giving $20,000,000 to the relief of Belgium.

To-day the factories throughout the Dominion are working night and day getting out a $200,000,000 munition order. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, with the great buying organizations of the Canadian Pacific Railway to aid him, is procuring the thousand and one things needed by a country at war.

Even while busy with all these things, Canada found time to raise the greatest grain crop on record: 308,839,800 bushels of wheat; 402,000,000 bushels of oats; 51,655,000 bushels of barley, not to speak of 20,000,000 bushels of various lesser grains.

All the military preparations and accomplishments carried on in such a short time were marked by little of the confusion, costly blunders, and mistakes that occurred in the older land. Canada was of all things unmilitary; yet the mobilization and everything connected with it was superior to England's, both in point of time and ready response of men.

came back," says Mr. Inman, a Winnipeg business man, cured by Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

"It was astonishing how my strength and fitness came back," says MR. C. C. INMAN, of 330, HARCOURT STREET, STURGEON CREEK, WINNIPEG, "for many years a well-known man in the business life of Canada. Mr. Inman continues: "It is about three years now since I first used Dr. Cassell's Tablets, as I was terribly rundown and weak. Sometimes I felt I should have to leave off altogether, my work was such an effort to me, I ate little. I had no appetite, and I suffered if I forced myself to eat.

Mr. C. C. Inman.

"My nerves of course were in a bad way, and my sleep very disturbed. Everything, in fact, pointed to a nervous breakdown. It was then a friend told me about Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I got some to try. The first result was that I could sleep at nights, and then my health rapidly improved. It was really astonishing how my strength and fitness came back.

"I may add that some time ago my mother was very ill with pernicious anæmia. I urged her to take Dr. Cassell's Tablets, but she would not, so I crushed them down and gave them in food without her knowing. She was confined to bed before she had the Tablets, and now is about again well and bright."

Mr. Inman is now in England; having had to return there some little time ago to take control of the well-known firm of A. W. Inman and Son, Printers and Publishers, Leeds. Letters will reach him there.

How to avoid Operations

These Three Women Tell How They Escaped the Dreadful Ordeal of Surgical Operations.

Hospitals are great and necessary institutions, but they should be the last resort for women who suffer with ills peculiar to their sex. Many letters on file in the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., prove that a great number of women after they have been recommended to submit to an operation have been made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here are three such letters. All sick women should read them.

Marinette, Wis.—"I went to the doctor and he told me I must have an operation for a female trouble, and I hated to have it done as I had been married only a short time. I would have terrible pains and my hands and feet were cold all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and was cured, and I feel better in every way. I give you permission to publish my name because I am so thankful that I feel well again." —Mrs. Fred Behnke, Marinette, Wis.

Detroit, Mich.—"When I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was so run down with female troubles that I could not do anything, and our doctor said I would have to undergo an operation. I could hardly walk without help so when I read about the Vegetable Compound and what it had done for others I thought I would try it. I got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and used them according to directions. They helped me and today I am able to do all my work and I am well." —Mrs. Thos. Dwyer, 989 Milwaukee Ave., East, Detroit, Mich.

Bellevue, Pa.—"I suffered more than tongue can tell with terrible bearing down pains and inflammation. I tried several doctors and they all told me the same story, that I never could get well without an operation and I just dreaded the thought of that. I also tried a good many other medicines that were recommended to me and none of them helped me until a friend advised me to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. The first bottle helped, I kept taking it and now I don't know what it is to be sick any more and I am picking up in weight. I am 20 years old and weigh 145 pounds. It will be the greatest pleasure to me if I can have the opportunity to recommend it to any other suffering woman."—Miss Irene Froelicher, 1923 Manhattan St., North Side, Bellevue, Pa.

If you would like special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Candle Wick.

When the old fashioned dips were in common use great annoyance was caused by the burnt wick standing upright as the fat disappeared, making a smoky flame, which necessitated a constant use of the snuffers. This trouble is avoided in the modern candle by the simple expedient of plaiting one side of the wick a little stiffer than the other. When it is left free, owing to the wax having burnt away, it naturally bends over to one side. Now at the extreme edge of the flame the gaseous products of the candle are mixed with excess of oxygen from the air, which attacks the solid substances in the wick and speedily changes them into oxides. This always keeps the wick the right length.

BELFAST TO BOOM SHIPBUILDING.

Belfast is preparing for a boom in shipbuilding after the war. Harland and Wolff's have just leased from the Harbor Board, forty-one acres of additional land at a cost of 8,500 pounds a year. Workman and Clark's are also increasing their shipbuilding ships. The congestion of building on the Clyde has also led to applications to the Harbor Board for accommodation in Belfast.

BRITISH HAD FORTY FIGHTS

"A submarine starts out on its campaign of murder and all that is known by the German Admiralty is that she did not return," said Sir Edward. "Everything else is a mystery."

Another objection to the publication of such losses said Sir Edward, was the difficulty of establishing with certainty the destruction of submarines. From day to day and from week to week reports of encounters ran from certainty through probability down to possibility and to improbability.

Winston Churchill's Comments.

Winston Spencer Churchill, formerly First Lord of the Admiralty, who followed Sir Edward Carson as speaker, said:

"The present submarine danger arose from new efforts and new devices adopted by the Germans since August, 1914. Our sole anxiety arises from the activity, not of ships of the German fleet which existed before the beginning of the war, but from those which have been constructed since. Serious as the danger is, it should not be exaggerated. Although Admiral Jellicoe has been called to deal with the submarine menace in place of Baron Fisher as I urged last year—a course which was not possible before the Jutland battle when we took the measure of the German fleet—I still am of the opinion that means should be found to employ Baron Fisher's fertile genius.

Must Build More Ships

Colonel Churchill said he agreed that merchant shipbuilding should virtually monopolize Great Britain's construction. The chief object of the grand fleet was an offensive, but the submarine warfare had largely thrown the British fleet on a defensive attitude. The former First Lord of the Admiralty said he believed the submarine menace would be overcome and urged the Admiralty to discover some methods for maintaining a naval offensive against Great Britain's enemies.

Although there were good grounds for believing the submarine campaign would not exercise a decisive influence this year on the fortunes of war, Colonel Churchill said, Great Britain could not afford to assume that it was an evil which could continue to increase indefinitely, nor while it continued was Great Britain entitled to claim that time was on her side.

He considered it remarkable that Great Britain at last had reached a high degree of stringency in her blockade without losing the goodwill of neutrals.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S WAIST.

By Anabel Worthington.

It can be safely said that the styles in separate blouses were never so varied, and yet the designers keep steadfastly to plain, full lines; the detail touches provide the needed novelty effects. In the illustration No. 8,093 one of the late arrivals is pictured. It has already been voted a success because it is a bit unusual.

As first aid to the unique style of this blouse we have the fencelike collar, made with a back and a front section and of contrasting goods. The front is in exaggerated panel effect, decorated with buttons where it joins the left and the right side front pieces. The long raglan sleeves, also button trimmed, have a place in fashion's favor; two under box plaits in the lower part fit the sleeve to the arm below the elbow.

This is a style of waist that will "go with" almost any kind of skirt for practical or dressy wear, according to the material used. The design is simple enough to be carried out successfully by one who never made a garment. It will make a good beginning and end well.

The blouse pattern No. 8,093 cuts in sizes 36, 40 and 44. To make in size 38 requires 2¼ yards 36 inch material, with ¼ yard contrasting goods for the collar. Or 3 yards all one material.

To obtain the pattern, send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Address—The Examiner Pattern Service, The Examiner, Peterborough.

The entry of the United States into the war, Colonel Churchill added, would derange decisively the fearful equipoise between conflicting nations which now existed. The present relations between the United States and Germany, he declared, showed consideration for neutral rights, and humanity would not go wholly unrewarded, and this was justification of the foreign policy of Viscount Grey, former Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

STRIKE AT KRUPP WORKS.

17,000 Men Involved—Want Higher Pay and More Food.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 21.—The frontier correspondent of the Telegraaf says that a strike in the Krupp works at Essen, involving 17,000 workmen, has been in progress for a fortnight.

The men, the correspondent declares, are demanding higher wages and increased food rations.

Many of the strikers, he adds, have been sent to the front.

BOXER INDEMNITY MONEY EDUCATES YOUNG MEN

Thirty-one young men were graduated this year from the Tsing Hua college an institution maintined with the Boxer indemnity money refunded to China by the United States, and they will leave for America in a few weeks to enter various colleges and universities in that country.

Paul S. Reinsch, the American minister; Tsao Ju-lin, the acting minister for foreign affairs, and C. C. Wang, of the board of communications, who was educated in America, addressed the young graduates.

Mr. Reinsch drew a distinction between the old style of learning and the new style. He said the day is passed when a real scholar seeks distinction and wealth for himself. The man who has true learning now realizes his responsibility to serve others, and turn his knowledge to practical use for the betterment of his own country and all mankind. Mr. Reinsch said this is an age when action and real service to the general public are expected from educated men. He congratulated the graduates on finishing their preparatory course, and extended them a hearty welcome to the educational institutions of America.

C. C. Wang told the young graduates that China's great need to-day is men who can say "No." He urged that young graduates go to America with the firm determination to become men of decision and positive character, who will be able to assist in directing China's course along a fixed path, and will not be swayed by selfish ambition.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favourite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musty and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Baby Girl For Eight Days Pet Of Submarine Commander Who Sank The Lusitania

COPENHAGEN, via Ludon, Feb. 22.—Solveig Jacobsen, the six-year-old daughter of a Norwegian ship master, who has arrived here with her parents on the way to Norway, has the distinction not only of being the first child to make a voyage on board a German submarine, but of being the guest during the eight day trip of the submarine commander who is declared to have sunk the Lusitania.

Solveig's father, Isaac Jacobsen, was the master of the Norwegian ship Thor II., which was sunk by the submarine. The U-boat towed the ship's boats, with the crew of twenty-eight toward land for a time, and finally left them to shift for themselves, but the commander retained the master, his wife and child on board the submarine while he continued the cruise.

The operations, however, were of short duration, for the next ship encountered proved to be laden with ammunition for France. The submarine was so shaken by the terrific explosion when the steamship was torpedoed and by an encounter with a British destroyer, which all but sank the U-boat by ramming, that one of her engines was put out of commission, and the commander determined to make for his home harbour for repairs.

Many Warships Dodged.

The submarine proceeded homeward along a route west of Ireland and north of the Shetlands, dodging many British patrol boats and destroyers, and finally went into port at Heligoland in fairly good condition, the crew having succeeded in repairing the engine on the voyage.

Captain Jacobsen, in describing his experiences, dwelt on the human side of the man, who, he came to understand, was the Lusitania's destroyer, as shown in the treatment of little Solveig. The child was adopted as a sort of mascot by the submarine and decorated with a bit of ribbon from the commander's Iron Cross, which he received for an earlies achievement, and made free of the ship. The submarine's phonograph played "Solveig's Song," by Greig, as the waking melody for the child, and the seamen made a pet of her during off duty hours.

Honoured at Heligoland.

During the short stay at Heligoland, where the Jacobsens were the first neutrals to arrive during the war, the commander of the island called to pay his respects and presented many souvenirs to the child.

Captain Jacobsen's description of the torpedoing of the ammunition ship shows one of the perils to which submarines are exposed. The submarine had halted the ship and, ignorant of her character, prepared to sink her by gunfire, to save torpedoes. The first shot attracted a British destroyer, which came at full speed. The submarine hastily submerged, sending a torpedo at the steamship before going under. An appalling explosion followed, which, had the submarine been still on the surface, might have had even more serious consequences.

"We had no time to see what became of the steamship's crew, who were in the boats near the vessel," said Captain Jacobsen, "The submarine was tossed about so convulsively by the force of the explosion that we were all thrown down. The submarine's deck was ripped up and we thought or last hour had come."

Rammed by Destroyer.

The destroyer headed at ever increasing speed for the submerging submarine, but the U-boat was far enough down to escape the full force of the blow. The men on board the U-boat were thrown hither and thither, but a quick examination showed that the submarine had not sprung a leak. One engine, however, was disabled and the craft lost part of its manoeuvring ability, making abandonment of the cruise advisable.

The return trip was one long succession of "ups and downs," the submarine being obliged to submerge frequently as often as once an hour to avoid British patrol ships. The sensations of the civilian passengers during the frequent dives, and particularly during the anxious moments when the submarine was carefully feeling its way to the surface, ignorant of whether a British ship might not be waiting to ram her, were by no means agreeable, and the extreme variations of temperature between the submerged and surface positions were hard to bear.

The food aboard was good and abundant, the vessel having been provisioned for a four weeks' cruise. When the submarine arrived in the North Sea the commander announced that he would put Captain Jacobsen and his wife and child on board the first eastbound Norwegian steamship, but none was encountered. The commander then proceeded for Horn's Reef, where he hoped to find a Danish fishing boat, but these had all disappeared.

The arrival at Heligoland, where the commander, owing to earlier achievements, is highly popular, was a triumphal entry. The entire crew of forty-two men came on deck. As the submarine slowly entered the harbour its orchestra of fifteen men played the German anthem. The commander, holding Solveig by the hand, stood on the bridge acknowledging the cheers from the other craft in the bay.

Although the entire civilian population of Heligoland was transferred to the mainland at the outbreak of hostilities, Captain Jacobsen saw many civilians among the thousands of soldiers and seamen now garrisoning the island.

The name of the commander of the German submarine which sank the Lusitania has never been officially announced. The latest unofficial announcement of the submarine captain responsible for that ship's destruction named Captain Max Valentiner, son of the Dean of Sondersburg Cathedral. Different tales have been told of his fate. Some have him degraded and disgraced, while others have pictured him insane from remorse. Apparently, however, he is still alive and well and busily engaged in sinking unarmed vessels.

IN GALLOWAY.

A Trip Through This Picturesque Moorland Country of Scotland.

Mile upon mile of moorland, broken only by steep and stony bluffs down whose rugged sides pour rivulets golden brown from their source among the peat mosses, and swelling in times of spate to rushing torrents— this is Galloway. In the distance the Kirkcudbrightshire hills stand out in clear blue masses, varying in tone from moment to moment with the changing lights and shades. You can see the shadows of the clouds chasing the sunlight along the heather, changing its surface from clear amethyst to deep purple, while here and there a clump of bracken already turning to gold, catches and holds the light.

Cairns of stones mark the higher points of the moor, which is intersected with loosely made mortarless walls. Villages are rare, but tiny whitewashed homesteads are dotted about here and there. In the air is an undefinable scent, something acrid and sharp, and you suddenly realize that this is the essence of the moors—bog-myrtle, and burning peat. Something faintly white is moving on the hillside. It is a flock of sheep, and if you make your way nearer, through the waist-deep heather you will see the shepherd's dog, small, eager and alert, rounding them up among the rocks. There is a rush and a whirr, and a cock grouse gets up almost under your feet and lumbers heavily away crying, "Go-back, Go-back, Go-back"—if he only knew it you are quite as much startled as he, at the encounter.

Through it all runs, if you can apply the word to such a progress, the railway. The train stops at numerous little stations. Why not? Since there is plentiy of time, and the guard enjoys a "bit crack" with the stationmaster. One is a market-town, and the station is crowded with farmers — bearded brown men, with alert gray eyes looking curiously light in their bronzed faces, each with his sheep dog at his heels. The conversation ended, the train continues on its way, emerging at length beyond the moors into the cultivated lands, where white farmhouses stand sentinel over numbers of small round hay stacks, and fields of corn are yellowing for the harvest. Here one sees villages, each with its broad main street on which face neat cottages with spotless doorsteps, where the women stand knitting when the day's work is over. Flaming banners of scarlet tripiolum clothe the regular outlines of the houses, and the children play in the wynds which open out of the main streets.

But the true Galloway country is the moorland with its peat bogs and moss-hags, its quiet lochs frequented by wild duck and teal and its great stretches of heather where the plover and curlew call to one another, and crockets sing for hours among the tussocks of coarse grass. Then, as evening falls, the scent of the bogmyrtle steals more strongly into the air — a good pure fragrance, not easily forgotten, the clear outlines of the hills are blurred by a soft blue haze, the call of the birds grows lower and less frequent, and the moorland is quiet. — "Christian Science Monitor."

GERMANY PREPARING FOR COMMERCIAL WARFARE

In the new German Union of Technical and Economic associations, with its 60,000 members there has been organised the greatest industrial body in any country in the world. The members include architects, engineers, electro-technical experts, marine engineers, coal and iron men and chemists.

Planned many years ago, the completion of the organization has been hastened by the war, since one of its main purposes is to prepare for the great commercial battle which will begin as soon as the military fighting is at an end.

This German union proposes to work in close relations with similar bodies in Austria and Hungary, the ultimate aim being to incoporate them all into a great Central European body of enormous extent and power. It is argued that such a force will make itself heard in the settlement of the great industrial problems which will come up after the war and the governments will be forced to pay attention to the commercial interests. And it is also asserted that the military interests of the state will benefit also from such a powerful organization as the technical sciences and chemistry are all the time becoming more important for the army and navy and the general defense of the country.

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From the Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer with pains and headaches and whose face is pale and their blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of life by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheeks and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well. One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

American Missionary Is Killed When Sub. Sinks S. S. Athos

French Liner Sent to the Bottom in Mediterranean By Enemy Sub---French Win Two Successes in Surprise Attacks on the German Trenches--Many Ships Are Being Built in the United States By Great Britain.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 23.—Robert Allen Hadden, American missionary, was killed when the French liner Athos was sunk by a submarine 210 miles east of Malta on February 17th, the State Department announced to-day.

PARIS, February 23.—(French Official Communique)—"We made two surprise attacks against the German trenches last night, one southwest of Malancourt Wood, the other east of Nouilly, on the heights of the Meuse. We brought back a score of prisoners. The night was calm on the remainder of the front."

LONDON, February 23.—The British steamer Whatfield, 3,012 tons, has been sunk.

NEW YORK, February 23. — More than 675,000 tons of shipping for Great Britain is now building in the United States.

It was learned to-day that the Cunard Company had placed contracts for ten fifteen-thousand-ton freight carriers, and is negotiating for half a dozen more, all in American yards.

TORONTO, February 23. — The potato famine in the province and consequent high prices to the consumer will be the subject of discussion in the Legislature this afternoon. Hartley Dewart will ask Premier Hearst as Deputy Minister of Agriculture if any provision has been made by the Government whereby the farmers and gardeners of the province will get their needed supply of seed potatoes.

Dr. G. Creelman, Commissioner for Agriculture, said that the situation with respect to the supply of potatoes for consumption was serious, and was not prepared to point out a remedy.

LONDON, February 23.—Small engagements by raiding and reconnoitring parties and reciprocal bombardments, which are of considerable intensity at various points, are still going on in all the war theatres. Nowhere has a big engagement taken place.

The Germans in Belgium near Roodepoort and in France east of Vermelles and south of Neuve Chapelle made thrusts with raiding parties against the Entente lines, but according to both Paris and London, they were repulsed with losses. Spirited artillery activity continues on the Verdun sector at the Cote du Poivre.

The repulse of small Russian attacks in the Lake Narocz region of Russia, successful raids by the Germans in Galicia near Zlochoff, where 250 Russians were made prisoner, and small attacks in the wooded Carpathians are told of in the German official communication. In the latter region, however, Petrograd claims a repulse by the Russians of the Teutonic allies near Dorna Watra.

In Roumania a heavy snowstorm is hampering operations.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, February 22. — Further details regarding the successful raid made by the New Zealand troops south of Armentieres show that they entered the German lines to a depth of 300 yards and remained here for half an hour, wrecking dugouts and various trench works.

They found the enemy support lines full of dead from the bombardment which preceded the raid. Forty-four prisoners were brought back by them.

This is but one of the successful raids carried out yesterday. The Londons troops set a new high record for raids by bringing back 120 prisoners near Ploegsteert. The Canadians previously held the record of 100. The men from Canada say they are determined to exceed the bag of the Londoners before the raiding season is ended.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 22.—While Scandinavian newspapers are printing a report that the German merchant submarine Bremen has not been lost, but is being used as a supply ship in Germany's blockade, information which has been in possession of the Associated Press in Berlin for months is that the submarine actually went down on her first voyage to the United States.

The date and the circumstances of the departure of the submarine for the United States were well known in Berlin at the time, and there was ill-concealed anxiety on the part of the owners of the underwater merchantman for news of her arrival as the craft became increasingly overdue at New London, Conn. Director Philip Heineken, of the company owning the Bremen, finally told the Associated Press that he regarded her as lost, and said the craft probably foundered in the prevailing gales.

It is highly possible, however, that cargo submarines may be co-operating in the submarine blockade, and that the Deutschland and six sister ships which were being built are adapted to this work.

Two Brothers Met in France

Sons of Mr. Richard Ringer of This City Had a Unique Experience

For two brothers to meet on the battlefield of France after an absence of twenty-six years, was the experience of Sergeant Arthur Ringer of the 93rd Battalion, now in France. The brother whom he met behind the lines, is Quartermaster Sergeant Ringer, who is a member of a British Columbia unit. The two brothers are sons of Mr. Richard Ringer of this city. It is over a quarter of a century since the two brothers last saw each other.

In a letter to his father, Sergeant Ringer states that he was in a charge a short time before writing and was slightly wounded by shrapnel, which went through the side of his leg. He was able to continue his duties.

MORE PETERBORO' SOLDIERS' ARE HOME FROM OVERSEAS

Pte. Jos. Vollans and Shoeingsmith Morrow Arrive This Morning —Three Others Are Expected To-morrow

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Two Peterborough soldiers returned from overseas this morning in the persons of Shoeing, Smith, Morrow of the Heavy Battery, whose home is on Water street, and Pte. Joseph Vollans of the 93rd Battalion.

Pte. Vollans went overseas as a non-com. in the 93rd Battalion and became ill in England. After a stay of considerable length in hospital he was recommended to be sent home to Canada, and has been given his discharge from the C. E. F. as medically unfit.

Three other Peterborough men who came over on the same boat should arrive home to-morrow. They are Pte. Harry Boyler of the 93rd Band, Gunner Holly Hill of the 33rd Battery, and Pte. Geo. Adamson of the 8th C.M.R. Gunner Hill was very badly wounded while fighting in France and will have to have further hospital treatment in Canada, as will Pte. Adamson of the Mounted Rifles. Pte. Boyler returns for duty to the band of the 247th Battalion.

Pte. Vollans' wife and family, who went to the Old Country, are expected home in the near future.

Two more recruits have been added to the strength of the 247th Battalion to-day in the person of Pte. Burritt Calvert and Walter Dixon of Hall's Bridge.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS.

Daily orders by Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, commanding 247th Overseas Battalion, C. E. F.:

Orders for Friday, Feb. 23, 1917:

1. Duties.

Orderly Officer for Friday, February 23, 1917: Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

Next for duty, Saturday, Feb. 24, 1917: Lieut. J. F. Strickland.

A. E. BRITTAIN,
Lieut., Adjutant.
247th Overseas Battalion, C.E.F.

A letter received to-day from Sergt. Arthur Ringer, a well known Peterborough member of the 93rd Battalion, stated that he was slightly wounded a short time ago when a piece of shrapnel penetrated his leg. He was able to remain on duty, however, and to "carry on."

SOLDIERS SHUN!

Returned men, A.R. men and soldiers are invited to bring their wives or intended wives or sweethearts to the Peterborough Returned Soldiers' Club progressive euchre party in the Victoria Hall on Tuesday evening, 27th at 8 p.m. sharp.

The ladies are asked to kindly provide the eats for two as this is the only charge for the party. Now ladies this is an opportunity to show your appreciation to your soldiers returned home. Come and enjoy yourself.

Mounting the magneto in the fly wheel, the inventor of a new type of motorcycle has been able to dispense with the usual series of driving gears and sprockets.

TO-NIGHT FINAL DANCE

Mrs. Jones will give her final dance of the season to-night at the "Foresters' Hall" on Simcoe street. An extra four-piece orchestra will furnish good dance music, and an excellent supper will be served.

Come and bring your friends and we will assure you will have a good time. Tickets, 75 cents.

TWO RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED AT CITIZENS' MEETING

The following resolutions were enthusiastically adopted at the citizens' banquet, held last evening:

Moved by Mr. Patterson, seconded by Mr. Hicks, that this gathering, well knowing the facilities and advantages in Peterborough for manufacturing industries, and recognizing that united effort will carry the city forward to greater prosperity and success, pledge ourselves individually and as a gathering to do all in our power at all times and to use every effort to advance the city's interests.—Carried.

Organization Formed.

Moved by Mr. Matthews, seconded by Mr. Ackerman, that an organization be formed, to which those present and other citizens who will unite with them shall be members, to advance the interests of the City of Peterborough, and that the executive of the organization consist of a committee of three members, who will act for the organization in all matters and call a general meeting when they deem it advisable; that the committee consider the matter of a constitution for the organization and report at a meeting which they shall call, and that in the meantime the organization be known as the Peterborough Industrial Association.— Carried.

Carried by—

His Worship Mayor Duffus, His Honour Judge Huycke, Messrs. E. G. Patterson, T. F. Matthews, Ald. F. H. Dobbin, R. Harstone, J. W. Meyers, V. Eastwood, E. A. Peck, B. E. Ackerman, W. H. Moore, J. H. Members Appointed.

Mayor Duffus named T. F. Matthews and W. H. Denham as members of the committee with five others to be appointed on Monday night, The Mayor will be a member ex-officio.

A SHORTAGE OF TONNAGE

"The Gravest Measures Are Necessary Otherwise There Will Be Disaster" Declares Lloyd George to the House of Commons

TO RESTRICT IMPORTS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 23. — Gravest measures are necessary, otherwise there will be disaster, Premier Lloyd-George declared in the Commons to-day, discussing the shortage of British tonnage.

'There is a shortage of tonnage not only for ordinary needs, but for the military necessities as well,' the Prime Minister declared. 'More than a million tons of British shipping has been assigned to France as its share. The gravest measures are necessary, otherwise there will be disaster.'

The Premier addressed a specially called meeting of the House of Commons on the question of restriction of imports.

It was expected that Lloyd George would announce a comprehensive plan of refusing entry into England of all unnecessary luxuries.

'We must find ships to bear iron ore at all costs,' the Premier asserted.

Continuing, Lolyd George proposed to dispense with all non-essential imports, including timber.

The Premier asserted that 'enormous sacrifices' will be required from the British people to achieve a victory. Such sacrifices, he held, would 'test the national grit.'

'The Government hopes to deal effectively with the submarine question,' he continued, 'but it follows that we cannot rest on this hope. There is no sure means of victory without hunting submarines from the deep.'

Premier announced that importation of foreign tea, coffee and cocoa would be prohibited, also all hardy fruits, such as tomatoes, apples and plums. The importation of paper will be limited, and importation of tropical fruits and nuts reduced 75 per cent., and import of canned salmon reduced 50 per cent.

WONDERFUL FILM STORY OF CANADIANS' WORK AT THE FRONT

Battle of Courcelette Pictures at the Empire Also Give a Vivid Impression of the Work of the Famous Tanks

SHOULD BE SEEN BY ALL

No one should miss the wonderful moving pictures at the Empire Theatre, showing the Canadian victory at Courcelette and the advance of the Tanks. These pictures, taken for the Canadian War Records Office, and guaranteed as authentic, present a remarkable revelation of the conditions in France. The pictures show the artillery preparations for the big assault on Sept. 15th, the Canadians leaping over the parapet, the advance through a storm of shells to the German trenches, the procession of Germans with hands up, running back to surrender, the German counter attack on the sugar refinery and many other historic features of the Canadian victory. A remarkable feature of the film is the section showing the famous tank. A number of close-up views of the tanks are shown, which give one a vivid impression of Britain's land battleships. This section of the film is very clear, so distinct indeed that Miss L. Jobbitt, who saw the pictures yesterday was able to identify Lieut. Harry Braden, her mother's cousin, who is shown in charge of the mascot of one of the tanks, a black cat. The pictures give the onlooker an idea of the conditions on the Somme front, the mud and swamps around the Ancre being clearly portrayed. All branches of the army are shown at work and the film is the finest that has been shown here, surpassing "The Battle of the Somme" picture in interest. Some remarkably fine silhouette effects are shown in the concluding portion of the picture.

The 247th Battalion saw the pictures at the Empire this afternoon. The film will be shown again to-night and to-morrow.

Conditions Affecting Municipal Progress Freely and Frankly Discussed at a Meeting of Citizens Called by Mayor Duffus---Long-Looked-For Completion of the Trent Waterway is an Important Factor--"This is a Workingman's Town, Not a Town Where You See People Driving a Four-in-Hand or Even a Pair" Said Mr. T. F. Matthews--Business Men Pledge Themselves to Assist in the Promotion of Peterborough's Progress.

MEETING WAS ENTHUSIASTIC AND SPONTANEOUS

The civic dinner and conference at the instance and under the auspices of Mayor Duffus, in Hooper's Palm Parlours, last night, was a success in every way---a good dinner; good fellows got together, and an inspiring and wide range of discussion of subjects of vital interest to the city and its progress; and, what is best of all, organization to vitalize and keep alive the spirit and practical suggestiveness of the occasion. The Mayor made an excellent host, graceful, courteous, and tactful. He also made a ripping good speech, showing his familiarity with, grasp of, and interest in, civic affairs. He skilfully seized upon the representative members of the gathering, whose brief speeches covered a good deal of ground, but were, for the most part, pregnant with practical suggestions and useful information. In the almost six hours sederunt, with interest unflagging almost every subject of city concern was pronounced upon, and one evident object of the gathering—to give help and advice to the Council, was made concrete by the unanimous adoption of a resolution, pledging themselves as a gathering to do all they could at all times to promote the industrial progress of the city; and by the subsequent appointment of a small committee of our leading business men to represent this spirit, and to form the nucleus of an organization for the purpose in view. The object of the meeting was to give the forty or more citizens who were present an opportunity of expressing their opinion upon any matter concerning the welfare of the city. Conditions, actual and prospective, were freely discussed, and it was unanimously agreed that if the development of the city was to be given further impetus, more industries would have to be secured. It was generally admitted that the completion of the Trent waterway constituted a big factor in the development of this city and district, and in the words of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., "opportunity" is another factor that must not be overlooked. In urging the citizens present to cooperate with the civic bodies in an effort that was made to further the city's interest, Mayor Duffus drew attention to a large sign that hung in the banquet hall. It contained the following inscription:

Throw away your hammer and get a horn.

Be a booster in your own home town.

Another sign read:

Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unparalleled.

The toast to the King was followed by an address by Mayor Duffus, who, for the past eight or nine years, has served on the Council Board of the city.

Not a Love Feast.

"This is not a love feast," said His Worship. "This meeting is called for the express purpose of giving the citizens of Peterborough an opportunity of frankly and freely discussing affairs respecting the city in which they live. It is a well-known fact that Peterborough has very few real live boosters. In that respect we are not as well off as some of the neighbouring municipalities. We have no real live wires despite the fact that this is one of the best cities in Ontario."

The Mayor gave a comprehensive resume of the financial condition of the city. He credited last year's Council with making a determined and successful effort to minimize the tax rate in the face of added burdens of finance due to the war. The total rate last year was twenty-eight mills, including one mill for the Provincial war tax and seventenths of a mill for garbage collection. The actual municipal tax rate was twenty-six and three-tenths mills. This year's appropriations are higher and, in addition to this, the city will have to provide sixty thousand dollars for the Patriotic Fund. All of this will have to be added to last year's rate. Then there is the possibility of the city having to consider the expenditure of upwards of one hundred thousand dollars for a sewage disposal plant. Owing to the fact that a substantial surplus remained over from last year, including eight or nine thousand dollars' worth of taxes refunded by the Provincial overnment on properties acquired during the year by the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario, the increase in this year's tax rate will not be large.

Debentures Debt.

The lowering of the city's tax rate from year to year depends upon the amount of debentures maturing each year. Debentures maturing during the next five years are as follows:

1917	$3,000
1918	None
1919	$17,000
1920	$35,000
1921	$42,000

Not until the year 1931 will a block of debentures mature, sufficiently large to make an appreciable effect on the city's tax rate. This will necessitate extreme care in issuing debentures in order to keep the tax rate down to a reasonable level. In the meantime the tax rate will increase automatically. The City Council controls one-sixth of the total finances of the city. The remainder goes to the Board of Education, the Board of Public Commissioners, the Public Library and other public institutions not controlled by the Council.

The School Board.

Mayor Duffus referred to the excellent work accomplished by the School Board. "The School Board," said the Mayor, "has done as much for the city as any other department of the city. As a result of their efforts we have splendid school buildings in addition to three Seperate schols, all of which are equal to any schools to be found in the Province of Ontario. Despite this the school accommodation of Peterborough is limited, and it will be necessary to provide additional accommodation in the near future.

The Mayor looks forward to a time of reconstruction following the war, when many serious situations will have to be taken care of. "We need a man like the late Senator George A. Cox," said the speaker. The late George A. Cox was instrumental in helping Peterborough to secure some of the many fine industries now located in the city. We have excellent facilities for industrial development and believe we have with us, citizens who will cooperate in any move that is made to further the progress of the city. You can call it a Board of Trade or anything you like, so long as we accomplish something. We look to the parliamentary representatives to assist us in this work. Other cities around us are getting

THE MAYOR'S WISE MOVE.

Mr. Mayor Duffus is to be congratulated upon the happy inspiration that brought about the significant gathering of prominent citizens around his hospitable board last night, and upon the capable and cordial and successful manner in which he discharged the duties of host and steered the interesting conference which developed. His action is in sympathy with the spirit of unity the war situation has brought out; and shows a deference to public opinion and a willingness for light and suggestion that speaks well for his desire, and that of his Council colleagues, to adequately discharge their trust toward the city and citizens.

The speeches and suggestions naturally took a wide range of subject, and during the evening many valuable suggestions were proffered, and much light was thrown upon the civic situation in regard to the various interests concerned. It is no disparagement to the Mayor and Council to point out that they received new light in many regards. While there was deserved commendation, criticism was not absent; not vexatious, but constructive and kindly criticism.

To get the fullest benefit from the intelligent and practical discussion it seems that it is necessary, as shown by the action taken, to provide that the inspiration of the occasion should no be let rest, and the words of wise counsel die away in echo, but continue as a stimulus to greater zeal and a more intelligent discharge of duty by our municipal representatives. The wholesome influence of the meeting, the intensifying of civic camaraderie, coordination of official and civic forces it represents, suggest that such gatherings should be more frequent, or better, doubtless, and with more practical promise, the conference was be made the starting point of a new organization which would provide the City Council with what might be regarded as expert advice which might easily be justifiable; for the duties of the mayor and aldermen are so wide, so many factors enter into their efficient discharge; and, since wisdom is nobody's monopoly, an advisory body, consisting of capable and public-spirited citizens, can be made a valuable medium of communication between the Council and the citizens they serve. Such a body, comprised of eight or ten such men as were present at the gathering last night, would be able, acting in friendly consultation with the City Council, to suggest many good ideas, and give valuable counsel in the solution of difficulties; strengthen right, resolves and help to avoid mistakes. As constituted, the City Council is not composed of business men with large interests and experience, and an Advisory Board of experienced and expert business men would be able to give most valuable assistance and encouragement to our civic representatives. The man who knows most and wants to know more is the man who desires to learn—from the practical knowledge and experience of others. Our City Fathers, doubtless, wish to do their duty and would be glad of information and suggestions from those who view the civic situation and the public interests from a different angle and with a wider knowledge than is possible to be combined in one man or set of men.

The true harvest of last night's civic symposim will only be reaped by continuing its spirit and embodying its inspiration and practical suggestiveness in the more or less concrete form decided upon.

Utilizing The Waste Places By Productive Cultivation Or By Exemplary Taxation

The organized movement for the profitable utilization of vacant suburban lands should have every encouragement. No man who has land, or can get land and seed for nothing, has a right to grumble when he is called upon to pay $3.00 a bag for potatoes and for other foods in proportion. The extent of the waste land in and around the towns and cities of Canada is a disgrace and indicates a laxiness and thriftlessness that is little short of criminal. There is much to be said against confiscatory legislation; but what right has any man to keep land in unproductiveness when other people are going hungry, and he is only holding his suburban lots for the sake of the unearned increment

Waste lands really belong to the public. The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof. Ground hogs who will not use land themselves and will not allow other people to use it, have no rights in the land that need be respected. It is nothing less than blasphemy against the Supreme Landlord, to claim or to admit that any man has a right to withdraw one foot of the earth's surface from the service of humanity. We go to church and pray: "That it may please Thee to give and preserve to our use the kindly fruits of the earth, so as in due time we may enjoy them"; and then we allow the ground hog to prevent his suburban lot bringing forth anything but weeds!

There are three ways to prevent the waste lands of our cities being absolutely worthless to the community. The first is to tax them! The second is to tax them! The third is to tax them!

Then they will cease to be waste lands; the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose. The healthy strong man who makes it a practice to grow a crop of weeds is a fool or a lazy lubber anyway; and in justice to the community he should be taxed up to the full value of his crop—not of weeds, but of something useful.

A distinction must be made between "vacant" lands, so called, and waste lands. A land owner may have good reasons for not building, for not selling, but if he wants the privilege of not using a section of the earth entrusted to him; not for his own benefit, not on account of his superior intelligence, not because he is any better than his fathers were; but for the benefit of humanity, he should be made to pay for the luxury. All luxuries must be paid for and in war times they should be costly. A "lot" covered with weeds should be taxed as an ostentatious and offensive luxury. "I went by the field of the slothful, and by the vineyard of the man void of understanding," said the Wise Man, "and lo it was all grown over with thorns, and nettles had covered the face thereof, and the stone wall thereof was broken down. Then I saw and considered it well: I looked upon it, and received instruction."

Let the wise men of Montreal pass by the fields of the slothful and see and consider them well and receive instruction.—Montreal Herald.

SUBJECT TO CHANGE.

In the Ontario Legislature on Wednesday the government majority voted down an amendment of Mr. Dewart calling for the adoption of the policy of refinement of nickel in Canada. Inevitably complementary to this action, the government majority supported an amendment approving of the course of the government. Too much importance can easily be attached to these incidents. It is not to be assumed that the government is so lost to decency and to patriotism as to, at heart, be opposed to so self-evidently patriotic a policy as home refinement of our nickel, or that the members supporting the government, think in their hearts that the government has pursued the proper course in the interest of the province or the country or the Empire, in their dealing with the nickel situation. But the government is childishly afraid that they will lose some credit by conceding any credit to their political opponents. They want to make it appear that they have a monopoly of wisdom and patriotism and national spirit. "At the proper time" they will appropriate their opponents' policy and capture all the kudos that may come from implementing it in legislation. The government did this upon the temperance question. After their opponents had prepared the ground, laid the foundations of temperance progress, and after the government had fought a general election on a policy of opposition to temperance, and in coalition with the liquor interests, the government adopted the Liberal policy, and by the help of their majority passed it into a prohibition act of a somewhat leaky character. In the same way the government turned a deaf ear to the demands for woman suffrage, voting down motion after motion in favour of the principles introduced by Liberal members. But now when the heather is on fire, and the demands for woman franchise will not be denied, and its concession seems to be popular and, from a party point of view, safe, the government again steals its opponents' thunder, and seeks to build on the foundation laid by others. And not only that, but a disposition is shown to claim all the credit and put their opponents in the light of offensive and officious interlopers. A despatch states that there was a third caucus of the government party held to-day and that woman suffrage was the topic of consultation, with the probability that the government got enough encouragement from its supporters to warrant putting a woman suffrage measure on the list. The government's principles, adjustable to expediency, are subject to as sudden changes as April weather.

NO DANGER.

The Weekly Sun, a farmers' journal, takes alarm at the possible results of enfranchising women. It says that the rural population of the province, that is, the farming population, is under a million, and the urban population a million and a half, and fears that with woman voters added the superior political organisations in cities, will more seriously and prejudically affect the farmers. Woman suffrage will enfranchise farmers' wives and daughters of voting age, and there will be no disturbance of the relative proportions of political influence. One addition will balance the other, maintain the same numerical ratio. And we may count upon the votes of women being less subject to political organisations than men. In the female vote of the province there will not be found as large a proportion as obtains among men voters of persons willing to sell their franchise for a glass of whiskey. There is no danger of the farmers of the country being persecuted and their interests imperilled through the influence of woman suffrage.

A lady told me, as a true story of an Irish soldier's wit, that a soldier in a hospital on recovering consciousness, said: "Nurse, what is this on my head?"

"Vinegar cloths," she replied. "You have had fever."

After a pause:

"And what is this on my chest?"

"A mustard plaster. You have had pneumonia."

"And what is this on my feet?"

"Salt bags. You have had frost bite."

An Irish soldier from the next bed looked up and said:

"Hang a pepper box to his nose, nurse, then he will be a cruet stand."

Citizens Organize To Further The Development of Peterborough

industries through the medium of the Government and we should get a share of them. We must take the matter up seriously and systematically and do all in our power to deal with the situation that confrons us."

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P.

"Power, transportation, and opportunity are the three elements of success in connecion with the matter of furthering the development of the city," said Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. The Federal Member eliminated the first two upon the grounds that they had already been solved; the first, by the Government, through the medium of the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario; and the second, by a group of English capitalists, who, a number of years ago, announced their intention of constructing a railway from Montreal to the Georgian Bay. According to Mr. Burnham, the line will run through the northern part of the County, tapping the Stoney Lake district.

Mr. Burnham commended Mayor Duffus for his business acumen and enterprise, and said that while he agreed with the general principles of the Mayor's remarks, he did not see that the Mayor made any particular suggestion as to what efforts should be put forth to improve the present conditions. "I say this," said Mr. Burnham, "because you have invited us to offer any suggestions that we may offer. Power and transportation are the two underlying principles of industrial development. We have succeeded in getting Hydro power. This we secured after considerable effort. It was necessary to impress the Government with the fact that we regarded the introduction of Hydro power as fundamental to our prosperity. Now we stand on an equal basis with any place in Canada. We have Government-owned power with power of extension. There is no concern about power. If any industry wants to come here we can order power and supply it at a basic cost.

Second Element.

The second element is transportation. This question will be solved as soon as the money market opens up. A group of English capitalists with a Government subsidy are awaiting the return of normal conditions when work will be commenced on the new railway through the north country and it will be completed in a short time. This spring the Trent Canal will be open to the lake."

Magistrate Dumble—"When?"

"In the spring," replied Mr. Burnham.

Magistrate Dumble—"I can't see it."

"I am only stating what the authorities at Ottawa have to say about the matter. We are also assured that the other end of the Canal will soon be completed," said Mr. Burnham.

"The contract is not let yet," countered Magistrate Dumble.

Mr Burnham referred to the proposed public building in Peterborough which was to have been built a couple of years ago. "Not a stone has been laid," said Mr. Burnham. "You have to wait until you can get the money," he added.

"The Canal will be completed this year and we will go forward like the children of Israel," assured Mr. Burnham. Continuing, he said: "It is not my duty to represent the City of Peterborough. We have no reason for misgivings. There is no evidence of lethargy or stupidity. You have your power and you have transportation, and if you have the brains, which I am sure you have, what is to keep the people back?" said the speaker with a characteristic flourish of his hand.

Workingman's Town.

Mr. T. F. Mathews, chairman of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, failed to see how the construction of a railway through the north country would benefit Peterborough. He thought that the Mayor was a little too pessimistic and Mr. Burnham a little too optimistic. He was pleased to learn that the financial affairs of the city were in such excellent condition. He had always heard Peterborough well spoken of in financial circles. As for cheap power, Mr. Matthews said that the present rate per horse power for manufacturing purposes was eighteen dollars. The speaker had nothing to propose. "We are all working men," said Mr. Matthews, and as such have very little time at our disposal. I am willing at any time to do anything within my power to advance the city's interests. I do not view with any apprehension the situation after the war. We have here a big country and I look for an era of prosperity. The Mayor's anxiety is that we should get a share of it. Unless we get industries we cannot expect to develop very fast. This town is in a peculiar position. We are all workingmen. You do not see anybody in Peterborough driving a four-in-hand or even a pair. There are not half a dozen hired chauffers in the whole city.

MR. D. W. DUMBLE.

Confining his attention to the early completing of the Trent Valley Canal, Mr. D. W. Dumble referred to the long years of inaction and delay which had charactised the Government attitude towards this waterway. It should have been built forty years ago, but for present results Mr. Dumble urged that the citizens unite as one people and fight the Government until they show more action than has yet been shown. "We have got to stand up and fight and bully until we get it," Mr. Dumble bristled, urging less politics in connection with this question and more unanimity of purpose and action. The canal had cost to date eleven million dollars, and would require about four and one-half millions to complete it. When such extraordinary facilities were offered what was this sum to retard its completion. Were this project in the United States it would have been built years ago.

Mr. Burnham—They don't go to war, don't you know that.

Mr. Dumble proceeded to illustrate how tug boats would be able to haul a dozen barges together. Millions of bushels of wheat could be carried over it. Its capacity when completed would exceed that of the New York canal. It will be the making of Peterborough. He referred to certain towns in this district which were already showing signs of booming as the result of the canal even in its present incompletion, and again emphasized the necessity of Peterborough becoming Intensified with energy to the end that the entire waterway may be opened up. Our politics ought to be the Trent Canal until it is completed.

MR. W. H. BRADBURN.

Mr. Bradburn asked Mr. Matthews if the Hydro Electric Commission intended to finance the Street Railway purchase or was it their intention to have the city take it over. Mr. Matthews replied that the Government would accept the city's debentures at four per cent. for ten years if desired and then turn it over. Mr. Bradburn endorsed the proposal on that ground. If we had to finance it ourselves it did not appear wise to asume it within the ten years. Then the money market might be easier and our debentures should sell better.

"I have every faith in Peterborough," said the speaker who, however, pointed out that the particular power advantage over other centres some years ago were not so prominent now, and for that reason special efforts should be made to secure the location of new industries in Peterborough.

Regarding the canal, Mr. Bradburn recalled a political meeting he attended as a boy. It was his first. The candidate promised the completion of the canal and was elected. But we are still waiting hopefully for its early completion.

MR. J. J. TURNER.

The fact that the Street Railway had been returning substantial profits appealed to Mr. J. J. Turner as a reason why it should be owned by the people. He supported Mr. Dumble's plea for unity of action in urging for the completion of the canal. It would be a great factor in the fixing of freight rates because the water haul was cheaper than railway hauling. As did the other speakers, Mr. Turner thanked Mayor Duffus for the invitation to the dinner, and added that the idea was a new one in Peterborough, and he hoped that it would be fruitful of good results.

MR. A. J. GRANT.

As a ratepayer, Mr. Grant of the Trent Canal engineering staff, supported the proposed purchase of the Street Railway, quoting the lines. "There is a tide in the affairs of men which taken at the flood," and observed that this was also applicable to communities. Mr. Grant believed in extending the railway and in approaching the G.T.R. for a lease of the Lakefield line with a view to electrifying it to the Kawartha Lakes district for summer traffic.

Referring to the canal, Mr. Grant stated that 98 1-2 per cent. of the stretch between Lake Ontario and Rice Lake was finished. Last fall he

The CANADIAN ARMY in Action and the Advance of THE TANKS

The Official Moving Pictures Of The Battle Of COURCELETTE

A GROUP OF CANADIAN OFFICERS AT THE SOMME

DO you recognize any of these men? Do they not look like men you know? Is there not something familiar about their faces? Do you know why?

We are a young nation and we combine many races. But there is a family resemblance about Canadians, just the same.

Sons, brothers, fathers, chums and neighbours make up the army of Canada at the front. You know them all, and you know each one. They are yours—the boys from Canada, and they are worthy of Canada. It remains only for Canada to be worthy of them.

Thanks to the Canadian War Records Office the record of their deeds will be preserved in detail and filed for historians and the future. And the greatest achievement for which Canadians may thank the War Records Office was the securing of a film record of the Battle of Courcelette, the action in September last when the Canadian army advanced to their greatest battle since the beginning of the war, the battle when they went cheering into the German strongholds on the Somme front with the terrifying tanks.

It will sweep Canada like a prairie fire, declares a London correspondent.

It shows how the sons of Canada, sons of the people you know, braved death for victory in the cause of right against might.

sailed in the tug "Bob Hall" from Peterborough to Trenton. The boat had a draught of 5 1-2 feet. It was possible to make this trip with a five foot draught and a clearance of seven or eight feet under the bridge at Campbellford.

Of the northern section of the canal, 50 per cent. of one contract is completed, 63 per cent. of a second contract and a third has yet to be let. Mr. Grant advised the advertising of Peterborough's connection with the canal, and of the holding of regattas at Lake Simcoe with big prizes that would attract visitors. When completed it could be written up in monthly magazines by capable writers, who would give it a wide publicity.

Mayor Duffus remarked that the Hydro Electric Commission would operate the street railway until the city was prepared to take it over. It was contrary to their policy to permit its reversion to private companies.

MR. E. G. PATTERSON.

"It seems to me that the business men of Peterborough have been rather indifferent in the giving of their time and service to the public interest," was Mr. E. G. Patterson's kindly, but direct criticism. He was discussing the probable reasons why more industries had not been locating in Peterborough. Mr. Patterson was even more direct in his suggestion of the importance of the handling of a matter that is of general concern to the city at the present time. Passing on, he believed that much good would be forthcoming from the evening's meeting, especially by united action, and gave effect to his words by moving the resolution which appears elsewhere. "That we pledge ourselves as a gathering to do all in our power at all times to advance the interests of the city."

MR. ROBERT HICKS.

With a reminiscence of his aldermanic days with Mayor Duffus and his influence upon the Mayor at that time, following the axiom that first impressions are most lasting, Mr. Hicks said he knew it fas the Mayor's object to do something by which he would be remembered by the citizens of Peterborough. His heart and soul were in his efforts to promote the general welfare of the citizens.

Dealing with the Council's methods, Mr. Hicks said that when $200,000 or $300,000 taxes were coming in it was an unfair thing to issue small lots of debentures spread over a number of years. That plan would simply react on the city. The $60,000 issued this year for the Patriotic Fund should have been paid out of the current revenue. Some will say that it would be unfair to the poor man, but was there ever a time when he was getting as good wages as now. No man who wants a job need to be idle in this city. On the basis of an assessment of $1,000 the patriotic tax would have cost him $5 down whereas it will cost him $8 spread over 20 years. It has been rightly said that we should make sacrifices in this war. Shall we stave off these debts, leaving the soldiers who return to pay 19-20 of it or shall we pay it now? ("Pay it now" some person answered). Speaking more generally, Mr. Hicks suggested that the Council in the conduct of its financial affairs, obtain the advice of expert financiers, and further advised the aldermen to avail themselves of the knowledge of City Clerk Armstrong of whom he said, "you can't get better advice on municipal questions in the Province of Ontario.

MAYOR'S SUGGESTION.

Replying to Mr. Hicks, Mayor Duffus stated that he had opposed the raising of $60,000 by the issuance of debentures, but was moved to adopt that method by the largely signed petition that requested it. He hoped that during the year there would be formed an organization for the collection of patriotic monies, so systematised that every citizen would have an opportunity of giving and that the work would be begun early. The Mayor expressed the wish that the debenture method would not be employed for the raising of any future patriotic funds.

S. R. ARMSTRONG

To counterbalance the deficiencies enumerated, City Clerk Armstrong recalled some of our possessions. Of twenty-five cities and large towns in Ontario, Peterborough's municipal tax rate is the third lowest, and its combined school and municipal rate is the sixth lowest. Our debenture debt is the second lowest of the same twenty-five cities. Our publicly owned power has given us advantage in rates over towns with whom we were previously only on equal terms. Mr. Armstrong gave other examples of the benefitial results of being linked up with the Hydro Electric. He admitted a preference, however, that the power should be invested in the Commission, who would hold it in trust for the communities that use it, instead of it being, as at present, directly vested in the Government of the Province. The previous flat rate for power was $20 per h.p. The local factory drawing power most steadily is, on the rate, paying $1.50 less than its previous cost per h.p., and the cost has dropped to $13.50 per h.p., for some factories.

Mr. Armstrong pointed out that neither our railways or factories had cost as much in obtaining their location here. No bonuses had been paid to the former, and of the factories that came in from the outside from the O.G.E. down to the Henry Hope, their cost to the city was only .56 of a mill on the tax rate to-day. Mr. Armstrong dealt with the necessity of new activities in attracting the attention of manufacturers. Peterborough should be so well known to the manufacturer in the United States, Great Britain and Canada, who is considering a move in the location of a branch that he will immediately think of Peterborough as a place to be investigated.

Mr. Denham.

"The continuance of such meetings as this will be one of the principal things which will go to the betterment of Peterborough," said Mr. W. H. Denham. "It was always a mystery to me why the Council should shoulder the entire responsibility of the tax rate. The Board of Education will require a certain amount, the Council must provide so with the Police Commission, the Library Board and debentures. Their increases go to increase the rate. Why not divide the taxes into departments, the Council saying it was not responsible for so many mills, but for the balance over which it had control and would use to the best interests of the city. Under the present method it means the Council must neglect things over which they have control in order to keep down the rate."

"Has the assessment been raised in accordance with the general improvements in the city?" Mr. Denham asked.

Mayor Duffus said he could not say whether there was a general increase or not.

Mr. Denham said it was a vital question that each citizen should pay for the benefit he derived from the general improvements to the city. By thus increasing the assessment the rate would be kept down.

Conserve Water.

Mr. Denham said he was glad that power was being furnished cheaply, but the rate could be still further reduced by strenuous efforts made toward conserving the water supply. If we have 100,000 h.p. and could effect an increase of 25 per cent. that would increase our power by 25,000 that would bring a direct benefit in the cost of power to the users here. "If we could raise the minimum flow 25 per cent at our dam it would be a clear gain."

Mr. Denhom spoke in favor of the Street Railway as a public utility, and referring to the attraction of industries to the city, said he felt Mr. Armstrong should be given more time and money to go out and solicit business. That was the direct method of advertising.

On several occasions the speaker had found friction in Peterborough arising out of religious questions, which he deprecated, observing that the sooner these matters were dropped the sooner would Peterborough grow.

Lakeshore Railways.

Mr. Denham said he believed pressure should have been brought to bear on the Government before the C.P.R. were allowed to put in their parallel line along the lake front. First the G.T.R. was permitted to raise its rates. Then came the C.N.R. which split the business and again the rates were increased. The C.P.R. line split he business into three parts, and since none of the roads can make money they will return to the Railway Commission for another increase and up go the rates again. The towns north of the railway should have had some say.

Mr. Burnham interjected a statement that there was not a member in the House who did not say the line ought not to be, but a majority voted in favour of it. Mr. Burnham voted against it. Far worse was the colonization bonus given between Toronto and Ottawa. They could get sufficient mebers of both parties to head off the opposition in the House. Mr. Burnham hoped the peoplew ould rise up and rebel against such methods.

Foster Industries.

Resuming, Mr. Denham said that when the city secured an industry it should continue to foster it. "Don't drop it. You lose some of the regard the industry has for the city. I see no reason why it should take five or six weeks to solve some fifty question of minor importance to the city, but which means a great deal to the industry. I hope the Council will mend its ways. This is a sore spot with me and I couldn't help letting a little of it out. When an Alderman is elected he must realise that he is taking hold of a large proportion and he must broaden out from the views he had before elected."

If the Trent Canal were open today there would not be a question as to where the Quaker Oats Co., would rebuild. The railways must show us they want us in Peterborough and equalise the rates. Mr. Denham held that the government should not hold up an expenditure of one million dollars to complete the work.

Mr. Burnham remarked that fifty million was being held up at the Welland Canal.

Let them hold up the fifty but give use the one million, replied Mr. Denham.

F. R. YOKOME

Mr. F. R. Yokome warned the meeting against a present enthusiasm that would disappear on the morrow. He suggested that it might form an advisory committee to assist the council, help formulate politics and support the council in any undertaking.

M. V. Eastwood.

In a pointed speech Mr. Eastwood dealt with the need of a technical school for the industrial and vocational training of many children who now merely drift into jobs. In the city's financing he recommended the serial

Lloyd George intimated that the other allies would make similar restrictions.

Lloyd George announced a minimum wage of 25 shillings per week to agricultural labourers.

The Premier also declared that a guarantee of certain minimum prices, to be in force for some years, must be paid to farmers.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Produce dealers look for a big drop in prices of canned salmon, apples, tomatoes and other Canadian products as a result of Lloyd George's announcement of restrictions on imports to England on account of the lack of tonnage.

It is pointed out that vast shipments of these Canadian products have hitherto been sent to England yearly.

The cutting of the British brewery production to ten million barrels per year was announced by Lloyd George. This means that the amount of beer available yearly will be less than one-third of that brewed before the war when the amount produced annually was over thirty-six million barrels.

Report of The Grand Jury To Mr. Justice Sutherland

Jury Notes the Absence of Crime—Found the Public Institutions in Good Condition—Shade Trees Needed at the House of Refuge

Following is the report of the Grand Jury to His Lordship, Chief Justice Sutherland:

The Grand Jury at the Spring Assizes of the County of Peterborough, beg leave to present, that in the third year of the great war in which the fortunes of our empire and our country are so deeply concerned, we desire to congratulate your Lordship and the City and County upon the fortunate conditions under which we meet in the interests of justice, which is the interest in which this great war is being waged.

In Canada, while all hearts are deeply concerned, we are comparatively free from horrors of war which fall upon other nations, yet we are all determined in our own way to do our full share in bringing to a victory the cause of justice and humanity.

One satisfactory thing we noted during our official inspection of the jail, was the considerable absence of crime as shown by the few confined for criminal offences. This absence of minor offences against morality seems to us to be due to the absence of popular access to strong drink, one great cause of crime, through the effects of the prohibition enactment now in force.

We found everything in the jail excellently sanitary and clean, with evidences of careful supervision and there were no complaints from the persons confined.

Visited the Hospitals.

We visited the St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence, the Nicholls Hospital, and the Protestant Home, and your Grand Jury is pleased to present that we found everything in the way of equipment, conditions and comfort, heat, etc., to be extremely satisfactory in all, and there was every evidence of skillful and sympathetic care of all inmates. The cleanliness and sanitary conditions were conspicuous in all these institutes. We found them all efficiently equipped with external fire escapes and every provision made for the well-being and comfort of the patients or inmates.

Your Grand Jury also visited the Children's Shelter and was pleased to note that there had been provided comfortable, home-like and adequate housing and care for the fourteen children who were enjoying the benefits in good surroundings of the kindness of the Children's Aid Society.

The County House of Refuge was also visited and the forty-four inmates were comfortably provided for in warm and clean quarters, a source of commendation to the county in having furnished for the unfortunate so comfortable a home. It is suggested that the interior of the House of Refuge would be greatly improved in appearance by the application of paint and it is recommended that this matter receive the early attention of the proper authorities. The stables were visited and the buildings and equipment found complete and excellently kept, as shown by the good, well fed, and well cared for condition of the stock.

The Grand Jury would suggest, however, that the bare and bleak appearance of the buildings, and grounds would be greatly relieved by the planting of shade trees and shrubbery, of which there seems to be a very small number compared with the quantity necessary to give the buildings and surroundings a home-like appearance and in the hot days of summer be a shelter for the inmates, where they could in comfort enjoy the open air under conditions and surroundings that would tend to give the unfortunate homeless a feeling that they had a home in the county.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

W. J. PORTER.
Foreman.

AUTOCRATIC ATTEMPTS TO KEEP MR. DEWART OFF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—One of the points on which the Ontario Government has always shown itself both nervous and dictatorial has been the Public Accounts Committee. The latest evidence of this nervousness and the latest effort to act dictatorially, is the attempt of the Government to keep Mr. Dewart off the committee.

It has always been the unquestioned right of the Opposition to nominate its own members on the committees of the House, and the attempt of Hon. Mr. Ferguson, who for years has been known as the chief blocker in the Public Accounts Committee and of Mr. Lucas, shows that the Government are still afraid of free investigation into the finances of the province. They evidently shrink from the thought of another keen, critical mind probing into government accounts. Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Lucas and all the Conservative members of the striking committee voted against Mr. Dewart's nomination, and the report in this form was about to be submitted to the House. The Liberals, however, kept up their vigorous objections to this high-handed procedure and foreseeing a stubborn fight in which they would be at a disadvantage, the Government yielded and Mr. Dewart is to-day a member of the Public Accounts Committee. For this as well as for other reasons interesting sessions of the committee may be expected.

They tackled father just after he had figured up his bank balance on being stung for the usual contributions to the family's time-honoured Christmas fund. "Dad," they asked him, "what is your birthstone?" "The grindstone, children, the grindstone," he instantly replied, "And my nose has been to it all my life."

Trebilcock Bros' 10 Days' Wallpaper Sale is a Golden Opportunity Worth While

It is unusual to have a special buying opportunity presented to the public at the first of the season, and for that reason the ten days' wall paper sale that is now on at Trebilcock Bros', will be thoroughly appreciated by Peterborough citizens. Most attractive prices are being quoted, even in the face of the unprecedented advance on all kinds of paper. Their windows are being used extensively to show the bargain lots, and being changed often, will be well worth watching. The sale starts to-morrow, February 24, and will be for ten days only at the low prices the firm are quoting.

By authority of the Brazilian government the railways of that country and Paraguay will be connected providing another transcontinental line for South America.

In this the church assists and succours the needy and suffering of the world, seeking to reveal the Spirit of Christ in deeds of kindly ministry. The Saviour of man made such living the criterion for citizenship in Heaven.

It is therefore a fitting thing that the Christian Church in Peterborough should seek to minister to the suffering inhabitants of the bleak and inhospitable wilds of Labrador. Dr. Grenfell and his associates are engaged in a noble and heroic service to these people. Amid danger and privation with sacrificial spirit they seek to relieve their distress and suffering. This week has been set aside for a special effort on behalf of this exceedingly worthy enterprise. We feel sure the offering received will be a fitting tribute to this compelling call. Shall we make our contribution a thank-offering to God for safety, peace and plenty, while millions are suffering and dying for the good of men.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was much impressed by Mr. Burnham's cabled offer to raise a Battalion which, I suppose, is 1,100 young women, to send to France to relieve the men in the trenches. I think the plan is fine, and I think Mr. Burnham, because he is a bachelor, is best qualified to organize it and lead it. The only thing is, though, what about the officers? If I succeeded in getting this Battalion I certainly would not allow some of the women I know in town to give me orders without talking back to them. I want to get a job with this Battalion, but I think the chief objection is that every person will have to tell what her age is, unless Mr. Burnham can arrange that this will not be necessary.

My sister's husband says he is willing to let his wife go with this Battalion providing she stays for think there are a good many married think there are a good many married men perfectly willing to let their wives enlist in Mr. Burnham's Battalion, and they would be valuable, too, because with a thousand young women there should be a good many married women as chaperones in such a party. I would like to suggest that the uniform should be the same as the French female aviators wear. This is very striking and pretty and they say that a person of forty-five looks like a girl of sixteen in this uniform, and not only that, it is a uniform that can be worn by both men and women. I am sure Mr. Burnham would look well in it, too. This uniform would be a god deal better than the Women's Home Guard of Toronto used because that uniform had very little style to it, and it was not made in a way that you could attach ribbons or wear feather boas or any of those things. You can wear the high button boots with this costume. I am perfectly willing to join as one of the ladies in Mr. Burnham's Battalion if the job is easy enough, and I can give orders to others and once in a while have a Cook's Tour to the trenches, but I will not permit any of the girls younger than myself to give me orders and tell me what I am to do, if I am in the Battalion, and I think all the rest of the ladies feel that way. I am prepared to assist in a meeting with Mr. Burnham to get the Battalion ready, so if he wishes he can write me at Box 23, Examiner.

P. S.—Is the Battalion supposed to fight with powder, puffs or hat pins?

Yours truly,
POLLY TOWERS.

KEPT RECORDS OF EVERYTHING HE HAS DONE

A. J. Danielson, world's most methodical man, who has been in Minneapolis since September, has compiled for every day of that time a tabulated form, showing exactly what he did with every minute says the Minneapolis Journal.

It is no recent fad that has led Danielson to keep every moment of his day to the rule of "strict accountability." He began fourteen years ago, when he was a ten year old boy on the farm at Hendicks, Minn., and has kept at it ever since, even while living in Foster county.

"My father, A. J. Danielson, has kept a diary also for forty-two years," he said. "He is still doing so and intends to keep it up as long as he lives."

In some things Mr. Danielson goes back even farther. He knows how much money he has spent every year since 1904. Here are the figures:—1904, $8.50; 1905, $0.50; 1906, $11.26; 1907, $42.23; 1908, $86.58; 1909, $204.41; 1910, $201.29; 1911, $231.38; 1912, 677.31; 1913, $468.45; 1914, $477.12; 1915, $787.60; 1915, $800.77.

Some of the other statistics he has kept are these:

Records of every game of checkers played in six years.

Records of every letter and postcard sent in ten years.

Records of everyone he has met since the diary begun.

Record of every prayer offered in five years.

Record of every pupil he taught in three years.

Records of 100 foot races, mostly won, with name and age of opponent.

Record of more than 500 games of horseshoes.

Record of every time he has brushed his teeth.

Family records, dating back to Norwegian and German nobility.

Psychological observations on every one he has known intimately.

Records of more than 100 closely contested games of "flinch."

Dairy records for all the notable cattle in Foster county, N. D., his former home.

Ration Measure Seems Assured In Great Britain

LONDON, Feb. 21.—England is facing compulsory rationing measures. Members of the Food Commission for the kingdom do not believe the voluntary system will last much longer. But American housewives, endeavoring to meet the high cost of living, might do well to feed their families on the rations now permitted under the British food restrictions.

The chef of one of London's famous old restaurants has outlined the following menu for the daily meals of a family of five, desiring to keep within the limits suggested. Four pounds of bread, two and a half pounds of meat and three quarters of a pound of sugar weekly. The menus are:

Breakfast—Coffee, porridge, five eggs (one for each) one pound of bread and butter.

Dinner—Vegetable soup, filet of beef (one and a half pounds and six ounces of bacon) cheese and celery, five ounces of bread (one ounce for each person.)

Supper—Eight ounces of bread; cheese, vegetable salad.

That compulsory rationing is near is the opinion of W. C. Anderson, a member of Parliament and one of the Food Commission for the Kingdom.

"Frankly, I do not believe" he said to-day, "that the voluntary system will last much longer. My purely personal opinion is that compulsory rationing measures will have to be adopted, for very obvious reasons."

To the unselfish patriots of England, however, this compulsory rationing will bring no great hardship. Already millions have adopted what Mr. Lloyd George recently called the "national diet." Limiting themselves to two and a half pounds of meat, four pounds of bread and three quarters of a pound of sugar each week, those who adopted the scale of Lord Davenport, the Food Controller, have already saved the nation thousands of pounds worth of rations.

If Stomach Hurts Drink Hot Water

"If dyspeptics, sufferers from gas, wind or flatulence, stomach acidity or sourness, gastric catarrh, heartburn, etc., would take a teaspoonful of pure bisurated magnesia in half a glass of hot water immediately after eating, they would soon forget they were ever afflicted with stomach trouble, and doctors would have to look elsewhere for patients." In explanation of these words a well known New York physician stated that most forms of stomach trouble are due to stomach acidity and fermentation of the food contents of the stomach combined with an insufficient blood supply to the stomach. Hot water increases the blood supply and bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes the excessive stomach acid and stops food fermentation, the combination of the two, therefore, being marvelously successful and decidedly preferable to the use of artificial digestants, stimulants or medicines for indigestion.

STOLE THE FRENCH LOCOMOTIVES.

New York Evening Post: The experience of the French Government in sending the German Ambassador home from Paris was recalled. Every attention was shown to him, and he was given the French official train—a luxurious equipage, emblazoned with the French coat-of-arms—to travel in. The train took him direct into Germany without any change of cars, and naturally the French Government expected that Germany would return the equipment, which was lent as a courtesy to the retiring Ambassador. But it required months of pressure through Ambassador Gerard at Berlin to compel the German Government to send back the cars, and the locomotives have not been returned to this day. The cars of the official train were not suitable even for hospital use; the locomotive, however, came in handy to haul German troop trains.

GEORGE ST. CHAMPIONS OF CHURCH LEAGUE

Beat Trinity Last Night By 9 Goals to 2—East City Won Their Fourth Straight Game and Finish in Second Place

The Standing.

	Won.	Lost.
George Street	5	1
Mark Street	4	2
Trinity	3	3
Knox	0	6

Last Night's Games.

George Street 9, Trinity 2.
Mark Street 14, Knox 1.

The George Street Methodist church team are champions of the Church Hockey League. By defeating Trinity last night the boys from Rev. Mr. Peever's church earned the title with a record of five wins and one loss. The speedy little bunch from Mark Street Church finished in second place. After losing their first two games by one goal, the East City youngsters came on and won four games in a row, two from Knox and one from Trinity and George Street, leaving them second honours.

A win for Trinity last night would have resulted in a three cornered tie and the majority of the fans who have followed the East City team's spurt with admiration were pulling for Trinity to win in order to give the blue shirts from across the river another chance, but the Trinity gang were not equal to the task. George Street played their best hockey of the season last night, showing speed and team work and won easily by 9 goals to 2. They led at the end of the first period by 5 to 1, and at the close of the second by 6 to 1. The score hardly represents the play for had the goal keepers been reversed, Trinity would undoubtedly made it a much closer battle. Austin was beaten by a bunch of easy long shots, while Rutherford made some clever stops, especially in the second period, when Trinity had the winners backed up for most of the session. Graham and Helson starred for the winners. The teams were as follows:

GEORGE ST.		TRINITY
W. Rutherford	Goal	Austin
Peever	Defence	Henry
Elliott		English
Helson	Rover	S. Henry
Rutherford	Centre	Eaton
Graham	R. Wing.	Tudhope
Head	L. Wing.	Batten

Referee—Pte. Jack Adams, 247th Battalion.

Mark Street ran up the record score of the season in church league circles, when they defeated Knox Church in the second game of the night by 14 goals to 1. The East City lads were 3 to 0 in front at the end of the first period and 7 to 1 at the close of the second. They had too much speed, combination and stick handling ability for the losers and gave a fine exhibition. Cook and Gillespie were the principal scores for the winners, both doing some fine shooting.

The winners lined up as follows:
Goal—Wyatt; Defence, Nellist, Hagerman; rover, Williams; centre, Cook; right wing, Lipsett; left wing, Gillespie.

Sam Ray Won First Prizes In The Bonspiel Consolation Round

Sam Ray won the Consolation finals from Maybee of Napanee last night at 7.30 o'clock in a hard-fought game with a great finish that was witnessed by a mere handful of spectators. The rinks and scores follow:

Napanee	Peterborough
C. Killorin	Jack Wiley
J. B. Allison	Geo. Boucher
W. A. Daly	W. H. Taylor
O. J. Maybee	Sam Ray
Skip--- 6	Skip---18

By ends:
Maybee . . . . xx1ixx21x1x11x— 8
Ray 21xx12xx1x2xx3--12

Ray had a lead of one coming home and on the last end Napanee had a fighting chance to tie the score. He had a stone so situated between two of Ray's that tapping the one in front would have squeezed his way into shot. But the end was mussed up and Ray got three out of it. Mayhee played a sterling game throughout the entire bonspiel and didn't quit against the local veteran. In the afternoon he eliminated Clifford of Oshawa by 15 to 1. Both rinks appeared to be dead tired and after the game Fred Bailes required a doctor's attendance as the result of his strenuosities.

Bonspiel a Success.

Messrs. Hicks, Morrow and the Committee deserve every commendation upon the result of the bonspiel. It went off without a hitch. No time was lost in getting the games under way, there were few defaults and the sportsmanship was of the best.

Prizes Presented.

Sam Ray's rink won the casseroles and Maybee the sweater coats. Mr. George Giroux made the presentation.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterborough deaf boys took a trip to Toronto last Saturday morning and played the game with the Toronto deaf boys in the evening; the result was the score of 2 to 0 in favour of the former. The ice, the day being mild, was in awful condition. The rink looked like a swimming pool, but the Peterborough boys declined to accept the postponement the Toronto captain offered. Then both teams jumped into the watery rink and played better than the spectators expected. The Peterborough boys, in better shape, never let up till the finish. All the players got their uniforms soaked through. The Torontos got the worst of it. It amused the spectators greatly. Some of them kept splitting their sides with laughter all night. Dan Gerow was the man who scored the two goals, The Peterborough line-up:

Goal, G. O'Brien; defence, D. Gordon and W. Charliebois; rover, C. Ford; centre, D. Gerow, and wings, D. Fleming and J. Creigh (Capt.)—Contributed by one of the team.

LAKEFIELD SCHOOL, 3; TRINITY C. S. JUNIORS, 2

PORT HOPE, Feb. 23.—Lakefield Preparatory School defeated Trinity College School juniors at hockey here yesterday by 3 to 2. The game was the second of a home-and-home series. Lakefield won the first game by 17 to 4. Onslow of Trinity College School played a remarkably good game, while Greening and Hamilton did well for Lakefield.

form of bond issue. On an issue of $100,000 at 5 per cent. for 20 years this plan would provide a saving of $18,806.42 over the method now employed by the Council, who, Mr. East wood believed would be well advised to consider the installment plan in their next bond issue.

ALD. STRATTON

The city's Finance Minister dealt broadly with a number of questions, particularly suggesting the use of vacant property this year for the growth of vegetables. He supported Mr. Grant's proposal that the G.T.R. to Lakefield might be leased at a nominal figure. Ald. Stratton presented memoranda of the assessment, debenture debt and other facts and promised that the tax rate this year would be about 28 mills. The pruning knife would be applied to the estimates now under discussion. Mr. Turner requested that the Fire Department be carefully and wisely considered.

MR. J. J. HARTLEY.

As president of the Trades and Labour Council, Mr. Hartley believed such meetings should be beneficial to the city. Manufacturers are anxious for Peterborough's development and Mr. Hartley wished to see them prospering, for then he was assured the labouring men were well employed. Incidentally he recalled the time, when, as a member of the Council, fault was found with him for voting for the waterworks in its inception.

MR. THOS. BARRIE.

Mr. Barrie advised the resuscitation of the fall fair in the interests of the merchants, farmers and citizens generally. He also believed the assessments of the city was too large a job for one man, and this was said without any reflection upon the ability of the present assessor.

J. W. MEYERS

Mr. J. W. Meyers of the Peterborough Cereal Company spoke briefly expressing the hope that the Quaker Oats would be restored to Peterborough.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman referred to the need of good citizens and the consequent demand of proper training of the boys.

Judge Huycke said he was greatly pleased with the spirit of business and earnestness that had characterised the addresses he had heard. His Honour arrived late. The fruits of the meeting would be lost if its aims and inspiration were not crystallized into action and if there ever was a time the city needed action it was now. The people are the city's source of wealth, hence it was essential that efforts be made to increase the population.

CONCLUSION.

In conclusion Mr. Matthews proposed a toast to Mayor Duffus. Two years ago he had nominated Mr. Duffus as a candidate to the mayoralty. His work as an Alderman had created a favourable impression and Mr. Matthews said he felt his judgment had been justified.

Mayor Duffus replied with an appeal to the gentlemen to be earnest in their new found enthusiasm and to respond whenever called upon to assist the new Peterborough Industrial Association.

"That's ahl roight, Biddy," said Pat. "Oi've borrowed two dollars from th' foreman, and he don't let me do any dangerous work any more."

The small boy was being reproved by his mother.

"Why can't you be good?" she asked.

"I'll be good for sixpence," he said.

"Ah!" responded the mother, "you want to be bribed. You should copy your father, and be good for nothing."

OBITUARY

JOHN A. DAVIS.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Feb. 23.—John A. Davis, aged 73, a former resident of Peterborough, Ont., died Wednesday, following a brief illness, at his home here. Deceased leaves his wife, Maria Davis, one son, Charles L. Davis of Buffalo, two daughters, Mrs. H. Pidgen of Belleville, Ont., and Mrs. A. Pearson of Toronto, Ont.

The late Mr. Davis was a member of Mizpah Lodge, No. 127, Independent Order of Oddfellows of Belleville, Ont.

Interment will be Friday afternoon in Belleville, Ont.

HAROLD E. BURNS.

The death of Harold E. ("Bobby") Burns in Owen Sound at five O'clock this morning will be sad intelligence to all those in Peterborough who knew him. He was employed here for a number of years with Robert Fair and Company and was a charter member of the Belmont Club. The deceased was a son-in-law of ex-Mayor Buller. He is survived by his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Burns and his brother in Owen Sound and two sisters in Chicago. The funeral will take place in Meaford on Sunday. Harold Burns won many friends while in Peterborough to whom his death will be received with deep regret.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

WHEN YOU'RE IN A HURRY

Most people who wear glasses, need them all the time. When they have an accident and break the frame or a lens, they want them fixed in a hurry.

Dr. Fowler's modern optical establishment is completely equipped with a quick repair department, and in case of necessity can fit a new lens or repair a frame while the customer waits—Power driven machinery polishes and puts out repair work just like new.

CURLERS' HOSPITALITY DELIGHTED VISITORS

Delighted with the hospitality and splendid sportsmanship of the Peterborough and visiting curlers, Mr. Levi Payne, the 75 year old vice-skip of J. C. Strickland's rink, returned home this morning virtually renewed in youth and certainly in his esteem for the old game as the result of his participation in the bonspiel. Mr. Payne wished to assure the local curlers of his appreciation of the lofty and likewise high spirits that prevailed during the series of games. He had visited in his time many such bonspiels, but none had left a deeper and more favourable impression upon him than that provided by the Peterborough Club.

"Model Servant" Wins Back Pay

EUPHROSINA WORKED AND WAITED TWELVE YEARS FOR $2,066 AND THEN HAD TO SUE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Trial of an action before Justice Cropsey in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn through which Miss Euphrosina Weigert won a verdict of $2,066.71 revealed her as the "model servant" so much talked of and so conspicuous by continued absence.

The testimony showed that Miss Weigert was content to wait twelve years for her wages and was delighted with the interest displayed by her employer, who took her 'occasionally' on excursions to the cemetery and on these trips bought lunch for her.

In 1902 she entered the employ of Mrs. Josephine Prentice, of No. 145 Hancock street, who died October 22, 1915. A year after she had entered this employ her wages were increased from $18 a month to $22. She said that in twelve years she received but $171.90. According to the plaintiff, who brought action against Adolph G. Kretzer, brother of Mrs. Prentice as executor of the estate, Mrs. Prentice gave her twenty-five or fifty cents once in a while and promised to pay her wages in a lump sum when Mrs. Prentice's mother's estate was settled. She brought action for $3,398. Miss Weigert said she not only worked for Mrs. Prentice, but cared for an invalid woman and a sick child in the household.

Mrs. Margaret M. John, of No. 2,414 Cornelia street, who was at one time a neighbour of Mrs. Prentice, testified:—

"Over the fence Mrs. Prentice told me she thought a great deal of Rose and regarded the woman as her best friend. She told me she often gave Rose twenty-five or fifty cents, but did not pay her any wages.

"She said that just for a treat she would take Rose to the cemetery, and while there, buy a lunch for her. She said she was going to be good to Rose when her mother's estate was settled."

BOMBED AVIATION GROUND

Italian Aviator Executed Clever Manoeuvre, Says Report.

ROME, Feb. 24.—Raiding operations are being continued along the Austro-Italian front, the War Office announced yesterday. The statement reads: "Enemy raids attempted against our lines on the Zugna, in the Adige Valley, between Stringo and Speora, in the Sugana Valley, and on the slopes of Monte Cadini in the Upper Boite valley, failed owing to our vigilant activity and firm resistance. In the Col di Lana area an enemy detachment by a sudden attack occupied one of our outposts. The detachment was at once counter-attacked and driven off in disorder. We took some prisoners.

The previous night one of our airships by a clever manoeuvre suddenly reached the enemy aviation ground at Prosecco and dropped a ton of high explosives with considerable success. The airship returned safely.

"War And Honour, Or Craven Peace," Taft's View Of The Situation

Only Alternatives if Germany Holds to Ruthless Submarine War Decree—"Our People Are on the Seas Under Their Own Flag Where They Have a Right to be," He Concludes.

RIGHTS OF AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—War and the preservation of the honour of the nation of a craven peace are the alternatives which face the United States if Germany holds to her decree of ruthless submarine warfare and sinks American vessels, former President Taft declared in an address here.

"There are worse things than war" said Mr. Taft, "the occasion has arisen when the issue is between the honour, dignity and self-defence of the nation and a craven yielding to opportunism. We are void of offence in this war. We have attempted to guard the rights of neutrals while the rights of neutrals have been disregarded by both belligerents. But Great Britain has wronged us only in acts that may be compensated with damages. Germany has violated our rights by the destruction of innocent citizens, whose only offence was that they were lawfully pursuing their lawful occupations on the high seas.

"We have the right of the high seas on lawful business and we must maintain that right. But if those rights are to be invaded again under a declaration of a ruthless character it is our duty to resist the invasion, for it is exactly of the same nature as if our country were invaded.

"Our people are on our vessels, under our own flag on the high seas, where they have the right to be. If they are attacked, if they are assailed, it is an attack on our honour and our territory and it must be met."

Whole Hearted Approval of the Restrictive Measures

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 24. —Britain is a unit behind Lloyd George. Wholehearted approval of the sternly restrictive measures which the Premier outlined yesterday before the House of Commons was expressed on every hand to-day. The only fault British newspaper editorials found with the speech was that perhaps it was a trifle more pessimistic as to the present situation than was justified.

The Chronicle, however, says: 'There has been so much complacent optimism in this country about the war that a corrective was necessary. Lloyd George is right in refusing to mask the realities, for you do not get rid of them by covering with a gauze of words and pretences.'

All London newspapers announce a reduction in size in view of paper import restrictions.

Millfeed —Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $42; bran, $38; feed flour, per bag, $2.80.

Hay— Baled, track, Toronto, car lots; No. 2, $12 mixed, $9 to $11; straw, $9.

Cattle Markets.

Abnormally light receipts of cattle this week kept the market on edge, and incidentally steadily forced up prices to from 25 to 50 cents over the preceding week. Probably the same causes which prevented cattle coming in operated also to keep dressed beef from going out, for in both cases the trouble was said to be due to car shortage on the railways. Although the general movement of freight was freer than the week before, still there were complaints that the packers could not get their dressed meat out to country points, and consequently there was not such a rush for fresh killing cattle as there might have been under ordinary conditions. As it was, there was a good active demand for butcher cattle all through the week, and supplies were evidently considerably short of the demand. Reasons given for the exceptionally light receipts of cattle and all classes of live stock were various, some saying that the cattle are not in the country and others that there are plenty of cattle, but that the railways were unable to transport them from many points, owing to the generally congested condition of traffic and to a serious shortage of cars.

The latter was probably the correct reason, for there were reports of many loads of cattle at various points awaiting shipment as soon as the railroads were ready to accept them. In the meantime, prices which started off about 25 cents higher than the later part of the week before gradually stiffened, and by the end of the week were 40 cents to 50 cents higher.

Hogs, which started off easier, ended by reaching a new highest level at $15. Fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts for this week, 268 cars, with 2,572 cattle, 709 calves, 7,093 hogs, 353 sheep and lambs, and 840 horses.

City cattle markets—24 cars with 243 cattle, 182 sheep and lambs, 247 hogs, and 46 calves.

Destroyers Battle With Submarines Off Spanish Coast

One German Submarine Sunk and Two Merchantmen Destroyed in a Battle With Seven Submarines

Special to The Examiner

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—One German submarine was sunk and two merchantmen destroyed in a battle between seven submarines and nine merchantmen off the Spanish coast near Tarragona, according to a Buenos Aires despatch printed in to-day's New York Herald. The information was said to have been received in the Argentine city in a special despatch from Barcelona.

Among the ships listed as sunk were the Swedish Skogland, 'previously reported as having been sunk, but without details,' and the 'Gutseppe,'' Italian.

The British steamship 'Janeta' and other merchantmen were all greatly damaged.

The Herald despatch asserted that the submarines were about to score a victory when five or six British destroyers appeared and put them to flight.

The sea battle, it was said, took place on Sunday.

SUBMARINE ACTIVITIES.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The captain and six of the crew of the British steamer 'Grenadier,' 1,000 tons, were killed when that vessel was sunk. The remainder of the crew was safely landed. The British steamer 'Trojan Prince,' 3,186 tons, has also been sunk.

LONDON, Feb. 24. — Seven Dutch steamers were sunk on Thursday night, it was announced to-day. The ships were: The Zaandyk, Noorderdyk, Eemland, Gasterland, Jacatra, Menado and Bandoeng. The crews of all were safely landed. The total of the Dutch tonnage sunk in this one day is more than 27,000 tons.

PARIS, Feb. 24.— 1,450 men were rescued when the French troopship Athos was torpedoed in the Mediterranean.

LONDON, Feb. 24.— One hundred and forty-six boats were sunk since February 1, of which 21 were British.

Fire Threatens Business Block In Havelock

HAVELOCK, Feb. 24.—Fire broke out last evening in the business section of Havelock, and before it was under control had destroyed considerable property, including the furniture stock of Puffer Bros. and the flour and feed stock of J. L. Squires and Son. The fire originated shortly after six o'clock in the furniture warehouse of Puffer Bros. It spread rapidly to a number of stables and outbuildings in the rear of the stores on Ontario Street. The gasoline engine and pumping plant which is located on the property was quickly put into commission, and after several hours' hard work, the blaze was extinguished.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Most of the stock is covered by insurance, but there is said to be very little on the buildings. The latter are owned by J. L. Squires and Sons, of Norwood and Havelock. There are about twenty buildings on the land. The loss will run into several thousand dollars.

Death of a Well Known Peterboro' Barrister

The death occurred yesterday afternoon of J. William Bennet at his late residence, 558 Gilmour Street. Deceased was a member of the well-known legal firm of Bennet and Goodwill. He has been ailing for some time.

The late Mr. Bennet was a son of the late Rev. William Bennet, who for many years was pastor of Springville Church.

WILSON EXPECTS BREAK.

New York Sun says Austria to be Next.

NEW YOORK, Feb. 24.—The Evening Sun says: It is confidently expected in Washington circles that the President will go before a joint session of Congress to-day or possibly on Monday with a request for authority to take necessary measures to protect the rights of Americans on the seas. The President is also expected to announce a break with Austria-Hungary at the same time, as it is understood he is convinced that Vienna will back Berlin in the matter of the ruthless submarine warfare.

To City, Town and Village Dwellers in Ontario

"A vegetable garden for every home"

IN this year of supreme effort Britain and her armies must have ample supplies of food, and Canada is the great source upon which they rely. Greater production is a vital necessity. Everyone with a few square feet of ground can contribute to victory by growing vegetables.

Four Patriotic Reasons for Growing Vegetables

1—It saves money that you would otherwise spend for vegetables, thus being an effective means of thrift, leaving your money free for purposes more directly helpful to the cause.

2—It helps to lower the "High cost of living."

3—By increasing production your vegetable garden helps to enlarge the urgently needed surplus of produce for export to the motherland and her allies.

4—Every dollar's worth of vegetables you grow saves several hours' labor of some worker somewhere whose effort at this critical time should be expended upon producing food for export, or upon other vital war work.

Multiply your effort by the number of available garden plots in cities, towns and villages all over Ontario and the significance of vegetable production as a form of patriotic thrift becomes one of startling importance to the country!

The Ontario Department of Agriculture will help you

The Ontario Department of Agriculture appeals to Horticultural Societies to devote at least one evening meeting to the subject of vegetable growing. Manufacturers, labor unions, lodges, school boards, etc., are invited to actively encourage home gardening. Let the slogan for 1917 be, "A vegetable garden for every home."

Organizations are invited to arrange for instructive talks by local practical gardeners on the subject of vegetable growing. In cases where it is impossible to secure a local speaker the Department of Agriculture will, on request, endeavor to send a suitable man.

The demand for speakers will be great. The number of available experts being limited, the Department urgently requests that arrangements for meetings be made at once; if local speakers cannot be secured, send applications promptly. Address letters to "Vegetable Campaign," Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

The Department suggests the formation of local organizations to stimulate interest by offering prizes for best vegetable gardens. It is prepared to assist in any possible way any organization that may be conducting a campaign for vegetable production on vacant lots. It will do so by sending speakers or by supplying expert advice in the field.

To the Boys and Girls of Ontario

Boys, here is a splendid chance to help in the war. Grow vegetables this summer. What a fine way to spend some of your spare time. Ask your parents for the use of the ground, and their help; they will gladly give it, knowing how valuable the experience will be to you—and to the Country.

Send for Literature To every one interested in vegetable growing the Department of Agriculture will, on receipt of request, send literature giving instructions about implements necessary and methods of preparing the ground and cultivating the crop. A plan of a vegetable garden indicating suitable crop to grow, best varieties and their arrangement in the garden will be sent free of charge to any address.

Write for Poultry Bulletin The waste from the average table would support a small flock of hens. They are inexpensive to keep, and you will be highly repaid in fresh eggs. Write for free bulletin which tells how to keep hens, and deals with the results of experiments conducted at the Ontario Agricultural College.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. BOTCHKISS

He rushed from the room, but was back before Wentworth could gather his flying thoughts together. Opening the bag under his desk, the detective took from it a revolver and a pair of handcuffs which he stuffed into his pockets.

"Come along," he said, now all animation and activity.

And the two hurried out.

As they reached the street the sound of a fast striking gong caught the attention of both, and the next moment a fire engine tore by, going up Centre street. In the trail of its smoke, a hook and ladder truck went after it at full speed. "Fire up-town, somewhere," said Bunsen, "and I think we are going to start something of a blaze, ourselves." He laughed.

"What is your plan of action?" asked Wentworth, as they strode toward the subway station at Worth Street.

"It is simple enough," said the detective sobering, "but I will admit I am taking long chances in the matter. I would feel better armed if I had a warrant, but to get a warrant would take time, and I figure we have not a moment to lose. This is a mighty unique case, sir, and if I can pull it off it will be a big feather in my cap. As for my plan—it is to catch the men any way I can, and lock them up. If one squeals on the other, so much the better. You want the paper; I want Bagshot and if I get him I'll make some of those wiseacres that had the case in hand feel like a plugged nickel. Here we are, sir."

The two descended into the subway. A few people stood aimlessly on the long platforms, but no roar of an approaching train echoed through the tube, and the great tunnel was unnaturally quiet. Over the ticket-agent's window was a hurriedly written sign:

"Trains not running. No tickets sold until further orders."

"What's this about?" said Bunsen, bending his head to the hand hole in the glass.

"Fire in the Parker building up-town. Danger to the subway from falling walls, I suppose. No tickets sold. That's all I know about it. You may have to wait for five minutes or hours—I don't know."

"Block No. 11" said Bunsen, turning to Wentworth. It's always so; but a bad beginning, you know. We will have to go over to the elevated."

There was little else to do, and they made the trip almost in silence. In half an hour they were out of the train, and noticed that from Eighty-first Street to some distance above, the down track was blocked by a line of cars. But this was not occasioned by fire; the up-town trains still passed, and the line ran nowhere near the burning Parker building.

Without stopping to inquire the trouble, the two went on, and in ten minutes more were in front of the apartment house. Wentworth was about to go into the vestibule and ring the bell when Bunsen held him back.

"Don't get excited, sir. I know a trick worth ten of that. A ring might be a warning to a fellow in Bagshot's fix. Come with me."

He went down to the tradesman's door in the basement, Wentworth following, and together the two men went upstairs. But there had been no occasion for their caution, for the door of the Merridale flat was open, and a man was sweeping out the private hall. As Wentworth glanced in and marked the litter that was lying about, his heart sank; he felt that it was too late; that the birds had flown. He walked up to the sweeper.

"Are you the janitor?" he asked.

"I am that," was the answer given in a surly tone, and with barely a glance at the questioner. Wentworth was too full of his errand to take warning from the man't attitude.

"Where are tenants who were here—the Merridales?" he asked.

"'Tis no business o' mine where they be," was the short return to the abrupt and tactless question.

"Have they gone?"

"They hov, me fine felly."

"Where? Do you know?"

"An' if I did, the likes o' me would not be tellin' it to ye; mind that."

The reply was decidedly aggressive, and the two eyed each other belligerently. Bunsen touched John on the shoulder and laughed lightly.

"I think, sir," he said, "you had better have left this to me. The old adage—molasses and vinegar, you know, sir. This is a matter for haste and soap, sir. We'll have to grease his wheels, I take it. Are you fixed?"

Wentworth recognized his mistake, but set about to rectify it. Taking out his wallet he extracted a bill.

"See here, my friend," he said, speaking in a modified tone, "we desire to know where Mr. Merridale is. Come, now, when did he go?"

And he passed the bill into the janitor's hands.

"Well, sor, if that's the way o' it, he went this mornin'."

"But he has left all his furniture behind," said John looking around the parlour and noticing that its general appearance was unchanged; even the chair he had smashed lay in a corner, but the trunks were gone.

"Faith, the fixin's didn't belong to him! He sublet the place. Mr. Duke was as foine a gentleman—"

"We don't care for him," interrupted the detective in a gentle voice. "Do you know where the Merridales went?"

"No, sir, on me anner, I don't. They went off afoot this marnin', say ten o'clock."

"And the trunks?"

"Pat Cody's express kem after thim arly—say eight o'clock."

"Thank you. How many went—of the people?"

"The two, sir; the young leddy and her dad."

"No one else?"

"Why, a furrin-lookin' chap was here for a while, but I saw him go out arly—whin I was sweepin' the walk."

"Good! Joe Planet!" said Bunsen.

"Like as not. I heard him called Joe," said the janitor.

"And you don't know where the trunks went?"

"So help me, I do not. How cud I?"

"I believe you. Where is Cody's stand?"

"Round the corner — furninst a bookstore. Ye can't help seein' it. May I ask ye what ye want of the Merridale feller?"

"Well, that is rather too much to the point," said the detective. "And you can tell us no more of him, I suppose?"

"I can, thin," said the janitor. "He managed to smash a windy in the basement with something tied to a long cord—Heaven knows why—an' the stove in this dure, though he denied it like the thafe he is. He was a deep wan, sih; a felley I niver liked; but the leddy—she was different."

The man pointed to the splintered panel. Wentworth smiled, but said nothing.

"Very good—very good," said the detective smoothly. "I think that's all. Come, Mr. Wentworth, we have one more chance to save our jelly. We will try Cody."

The big janitor watched him hurry down the stairs.

"An' much good he'll get o' Cody-" he muttered, resuming his broom and his work.

"Block swell" muttered Bunsen, as he reached the front door.

CHAPTER X.
A MATTER OF HASTE.

As the two men emerged into the street heated by the afternoon sun, neither spoke. The detective's month was set with a determination which might have been mixed with an expression of disappointment, but Wentworth was beset by something like a sense of shame.

For in spite of himself a great wave of suspicion had taken possession of him. Was it possible that Grace Merridale had been false to her promise, had gone and left no word when he had told her he expected to see her that day? Or—his cheeks grew hot at the thought—had he been only a confiding fool? Had the girl been merely a stool pigeon deliberately paving the way for Bagshot? Had that individual known of her presence in the studio—in fact, sent her there? Perhaps the girl was not Grace Merridale! Great Cæsar! What an ass he had been to have allowed himself to be so easily hoodwinked by a pretty woman with the airs and graces of an angel—one who had aroused his interest, as no other woman had yet done. And with no more recommendation than that carried in her face he had taken her into his full confidence, and proclaimed his idiotic weakness by kissing her hand! More—he had shown her the paper, the very thing she wished, the very thing for which she had worked him; and then to appear innocent she had played at terror that she might save her patron—or worse—from being at once pursued.

"H——!" muttered the young man as he walked rapidly by the side of the silent Bunsen, perspiration suddenly streaming from every pore. "In the name of all the saints! how can I expose my utter idiocy to Harper! I ought to have a nurse!"

Then another thought struck him. If she were a fraud why all that strenuous business? I offered her the paper before those villains came in. Why didn't she take it?

The puzzle smote him, bringing a sense of relief, and so affected him he stopped on the sidewalk. "What's the trouble?" asked Bunsen. "Got an idea?"

"Yes—but it is not a practical one," returned Wentworth from whom nothing could have dragged his present thoughts.

"Then you stop for nothing," was the ungracious reply.

Mr. Patrick Cody, expressman, sat on an upturned trunk, smoking a black cigar and rubbing his stubby red beard with a thick, red hand, when Bunsen and Wentworth halted in front of his stand.

"Cody's Express?" asked the detective with an insinuating smile.

"Yis," was the short answer.

"You are Cody?"

"Yis."

"I believe that you have moved three trunks from the third flat of number—, round the corner this morning."

"Well, what av it?"

"If you don't mind we would like to know where you took them."

The detective's voice was fairly purring with good will, but Cody glowered at him.

"Ye, wud! Well, if that's yer only business, ye can run along after I'm telling ye I tuk them to me express wagon." The tone was uncompromising, and it was evident that Cody's temper was set on a hair-trigger. Bunsen turned easily to Wentworth, speaking in a low tone:

"Looks like block number three! More soap, sir." John took out his wallet but before he could extract a bill the little Irishman bristled.

"None o' that with me, now! I know yeuse fellys! Ye think because ye hov—"

"Look here!" exclaimed Bunsen.

wheeling on the sour man. "Who do you take us for?"

"Do you want me to move a trunk, or anny stuff?"

"No; we do not."

"Then, I take ye for a couple of loafers—an' that's all ye get from me."

"And you refuse to answer a civil question?"

"I do that. G'wan—ye bother me."

"Put up your pocketbook, Mr. Wentworth," said the detective briskly, an ugly look coming into his boyish face. "I'll attend to this chap."

He threw open his vest and, walking up to the Irishman, who now wore a decidedly defiant aspect, laid one hand on his shoulder and with the other tapped the silver shield which was pinned to his suspender.

"You come with me, my fine lad! By the time you have cooled your heels at headquarters for a few hours you may take it into your head to answer me."

Good for the whole family

A good cough remedy is one that can be depended upon to cure coughs. Not one that cures some particular cough, but coughs in general.

While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The more powerful convulsive cough of a big man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a big man's cough and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It relieves coughs of all kinds. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the delicate tissues of the throat, and is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza and whooping cough.

Enemies of Tea

If tea is left open near oranges, soap, spices, matches, etc., the tea will take on the flavor of any of these articles.

In fact, tea absorbs odors as readily as does butter. This is because of the high temperature at which it is "fired" during the drying process, which makes the tea very sensitive. It thus quickly loses flavor and strength, and goes "flat" if left exposed to odors, dust or air.

To Protect the Consumer

When you buy a package of Red Rose Tea at your grocer's you get the benefit of the great care we take to protect the consumer, as the sealed package is an armor that keeps out odors, dust and air. It keeps the tea pure, clean, fresh and full strength.

The price printed on the package protects you against overcharge. It is the lowest price for which a tea of Red Rose quality can be sold—a price which allows the grocer only a fair profit.

You will enjoy the distinctive flavor, rich strength and splendid economy of Red Rose Tea. TRY A PACKAGE.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

Habits of neatness, thrift, order and economy should be among the first lessons of life. Girls should never know that there is such a thing as habitual disorder. Comfortable system and well considered prudence are among the gifts and graces that go to make up the useful and beautiful woman. A careless woman can never be wholly attractive. The eye rests at once upon some evidence of untidiness, and the charm is destroyed. Girls, and boys, too, for that matter, should have the importance of personal tidiness and neatness early impressed upon them.

-:- -:- -:-

No matter where you go, you will always find those who will obstruct your pathways; always find those who belittle your endeavours, those who ridicule your honest efforts to success; those who prove great stumbling blocks to your progress; those who are continually predicting your failure; those who magnify your indiscretion; those who lie about you; those who "put up jobs" on you; those who discourage every effort you make; those who rejoice at your every failure; those who predict your inability to prosper; those who are envious, jealous and cruel. You cannot escape these people; they lurk in every town and city—in every community, and knowing this, there is then but one way to thrive, and that is to hustle. If you find not that which you seek in one spot seek elsewhere. If clouds hang low and black, wait for them to roll by and for the shining of the beautiful sun that is behind. If your plans miscarry, try again, do not be discouraged,—hustle.

TRUE CHARACTER.

What we are, not what we seem to be, is the measure of our true worth. A base coin may be washed with pure metal and pass current for a time, without detection, but sooner or later the thin veneering will wear through, and the spurious inside will be revealed; so a pure coin may be covered with base alloy, but though it tarnish for a time, it cannot change the value of what it conceals. So it is with human character.

Sham airs and graces and assumed virtues may win for a time and deceive the most penetrating, while virtue loaded with calumnity, is shunned by its kind; but sooner or later true worth will assert itself and all the world will discriminate between the gold and the dross.

Where gold is not, gold never can be found. Where true character is not, no sham or artifice can long support a semblance of it.

The principle that true worth is the captain who leads to victory in life's battles is one that should be early and constantly taught by those having the tutelage of youth.

CHILDREN'S RIGHTS.

In the home life never forget that the children have social rights, and the chief among these is the right to laugh when they are happy, to cry when they are unhappy, and to make a noise. A healthy child is always active. It must jump and scream, fall down, cry when its gets hurt, and jump up only to repeat the same thing—but to keep it still means unhappiness and nearly if not quite death. Let them be gay. This is their element. We always class children, birds and flowers together. And why? Because they should be equally beautiful innocent and happy. We should never rob childhood of its ideal loveliness. Even old people should be gay and happy and good; too good to overcloud the children's horizon with angry eyes and lowering brows, nor turn their merriment to discord by continual fault finding. Allow them all the freedom consistent with absolute safety. Let them play and be happy but teach them self control. God's estimate of self control is this: He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty and he that ruleth is own spirit, than he who taketh a city. Condemn your children only when they are really wrong and then as gently as possible, but be sure to commend them when they do right. A little praise with a child may go a long way. A child may be very provoking but not wilfully bad. Attributing bad motives to a thoughtless child has ruined many a little life. Just blame less and praise more and we shall have better children. Especially as most of their faults are copied from their parents we should exercise the strictest charity for verily "Charity doth cover a multitude of sins."

-:- -:- -:-

We all need to cultivate a depth of sympathy, a broadness of mind and a gentleness of heart, which will lead us on to charity when a fellow creature goes astray, for "let him who thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall," and "with what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again."

MY COUNTRY.

What is my country? Well, it is my own little world where I live. It is the dear little spot where my cottage stands. It is the sunshine over my head and the blue vault bounding my vision. This is my country. Again my country includes the wondrous history of three hundred years, wrought out by heroic hands and the loving hearts on American soil. It includes the shocks of battle and the pursuits of peace. We kneel at its sacred altars, sing its immortal songs. We see waving over it the beauteous banner of the stars, the dear old flag that is always and everywhere the symbol of protection and hope and home. May this love of country be the satisfaction of our old men, and the strength of our youth, until "The dawn of a brighter, whiter day,

Than ever blessed us with its ray
A day before whose purer light
All guilt and wrong shall flee away."

Choice Recipes

Tomato Bouillon.

Fry one-half onion, one slice carrot, in one tablespoon of butter, add a bit of celery, and one pint of tomatoes; simmer ten minutes, then strain; add one pint of chicken stock, seasoning as needed. Then clear, allowing the white and shell of one egg.

Corn Omelet.

Boil one dozen ears of corn or use canned corn to make same quantity, and when cold grate and season with salt, separate five eggs: beat yolks until thick and add one gill of milk; stir by degrees into the corn; beat the whites dry and stir through, pour into a frying pan in which some butter has been made hot; fry a light brown and turn.

Cocoa Cake.

This recipe is excellent, economical and delicious. Don't put it away to try at some future date; try it now and I am sure you will paste it in your home-made cook book: One-qaurter cup butter, one cup sugar, one-half cup of cream or sour milk (I use buttermilk), one egg, one and one-half cups flour, two tablespoons cocoa, one small teaspoon soda, one-quarter cup butter, one cup sugar, the butter and sugar, add the sour milk and the soda dissolved in the hot water, then the flour to which has been added the cocoa, beat in the egg after half the flour has been added. Bake in layers or in one long pan and cut in the middle, put together with a filling.

Potato Salad.

Slice or cut in cubes plain boiled potatoes. For each cup of potato used chop or grate one small onion, one tablespoon chopped capers or pickles and a little chopped parsley. Add to a good salad dressing, half the amount of cream, a litle vinegar and one teaspoon of seasoning. Mix in the choped materials, then pour the dressing over the potatoes, tossing lightly with two forks to avoid smashing the potatoes.

Fried Cauliflower or Cabbage.

One head of cauliflower or cabbage, one egg, one-half-cupful milk, one-quarter teaspoonful salt, few grains pepper, fine, dry bread crumbs. Soak the cauliflower, head down, in cold, salted water to dislodge any possible insects; separate into flowerets, and parboil ten minutes. Drain till very dry on a cloth or paper toweling. Dip first in the egg slightly beaten and mixed with the milk, salt, and pepper, and then in the finely ground bread crumbs. Fry to a golden brown in deep fat hot enough to brown a bit of bread in forty seconds.

THE DOOR TO HEALTH

Is Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make

The blood is responsible for the health of the body. If it is good, disease cannot exist. If it is bad, the door is shut against good health, disease is bound to appear in one form or another. One person may be seized with rheumatism or sciatica, another with anaemia, indigestion, heart palpitation, headaches or backaches, unstrung nerves, or any of the many other forms of ailment that comes when the blood is weak and watery. There is just one certain, speedy cure—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They make new, rich, red blood, and this good blood strengthens the whole system and brings good health and happiness. Thousands owe their present good healthsome, life itself, to the pills. Mrs. Charles Goddard, Chatham, Ont., says:—"Four years ago my nervous system was so run down that life seemed nothing but a burden. I doctored for two years with little or no benefit. I could neither work, eat or sleep well. While in this condition a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before doing so I thought I would consult my doctor and he told me he knew of no better medicine for building up the nervous system. I started to take the pills for nearly three months and am thankful to say that they completely cured me. Ever since I have kept a box of the pills in the house but have not found it necessary to take them."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MORE SHELVES.

Convenient Places to Put Things Mean We Need a Carpenter.

Most of us accumulate things more rapidly than we accumulate places to put them. To those who live in flats and apartments and others in bungalows or cottages the old time attic is a thing of the past; hence the endless quest for convenient places to put things.

One thing is certain, and that is that it is well nigh impossible to keep the house in order where things must be kept in close quarters and that unless there is a place to spare for everything it is impossible to keep everything in its place.

Here shelves come to the rescue.

If there is a man in your family with any sort of knowledge of carpenter work or if you are somewhat of a dabster at hammer and nails yourself, you need not pay more for your shelves than the bare cost of the boards and the braces, screws and paint used to finish them.

If you are cramped for room for towels and bed linen it is a good idea to put up shelves in the bathroom. These might be made from two foot boards, the lowest one some six feet from the floor and the one above it a foot and a half higher. These shelves should be given a double coat of white paint and, if you choose, may be fitted with a white lawn curtain to keep the dust from the linen and to give a more complete appearance. By placing the shelf above the head line it does not interfere with the spacing of the bathroom.

SUPPORTED BY LABOR.

But there is no real reason that we can see why this daylight saving plan should not be put into operation. Undoubtedly physical and econimic betterment would result. It has been put in successful operation in England, France, Germany, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and is receiving the support of the American Federation of Labor in this country. There can be little doubt but that we waste much sunlight. In the good old summer time the country's workers would receive the maximum amount of sunshine, they would have more time for recreation, les work in the heat of the afternoons, under this plan. The manufacturer would have less lighting bills, his workers would be healthier, more efficient, more industrious and give better service. — Buffalo News.

WINCARNIS offers you the quickest, the surest, and the safest way to the new health you need when you are

Weak, Anaemic, Nervous, Run-down

WINCARNIS offers you new health! Think what this means to you. Instead of that out-of-sorts, nervous, run-down feeling, you can revel in the enjoyment of new and buoyant health. You feel well—eat well—work well—sleep well—and rise in the morning refreshed and vigorous, and feel your whole body pulsating with new life.

That is the new health Wincarnis offers you. Because Wincarnis is a Tonic, a Restorative, a Blood-maker and a Nerve Food—all in one. This four-fold power, acting upon the system at one time, enables Wincarnis to give new strength, new rich blood, new nerve force, and new vitality. And because Wincarnis does this, it is recommended by over 10,000 Doctors.

If you are weak, Wincarnis will give you new strength. If you are Anæmic, Wincarnis will give you new rich red blood. If you are nervous, Wincarnis will give you new nerve force. If you are run-down, Wincarnis will give you new vitality.

Knowing that, surely you will not continue to suffer needlessly. Remember, you begin to get well from the first day you commence to take Wincarnis. And each succeeding day you derive more strength, more rich blood, more nerve force, and more vitality, until soon your whole system becomes surcharged with a feeling of new life.

Then you can stop taking Wincarnis.

But you can still enjoy the new health Wincarnis has given you.

Wincarnis is not a luxury, but a positive necessity to all who are Weak, Anæmic, Nervous, Run-down—to all enfeebled by old age—to martyrs to Indigestion—to all Invalids—and to all who are depressed and "out-of-sorts."

Don't suffer needlessly. Take advantage of the new health Wincarnis offers you. But be sure you get Wincarnis—don't trust substitutes.

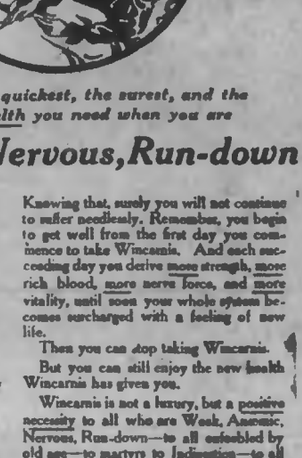
EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S COAT.

By Anabel Worthington.



Age has nothing to do with it when it comes to "coat styles." The designers see no reason why the children's models should not denote the semi-fitted or loose contour that is so well liked by their elders. Even the large novelty collar is a necessity, adaptable, however, for the little lady of fashion.

You see one of the best looking coats of the season when you look at this picture of a small girl's model. It has the required ripple fulness, unbelted to show the straight line effect. It will be following the style to enrich the collar with fur banding, or it may be made of velvet or plush.

The frill finish or a cuff will be correct for the sleeve and the buttons may be covered with material or velvet or plush if it be used in trimming. Bolivia cloth, Kersey and the like are suitable for a practical garment—also corduroy. For dress up, velvet will be smart, although velour and broadcloth make a number of the models displayed. At half the cost of a bought one you can make this from the pattern.

The coat pattern No. 8,085 cuts in sizes 2 to 8 years. To make in size 6 requires 2¾ yards 36 inch material.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

CANNIBALS MAKE MEALS OF SEVEN HUMAN BEINGS

A steamer arriving from the New Hebrides group, about 900 miles off the northeastern coast of Australia, has brought news of the murder of six persons by cannibals. The victims were a British trader named R. J. Bridges, and at least five children, whose were found fearfully mutilated with axes and knives, and another child, who is missing, is believed to have been carried off by the cannibals and feasted upon. The murderers were thought to have come from a village on Malekula Island, where there are tribes of cannibals who are bound by native custom to kill and eat a human being in order to keep up their rank.

The failure of the French and British punitive expeditions just before the outbreak of the European war to capture any of the perpetrators of similar crimes, and their immunity from punishment for two years past on account of the war, is thought recently to have emboldened the cannibals.

Child Was Nervous, Irritable, Tired Out

She Had No Appetite and Her Complexion Was Pale and Sallow

How many parents realize the strain which going to school means to the child who is naturally nervous and of delicate health?

You see them come from the schools daily with pale faces, many wearing glasses, and looking tired and worn. At home they are irritable, do not sleep well at nights, and are upset by a little extra excitement.

If they are to grow to healthy manhood and womanhood their systems must have attention now. Such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food does wonders for children in this condition. We are constantly receiving letters from grateful parents telling what the Nerve Food has done for their children. This one is a fair sample:

Mrs. Stephen Hartman, Italy Cross, Lunenburg Co., N.S., writes: "My little sister at eleven years of age became nervous, irritable and seemed all tired out. She had no appetite, was noticeable and it was wonderful plexion grew pale and sallow. Finally she had to keep her bed and have somebody with her all the time. She was afraid of everything, would get excited and tremble till the bed would shake. As she seemed to be getting worse under the doctor's treatment, mother decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. After she had used about four boxes, improvement was lifeless and drowsy and her come to see how much brighter and stronger she grew week by week. She used ten boxes altogether and they cured her. She got fat and rosy and went to school every day with an ambition that she never seemed to have before. I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to anyone, for it was indeed wonderful what it did for her."

Sunday Sermon For Those Who Do Not Go To Church

(By JAMES SUTHERLAND)

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

In St. Mark's Gospel, the 13th chapter, we have Christ's prophetic declaration more fully described. Our Lord's reply to the disciples' question does not so much satisfy their curiosity as direct their consciences, and he gives them the cautions that were needful with reference to the events that were shortly to come to pass. They were to take heed that they were not to be deceived by seducers and imposters that should soon arise neither were they to be disturbed at the rumours and reports of wars. They are not to be surprised at these things for they must needs be: God has a purpose and a plan which must be carried out. They were not to be afraid as if their interests were in danger or their work hindered by these things: neither were they to look upon it as an omen of the approaching period of the end of the world, for the end is not yet. There are other intermediate counsels to be fulfilled betwixt that and the end of all things. They must take heed that they are not drawn away by their sufferings from Christ.

Take heed to yourselves that ye be not deceived with the hopes of outward prosperity and a temporary kingdom when it is through many tribulations that you must enter the kingdom of God. You will be hated of all men for my name's sake—not for anything amiss in them nor for anything done amiss by them, but for Christ's sake, because they were called by his name and wrought miracles in his name. The world hated them because he loved them; their own relations betrayed them, imprisoned them, scourged them and put them to death, and in the midst of all these cruel sufferings and tortures and troubles the work was to be carried on and was to prosper in spite of all opposition.

Though they may be borne down and crushed the gospel will triumph; their sufferings instead of hindering the work will forward it. The gospel is a testimony to us concerning Christ and heaven. When they were brought before governors and kings they were to have special assistance from heaven to plead Christ's cause and their own. Those whom Christ calls out to be his advocates shall be furnished with full instructions, and when we are engaged in the service of Christ we may depend on the aid of the Spirit of Christ. Heaven at last will make amends for all our sufferings here. The salvation promised is more than a deliverance from evil; it is everlasting blessedness which shall be an abundant recompense for all our services and sufferings.

Referring again to the fulfillment of Christ's prophecy, the Jews in rebelling against the Romans and in persecuting the Christians hastened their own ruin apace; here we have a prediction of that ruin which came upon them within less than 40 years after this. See Matt. 24, 15.

The Roman armies should invest Jerusalem, the holy city. These were the abomination of desolation, and by which they should be made desolate. They had rejected Christ and now God brought upon them an abomination, that would be their desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet, Dan. 27, as that by which this sacrifice and offering should be made to cease.

This army stood where it ought not, in and about the Holy City, which the heathen ought not to have approached, nor should have been suffered to do. If Jerusalem had not first profaned the crown of her holiness.

Throughout all the country of the Jews there was such destruction and desolation made, such as had never before occurred in history. The destruction of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans was terrible, but this exceeded it. It threatened a universal slaughter of the Jews, but in the midst of of wrath God remembered mercy and he shortened the days before he made a full-end, but as a church and a nation the ruin was complete; but for the elect's sake the days were shortened. There was a promise that a remnant should be saved. Isa. 10, 22, And that God for his servants' sake would not destroy all. Isa. 65, 8, and these promises were fulfilled. The Christians fled to a city among the mountains, named Pella, in the half tribe of Manasseh, beyond Jordan. The eastern houses had flat roofs, which were places of frequent resort, so that the alarm of an invading army or intelligence of its movements would first be reported among the people there assembled. They would also from there perceive the approach of invaders. See Isa. 22, 1. From the tops of the houses in the east there commonly are stairs to the street on the outside of the building. Cestius Gallus appeared before Jerusalem but withdrew his army, about the end of Oct., A.D., 65.

The siege of Jerusalem by Titus began in April, A.D., 70. The first attack was on April 23. The wall of circumvallation was built June 2, 3, 4; the temple burned Aug. 5th, and the upper city taken Sept. 2nd.

There were many false prophets and false Christs from the time of our Lord's crucifixion to the destruction of the city, as we learn from Josephus, and even afterwards. The last and most mischievous called himself Barchochab, or son of the star, in allusion to Balaam's prophecy. His rebellion was suppressed by Adrian with great slaughter and occasioned the final expulsion of the Jews from Judea, A.D., 135. The disciples in their question had confounded the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of the world. This mistake Christ rectifies, and shows that the day of Christ's coming and the day of judgment shall be after that tribulation. Here he foretells the final dissolution of the present frame and fabric of the world; also the visible appearance of the Lord Jesus. They shall see the Son of Man coming in the clouds, the gathering together of all the elect to him.

When Jerusalem shall be reduced to ashes and the Jewish church destroyed God shall send his ministers to carry the gospel to the ends of the earth. As to the destruction of Jerusalem, expect it to come soon. When second causes begin to work ye expect their effects in proper order and time, so when ye see these things come to pass—when ye see the Jewish nation embroiled in war—distracted by false Christs, and drawing upon themselves the displeasure of the Romans—when they are persecuting you for your Master's sake, and thereby filling up the cup of their iniquity—then say that their ruin is nigh, even at the door, and provide for your safety accordingly.

Heaven and earth shall pass away at the appointed time but my word shall not pass away. As to the end of the world, do not inquire when it will come, for of that day and of that hour knoweth no man. At present men and angels are kept ignorant concerning the precise time that they both may attend to their proper services in the present day. It follows—neither the son—but is there anything which the Son is ignorant of—it is certain, says Tillotson, that Christ as God could not be ignorant of anything; but the divine wisdom which dwelt in our Saviour communicated itself to his human soul, according to the divine pleasure so that his human nature sometimes might not know some things, therefore Christ is said to grow in wisdom Luke 2, 52, which he could not be said to do if the human nature of Christ did necessarily know all things by virtue of its unity with the divinity.

Yours sincerely,
James Sutherland,
352 1-2 Water street, Peterborough.

To Reduce Your Weight Easily and Quickly

If you are over-stout the cause of your over-stoutness is lack of oxygen-carrying power in the blood and faulty assimilation of food. Too little is being made into the harder tissue of muscle and too much into little globules of fat. Therefore you should correct the mal-assimilation, and increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. To do this, go to any good druggist and get all of orlene, only sold in original packages and in capsule form, and take one capsule after each meal and one at bedtime till your weight is reduced to what it should be on all parts of the body. The effect of oil of orlene in capsule form is remarkable as a weight reducer and it is perfectly safe.—E.J.T.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00, by money order or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1240, Montreal, Canada.

AT THE FRONT WITH THE ARTILLERY

French Roads are Good Even During a Season of Incessant Rain, Says "Gordon Furrow" — Watching the Movies in a French Town.

The weather is now almost springlike, very much the same as we have during a mild March at home. The thermometer ranges around fifty degrees during the day and thirty degrees to forty degrees at night, and we have not had much rain lately.

The roads in all those parts of Belgium and France which we have traversed are simply wonderful. After weeks of incessant rain in October and November the mud was not more than two inches deep on the roadways. Of course French roads are much better attended to than are our roads at home.

An Artillery Man's Day.

Have been back at the waggon lines again for about two weeks, and find it quite comfortable being here. In the morning we rise at 6 o'clock and fall in for stable duty at 6.15. Each man leads a couple of horses about a quarter of a mile to water, then grooms the animals a little and feeds up. Breakfast is at 7.30, and this, like all our meals, is good and well cooked. The meals should be good, too, as they are prepared by a graduate of the University of Toronto. We fall in once more at 9, take the horses out for exercise, riding them saddled until 10.30. Then we water them again, following this by grooming for about an hour in readiness for noon inspection. We feed at 12 o'clock and have our own dinners immediately afterwards. We next get our mail, fall in once more at 2 p.m. and clean harness until 3.45 p.m. Next comes evening "stables," which covers watering the horses, giving them a slight rubbing down, drying their feet and feeding hay and oats. We break off at five for supper, when we are through for the day.

Fighting a Side Chore.

As for the fighting, that is left for the forty or so of the gunners up at the gun positions. We take turns at that little chore once a fortnight. All the drivers have to do is to take one team a day to the front with mail and provisions, and as there are forty-five there to take turns at the job it is not a bad sort of life for them.

During the winter the war is a secondary consideration and our social life consists in going to a fairly large town a couple of hundred yards away, seeing the pictures at the Y. M. C. A., watching the natives, having feeds at any of the farmhouses where we are known, and writing letters in the large living room under the attic in which we are billeted. This room is dry, clean, and just warm enough to keep the air dry. We have the run of this living-room in our leisure hours. It is a bright, airy room with open fireplace.

Merely a Distributing Agent.

You should have seen the way my last box of candy was received by our sub-section; there are 15 men in this bunch. Such boxes have been arriving rather slowly since the Christmas avalanche and as a consequence their value has gone about 500 points above par. A young chap from Sarnia, a very popular fellow, brought in my parcel and then sat down on the bench beside me in the harness room. As he produced a knife he said he knew the handwriting in the address. "I know those candies," he said, and told me to get busy on the opening. A bit insinuating, you see, but it shows how popular the sender of the box has become as a candy artist. The other fellows joined in a calculation as to the time it had taken to make the confections and the conclusion was unanimous reached, that was unanimous save for one dissenting voice, that, as I was wholly unworthy of so much trouble, I must have been intended merely as the medium of distribution. Say, those candies were good—very, very good; the combination of nuts, fruits, chocolate and sugar made of life, for the time being—a very short time, by the way—one glad sweet song.

A PIMPLY FACE OR POOR COMPLEXION QUICKLY RESTORED

Thousands of young men and women would be handsome ad attractive were it not for unsightly pimples, blackheads, and rough uneven skin. Custom seems to recommend lotions and salves, but unfortunately their effect is but temporary. These disfiguring blemishes do not originate in the skin—their birth in every case goes further back, to the blood, which must be cleansed of humors before the pimples depart for good.

A physician who has made a careful study of such cases, says that the quickest cure comes from a blood-building medicine like Ferrozone. The minute Ferrozone strikes the blood its good work begins. Poisons and foul matter are expelled. Every trace of humor is driven out, and the whole life current is supplied with nutriment and health-giving qualities. You can always tell a Ferrozone complexion when you see it—the cheeks are clear and rosy, no signs of sallowness—the eyes are bright and expressive because rich, red blood is circulating through the whole system carrying health, energy, and strength with it. Not only will all skin eruptions disappear, but an increase in vital strength, an all-round improvement will be apparent. No rebuilding tonic could be more efficient. Get Ferrozone to-day—Good for young and old, for well folks and sick ones, too. 50c. per box, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

WOMEN NOT ALLOWED SAIL

Several With Children Removed From Liner at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 223.—A number of women and children about to sail for England were removed from an Atlantic liner here this morning under the regulation which prevents this class of passenger going to the British Isles at this time. They were repaid their passage money.

Several of the women, with their children, had come from Vancouver, while one man and his family travelled from Australia. Most of the women come from Ontario and Quebec and had sold their homes.

First, a fully paid up Policy of $4045.00 payable at death.

Where can a man take $89.30 per year for 10 years and invest it to ANY OTHER WAY and produce an immediate estate of $4045.00 in case of death?

Or he could withdraw $905.55 which you will notice is more than he paid in, ALL TOLD, and still retain a FREE paid up participating policy of $1000.00, payable at death; thus his dollars did two things at the same time,—carried the risk, and gave a FREE POLICY and he saved his money for himself too.

Or he could have drawn $1266.80 in cash, which was $373.80 more than he paid in, or a return of over $141 for every hundred he paid, besides having had free protection for the past fifteen years.

HONESTLY NOW does not that look pretty good to you.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Just at what hour and minute Deacon Bradley fell in love with the Widow Ludden has been preserved on the records. It was twenty minutes after 2 o'clock on a summer's day.

The deacon was a farmer and a widower, living about two miles from the village of Strongville. He had been a widower for three years and had no idea of falling in love and marrying again. His daughter, Martha, kept house for him.

The deacon was out mowing grass from the fence corner when his scythe blade struck a stone, and the point was broken off about six inches. When it was discovered what had taken place the deacon shouted out:

"Gosh all hemlock! But I went and broke my scythe, and I'll have to pay a dollar for a new one! I've got to get even with somebody to pay for this."

His daughter sat on the back steps in the shade, and she laughed at his words. When he returned to the house he was asked:

"Goin' to town to get a new blade, pap?"

"No, I hain't," he replied. "I'm goin' to town to ask the Widder Ludden to marry me."

"Awful sudden, isn't it?"

"Yes, pretty sudden."

The Widow Ludden was not wealthy, but she had enough to get along with. She was peeling potatoes at the kitchen door when she saw him drive up. She noticed that he looked rather spruce and wondered what business could have brought him there. She soon found out. The deacon came around the house, and after a few remarks about the dry weather and the tater bugs he blurted out:

"Widder, I hit a stone with the p'int of my scythe this afternoon and broke the darned old tool beyond repair. At the minute I hit the stone I thought of you. Rather curious, don't you think?"

"Yes, it was rather odd," replied the widow.

"I kinder took it that it was the hand of Providence. You see, widder, you are alone in the world, and so am I."

"Yes," sighed the widow.

"How much better it would be if we were together instead of apart?"

"Deacon Bradley, that sounds to me like an offer of marriage, but surely you don't mean it so?"

"Darned if I don't!" was the exclamation. She dropped a potato.

"Well," said the widow as she regained the potato, "you might as well get into your buggy and drive back home and forget all about the hand of Providence. I don't believe that Providence works that way."

"Waal, maybe she don't," muttered the deacon, and he walked out to the street and climbed into his vehicle and rode off home.

When the deacon had called five or six times more the Widow Ludden spoke to the constable about it and complained that the deacon was annoying her. The constable warned the deacon to haul off the chase, but received the reply:

"I am doin' nothin' agin the law. I want to marry the widder, and I am doin' my best to win her."

At length he took to calling nights—that is, he walked up and down in front of the house and even in the garden. Of course, all this provoked gossip, and the widow got so angry about it that she had him brought before the justice of the peace for making a nuisance of himself. When the justice had heard both sides of the story he said:

"My friends, I don't like to make a court case out of this. Deacon Bradley, do you think it is fair to annoy Mrs. Ludden in this way?"

"Land o' love, jedge, but I wouldn't annoy her for the world!" was the reply. "Why, I'd have my right hand cut off afore I'd do any sich thing. She don't seem to understand how much I love her."

"Widow," said the judge as he turned to her, "Did the deacon ever court you?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "He came in slambang and said he ought to marry."

"He did, eh? That's no way to win a woman. If he had come courting in the regular way, as I and most men had to court, would you have looked upon him with more favor?"

The widow mused for a moment and then replied:

"He never even squoze my hand!"

"But I wanted to bad enough!" half shouted the deacon. "I wanted to squeeze and squeeze and squeeze, but I didn't have the spunk. If the widder will let me begin over agin"—

"Deacon Bradley," said the judge, "you are an honest, upright man. You are well off. You are lonely. The only trouble with you is that you don't know how to court a woman."

And then he turned to the widow and said:

"Widow Ludden, it seems that the deacon is a little slow, but I am satisfied that he loves you and will make you a good husband. Why don't you two try it all over again and see if you can't come out all right?"

They two left the judge's office in company, and that very night they began all over again, and in less than six weeks there was a wedding, and the justice said to himself:

"The law may be a mighty good thing, but common sense is a heap better."

Compromising With Conscience.

On the staff of a Toronto daily paper there is an advertising man who is Scotch and a Presbyterian and holds views in accord with such an inheritance of race and religion. It so happened that he was sent out to get an advertisement from a tobacco dealer who was starting a new store on Yonge street, Toronto, and was making an advertising splash. It also so happened that the advertising man did not approve of the smoking habit. He was in a quandary. What should he do? Take an advertisement that his conscience told him was likely to result in the spread of an evil habit? It was a tough tug on his Presbyterian principles, but his Scotch thrift could not permit him to pass up the advertisement altogether. So he compromised with his conscience. He went to the tobacco dealer, and made a contract with him for a ten-line space—just big enough to be noticed. He would not take a big display advertisement. He undertook to write the advertisement for the tobacco man, and the latter's amazement may be better imagined than described when the advertisement appeared, as follows:

"If you WILL smoke—have the best," etc.

After that the dealer wrote his own advertisements.

Great Generals, but Bad Shots.

Curiously enough, although good shooting on the part of the rank and file is all important for success in warfare, two of the greatest generals in history were notably bad shots. The only time Napoleon went out game shooting he killed one of the dogs, and Wellington's record on a similar occasion proved even worse.

Lady Shelley records in her diary on Sept. 8, 1819, when the duke was staying at her place in Sussex, that she accompanied the guns in the afternoon. "The hero of Waterloo was a very wild shot. After wounding a retriever and later on peppering a keeper's gaiters he sprinkled the bare arms of an old woman who chanced to be washing clothes at her cottage window. 'My good woman,' I said, 'this ought to be the proudest moment of your life. You have had the distinction of being shot by the Duke of Wellington.' • • • Her face was wreathed in smiles as the contrite duke slipped a gold coin into her hand."—Pall Mall Gazette.

Easily Settled.

"Coming over on an ocean liner from England a few years ago," said a New Yorker, "an argument had arisen among us as to which was the more simple of the two currency systems, dollars and cents, or pounds, shillings and pence. At last, the captain arriving, we decided to refer the matter to him and surrender our judgment to his arbitration.

The captain, an Englishman of the very stolid sort, after a period of reflection replied very slowly and with all the gravity of a judge:

"Pounds, shillings and pence is the simpler system, for don't you know that when you are told the price of a thing in dollars and cents you always have to convert it into pounds, shillings and pence."

There was a little objection to this theory, but in general it was perfectly satisfactory so long as the voyage lasted.

Submarine Cables.

The first cable successfully laid extended from Valentia island, off the coast of Ireland, to Heart's Content, Newfoundland, about 2,000 miles. The cable was landed on the American side on Aug. 5, 1858, but was not ready for use till Aug. 16. About 700 short messages were sent through it, but it entirely failed within a month. The fact was demonstrated, however, that direct communication under the ocean was possible, although few persons at that time believed that a submarine telegraph could be used for business purposes. Cyrus W. Field, to whose enterprise was due the laying of the first cable, thought differently. Not discouraged by this and other failures, he continued the work he had planned, interested London capitalists in it, and in 1863 succeeded in establishing submarine communication, which has never been interrupted.

Why The Top Is Smaller

With the normal individual, the neck slopes gradually inward from the base.

To give a perfect fit a collar must, therefore, taper slightly towards the top. That is one reason why we make W. G. & R. collars slightly smaller at the top than at the buttonhole length.

Another reason is that the bottom of a collar should naturally be larger to go around the base of the neck and around the neck band of the shirt.

It only needs a comparison on the neck with other makes to demonstrate the superiority of W.G. & R. collars. W.G. & R. collars fit neater and look smarter.

Dickens at the Bar.

The English courts once had a real Dickens trial scene. It was in 1868, in the course of a case before Baron Huddleston, that Mr. Dickens, counsel for the defendant, astonished the court by announcing that he proposed to call Mr. Pickwick as a witness. And the gentleman called was a descendant of the Moses Pickwick whose name on the coach filled Sam Weller with a desire to "whop" some one for taking liberties with the name of his master.

What One Public School Has Accomplished In Way of Encouraging Home Gardening Among Its Pupils

Miss Moffat at Bolton Avenue Public School, Toronto Tells "Examiner Readers" how the Children were Taught to Interest Themselves in the Growth of Vegetables and Flowers. Movement began some Years Ago and has been carried on ever since. Emphasis has been Placed on Vegetables since the Beginning of the War. What can be done by School Children can be done by the Citizens generally and must be done if Country is going to Answer the Call for a greater production.

With the cost of living daily increasing and the Government calling on the people of Canada for a greater production, the people of Peterborough should begin to seriously consider the possibilities and advantages of home gardening. Nearly every home in Peterborough has a back yard which might, with a little attention and care, be developed into a vegetable garden, helping to solve the high cost of living. The Examiner will print from time to time articles containing much useful information on this important subject, and to-day we publish an article by Miss Margaret D. Moffatt, of the Bolton Avenue Public School, Toronto, telling of the manner in which a love for home gardening was developed among the pupils of that school. Miss Moffatt has very kindly supplied this information at the request of the Examiner, and her paper will be followed by others.

"In 1909 seven teachers of the Bolton Avenue School attended the summer class in agriculture and horticulture at the Ontario Agricultural College," says Miss Moffatt. "When they returned to school they resolved to make use of their training as far as they could in future school work. As the playground was too small, even for play, for the seven hundred children in attendance, school-gardening was out of the question.

In the spring of 1910 the pupils were asked to measure and obtain the dimensions of their back yards and to ask their parents for a small plot of their very own in the sunniest spot of the yard, in which to grow something. The pupils were instructed how to fertilize and prepare the ground and how to sow the seed. They were given lessons on kinds of soil, movement of water in the soil, plant-food, air and sunlight. There were also lessons in weed recognition. Each class was assigned one kind of vegetable to be grown. In that way children of each class were getting the same experience and doing the same observing. However, we have never had enough children in any class doing gardening, to make garden experience general enough for school work. This has discouraged us.

In August two of the teachers inspected the plots. They found that conditions proved the necessity for that kind of work. They sent the names of the best plots to the School Gardens' Committee of the Toronto Horticultural Society. The committee examined these and awarded a silver and a bronze medal to the two best plots.

In September, 1910, a fair was held at school, at which the children exhibited their flowers and vegetables. In this the teachers had the interest and practical support of the Toronto Horticultural Societ. The T. H. S., each year since, assigns flowers and vegetables to be grown by Third and Fourth Class children, sends printed instructions to each child, assists teachers in inspecting and judging children's gardens, and awards prizes for their products at the annual fair. Plots are judged on these points:

1. Freedom from weeds.
2. Pulverized soil.
3. Quantity of produce obtained from seed.
4. Blossoms of annuals prevented from going to seed.
5. Vegetables thinned to proper distance.
6. Fence decoration. The best place for squash is on a fence. Tack the vine to the fence and tie the fruit to the fence.

Riverdale business men helped last year by sending "The Country Gentleman" (weekly) to each teacher during May and June for class use. It has a page devoted to Children's Gardens.

Funds are now forthcoming to School Boards from the Birrell Bill for Gardening. The Board must employ teachers with with certificates in agriculture, of which there are now numbers throughout the province. Write the Department of Education for information.

Teachers are too busy people for the work of plot inspection. It should be done several times in the summer, and as July is the growing month, teachers are away. It is easy to employ a student from the O.A.C. for that purpose from May till October. We are hoping that will be done in Toronto before a great while. To make the work of school gardening of greatest value to children and worth while to the teacher, there should be a garden in connection with the school.

This is our experience. During the war, of course, the emphasis is to be placed upon vegetables."

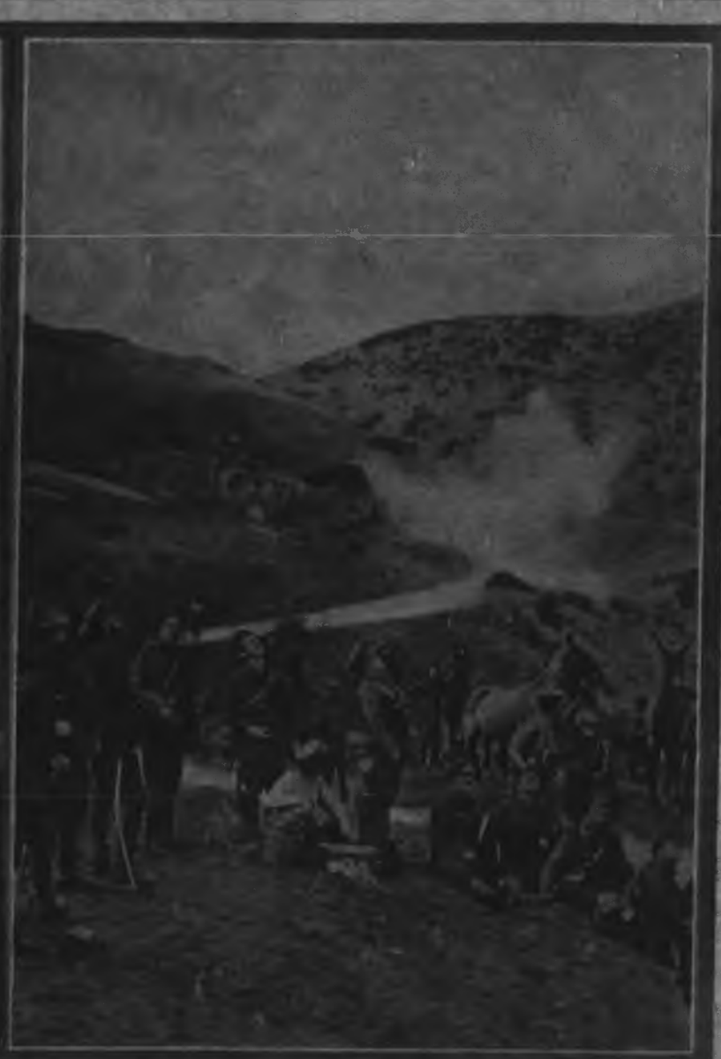
More About Mines : Brother vs. Brother : Washington Prepares for the Coming Ordeal

Men of the Italian navy engaged in laying mines. All the mines are in readiness to be rolled overboard. One has just been dropped off the back.

Brother captures brother. A Pole serving in the Russian Brigade in France made prisoner his own brother, who had been forced into the German army.



Watching a hostile aeroplane drop bombs. One has just landed a little shy of its mark. This picture was taken at Saloniki.

Behind this hill lie the Bulgars. French soldiers waiting for the signal to charge in one of the Serbian campaign battles. (Picture to the right.)

This picture shows a German aeroplane observer, who, together with his machine, was brought down over Saloniki.

Washington is preparing for the inauguration of President Wilson. Immense stands are being built to accommodate the expected crowds.

Comparable to Ancient Rome is the Splendor of Modern Rio De Janeiro

Little is heard about Rio de Janeiro, it has played little in worldwide affairs, and spoken contemptuously of by many as merely "a South American City." It has an excellent harbor, exemplary municipal government, a good climate, and easily holds its own among the most beautiful cities of ancient and modern times. The photograph above amply justifies these statements. It is the Municipal Theatre, said to be the costliest structure of its kind, the outlay being over ten million dollars. The picture next to this is only one of the numerous gorgeous residences. The sidewalks are inlaid with very artistic designs.

The city cuddles at the foot of great guardian mountains. From above and below the view is magnificent. One looking up into bright green slopes. They seem to be pillars holding up the eternal blue sky. The other looking into neighboring heights and downwards over an expanse of ocean and on to the roofs of a mighty city. Man built this metropolis, but nature smiled very kindly, indeed.

The Brazilian "White House," laid off in surroundings befitting its dignity. Tall palms grace the driveway, and a huge mountain looms up behind. Politics in this republic are not quite so strenuous as in other nations, but nevertheless it is a very interesting country.

Not Regent Street, not Fifth Avenue, nor Rue de Rivoli. Like them all, yet different is this thoroughfare, the Avenido Rio Branco. It has an air of its own, and perhaps it is only geographical difficulties that relegate it to the background, for surely it has a claim to the gay and festive seasons which all European capitals abound in. The Monroe Palace, a reproduction of the Brazilian Palace at the St. Louis Exposition, 1904, shown above, is the headquarters for functions, ceremonies, inaugurations and state occasions, and the hinges on the massive doors don't get rusty either, and the windows are always clean. Although a thing of beauty it is also a thing of duty. Those Brazilian folks love lavish display and romance, and well they may, for have they not a romantic city?

GERMANY BULLYING HOLLAND BECAUSE LATTER CAN MAKE NO EFFECTIVE PROTEST

Sinking of 33,000 Tons of Dutch Merchant Marine Has Caused Painful Sensation in United States ---Interventionists Ask Wilson to Do Something For the Protection of Fellow-Neutrals Who Cannot Help Themselves.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 24.—(Special)—A painful sensation was caused here by the news to-day that Germany had sunk thirty-three thousand tons of Holland's merchant ships yesterday. It is realized that Germany is bullying little Holland on sea, because the Dutch can make no effectual protest, with the big German army and German guns bristling on her frontiers.

LONDON, February 24.—The seven Dutch ships were sunk at the eastern approaches of the English Channel. Four were homeward bound, with full cargoes. It was authoritatively stated that all arrangements for their passage through the war zone were in the hands of the Dutch authorities. Neither the Dutch Government or the ship owners requested or received assistance from the British Admiralty as to their courses.

Interventionists in the press and Congress are to-day pointing out this fact to President Wilson. They demand to know if it isn't about time for the United States to do something tangible for the protection of fellow "neutrals," who dare not "make a squeak" for themselves. It is believed here now that German submarine commanders have specific instructions to forget their "sink everything" instructions when they see a United States ship in the barred zone. Only two small American ships have been sunk since February 1st, and forty-nine of other and smaller neutrals.

LONDON, February 24.—Dutch despatches say that the strike in the Krupp factories in Essen is constantly extending, according to Les Nouvelles. Forty thousand workers are now on strike due to the lack of food, and that disturbances have occurred at Aix-La-Chapelle, from the same cause. The police asked for the intervention of troops who, it is said, refused to act.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 24.—Japanese despatches say that an armed merchantman is raiding commerce in the Indian Ocean, and has sunk two British steamers southwest of Colombo.

AMSTERDAM, February 24.—Germany's war taxes are increased by one-fifth in the war revenue bill just introduced in the Reichstag. This increase is to be raised to release money for the new war credit recently announced.

BORDEAUX, February 24.—The American steamer Rochester was expected to dock here this evening, having safely passed through the barred zone.

BERLIN, February 24.—Only two men survived out of one thousand troops aboard the Italian transport steamer Minas, sunk by a German submarine in the Mediterranean.

PARIS, February 24. —A French detachment penetrated the German lines in the Vosges, north of Senones, to-day's official statement announced.

An attempted German raid this morning on French lines near Wissembach was defeated.

Believe She Has a Great Future —Has Wonderful Singing Powers

Miss Myrtle Sucee of Peterborough, proved she was one of Canada's coming sopranos to an audience of seventeen hundred people at Bond St. Congregational Church, Toronto, on Sunday evening, February 18th. Miss Sucee displayed wonderful talent and delighted Dr. Harvey Robb, the choir leader of the church, who congratulated her on her exceptionally sweet voice, and added that she was the sweetest singer he had had the pleasure of hearing, and predicted a great future for her if she continued to progress the way she was doing now. Different musicians in the audience expressed the wish to hear her soon again.

Old Familiar Hymns At Murray Street Baptist Church

Mr. Asa Huycke, choirmaster of Murray Street Baptist Church, evidently realizes that one avenue of approach to a Sunday evening congregation lies through an appeal to associations hallowed by memories of childhood and early life. For, besides the usual anthem, his choir has been rendering, each Sunday evening, some old familiar hymn, such as "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Hymns of the Village Choir." Tomorrow evening they will sing "Steal Away to Jesus."

Wholesale Produce Men Ask Government For Egg Standard

Following the recent convention of the Canadian Produce Association in Montreal, at which Mr. Wm. Scott was present, a large deputation of the members went to Ottawa, presenting to Hon. Mr. Burrell a resolution concerning the Canadian egg trade. It requested legislation to provide and legalize standards for all Canadian eggs and to provide such inspection as may be necessary to enforce such legislation and to issue Government certificates if required. Also, that there be regulations against the sale of eggs unfit for food, making due allowance for reasonable deterioration as provided in accepted standards, and that the necessary legislation be enacted during the present session of Parliament.

TRAVELLERS SAY THAT THE HOTELS NEED IMPROVEMENTS

Deputation Wait Upon Ontario License Board to Urge That Reforms Should Be Made in Many Standard Hotels in the Province

THE CHANGE QUESTION

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—A deputation of the Commercial Travellers' Association discussed with the Ontario Board of License Commissioners to-day needed reforms in the conducting of standard hotels to meet the needs of the travelling public.

W. J. Moody, chief spokesman, stated that many standard hotel men in Ontario were obeying regulations, but there were others who were not.

The deputation's suggestion that the Board should regulate the prices to be charged by the hotels met a cold reception. Chairman Flavelle stated that the Board was not disposed to do this, but if a report was made that any hotel man was making excessive charges, the Board would investigate.

Mr. Flavelle stated the Board wanted to see fair treatment accorded the commercial men, but it also desired not to impose too great burdens upon the hotel men when they were making an honest effort to prove whether standard hotels could be made a paying investment.

German Spy Scare In Munition Plant

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 24.—The great Eddystone ammunition works, employing 20,000 men, was the scene of a "German spy" scare to-day, when George Koob, an inspector, was arrested, charged with tampering with the gauge of loaded shells leaving the finishing department.

The plant has extensive contracts for munitions for Russia.

Koob started to work in the plant about two weeks ago. He is a German detective.

CANADIAN GENERALS AT FRONT EMPHASIZE NEED OF MORE MEN

Messages From General Sir Julien Byng, Commanding the Canadians, General Currie, General Ketchen and General Rennie Received by Capt. J. H. Burnham—Major Campbell, Chief Recruiting Officer, Here Tuesday—To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Below The Examiner prints a number of messages from Canadian Generals at the front, including one from General Sir Julian Byng himself. These have been received by Capt. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in regard to Capt. Burnham's recruiting pamphlet "Don't See Us Stuck," copies of which were sent to the heads of Canada's army in France. Three of the letters were manuscript, an evidence of the interest which these officers are taking in the matter of recruiting.

The messages are as follows:

From Sir Julian Byng, Commanding the Canadians in France:—

I must thank you very sincerely for the copy of the recruiting pamphlet entitled "Don't See Us Stuck." I have read it carefully and I cannot conceive any literature more likely to induce young men to make the sacrifice. To my mind it is the most inspiring, healthy and accurate document I have read. With my very best wishes.

From General Rennie:—

Many thanks for your note of the 13th with enclosure which I have read with interest. I do hope there will not be any failure on the part of those at home to keep us supplied with men. Canada has done splendidly, but we may yet require many more.

From General A. W. Currie, 1st Canadian Division:—

I acknowledge, with thanks, receipt of the pamphlet you issued in aid of recruiting. I have read your message through carefully and with much interest. I am quite sure it will have good results. No doubt you intend to follow it up by others.

I congratulate you on the title you have given it. You have certainly hit the nail on the head when you say "Don't See the Boys Stuck."

From Brigadier-General Ketchen:—

I must thank you for sending me the copy of "Don't See Us Stuck." It is a most appropriate message, and I hope it will meet with the response it deserves. We cannot build our "house" without a solid foundation—the "house" in this case being our Canadian corps, and the "foundation" the necessary men to keep it up to its necessary fighting strength. As you already know there are quite enough difficulties for our men in the fighting line to surmount without any additional ones being added to them, and if our people at home don't turn out they will be adding a greater burden to our "lads" and their own "lads" in the trenches. I feel sure that if this was thoroughly known to all that it would certainly never be able to be said that our able-bodied men at home had let us get "stuck."

The determination of our troops to win out and decisively so with honour in this war was never greater than at present. This spirit is marvellous, and our people at home may be assured that nothing but the lack of men to see us through will ever let us down. We are all, however, depending (without any doubts that they will back us up in this as in all other things) on our Canadian men at home coming forward to keep us going in the numbers that we need to carry through successfully our share in the task now before us. It is an old established fact that anything that is worth doing at all is worth doing right. Our Canadians, together with troops from every portion of our Empire, are engaged in a task that is worth doing, and it can only be done "right" by the full and unfailing support from home in the way of men. It is now up to the Canadians at home to ensure this. As they depend on us out here we also depend upon them. So it is a case of co-operation.

I hope that the effort you are now all making will meet with the great measure of success we all desire.

Private Ray Nelson of the 5th C. M. R., sent the following letter to his mother, Park Street:

France, Jan. 11th, 1917.

My Dear Mother,—I thought I would drop you a few lines again when I had time to write. Well, mother, I am living pretty high just at present I guess I told you I got a box from Aunt Massie, and one from Mrs. Armstrong, and a dandy one from Mrs. D. Johnston. She sent me two pairs of home-knit socks, besides lots of other things. I enjoyed it very much, indeed, but Mother, I am going to ask you to send me a pair of small scissors, just the medium size. I can't get any over here and they are just the thing I need the very worst, to cut the bandages. I have a Jack-knife, but it is a poor rig and the scissors they give you aren't worth anything —they won't cut butter; and mother if it is not too much bother, send me some gum camphor. How is everybody in Peterborough? Are they going to build the Quaker Oats again? How is that big Battalion coming along, anyway? Is it as big as the 93rd? Well, mother, I was to Church twice Sunday. I went in the forenoon, and Bob Tanner and I went to Church at night. They hold Church in a Y.M.C.A. hut, and I went again Monday night. I have been three times to Holy Communion. When a person is over here fighting they have to come down to it. I heard the greatest sermon Sunday I think I ever heard in my life. The Minister has been here three winters, and he says the only way we can win this war is to get down on our knees and pray, and he says everybody in Canada ought to do the same. I think the same as he does, too. He says the people in Canada are too fresh and they will have to come to it before the war ends. Well, mother, I think I have told you all the news around here. I sent you a handkerchief in the last letter. Hope you get it alright. It will be a little keepsake, any way. Well, I think I will close for this time. Write soon. Remember me to all.

From your loving son,
RAY.

LAST WEEK HAS BEEN LIKE CALM BEFORE A STORM

There is a Feeling in the Air, Felt by All of the Belligerents Apparently, That the Enemy Armies Will Be in a Death Grapple Any Day

MILLIONS ARE WAITING

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, Feb. 24.—The week that has just passed may be best described as one of painful suspense, as a calm before a storm. There has been that deceptive pause which would ordinarily foretell of an outburst which precedes a devastating thunderstorm.

On all the fronts, but more especially where the armies of England, France and Belgium are facing the German forces in the West, there is a feeling in the air, felt by all of the belligerents, apparently, that the enemy armies will be in a death grapple any day.

Millions of men are waiting, with an unusual feeling of unrest, for the signal which will send them forth to clutch at the throats of their enemies, and yet through it all there is a strong feeling that on this great portending struggle will rest the most decisive result of the war.

Germany is apparently watching with tigerish passion the fight between the German submarine fleets and the merchantmen of the world, which are seeking to bring food and supplies to the Entente countries, and along the stage already crowded with Titanic figures, stalks Ireland, demanding the attention of Great Britain's leaders and her own immediate liberation. Thus, though there is outwardly but little excitement in England and blessings of an early peace come only from a discredited group of cranks, inwardly there is a feeling everywhere of the great anxiety and the most painful suspense.

LLOYD GEORGE EMERGES

From this whole crowded state of national affairs, there emerges Lloyd George, as the man bearing the chief responsibility. He it was that called the first conference of the sailors of all countries to discuss the submarine situation. He cut through the enormous tangle into which food supply conflicts between the different

MORE LUMBERMEN NEEDED

Examiner Special:

LONDON, Feb. 24. — The Official Gazette to-night gives a list of articles the importation of which is prohibited. The decree takes effect to-day. The list includes agricultural machinery, boots and shoes of leather, raw fruits (except lemons and oranges), hides, leather, gloves, glass manufactures, linen and yarns and manufactures thereof, canned lobsters and salmon, manufactured silk and skins, furs, food articles contaning sugar (except condensed milk), tomatoes, typewriters, wine of all kinds, wood and timber.

Other Articles Barred.

Other commodities specified are: Aerated, mineral and table waters, antimony wares, apparel not waterproofed, works of art, baskets and bamboo basket ware, books, other printed matter, including posters and daily, weekly and other periodicals exceeding sixteen pages in length; materials for the manufacture of leather boots and shoes, brandy, clocks and parts thereof, cloisonne war, raw cocoa and preparations thereof, coffee, cotton hosiery, cotton lace and articles thereof, curios, diatomine and infusional earth, embroidery and needlework, fancy and ornament feathers and down, fire extinguishers, flowers (artificial and trade), hats and bonnets, incandescent gas mantels, jew mats and matting, mops, painter's colours and pigments, perfumery, photographic apparatus, pictures, prints, engravings, photographs and maps, plated and gilt wares, live quails, quebracho, hemlock, oak and mangrove extracts, rum, soya beans, stereoscopes straw envelopes for bottles and straw plaiting, tea.

Both wet and dry hides and dressed and undressed leather are included. Silk yarns are exempted. The prohibitions do not apply to goods imported under licenses given by the Board of Trade.

The country has large supplies of coffee, tea and cocoa.

More Lumbermen Needed.

Premier Lloyd George announced that the United Kingdom would endeavour to depend upon its own resources for timber, which heretofore largely had been imported, the chief obstacle to its production being an insufficient force of skilled workmen for cutting and finishing it.

It was announced that in deciding what commodities should be excluded from the United Kingdom in order to economize in tonnage the Government had to take into account the interests of the allies. Threatened restrictions aroused immediate protests from France, as the imports from that country of mineral waters, wines, brandy, silks, needlework and of all kinds of garments and luxuries, such as bonnets, feathers and flowers, represent a considerable income to the French producers.

Much Wins in Britain.

The power given the Board of Trade to issue special licenses, however, may be freely exercised in behalf of the allies of Great Britain, as ships taking munitions and other supplies to France and Italy have ample tonnage to bring return cargoes. There are now heavy stocks of French wines in Britain.

American firms dealing in typewriters and photographic apparatus almost monopolize the British market, but have factories here. The importation of American boots and shoes, once heavy, has decreased greatly in the last decade.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, FEB. 24, 1917

PETERBOROUGH, PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

Peterborough's present, past and future, are so intimately related, dependent and sequent, that they very fittingly formed a prominent feature of the critical, informing and suggestive oratory—for some of it was oratory, even if in small instalments—at the Mayor's big little dinner on Thursday night.

Among the best of the speeches made on the occasion, if not the best, in concise, exact information, was that of the Mayor himself, whose exposition of the city finances, indicating the creditable financial standing of the city, was instructive and comparatively satisfactory. He, however, held out no hope of a possibility of a reduction of the tax rate unless something like a "boom" in building and growth of population comes.

Our tax rate comes high, but it is lower than many other towns, and we should be willing to meet it, especially in view of what the past has done for us. Our tax rate, insofar as it is contributed to by meeting indebtedness for past improvements, does not represent any foolish or unfortunate bonusing or investments, such as have so strong a grip upon the pockets of other municipalities.

Unlike other cities and towns, Peterborough's past rulers and ratepayers have steered clear of oppressive and suicidal railway bonuses. We have never bonused any railway, but on the other hand, one of our railways was for a time a contributor to civic revenue.

We have some of the finest industrial establishments in Canada, but their acquisition has been more due to other inducements than lavish bonusing. With all the splendid industries have the city's financial obligations on the head of assistance is represented by the ridiculously small rate of taxation of fifty-six hundredths of a mill on the dollar.

So that what we have in the splendid equipment of transportation, in our railways, has cost us virtually nothing, and all our great industrial establishments have cost us an inconsiderable trifle.

We have other things of capital importance that have cost the ratepayer nothing. A Y.M.C.A. building, hospital building, with a liberal endowment, and a public library, have been virtually presented to the city. We have one of the finest parks in the country that were a gift to the city—cost the city nothing for acquirement—and we have also the finest stand of shade trees in the country, and they do not represent one cent addition to the tax rate; they are the work—the gift—of private citizens of taste and public spirit.

Our indebtedness and our tax obligations to meet it, are very largely represented by the best group of Collegiate and Public and Separate school buildings in the country; by a splendid and self-supporting water works system; by a long stretch of finest walks; by a considerable area of paved streets; a good sewerage system and a nascent, but excellent, lighting and power system. We can regard the high rate of taxation with more complacency when we consider what a splendid amount of civic equipment for public comfort, what important industries and other things we have the benefit of, without having had the agency of the tax collector involved. What we have to pay for represents good value.

So much for the comparatively fortunate past of the city. The present confronts us with more serious problems and also with the necessity for prompt and business-like attitude to, comparatively, details, that will cost little money.

We must, with the greater development of auto traffic and increased use of our streets, pay more attention to their efficiency for comfortable use. Oiling the streets has been a great improvement, and greater attention to preservation of road surface is necessary.

We can't spend much money in construction of new stretches of street; but we could easily provide that a dump cart or two could be secured and employed in filling depressions in gravelled streets as they occur. With two or three conveniently placed depots of properly screened gravel and the attention of two or three men of good judgment, and at little cost, our oiled streets can be kept in smooth and comfortable condition—the only object for which money is warrantably expended. With any other result money is simply wasted.

Another present duty that confronts the council is greater attention to tree planting. We try to make the city an attractive place of residence, by the obtaining of humming factories, good water, cheap lighting, etc. All these cost much money, but the desirability of Peterborough as a pleasant home centre is equally contributed to by pleasant parks and open spaces, and the inherited, so far as city expenditure is concerned, of a splendid stand of street trees. These have cost us nothing, and as to trees, we need more of them. These the city should provide, and if they foresee the advantages they will take action.

A city's completeness does not consist in one or two big things, but in a multiplicity of small conveniences, and comforts; and the welfare of a people is not best promoted by doing things for them but sometimes in helping them to do things for themselves. With high and mounting cost of living, the idea of planting to productive crop every possible rood of land in the city, and every vacant lot, might well engage the attention and receive the encouragement of our aldermen. If by assisting such an enterprise, by helping to the procuring of seeds and needed advice and instruction, the city council can bring about an universal home garden planting and the conversion of every vacant lot into a potato garden, much more could be done to provide citizens with a wholesupply of food—more benefit bestowed, —than by knocking off a mill or two of taxation.

Another thing that might presently engage the attention of the aldermen, and have a bearing upon the future of the city: Great emphasis was laid at the Mayor's banquet on Thursday night upon the necessity of industrial expansion; to give employment, and put more money in the form of wages within reach of the people. This is important, but it is more important, more in the interests of the city and the public, to take measures to provide that the beneficiaries of industrial expansion, the wage earner, and the general population, shall be taught or trained to make the best use of the money they are helped to earn.

At the meeting on Thursday night, a member of the Board of Education, advocating, and very rightly, too, the establishment of an industrial school—said "we turned out pupils with educated minds but untrained hands." This is very true, but more than that, we turn out pupils without training in the way of making the best use of the money, in their own and the public interest, that they earn with the hands trained in Industrial Schools. An Industrial School will cost much money, but training pupils to habits of saving and thrift will cost nothing but a little altruistic interest and exercise of progressive spirit.

If the future of the city of Peterborough is to be a concern of our present rulers; if they want to be foreseeing and give the next generation the benefit of the forethought of this, as all are now enjoying the fruits of the foresight of past civic rulers, they will take an interest in urging the Board of Education to promote real popular wealth, by teaching our young the value of money—the right use of it as represented by the teaching and influence upon the formation of character of thrift and saving, of the Penny Banks, in operation in our schools.

If our civic rulers will get "right down to brass tacks," and take an honest view of things, they will see that with the best of intentions there is great waste in civic expenditure by the unwise use of money. If they go outside of their own "beat" into some homes they know;; into some of the struggling businesses they know—if they go outside of Peterborough, to other towns, and to the Provincial and Dominion capitals, they will see that there is a tremendous waste of money by ill-spending; and will then recognise their duty to the future by helping provide for a coming generation of citizens who will be trained in habits of thrift and saving, and in the knowledge of the proper use of their money to the benefit of themselves and others—to the community at large.

When we regard the past of Peterborough, and while we enjoy the fruits of the prudence and avoidance of costly and unwise mistakes on the part of our former civic rulers; when we see the present, with its pressing demand of duty and a desire of our civic rulers to do their duty with the help of public spirited citizens; when we see or foresee the future and strive to make provision for it we shall be employing the foresight of true statesmanship, which can be shown as much in the wise and prudent expenditure of an income of $10 per week as in the financing of a world war.

POPULAR WITH POLICY-HOLDERS.

The Dominion Life Assurance Company of Waterloo, Ontario, has long held a preimer place as a policyholders' Company. It has earned this position largely owing to the fine profits it has paid to policyholders. Its twenty-eighth annual report is given in another section of this issue, and attention may be drawn to the fine increases shown in all departments of the business. The gross surplus has grown from $131,000 in the year 1901, to $1,039,000 at the end of the past year; and other increases have been just as noteworthy. During the past year it earned the highest rate of interest on its funds, operated at the lowest proportional expense rate, and experienced one of the lowest death losses of any well-established Company in Canada. It is from these three sources that profits to policyholders are derived, and it can, therefore, be readily understood, why the Dominion Life has earned its claim of "providing the best insurance at lowest net cost." Mr. P. A. Ferguson, 172 Hunter Street, is manager for Central Ontario.

THE SCURITY LIFE.

The annual report of the Security Life Insurance Company, which appears in this issue, indicates a good rate of progress in the year 1916. There was a very substantial general increase in all departments of the business of the Company. A large increase in the insurance in force; a substantial increase of the premium and interest income, accompanied at the same time with decrease in the expenses in every department, constitute a record that indicates not only good business method, but careful and conservative manageemnt. A feature of this Company's insurance plans is that it issues only "all guaranteed policies"; that is to say, all profits are absolutely guaranteed, and the amount of profits on any policy issued is not only guaranteed, but mentioned on the face of the policy, a feature that prevents misunderstanding and disappointment. The Young People's Saving Fund is another special feature of the Security Life's methods. These bonds guarantee at maturity a return of 25 per cent. in excess of the payments made. They should be popular as the premium is only $5.00 yearly per bond. A company like this, backed by a strong board of directors, and with these attractive and safe business methods, is assured of a creditable place in the insurance field of Canada. Mr. H. P. Lindsay is the District Manager, and Rev. James Ross, special agent.

WARNING

"The Forecast" of December, 1915, says: "Investigations * * * have proved with equal conclusiveness that children are the chief sufferers from the bovine type of tuberculosis, which is so prevalent in cattle that it is useless to think of its immediate eradication. THE ONLY PROTECTION FOR OUR CHILDREN, UNTIL THIS IS ACCOMPLISHED, IS PASTEURIZATION.

There is no escape from the conclusion, therefore, that IN PERMITTING THE USE OF MILY OR MILK PRODUCTS, WITHOUT PASTEURIZATION, we are responsible for the slaughter of innocents compared with which that of Herod was a trifle; and many of those whom we do not kill we maim and cripple for life, for the deadly tubercle bacillus attacks the bones, joints and glands of the unhappy little ones rather than their lungs."

ECONOMICAL POWER

POWER—Power is the very life of your car. It is the energy that makes the car leap forward in the instant get-away. The energy that carries you swiftly and smoothly on high speed without effort. It is the energy that takes you over the hills, through the deep sands, through the snow-drifts of winter.

POWER makes your car easy to drive on the Road or in Traffic. Power makes you forget the mechanism of your car. It meets the emergencies of travel and traffic without noticeable effort, without faltering. That is the way Studebaker has made Studebaker cars the most powerful cars on the market in ratio to weight.

They have made them powerful by perfecting design—four years Studebaker Engineers have concentrated their skill improving, refining and perfecting Studebaker motor designs, until today Studebaker is the most powerful car on the market, in ratio to size or cost.

At the same time it is economically powerful. It gives you great power with very reasonable gasoline consumption.

POTATO FAMINE PREDICTED

SHIPPER'S ASSOCIATION HEAD SEES 45,000,000 BUSHEL SHORTAGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—While a hunger demonstration was taking place in New York to-day, and Chicago, like the rest of the country, was facing higher prices for table necessaries, it was announced that the Federal Government's investigation into the food problem would open in Chicago soon, probably next week.

T. P. Miller, President of the newly organized Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' Association, said to-day that no relief was in sight, and that only diminished consumption could lower prices.

"There are only 750 cars of potatoes in the whole State of Colorado now," said Mr. Miller. "There should be at this season 3,000 cars. Idaho has only 1,200 cars, Oregan 250, and Washington 100, which is about one-third to one-fifth their normal supply.

"Potatoes are retailing at 80 cents a peck in Chicago, and are said to be likely to go higher. The reason lies not only in the very short crop of last year, but in the added freight charges involved in bringing them from the far West. In other years when the crop was short we imported them from Ireland, Belgium, Scotland, and Germany. That was, of course, impossible this season.

"Many farmers, tempted by high prices, have sold their seed potatoes, and the result may be decreased acreage this year."

Mr. Miller estimated that the present crop was short 45,000,000 bushels. On top of this came news that frosts have done serious damage to the crops ordinarily ready for market at this time.

TRADES AND LABOUR NOTES

(By the Official Scribe)

The Trades and Labour Council started its new year under President Hartley in an auspicious manner, and the meeting on Wednesday was a "bumper" night from start to finish.

* * * * *

Ald. F. H. Dobbin, the executive officer of the Peterborough Patriotic Club, attended and gave an exhaustive description of the workings of the fund, and the multitudinous duties of an executive officer.

Mr. Dobbin surprised most of the delegates present with his information about the amount of work that is on his shoulders, and the varied lines that his duties take. It had been in the minds of the delegates that the position of executive officer of the fund was an easy one and one that should be filled by a returned soldier, now that they are coming back in such numbers, but after hearing Mr. Dobbin's resume of the duties of that office, it was the unanimous opinion of the council that the position, taking everything into consideration, could not possibly be filled better, or anything like as well, by any returned soldier —or civilian.

* * * * *

It would be much better if people would make enquiries and ascertain facts before criticising public officers such as Mr. Dobbin. A great many misconceptions were cleared up by him and he is now assured of the hearty cooperation and support of the Peterborough Trades and Labour Council in his arduous duties.

* * * * *

For the information of those who were not present on Wednesday last, it might be stated that to properly carry out the work of executive officer of the Patriotic Fund it is necessary for a man to be an expert accountant, an experienced stenographer, and to have a knowledge of human nature that only comes with years of experience of dealing with the public in every walk of life. On top of this, the man must have the patience of Job, the zeal of a true patriot, and sympathies almost superhuman.

* * * * *

Thanks, Mr. Dobbin. Instructive, and enlightening. Come again. And yet again. Pleased to hear you. And before long, too. You have our support; hearty support. Keep up the good work. But don't forget the Trades and Labour Council. Again, many thanks.

* * * * *

The Council was honoured by the presence of three International organizers who are in the city on behalf of their locals, viz. Organizer O. E. Kinskey of Buffalo, representing the International Typographical Union; Representative H. W. Harper, Toronto, of the International Machinists; and F. W. Vick, special organizer for the Metal Polishers, Buffers, Platers, Brass and Silver Workers' Union of North America.

* * * * *

Representative Harper brought up a matter for discussion which is of vital interest to the City of Peterborough, as well as to the machinists. He stated that at the present time the Lundy Shovel and Tool Works, which has one of the best equipped plants in the Dominion for the making of shovels, is lying idle, from a patriotic standpoint, when every other man in the trenches needs a shovel as much as a rifle, this is a shameful and useless waste.

* * * * *

Some of the delegates mentioned that there was talk of the works being under lease to the Metal Products Co., but nothing definite was known. However, Chairman Crowe and members of the municipal committee will take the matter up with the City Council to see if something cannot be done to have this fine plant set to producing instead of lying idle. Shovels are just as important as munitions to the boys in the trenches.

* * * * *

When this matter was being discussed President Hartley startled the delegates with a statement made by Mr. Flavelle, of the Munitions Board, re the local munitions factories. Mr. Hartley stated that he was a member of a local deputation that went to Ottawa recently to interview the Government and to see what were the chances of having another munitions factory in Peterborough. Mr. Flavelle refused to entertain the idea and when pressed for a reason stated that the munitions factories here were not making half the production that factories of the same size elsewhere were making, and that they should be making.

* * * * *

What is the explanation? Are the munitions workers of Peterborough "slackers," or is it, as Representative Harper stated — and he should know — that the cause for this is the chopping and changing of men about, and one man cannot be expected to pick up a job where another man has left off and go on with it as well as if he had been on it all the time. Again, there are whispers of lack of equipment here that other places possess. This is a serious question, and one which the Machinists would do well to take up in their local and with the Trades and Labour Council.

* * * * *

Organizer Vick reported that there were not sufficient metal polishers in the city to form a local branch, but that he was making progress with the brass and silver workers.

* * * * *

Representative H. W. Harper stated that the International Association of Machinists were making considerable progress in the city, and it now promises to be one of our strongest locals. Machinists "out of the fold" take note: a word to the wise is sufficient.

* * * * *

To get in closer touch with municipal affairs, it was decided to invite at every other meeting of the Council, some member of the City Council, or head of civic department and members of the Utilities Commission, etc., to address the Council on matters under their charge. This should give delegates an insight into every phase of municipal work and will help the Council to formulate ideas for the better government and management of the city, and the welfare of the workers.

* * * * *

If delegates from the different locals who cannot attend regularly would resign and have others elected in their place who can and will attend, they would be doing a great deal more for the cause of labour than holding the office of delegate and failing to attend. There is work to be done, and unless you are prepared to take your share of it, make discretion the better part of valor, and get out, so that those who will work can get in.

Bathe Internally And Keep Well!

Nature has mightily equipped us all, old and young, to resist disease—but she requires that we give her a chance.

We give her no chance if we permit the Lower Intestines to be more or less clogged with accumulated waste. Yet that is a universal condition to-day, as is proven by the number of laxative drugs that are consumed.

You can help Nature in Nature's most effectual way by Internal Bathing, and in an easy, non-habit-forming way keep the Intestines as sweet and clean as Nature demands it to be for perfect health and surer defence against contagion. Over half a million keen, bright, healthy people testify to its results.

Mrs. C. G. M. (name on request) of Strathroy, Ont., writes:

I am pleased to have this opportunity of testifying to the merits of the J. B. L. Cascade. I have been using it now for a year with satisfactory results. I am an old woman, but my health is so improved that I have a renewed lease of life. You are at liberty to give my address to anyone privately who may desire to write to me regarding the Cascade.

Just call at Warne Drug Co., Peterborough and request free booklet, "Why Most of To-day is Only 50 Per Cent. Efficient." The most efficient device for Internal Bathing. The "J. B. L. Cascade" will also be shown and explained to you if you so desire. If you prefer, write for Booklet to Dr. Chas A. Tyrrell, 165 College street, Toronto.

SEVEN YEARS TORTURE

Nothing Helped Him Until He Took "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

ALBERT VARNER

Buckingham, Que., May 3rd, 1915.

For seven years, I suffered terribly from Severe Headaches and Indigestion. I had belching gas from the stomach, bitter stuff would come up into my mouth after eating, while at times I had nausea and vomiting, and had chronic Constipation. I went to several doctors and wrote to a specialist in Boston but without benefit. I tried many remedies but nothing did me good. Finally, a friend advised "Fruit-a-tives". I took this grand fruit medicine and it made me well. I am grateful to "Fruit-a-tives", and to everyone who has miserable health with Constipation and Indigestion and Bad Stomach, I say take "Fruit-a-tives", and you will get well".

Police Dept. Estimates Will Go to the Council

Police Commissioners Authorize Chief Thompson to Secure the Usual Supply of Spring Clothing

At a meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners held yesterday afternoon, the departmental estimates amounting to $14,500 were submitted and on motion of Mayor Duffus and Magistrate Dumble, will be forwarded to the City Council for acceptance. The estimates were about six hundred dollars higher than last year owing to the increase in the cost of various supplies required by the department, including clothing. Chief Thompson was authorized to secure the usual supply of spring clothing.

Having served at least eight years on the police force entitles Detectives Meagher and Newhall to good conduct badges and also an extra ten cents a day. This will go into force at once.

ACCOUNTS PRESENTED.

The following accounts were passed by the committee: Peterborough Hardware Company 80c, Roy Studio $1.00, Kingan Hardware Co., $6.00, Peterborough Examiner $2.70, Bell Telephone Co., 37c.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not dress without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

POTATOES $1.05 A PECK.

Price Demanded by Chicago Retailers Milk Also to be Dearer.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23.—The price of foodstuffs continues on the upgrade, announcement being made of an increase to-day or in the near future on several articles. Many retailers were asking $1.05 a peck for potatoes, and cabbage, which sold yesterday at from 13 to 15 cents a pound, was held at 15 to 17 cents to-day. The Chicago Milk Producers' Association, with a membership of 12,500 in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin, decided last night to raise the wholesale summer price of milk from $1.55 to $2.12 a hundred pounds, and distributors to-day predicted that the price to consumers, beginning April 1, would be 12 or 13 cents a quart, an increase of three cents over last year.

CONSIDERATIONS IN RESPECT OF THE NEXT CANADIAN WAR LOAN

In the very near future Canadians will be asked to subscribe to the third war loan. When the government issued its first domestic loan in November, 1915, $50,000,000 was asked and $100,000,000 subscribed. The second issue was one of $100,000,000 and brought subscription of $200,000,000. The third may be a loan of $150,000,000, and subscriptions of at least $200,000,000 should be obtained without difficulty. Financial conditions in this country are such as to ensure the success of the coming loan. Industrial corporations and others filling war orders are in a strong position. Even although the profits on munitions and war orders are less, these corporations are in a much better position than those in Britain. There, the government is telling directorates what their factories must make and what profits they will be allowed. They are taking a very substantial share of those profits for war purposes. In short, our industries are not feeling the pinch of war as are the industries overseas. The least that should be done, therefore, is the subscription of substantial sums to war loans.

Every adult citizen should contribute something towards the financing of the war. War savings certificates can be obtained for $21.50, returning to the investor $25.00 at the end of three years. Dominion debenture stock, yielding a little over 5 per cent., may be purchased in multiples of $500, and is exchangeable into war loan bonds. For larger subscriptions there are the war loans'.

Small subscriptions are an important factor in the success of our war financing. The outstanding feature of the recent British "victory" war loan was the great number of small subscriptions, which helped to swell the loan to record proportions. Our banks have much to do in financing war orders placed here and in carrying the increasing volume of agricultural and industrial production. Financial and other corporations will subscribe liberally to the coming war loan, but it is absolutely necessary that many thousands of subscriptions, ranging from $100 to $25,000, should be received in order to make the loan a real success. Dominion war loan bonds are one of the world's best investments and have a patriotic flavour. A subscription to our war loans is not a sacrifice. It is a duty, and incidentally it remunerates the subscriber handsomely.—Monetary Times.

LONDON CLUBS "MEATLESS."

Will Go on War-time Basis One or Two Days Weekly.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Members of a majority of leading London clubs yesterday learned that their committees had, in deference to the suggestion from the Food Controller, arranged to have one meatless day per week. One club, "The Authors," will have two, and "The Constitutional" has also decided to limit the amount of bread allowed to members lunching or dining. A majority of the clubs selected Friday as the meatless day. Roman Catholic authorities have withdrawn the dispensation by which members of their faith were allowed to eat meat on Fridays, but on Wednesday, which is usually abstinence day among English Catholics in Lent, meat is still permitted this year.

So that it will be of convenient size until consumed a cake of soap has been invented that has a heliotrope waxed paper dore.

THE COUNTRY SCHOOL AS A COMMUNITY CENTRE

NATIONS are built in the public schools. The ideals set up by the school teacher remain very largely the ideals of the pupil throughout life, and his conception of patriotism will be what he has been taught during his school years. It is not too much to say that the present world war is due to a difference of ideals fostered by different systems of education.

Great as is the importance of the public school in old and well established countries, this importance is even greater in the new lands which are being called upon to assimilate populations from the more congested countries. It is worthy of note that in Western Canada, which may be cited as a case in point of a country which is called upon to assimilate a population of many races. Some of the most strenuous political and constitutional fights have hinged upon the systems of public education. These fights, however, were not without their purpose, and it is out of them has arisen a public school policy well calculated to meet the needs of a new and rapidly growing country. In such a country the public school has to take on functions not usually associated with it in the older and more densely settled communities. The prairie schoolhouse is not merely a centre of education; it is also the religious and social centre of the district. During the week days the school teacher furnishes education to the children of the neighborhood, but on Sunday the missionary holds his services, which all attend regardless of creed or nationality, and on week nights the building is used for meetings of farmers, for the various community societies; for the Red Cross or Patriotic Club, and for purely social events such as debates, concerts and dances. To facilitate the latter, it may be noted that many country schoolhouses use removable desks which the willing hands of the farmers' boys quickly dispose of whenever there is a dance in prospect.

Another phase of community work associated with the rural school which has been coming into prominence during the last few years is the supply of books to settlers in the district. This work is encouraged and assisted by the central Department of Education, which provides catalogues of books suitable for such purposes, the actual selection being left to the teacher. The number of books allotted to a school district is based on the report of the inspector of schools. In the Province of Alberta, although this school library movement is only in its infancy, no less than 110,000 books were supplied for this purpose last year, at a cost of some $90,000.00. Many districts of the province look forward to the time when every school district will be a library centre, owing to the settlers the facilities now afforded to residents of cities and towns through their public libraries. The prosperity which has almost overwhelmed rural Alberta in the last two years, when farmers have been reaping enormous crops and selling them at the highest figures in history, promises to consolidate still further the importance of the rural school as a social centre. With added funds for driving his own automobile the opportunities for social gatherings are greatly increased, and the country school is the natural meeting place.

ANNUAL REPORT

The Security Life Insurance Company OF CANADA

The Annual Meeting of the Security Life Insurance Company was held at the Company's Head Office, Kent Building, Toronto, on Tuesday, February 13th.

The following figures taken from the Directors' Report and the accompanying Cash Statement and Balance Sheet as at Dec. 31st, 1916, indicates that the year was one of progress and care:

	1915.	1916.
Total Insurance in force	$1,217,900.00	$1,388,800.00
Premium Receipts	35,597.39	41,534.62
Interest Receipts	3,151.67	4,624.48
Total Cash Income from all sources	49,961.82	87,243.57
Head Office Salaries, Travelling Expenses, Auditors' Fees, Medical Inspection, etc.	16,263.95	11,106.84
Agency Salaries, Advances, Travelling Expenses, First Year and Renewal Commissions, etc.	14,067.77	11,424.33
Total Payments for all Expenses	48,472.29	41,011.23
Net Invested Assets, Dec. 31st	68,544.24	95,095.48

The net Reserves held for security to Policyholders increased during 1916 by $19,081, and the Surplus on the cash basis required by the Insurance Department increased by $19,075.

The Death losses for the year were only $2,100, being less than 25% of the expected according to the mortality tables on which the premiums were based.

The average rate of interest earned on the net invested Assets was 5.75, being 2¼% in excess of the rate used in computing the premiums.

The Statement shows that 95% of the funds of the Company are invested in high-class Debentures and Bonds.

government departments got them hopelessly involved. Finally he will give the decisive voice on the question of Ireland, on which question he and the nation can as little afford to delay as on that of the submarine blockade.

The Roscommon election, though unique in its conditions, is a symptom of growing unrest throughout all Ireland. With the delay in establishing Home Rule, the responsibility is thrown, especially by faction agents and reactionary enemies of Home Rule, posing as "super patriots," upon the Irish party. Thus their position at the moment is considerably shaken and it may be that Lloyd George's answer to their demands will be the parting of the ways in his own career and the career of all Irish leaders. For further delay must mean a growing tendency for sullen revolt developing into local disturbance rather than rebellion and the goals of the old regime perhaps even scaffolds, will be the answer of the British government.

THE SOLUTION

It is still possible and I should say comparatively easy for Lloyd George to find the solution which will save himself, Ireland and England as well, from such a disastrous conflict, but his action must be prompt, decisive and fearless in the meantime. I give herewith a sketch of this remarkable man's form of oratory:

I have been asked by the editor to write an article on the oratory of Mr. Lloyd George. It is a subject with which I am familiar; and yet I do not know any harder subject to tackle than the oratory of any great speaker. Oratory is a combination of so many various factors; first, of course, the brain of the speaker; then the power and form of expression; then the temperament; and you must add to all these things of less intrinsic importance and yet equally necessary, namely, appearance, voice and gesture. Take away from the oratory of Gladstone the flashing black eyes, the melodious and perfectly tuned voice, the sweeping gesture, and above all, the noble and magnificent face, and you would have taken away a great deal of the effect which his mere words and thoughts conveyed.

KNOWN FACTORS.

So I might go on with other orators; suffice it for the moment to say that when you are trying to realise an orator you must take note of all the factors that go to make him. I will begin in Mr. Lloyd George's case by speaking of factors known better to his friends than to the general public. I put first among those a very keen sense of the dramatic. I have heard him give a description of a meeting as vivid, with character as well hit off, with incident so well told, that you might well imagine that you had been present yourself at the meeting. The second quality, not well known to the public, is a very remarkable power of mimicry. He can repeat not only the language of a speaker, but very often he can give you the voice, the accent, the gesture even. Of course, he is at his best with a Welsh speaker, but I have heard him imitate and reproduce personalities and accents far remote from his own. Thirdly, he has a marvellous memory, and memory is one of the great sides to oratory. If you have told Lloyd George a story once, you must never repeat it to him; he interrupts you before you have spoken a sentence, and repeats the whole story to you again. He can astound sometimes his secretaries by referring to some passages in a speech or incident in history by proving that he has recollected what they all had forgotten. I don't know that he is very good at dates, but he is extraordinary about faces and personalities. Somehow or other his quick eye, quick apprehension of character, dramatic sense seem to enable him to observe, and then to remember the features, the language and dimly to realize the character of everybody with whom he comes in contact. Often even when they are in a big crowd a trick of voice, a manner of speech, a prominent feature of an individual stamps itself on that photographic brain, so that often you get the idea of a whole character when the mimetic and humorous observer reproduces it.

POWERFUL INSTRUMENT

One more of the qualifications of the orator I must mention, for it is one of the essentials, namely, the voice. This is one of Mr. Lloyd George's most powerful instruments in influencing audiences. It has the softness of the typical Celt, but it has also the deep thunderous note that can menace and even cow. These deeper notes are so natural to Mr. Lloyd George that often you hear them even in private conversation. Simple, unaffected, easy-going in private life, even pleasantly discursive and interested in the small personal as well as the big public things of life. Mr. Lloyd George nevertheless becomes dramatic and even rhetorical, often quite unexpectedly. I breakfasted with him once during a critical moment since the opening of the war when the question under discussion was the supply of ammunition. I need not go into the now well known ghastly story; but suffice it to say that Mr. Lloyd George suddenly burst into a description of the conditions; his eyes flashed, there came the deep roar into his voice and the abundant gesture of a man addressing a great public audience instead of just two friends at an early breakfast table. He produced such an effect on me that I rushed down to my constituents to repeat his words of terrific warning; the speech may be remembered by some of my friends by its title—"Shells, shells, shells." I don't think I could have recalled the gravity and horror of the national emergency if it had not been that the even and easy flow of ordinary converse had not been interrupted by this sudden and devastating outburst of vehement speech vehemently delivered.

VALUE OF WORDS

The next characteristic which lies behind the oratory of Mr. Lloyd George is his keen sense of the beauty and the value of words, and I should add to the melody of words. This is perhaps due in part to that love and talent for music which is so common among Welshmen. With Mr. Lloyd George's love of music extends from the organ recital to the Welsh or the Scotch ballad, down to even a silly, but humorous music-hall song. He rushes with eagerness, even across country, and in busy times, to hear a Welsh sermon; he has said to me that he preferred listening to a good sermon even to going to a good play. He devours volumes of Welsh sermons and often he will spend half an afternoon in repeating to you passages from Welsh sermons—especially passages full of that striking imagery, which is akin to the Celtic temperament and so often colours his own perorations. I remember the emphasis and enjoyment with which I have heard him repeat such a message as this—the Welsh preacher was talking of the greed and shortsightedness of the avaricious rich, "while," he said, "the sun is drying the wood for their coffins." As pronounced by Mr. Lloyd George the words had something of the dreadful ring of the apocalypse.

ANOTHER SECRET.

Then comes another of the secrets of Mr. Lloyd George's effectiveness. That is his intense power and irresistible tendency to seek the generalisation in the individual and the concrete. I am told by his countrymen, that as he and they wander about the neighborhood of his Welsh home, Mr. Lloyd George will point to this cottage and then to that, and will tell not merely the name, but the domestic conditions of each of the inhabitants; and the poorer they are, the more difficult their circumstances, the more intimately he knows their story, and the more he feels about them. It was thus he used to speak when he was carrying through his Insurance Act. It was not to him a collection of statistical tables and bloodless figures; behind these things stood the shadows of the individual poor he had known, and the ghosts of hunger, sickness and unemployment which in turn stood behind them. It is this power and tendency to individuals that accounts at once for the wrath and the admiration which some of his best known speeches have produced. When he started his land campaign he illustrated most of his points by individual reference; the wrath and the admiration equalled each other; and in that way were equal proof of the directness and power of the oratorical appeal. I give one instance—I don't choose it willingly because it recalls one of these violent moments of domestic conflict which we all want to forget; it occurred at a stage of the Welsh Disestablishment Bill. That measure was pursuing its listless way through the House of Commons, nobody very much interested in it outside the Welsh members, when Mr. Lloyd George intervened, and dealing with the charge of confiscation and sacrilege, spoke of the great families which had been given by Henry VIII. the Abbey lands, and suiting the action to the word of Mr. Lloyd George spoke of their descendents in the House of Commons at that moment as having their hands "dripping with the fat of confiscation." It is difficult to describe the tumult the words produced in the House; but what is more important, it was that sentence which for the first time brought behind the Welsh Bill some passionate excitement among the British masses. It was the dramatization of the general principle which reached the popular mind.

SPEECHES ARE POPULAR.

If you peruse his speeches with this clue, you will find the explanation of their extraordinary appeal to the masses. It is also the explanation of another fact little known as yet even to Mr. Lloyd George's countrymen; and that is the extraordinary popularity of his speeches in other countries. No orator of his time has been so often translated, so abundantly read by Continental countries. Their appeals to the conditions of the "under dog" have made some of his speeches handbooks in a new gospel of democracy to the democrats of many other nations beside his own. Every Continental paper has looked eagerly for a speech of his, and produced them often in full in their columns. This is one of the many reasons why his name is so much better than that of any other British speaker of his times.

PART OF NATURE.

And now for the defects. He is often a jagged and ragged speaker. Until he gets to his particular moment of inspiration he is apparently quite formless and careless of form. There is in his oratory none of the chiselled and perfect symmetry of Mr. Asquith's classic speech; there is none of the even literary elegance of the speeches of Mr. Winston Churchill; in some respects his finer passages resemble Lord Morley's great moments more than those of any other contemporary orator. But before he gets to one of these wonderful outbursts Mr. Lloyd George labours often very heavily. It is part of a nature, which, though daring, yet has all the ups and downs of a nervous temperament, that Mr. Lloyd George rarely begins well, except when he is forced to utter a brief impromptu. He himself has often said to me—equally to his oratory and to his golf—"I'm a bad starter." Sometimes his style is loosely conversational also to an exasperating degree. I have heard him begin a dozen sentences in succession with "well now." And he is never really good at exposition. He gathers fire and strength only as he goes along, and as a rule the endings of his speech are ever so much better than the beginnings. He prepares more than people think; though in the fierce hurry of his life he often has to speak with very little preparation; and often he is then at his best. In the midst of these rugged sentences he gradually bursts out into one of those passages which become household words the very next day and will never be forgotten. I warned my readers that it is difficult to analyse the qualities of an orator—especially for those to whom his bodily presence is not familiar, and I feel rather as if I had been an anatomical lecturer, trying to build up from a skeleton the idea of the living being of flesh and blood. Perhaps I may correct that impression by substituting for my own language that of my subject. Here is a passage which I think is Mr. Lloyd George at his best and also in his most characteristic mood; it is from the speech on the war and its issues, which he delivered on Sept. 19, 1914:

"We have been living in a sheltered valley for generations. We have been too comfortable and too indulgent, many, perhaps, too selfish, and the stern hand of fate has scourged us to an elevation where we can see the everlasting things that matter for a nation, the great peaks we had forgotten—of honour, duty, patriotism, and, clad in glittering white, the towering pinnacle of sacrifice pointing like a rugged finger to heaven. We shall descend into the valleys again: but as long as the men and women of this generation last, they will carry in their hearts the image of those mighty peaks whose foundations are not shaken, though Europe rock and sway in the convulsions of a great war."

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—If you will kindly spare me a space in your valuable paper, I would like to express my opinion, regarding the 'Contingent of Women,' offered the Government by Capt. Burnham. I also think a great many Canadian women think the same as I.

Why shouldn't the women have the chance to go overseas to help, as well as working on munitions. Until the manufacturers close their doors to slackers, the women have not the chance of doing all they would like to.

If the women in England are willing to go to France, why shouldn't Canadian women do, as we are second to none.

The giving up of a few comforts and pleasures, is nothing compared to the sacrifice our boys are making, for us at home.

Because Capt. Burnham is not a married man is no reason for thinking he is not capable of knowing what women can do. He has been to France and England knows what is being done there by them.

Hoping this offer will be accepted, to show that Canadian women can rise to meet any emergency,

Yours truly,
CANUCK.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In answer to Polly Tower's letter of last evening. First, Polly does not know what she is talking about, or does not read articles in the paper very well. In the second place, Mr. Burnham's girls are not for trench work (how absurd.) We ladies and girls of Peterborough should bow to Mr. Burnham for giving us the chance to do for our country what we can. I have a husband in the trenches and not very young at that, and if I had no family ties, should sign up at once. There are a great many able-bodied clerks that could go to the front if girls took their place. Does Polly live with her mother-in-law? (poor man.) As for uniform such silly talk; and our country in such trouble. Now Polly take off your hat to Mr. Burnham, but don't enlist or there will sure be trouble. Mr. Burnham is a gentleman, if he is a batchelor, but he will be able, no doubt, to dispense with Polly's services. Go ahead Mr. Burnham your idea is grand, and should be appreciated very much by every person.

"The Glory Which Thou Gavest Me, I Have Given Them"

John 17-22

The above is one of the words of Jesus. It indicates two kinds of glory:—The glory of possession, and the glory of transmission. The first is in a way fictitious. The second real.

The dark lantern has a light within. It keeps its radiance to itself. Suddenly a slide is moved. Out pours a flood of light. The real glory of the lantern is the glory of transmission.

The telephone has a little film called the transmitter. It receives the message, but does not keep it. Any empty vessel can do that. Out the vibrations go to be received a thousand miles away. Transmission is the glory of the telephone.

A man like Dr. Grenfell goes to college or sits at the feet of Jesus. His real glory is not in getting an education or in attaining self-mastery. It is rather in giving to his fellows a gem of scholarship or a lift toward holiness.

Every human lift is a receiver. Nature, the Bible, and humanity are constantly giving their messages to it. It does not always pass them on and hence much of its failure. There never was a truer word than that of Joaquin Miller:

"All that you can hold in your cold dead hand is what you have given away." The world to-day lays stress upon the glory of possession. To-morrow it will emphasize the glory of transmission. The change will mark the passing of unrest—from the heart—of discord from the home—of impotence from the church, and of warfare from the world.

Have you sent to the Review or to the Examiner your mite for Dr. Grenfell's Mission? Do it at once and convert a glory of possession into a glory of transmission.

"If any little word of mine
May make a life the brighter,
If any little song of mine
May make a heart the lighter;
God help me speak the little word
And take my bit of singing
And drop it in some lonely vale
To set the echoes ringing."

LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS HURT OR YOU'RE BACKACHY AND RHEUMATIC

Meat Forms Uric Acid Which Clogs Kidneys; Causes Rheumatism and Irritates Bladder.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their effort to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink.

Colonel Marlow Will Get a Job

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.— Colonel Marlow of the Canadian Army Medical Services, Toronto, who resigned, will get a job in England.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by assisting the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and kidney disorders then disappear.

THE COUNCIL REJECTS IDEA OF GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

Many a citizen entertains the opinion that the Commission form of Government would provide a panacea for our civic ills. The Council, however, has apparently, no doubts in the matter. The Council of Kitchener have undertaken a movement to request the Legislature to investigate the merits of government by Commission and to sanction the idea for Ontario municipalities.

Mayor Duffus read the communication last night, and, to be brief, Ald. Smith moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that no action be taken.—Carried.

FRETFUL BABIES

Mrs. John M. Weaver, Blissfield, N. B., writes:—"I can speak very highly of Baby's Own Tablets. I have used them for my children and find they are the best medicine a mother can give her little ones. I would strongly recommend them to all mothers who have fretful babies." The Tablets regulate the bowels and stomach; break up colds and simple fevers; expel worms; cure vomiting and indigestion and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Thos. Lillico's Sale Of Farm Stock, etc.

Another important farm stock sale is billed to take place on Tuesday, February 27th, on the premises of Thos. A. Lillico, Lot 8, Con. 12, North Monaghan. Over a dozen cows, several horses, a lot of poultry and a large quantity of excellent farm machinery will be offered. George Jackson, Auctioneer. See bills. 2d

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Mainprize says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. O. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

ANNUAL BANQUET OF THE LIFE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION

Mr. G. N. Gordon Gave an Interesting and Instructive Address on the Legal Aspects of Insurance—Officers Elected for the Ensuing Year—Mr. P. A. Ferguson Elected President.

The annual banquet of the Life Underwriters Association of Central Ontario was held last evening in the Oriental Hotel. Mr. P. A. Ferguson presided in the absence of Mr. Scadding, President of the Association. A large representation of local representatives of insurance companies were present, and before the meeting closed, it was decided to hold a meeting once each month. The date and time selected by popular vote, was the first Saturday of each month at six o'clock in the evening. This will give the local insurance fraternity an opportunity of getting together and discussing the insurance situation from its many angles.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. G. N. Gordon, City Solicitor. Mr. Gordon dealt with the many legal aspects of the insurance business and enlightened the members on many points of law concerning the business in which they are engaged. Mr. Gordon said he was a great believer in insurance and the amount of insurance he carried was limited only by the amount of money he could afford to spend on such a necessity. It is a duty which every man owes to his dependents and an insurance contract involves a sacred trust between the policy holder and the company. Insurance is now recognized and fully covered by law. It is regarded as a necessary asset in the life of any man.

A Christian Duty.

Mr. Gordon also dealt with such conditions as might tend to void a policy such as a misrepresentation of facts regarding the benefits accruing to the policy holder. An insurance agent cannot waive payment of a premium, but a general agent may exercise this perogative. The speaker looked upon insurance as a Christian duty and a means of providing against privation and suffering on the part of the family. Insurance is not subject to succession duties unless it passes through the estate.

On motion of Mr. J. I. Allan and Mr. D. Moore, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Gordon at the close of his address.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to the regular business of the Association, following which each of those present was called upon to make a short speech. Chief among the speakers was Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Allan, Mr. Haslam, Mr. Sedgewick, Mr. Moore, Mr. Widdess, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Mark, Mr. McNab and others.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mr. P. A. Ferguson; Vice-President, Mr. R. F. Sedgewick; Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. T. Mark; Executive Committee, Messrs. McNab, Houlihan, Tobin, Lewis, Collins, Widdess and Walton.

Those present were as follows: P. A. Ferguson, J. I. Allen, W. A. Haslam, A. R. Girven, F. J. Collins, F. L. Driscoll, S. Houlihan, R. F. Sedgwick, D. H. Moore, W. R. Widdess, T. W. Robinson, W. T. Tyres, A. McNab, N. Tobin, D. W. Lewis, F. J. Flaherty, G. C. Roy, F. W. Wray, J. J. Fallon, E. Dunford, E. Walton, S. Touchburn, J. O'Toole, T. Mark, G. N Gordon, J. C. Hughes

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock, will be addressed by Mr. A. Mowat, Inspector of Schools. We trust that there will be a good attendance, as Mr. Mowat has prepared an address of special interest to young men.

The meetings of the past month have had an average attendance of forty, the record meeting being last Sunday, when sixty-eight young men listened to an excellent address given by Lt.-A. E. Brittain.

The clubs that are taking up the Standard Efficiency Tests were jointly addressed on Wednesday afternoon by General Secretary Meserve, on the subject of "The Growth of Altruism in the Individual."

Mr. A. D. Hone addressed the Senior Collegiate Club Friday evening on the subject "What is a Chemical Engineer?" There has been a good increase in the attendance at this club during the past month, there being twenty-eight men present last evening. Mr. Hone described a chemical engineer as one connected with some large manufacturing plant whose duty it is to test materials and to conduct experiments seeking to improve the product of his company. Mr. Hone gave one instance of a man holding such a position who, as the result of one experiment, saved his firm a million dollars a year. He spoke of firms who employed large staffs of chemical engineers, such as the Eastman Kodak Co. and the Canadian General Electric, and he said that opportunities for young men who would seek to master chemistry, were greatly increasing. He said that German's rapid development in science was due largely to her chemists. He gave several illustrations of the high degree of efficiency obtained by German chemists, especially in the dyeing business. He stated that it was a patriotic duty for young men of Canada and Great Britain to enter this field at the present time to guarantee that Germany will not renew the monopoly in some of the lines which she held before the war.

Boys' Secretary Galley and several intermediate members took the train to Lakefield Saturday morning and plan to snow shoe from there to Stony Lake. They expect to follow the ice on the lake route.

Our Honorary President, Mr. J. W. Bennett, has kindly donated to the Y.M.C.A. an Auto knitting machine, which has been installed in one of the class rooms on the second floor. Any committee or society of ladies who desire to use this machine for knitting socks for soldiers will find it freely at their disposal. The Mothers' Club members are taking instruction from Mrs. W. H. Dunsford, and plan to use the machine two evenings a week. As there are several other organizations of women who hold regular meetings at the Y.M.C.A., it is thought that a schedule can be arranged so hat the machine will be in constant use. Mr. Bennett's generosity is certainly appreciated.

Controversy Over Colours in Lindsay Of 109th Battalion

LINDSAY, Feb. 23.—Quite a controversy has arisen with regard to the colours of the 109th Battalion, C.E.F. As explained by Rev. A. H. Going, pastor of Cambridge Street Methodist Church, in a statement to his congregation, Col. James Ballantyne, D.S.O., called at the parsonage on a Saturday night and said he had been entrusted by the officers of the battalion with the colours to bring them back to Lindsay to deposit in one of the churches, and he had decided on Cambridge Street, if agreeable. The Board agreed next morning and arrangements were made to receive them the following Sunday. On Tuesday evening, Lt.-Col. Williams, director of recruiting, telephoned from Toronto that objection had been taken to having the colours deposited in the church, on account of treatment the battalion had received in Lindsay and that a church in Omemee or Haliburton was preferred. On Thursday Mr. Going was instructed to hand over the colours to a staff officer from Kingston.

Gen. Sam Hughes, in an interview appearing in the Warder, characterizes the affair as a "ridiculous bungle." He stated that some months ago when in England he was consulted by men and officers of the 109th as to the disposition of the colours, it having been known at the time that the unit was about to be broken up. He had advised against placing the colours in an English church. While the Government owned the colours, they had never been carried into action, and he suggested they be returned to Canada and that, in courtesy, Lady Eaton, the donor, be consulted as to where they should be placed. He had heard nothing more until told where Col. Ballantyne intended placing them. Gen. Hughes considered that the statement read by Rev. Mr. Going "was uncalled for, and at least, very unkind."

Maggie and Me would like to see you at "The Grand" next Friday.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FAMINE IN FOOD, WORST IN HISTORY, FACES THE WORLD

MONTREAL, Feb 24.—Prof. Stephan Leacock, of McGill University, addressing the Montreal Housewives' League, at the Royal Victoria College, said: "We are in sight of a terrible food famine, such as the world has never seen. We must take steps betimes if we wish to avoid national and world-wide disaster. We must at all costs increase our own food supply."

"In every municipality, associations and leagues, such as the Housewives, should offer to aid the National Commission in the work. All citizens owning unoccupied land should make an offer to the municipality that it be used for cultivation. The municipality, or a voluntary committee of workers, should tabulate the land, number it in quarter acre lots and hand it over for use by the poorer classes. The municipality should plough and harrow the land. That cannot be done by an individual for a single quarter acre, except at a disproportionate expense. If the municipalities would stop their silly programmes of public works—leave the old sidewalks as they are for a while, stop cutting down elm trees and beautifying the city with an axe,—they could plough up all the needed land without adding a cent to their annual expenses.

Five Things Needed.

"The thing needs, of course, system, order, effort brains and honesty.

"If we can't find those in war time, let us starve.

"Above all, we must have public honesty. There is a certain part, a minor part, of the rise in prices that is occasioned by monopoly, by cheating, by extortion. They are men who hover like vultures, watching for the starvation of their fellows. Hunger and death mean to them nothing but the opportunity for larger profits.

"In the Middle Ages such men were hanged to their own door posts. Those were good old days. We have lost something of their glad spirit. But even now an awakened public conscience and a sharpened criminal law might yet put the fear of God into the heart of the extortioner.

"If I were the Government (it is a dream that I often indulge in, and I believe everybody does) I would set up right away a Public Inquisition of the Sale of Food. I would trace every article of plain diet—potatoes, milk, flour, meat—from the producer to the consumer. I would make it clear that in time of war and in the fear of famine, purchase and sale is no longer a private act. Every man should answer to the community for the price he charges, just or unjust, fair or extortionate.

"And I would treat a monopolist as I would treat a public thief. He should feel the full weight of the law.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through a printsple of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co.

Suggestions For Growing of Corn

Points Brought Out By Expert Judge at Bobcaygeon Seed Fair

To the Editor:

At the Seed Fair held at Bobcaygeon, Ont., on Saturday, February 17th an important discussion was led by Mr. Scriver, an expert judge from Western Ontario upon the methods of growing corn. As possibly there is nothing in the line of farming that is interesting the farmers of the county of Peterborough more than growing corn for Ensilage purposes. I would like to make public to them a few of the points that were brought out:—

The first was in the preparation of the soil. Alfalfa or clover sod to be manured lightly during winter and then ploughed early in spring to a depth of about 4 inches, disking and working well until seeding time, if stubble land was used plough late in fall disking in the manure in the spring working the land down firmly so as to protect the moisture bed.

The second was the selection of seed. The very best seed of the best strain from the point of grain tonnage and early maturity should be selected without consideration of price as the price of the seed is a small matter in the connection growing a crop.

The third was the testing of seed. A simple plan is to take a piece of flannel and lay it on a piece of tin putting a hundred kernels upon the flannel and then covering with another piece of flannel, spreading 1-2 inch of earth over it and keeping moist and putting it in a warm place until germination starts.

The fourth seeding: Best results have been given in planting in check rows, 42 inches apart with a kernel about every 8 inches or in hills 36 inches each way, leaving three or four stocks in each hill. The planting should be done upon ground that has been rolled down solid before planting so as to give a uniformity of depth. Seed planted as shallow as possible and be all covered rolling should be done immediately after planting to bring up the moisture and then harrowed with a light harrow or steel rake immediately after rolling to form a mulch on top to conserve the moisture. There should be thorough cultivation for the first three or four weeks of the growth of corn, cultivating deep and close to the rows at first getting shallower and farther away from the row as the corn develops.

Fifth: It was brought out that the silo was the only proper way of keeping corn. Upon personal conversation with Mr. William Hickson, one of the Field Crop Judges for the Province of Ontario I learned that in the County of Halton, where he has been judging the field crop, that there was a variety largely grown which was known "as the big crop," which is producing a very heavy tonnage and is also well cobbed and matures from 90 to 100 days. Mr. Hickson said it is a marvel to stand hardships as it will stand upright when other varieties will go down by the wind.

We would suggest that more of the farmers of the County of Peterborough would enter into the Field Crop and Farm Seed competition that is being put out through this province.

Yours truly
W. MERRILL.

During the impaneling of a jury in Philadelphia the following colloquy ensued between the judge and a talesman:

"You a property holder?"

"Yes, sir."

"Married or single?"

"Married three years last March."

"Have you formed or expressed any opinion?"

"Not for three years, your honour."

"BRINGING UP FATHER" IN POLITICS

Second in the series of George McManus's famous cartoon comedies, "Bringing Up Father in Politics," comes to the Grand Opera House next Friday, matinee and night. It is entirely new this season from beginning to end. New story, new scenery, costumes and music, as well as some new faces; but the principal characters which have made the famous cartoons are retained as a matter of course. This offering may well be described as a continuous succession of "Screams of Laughter," a rattling, sure, quick fire musical potpourri of the comical side of politics, with hits and misses timed to the minute and geared to the second, presented in three rallys and a punch. Some of the special features are, 'The political parade with a never ending panorama of ludicrous situations and funny characters, Father's Suffragette speech, which is funnier than any stump speech you have ever heard. Mother's new Parisian gowns and Father's old political opinions; Oswald in the Bal Masque as a Ballet Girl. These are all set to lingering and entrancing melodies which are sweetly sung by a chorus of charming damsels, about whose beauty there can be no question. This is by far the best and most pretentious production Gus Hill has offered, in fact it is the most entertaining and likeable musical comedy attraction you are likely to have an opportunity to attend this season.

That Tickling In The Throat

Can Be Quickly Cured by

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

This trouble is most distressing and is caused by a cold settling in the throat. The hard dry cough causes that nasty, tickling, irritating sensation and keeps you from enjoying your night's rest. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs and barks combined with the lung healing virtues of the world-famous Norway pine tree, will give almost instant relief in all cases of this nature.

Mrs. Alex. Durward, Athelstan, Que., writes: "I have used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup for a number of years, and find it the only thing that will help me when I have a severe cold. It helps the soreness, and stops the tickling sensation in my throat, which is so irritating. I always use it for both myself and the children, and would not be without it in the house."

The thousands of testimonials we have received during the past twenty five years prove that Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is an excellent remedy for all coughs and colds, so see that you get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it.

It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c. and 50c. at all dealers.

SUNDAY READING FOR A THOUGHTFUL HOUR

Prepared for the Examiner by a Local Church Worker

"CHRISTUS CONSOLATOR"

Beside the dead I knelt for prayer,
And felt a presence as I prayed;
It was Jesus standing there,
He smiled: "Be not, afraid."

Lord, Thou hast conquered death,
we know;
Restore again to life, I said,
"This one who died an hour ago."
He smiled: "She is not dead."

Asleep, then, as Thyself didst say;
Yet Thou can'st lift the lids that keep
Her prisoned eyes from us away."
He smiled: "She doth not sleep."

"Nay, then tho' happy she do wake,
And look upon some fairer dawn;
"Restore her to our hearts that ache."
He smiled: She is not gone.

"Yet our beloved seem so far,
The while we yearn to feel them near;
Albeit with Thee we trust they are."
He smiled: And I am here.

"Dear Lord how shall we know that they,
Still walk unseen with us and Thee,
Nor sleep, nor wander far away?"
He smiled: 'Abide in Me."

—Rossiter W. Raymond.

From "Why Men Pray," by Chas. Lewis, Slattery, D. D.

Sorrow never leaves the mourner as it found him. It changes life. Perhaps some people may so far steel themselves against it; that they will become bitter, almost unhuman. But the ordinary man, who is in the hopelessness of bereavement reaches out his hands for help. He is pathetically grateful for all human sympathy. And though he may not hitherto have thought much about prayer or about God, he is strenuously breaking down barriers in his life which have been building ever since childhood; he is making an opening towards green fields and open skies in his soul. He does not quite understand, but really he is praying; praying in the hardest and most real way. And if he perseveres he will find that the sub-conscious prayer breaks over into consciousness, and he cries: "Out of the depths, O Lord, have I cried . . . . and Thou heardest me! May it not be possible that such terrible experiences are permitted that the soul may enter into the hardness of the great search, through prayer, and so find the balm that can make man bless God that he has been in trouble.

In "Current Opinion," for February, Dr. Jowett writes:

"Some of the loftiest articles I have read during the war have been in the leader columns of the secular press. I mean, lofty in the sense of being highly spiritual. Articles of "The Times," "The Daily Chronicle, "The Manchester Guardian," "The Glasgow Herald," have been suffused with spirituality. And, besides, there is a strangely new note in writers who have vast audiences of readers, and whose words are read with regard paid to talent and genius and conspicuous endowment.

Horatio Bottomley is writing articles of extraordinary character, in which there is something of the glow and fervor of religion. Herbert G. Wells has not had much to do with religion, but what does he write now? 'Religion' is the first thing and the last thing, and until a man has found God, and is friend of God, he begins at no beginning, and works to no end. He may have his friendships, his partial loyalties, his scraps of honour; but all these things fall into place, and life falls into place, only with God, only with God." Amid all the bitter irony and satire of Bernard Shaw's thought and spirit, amid all his irreverence, the pathetic figure of the Saviour has recently appeared for a moment. I am ready to admit, says Mr. Shaw, that after contemplating the world of human nature for nearly sixty years, I see no way out of the world's misery, but the way which would have been found by Christ will, if he had undertaken the work of a modern, practical statesman." To these and other signs Dr. Jonett points as evidence that the Christian faith is being questioned and tested in the crucible of a fierce and tremendous experience. The end is not yet. "I believe with all my heart, I believe, he says, that the message of the Church of God will emerge from the furnace, purified, and refined, as by fire, and with a reality and authority which will mean than ever command the reverent attention and homage of the world."

ASSEMBLY HALL

As announced in Tuesday's issue, the meetings have been continued in the above hall since Wednesday night. "The good things of God" have been spoken of from night to night, and as the wise man in Proverbs xi., 25, has quaintly put it, have been "like apples of gold in pictures of silver." The meeting at 3 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, while open to all, is more especially for the Lord's people, and all such in the city are cordially invited, while the meeting at 7 in the evening is for the proclamation of the Gospel, and a welcome is extended to all. The Assembly Hall is on the first floor of the old Opera House Building on George Street, and a comfortable seat, a hymn book and a hearty welcome await all who care to avail themselves of this invitation. —Com.

PRINGLE'S

Sanitary Fruit and Fish Store

The friends you most admire,
Who play the squarest game,
Are those who've earned the title;
They're always just the same.
And this holds good with fruits
And vegetables as with a full bag
The people know they'll get it
With, FROM PRINGLE'S, on the tag

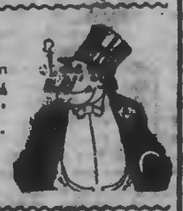
The price of good old fruits
And fish, Halibut and Salmon,
Have mounted up like rockets
And will stay up—though a famine,
But cheap goods don't attract us
Poor grades with us cannot be found,
The label tells the quality
When, FROM PRINGLE'S, it's all sound.

In face of higher prices,
We keep faith with the trade;
From start to finish our Rebel
Means double A1 grade.
We're out to hold the business
With one set honest plan,
The quality will never change
With, FROM PRINGLE'S on the can
.can.

When quality is mentioned
Who asks for greater fame
Than honest worth and service
Have given to our name,
Come war, come peace, come plenty.
In winter or days that now grow warmer.
What else betide, no matter where,
With PRINGLES on the corner.

Sore Corns Go! — Absolutely Painless

No cutting, no plasters or pads to press the sore spot. Putnam's Extractor makes the corn go without pain. Takes out the sting over-night. Never fails—leaves no scar. Get a 25c bottle of Putnam's Corn Extractor to-day.



It's Prohibition time, but I'll have my "can" with me next Friday.

Lamps Have Advanced in Price

The announcement made last Saturday in The Examiner regarding an advance in electric lamps is made good to-day by a notice in another column by Grant & Thorpe, that all outstanding quotations have been cancelled. It is understood that the wholesale price of lamps now is more than the previous selling price. On the strength of the article in last Saturday' Examiner, hundreds of people protected themselves by putting in a supply of lamps.

SANITARY PLUMBING ALREADY PROVIDED IN PUBLIC HEALTH ACT

The sanitary plumbing proposal which ex-Ald. Edgar fathered last year was deleted from the City's Private Bill to the Legislature by the Council last night on motion of Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. Taylor. It had previously been presented as a recommendation to the Utilities Commission, but their solicitor, Mr. E. H. D. Hall, in a letter to the Council, pointed out that the aims of the proposal can be carried out by the Council under the Public Health Act. The proposal suggested that citizens who desired to put in sanitary plumbing but could not afford to pay for the work in a lump sum might approach the Utilities Commission who have the work done and the cost spread over ten years in the ratepayer's taxes. It was purely an optional matter with the individual citizen.

Under the Health Act, if the Board of Health orders a sewer connection to be made to any residence and the ratepayer is unable to immediately meet the cost, it is provided that he can pay it through his taxes in five annual instalments.

Ald. McIntyre said he did not think the proposal was a popular one.

Ald. Dobbin suggested that application be made to have the five year term in the Health Act extend to ten. The city would have it there for use whenever required.

"What's the use of asking for legislation we don't intend to use," Ald. Stratton commented, and moved that the particular clause be struck out of the Private Bill.

The Passing Of J.W. Bennet

The Death of a Well Known and Most Highly Respected Resident

In the death of J. Williams Bennet, of the legal firm of Bennet & Goodwill, which took place at his residence, 558 Gilmour street, yesterday afternoon, Feb. 23rd, 1917, at three o'clock, Peterborough loses a citizen who worthily enjoyed universal respect, esteem and even love, for his public spirited and philanthropic services as a citizen, and for a large goodness of heart, and sympathy with sorrow and suffering. Mr. Bennet has for many years been a sufferer from a lingering and painful illness that led to his death. But he fought against it bravely, he kept his place at the post of duty in his business relations and in the promotion of the many works of philanthropy and moral interest that engaged his attention, and it was only with absolutely physical incapacity did he desist from active participation in business and the various welfare interests dear to his heart.

The late Mr. Bennet was a son of the late Rev. William Bennet, one of our pioneer Presbyterian ministers, well remembered by older residents. He was born at St. George, New Brunswick, fifty-six years ago, came in early life to Peterborough, was educated at the Collegiate and Osgoode Hall, Toronto. He was admitted to the bar in 1888. He practised his profession by himself for some time, and subsequently entered into partnership with Mr. G. M. Roger, now Judge Roger of Cobourg, and later with Mr. E. L. Goodwill and Mr. J. F. Strickland.

Mr. Bennet was distinguished among the legal fraternity for his thoroughness and attention to detail, as well as for his uniform courtesy to the members of the profession. He was for ten years secretary of the Peterborough Bar Association, and later its president. But it was not altogether to his legal services which won him the confidence of a large clientele, that he owed the greater part of the universal high esteem in which he was held. He was more widely known and esteemed in love for his interest in a wide range of moral and philanthropic work. He took a prominent part in founding Knox church, where he served as an elder, and was later appointed to the same office in St. Paul's. He was long intimately and prominently associated with Y.M.C.A. work, was chairman of the building committee, and for several years prior to his death, Honourary President of the Association. He was one of the founders of the Children's Aid Society has for several years been a member of the Board of Management of Nicholls Hospital. He was for several years solicitor for the Protestant Home and materially assisted in procuring its present charter. He was also closely identified with the National Sanitarium Association of Canada, and occupied the position of President of the Peterborough Health Association till failing health compelled his withdrawal. But it was not in public relations that the whole of his warm and large-hearted nature found expression. His deeds of private charity and neighbourly thoughtfulness, though unostentatious, were many, and brought cheer and comfort to many who will especially hold him in loving and grateful memory.

The late Mr. Bennet was unmarried. He leaves behind his one brother, Rev. Orr Bennet, of Calvin Presbyterian church, Ottawa, and one sister, Miss Amy K. Bennet.

The funeral will be held from the late residence, 558 Gilmour street, on Monday, at 2 p.m., to St. Paul's church for service at 2.30, and interment at Little Lake cemetery.

IMPORTANT MEETING

Major Campbell, Chief Recruiting Officer For No. 3 District, to Visit Peterborough

Major Campbell, the chief recruiting officer for No. 3 Military District, will visit Peterborough on Tuesday night and will address a meeting in the Recreation Room of the Armouries at 7.30 o'clock. His visit is of great importance and all members of the Speakers' Patriotic League and especially all the citizens who were instrumental in petitioning to have Peterborough made the headquarters of a new battalion, are particularly urged to be present to hear his message.

The matter of the re-organization of the 247th and other battalions in the district will be discussed at this meeting.

Kingston Council May Tag Cats

KINGSTON, Feb. 24.—In order to increase the civic revenue to the utmost, the City Council Finance Committee is even considering the advisability of levying a tax on cats. It is preparing an estimate of the number of felines in each ward.

Butter, 44c to 45c a lb.
Chickens, 80c to 90c each.
Turkey, 22c per lb.; $2.80 to $3.00 each.

son of Major J. H. Eastwood, of Peterborough, has been appointed flying officer. Major Eastwood has received word that his son has already gone to France to begin his duties as airman. Lieut. Eastwood went overseas as a subaltern with the 39th Eastern Ontario Battalion, and transferred to the Flying Corps. He was very successful in his tests, and is now a full fledged birdman.

Mrs. A. Austin, Lee Street, has received the following letter:

Dear Madam,—Just a few lines to thank you for the gift which I have just received in the form of a pair of socks.

I am proud of the people of Peterborough to think that they have not forgotten the good old 93rd Battalion.

I thank you and all for the way we were used in Peterborough and the presents we are receiving now.

And I know that they will make a name for themselves that will not die for years to come.

Thanking you for the socks, I will close for this time. Hoping to hear from you again. I will say bye-bye.

From a Soldier Boy.

P.S.—Give my best respects to all.

Mrs. F. H. Bartlett has received from her son, Private F. H. C. Bartlett, a card that he had arrived at Belfast, Ireland, for hospital treatment. On December 24 he was kicked on the knee, the cartilages of which had become seriously displaced. Private Bartlett's address is care of Joint B. R. C. and St. John Societies.

Word has been received from Pte. Elmer G. Brown of the 93rd Battalion, who was wounded in January, that he is doing nicely. Private Brown's address is:

Ward A 4,
1st Southern General Hospital,
Dudley Road Section,
Birmingham, Eng.

Lieut. T. J. Hetherington of Fenelon Falls, who was at the front with the 2nd Battalion, has been appointed to the 247th Battalion, with the rank of Captain.

Capt. McManus, District Staff Adjutant of No. 3, Military District, was a visitor to the Armouries today.

Pte. Chas. E. Rodgers of Clarina, was added to the strength of the 247th yesterday.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—Hereafter no invalided soldier will be discharged from the Canadian expeditionary force until a medical board has certified that further treatment or hospital care will not improve his condition, or that it is advisable that he should pass under his own control.

When discharge has been recommended on account of physical unfitness, the discharge will not be carried out until a notification has been received from the Pension Commissioners that the amount of pension has been determined and the first cheque is ready for mailing. Until that time pay and allowance will be made to the soldier or to those dependent on him. The adoption of this system insures the disabled man receiving his pension immediately on his discharge up to which time his pay and allowances will be continued.

Cases have occurred in which, owing to his desire to return to his home and friends, or owing to the difficulty of exactly determining his condition, a member of the Canadian expeditionary force has been prematurely discharged, and hitherto provisions have been lacking permitting his subsequent return for hospital treatment.

Hereafter if a medical board is satisfied that subsequent to his discharge the returned soldier requires treatment for a disability that was caused or aggravated by service, the medical board may recommend his being re-attested as a member of the force, and if such recommendation is acted upon the soldier will again be placed on pay and allowance. In the meantime any pension formerly granted will be discontinued. When a soldier has later reached a condition warranting his discharge he will be re-examined by a medical board, and pension determined according to his condition and state of health at that time.

Sergt. Rickaby and Bombardiers Brooks and Dixon, three Peterborough members of the 74th Battery, have arrived in the city to conduct a recruiting campaign for that unit. Peterborough boys who join the 74th are promised that they drill and be quartered together. The three artillerymen will make the recruiting depot, Simcoe Street, their headquarters while in the city.

Private Harry Boyler, of the 93rd Band, arrived home from England last night, and reported to the 247th Battalion for duty this morning.

Jumps From High Bridge Into River

This is only one of the many thrilling scenes in "A Modern Monte Cristo," which will be shown at "The Strand Theatre" Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The above is a modernized version of the famous story, "The Count of Monte Cristo," and for a tale of romance and adventure, it has certainly got all others surpassed. Don't fail to see it. Remember it is only 10 cents admission.

HAMILTON PLAY HERE ON TUESDAY

Will Meet 247th Battalion in First Game of the Intermediate O. H. A. Semi-finals at Brock Street Rink--Winners Will Clash With Kitchener in Finals.

Hamilton won the round from London last night, and, as a result, there are only three teams left in the running—Kitchener, Hamilton and our own 247th Battalion team. The Hamilton team will play here on Tuesday night, the first game of the Intermediate O.H.A. semi-finals, with the return game in Hamilton on Friday night, the winners to meet Kitchener in the finals the week after next. This is the closest a Peterborough team has been to an O.H.A. title since 1912, when the Bear Cats reached the Junior semi-finals, and the closest a Peterborough Intermediate team has been since the Petes won the honours from Goderich in 1906.

Tuesday's game should be the class of the season. The Hamilton team is said to be fast and clever, with combination a feature of their play, and they should prove the hardest adversaries the 247th have encountered. Added interest is given to their appearance here because of the fact that Bob Parker, formerly of Peterborough, is president of the Hamilton Club, while his brother Harold is the star of the team.

HAMILTON WON ROUND FROM LONDON SOLDIERS

HAMILTON, Feb. 23.—Hamilton Hockey Club in the O. H. A. intermediate finals had one goal to overcome when they met London tonight, the score at London having been four to three in favour of London.

When the game opened this evening it looked as if the locals would have an easy task. The first period ended with the score 2-0 in favour of Hamilton. In the second period they notched another goal before London got going. London then scored two goals ad the score at the end of the second period was 3-2 in favour of Hamilton. Boyd scored both of Hamilton's goals in the first period. McEwen scored the next, and then Leroux and Hiller scored one each for the visitors, who had the better of the play in this period, Hamilton came back strong in the final period, scoring three goals and holding the visitors scoreless, the final score being 6-2 in favour of Hamilton, giving them three goals on the home-and-home round. They will now meet Peterborough. Teams:

Referee—Roht. Hewitson, Toronto.

ONLY EIGHT TEAMS LEFT IN THE O. H. A.

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—After the elimination of the London teams from the junior and intermediate series last night, at the hands of Kitchener and Hamilton, respectively, the O. H. A. found it possible to fix the dates for practically all of the final games in the three series.

In the senior race, Dentals, with a seven goal lead on Preston, will engage the latter here to-night. The elimination of Preston is almost a foregone conclusion. In that event the Dents will meet Riversides here next Wednesday night, with the return match a week later, viz. Wednesday, March 7.

Kitchener has two teams still in the running. The intermediates drew a bye in the semi-finals. Hamilton who put London out of the running last night, will go to Peterboro on Tuesday night next to engage the 247th Battalion. The return game will be played at Hamilton next Friday night. It is likely that O. G. Bernhardt of Bradford will refree these games.

The Aura Lee juniors of this city will go to Kitchener on Tuesday night for the first junior final, and the teams will play back here on the following Saturday night, March 3. Robert Hewitson of this city will referee this series.

Printers Are League Champions

Last night, at the Water Street alleys, the protested game from last week between the De Laval and Business Men was replaced, and another big surprise was sprung by the De Laval winning by 13 pins. Each team had one dummy score, and the Business Men were without the assistance of their crack bowler, V. Dawson. This loss by the Business Men gives the championship of the League to the Printers' team by the narrow margin of one game. The De Laval has always been reckoned on as a weak team, but they have been putting up a fine game lately, and if the League were starting again, they would give a good account of themselves. Their strength has been underestimated. Carter, of the De Laval, had high score with 189, and Weber, of the Business Men, came second with 180. This winds up the League schedule, and another series of games may be arranged shortly. The score:

De Laval.

Byers	140
Barrett	168
"Dummy"	125
Spratt	123
Carter	189
Total	745

Business Men.

Lush	157
Phillips	145
Heaslip	125

Weber	180

WITH THE CURLERS

MONDAY NIGHT GAMES.

Two final games in Group A of the scheduled games are set down for Monday night:

Dela Fosse vs. Campbell.
Waddell vs. McDermid.

CLUB BONSPIEL.

The club bonspiel opens on Tuesday night, with nineteen rinks entered. The draw is as follows:

Preliminary Round.

D. Davidson vs. Dr. Wightman.
T. Brightman vs. Sam Ray.
Dr. Greer vs. W. J. Thompson.

First Round.

R. G. Sturgeon vs. the winner of Greer-Thompson.
J. H. Ferguson vs. F. M. Dela Fosse.
W. M. Lang vs. G. H. Giroux.
A. W. Archibald vs. J. W. Mc Dermid.
A. C. Kay vs. R. Hicks.
W. G. Ferguson vs. R. M. Waddell.
W. G. Morrow vs. H. F. Foote.

The rules for the bonspiel have been posted at the rink, and it is hoped that all the members of the rink will acquaint themselves of these regulations. The skip and vice-skip of each rink are the same as the arrangement for the scheduled games.

Repairs to Court House Subject of County Meeting

A meeting of the County Council will be held at the Court House on Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of considering the steps to be undertaken in the repairs to the Court House. It is understood that the intentions of the Council contemplate the commencement of work with the opening of the building season.

PLUMBING INSPECTOR SUSPENDED--COMPLAINT WILL BE INVESTIGATED

On a complaint from Mr. Edward Manning, 710 George Street, that defective plumbing in his residence had been passed by the Plumbing Inspector, that official was suspended by the Council last night until the complaint was investigated. His salary is likewise withheld until there is a satisfactory report from Mr. Manning.

The Council passed a resolution, notifying the Canadian National Advertising Company, that their street boxes are not receiving proper attention, that they are filled with paper and the lights are out.

Chairman McIntyre, of the Board of Works, was instructed to purchase a sidewalk scorer, such as is used in relieving the danger of slippery sidewalks in Montreal.

Ashes piled at the corner of Murray and Aylmer Streets were reported by Ald. Duncan and referred to the Engineer.

FIRE DEPARTMENT HAD THREE CALLS

Fire, due to an explosion of a box of matches, which were sitting on the window sill, damaged the home of Mr. Clinton Jamieson, 594 Aylmer street. The Fire Department received the alarm a few minutes after twelve o'clock to-day. A number of plants were burnt; also a portion of the woodwork. The matches were of the ordinary variety.

Overheated Fireplace.

About 10 o'clock last evening the Fire Department was summoned to the home of Mr. C. A. G. Spence, inspector of the Children's Aid Society where an overheated fireplace had set fire to the woodwork. The damage will be about ten dollars.

Chimney Fire.

Later in the evening the Department was summoned to the store of Porter S. White, George Street, where a chimney fire was in progress. It required considerable effort on the part of the firemen to extinguish the blaze.

Magic Lantern Is Presented

A number of the members of St. John's Sunday School assembled last night in the School-room for the presentation of the magic lantern kindly donated by Mr. Achilles Turner. The system of teaching Bible study by the magic lantern has proved a great help, both to the teachers and students in the schools in which it has been adopted. A number of selections by the Sunday School Orchestra and a solo by Miss Katie Bates were greatly enjoyed. Rev. Canon Cornish was chairman of the evening.

OBITUARY

MARION TINKER.

Marion, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Tinker died last night at Nicholls Hospital.

The funeral will take place to-morrow from Mr. Fife's residence, 681 Stewart street to Fife's cemetery.

NATHAN R. LEE.

The Elkhorn (Wis.) "Independent" says:

N. R. Lee died in Madison Sunday, February 11, at 12.15 o'clock, death being due to pneumonia, from which he had been ill for several weeks. He had partially recovered from the disease, but suffered a relapse, and later a second relapse, from which he failed to rally. The body was brought to his home in this city Monday, from which the funeral was held yesterday afternoon.

Nathan Russell Lee was born in Peterborough, Ontar Canada, February 25, 1855. In 1876 he came to Elkhorn to visit relatives, and liked the town and surrounding country so well that he decided to locate here permanently. He returned to his old home and made all preparations for coming to Elkhorn, and this city has been his home for the past forty years.

Mr. Lee was married May 29, 1885, in Milwaukee, to Bertha E. Lindeman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Lindeman of Darien. Mrs. Lee, a daughter, Catherine, and a grand-daughter, survive.

The funeral was held at the Lee home in this city yesterday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Services were conducted by Rev. Thos. Austin of the Methodist Church, and burial was in Hazel Ridge.

Fraternally, Mr. Lee was a member of Milwaukee Lodge B. P. O. E. and Garfield Lodge, Milwaukee, K. of P. In October, 1917, he would have been a life member of the latter order.

WEDDING BELLS

McMAHON—NELSON

A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. Jos. Reynolds, 500 Chamberlen street on Wednesday evening when Mr. Herbert H. McMahon of Millbrook was united to Miss Marguerite Nelson of Bethany. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie. The young couple who were unattended will reside in Cavan.

BIRTH.

Social and Personal

Miss Hilda Thompson, daughter of Chief Thompson, successfully passed her piano examination at the recent examinations at the Toronto Conservatory of Music. She is a pupil of Mr. J. H. Renwick.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Mulligan left this morning for Toronto, where they will meet their son, Corp. G. V. Mulligan, Army Medical Corps, and spend a few hours with him before leaving for overseas.

The many friends of Mr. R. E. McKee, of Edmonton (formerly of Peterborough), will be sorry to hear he is ill in Edmonton hospital with pneumonia, and will hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Lyle, Park street, were the hosts of a large number of their friends last night at a euchre party given to celebrate their silver wedding. Many beautiful silver gifts were received by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle, amongst them being a handsome silver tea service and silver mounted mahogany tray. The prize winners of the evening were Mrs. J. J. Turner and Mr. Albert Warne, purses of silver and souvenir spoons.

Mrs. Albert Winn, Montreal, is the guest of Miss Dennison, Water street.

Mrs. H. I. Fairweather has returned from a short visit with Mrs. Winslow, Millbrook.

Miss Eva Bullen, nurse in training at Belleville Hospital, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Chas. Curtis, Rubidge Street, for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunk, Campbellford, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Lyall, Park Street.

Mrs. (Dr.) Hamilton, Bethany, has been called to Toronto by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Hutchison.

Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Robinson left to-day for a short visit in New York.

ACCUSED BY BLOODHOUNDS.

Two Young Men Charged With Murder—Were With Posse.

LONOKE, Ark., Feb. 23.—Two young men that bloodhounds in charge of one posse picked out from the members of another posse searching for the murderers of John Cox, an aged Lonoke merchant, to-day are in jail here charged with murder. They are Joseph Trotter and Kelly Booe, each 21 years old. The former was full-back on last year's Little Rock College football team, and declares he will be able to establish an alibi.

BERLIN'S BREAD CARDS.

3,600,000 Cards Issued Weekly—Third Year of Stringency.

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—The bread card celebrated its second anniversary yesterday. From the Chancellor down to the humblest day labourer the plan of individual rations has been strictly enforced. The substitution of barley for potato meal has created a decidedly more palatable loaf. Greater Berlin is now issuing weekly 3,600,000 bread cards and 66,500,000 cupons, representing daily rations, find their way back to the bread commission, where they are checked off. Soldiers returning from the front are met at the railway station and given bread tickets good for their furlough.

One of the latest achievements of the German chemists has been the utilising of tar oil, extracted from burnt coal, for making soap.

GERMANS MAKE A BIG RETIREMENT ON THE WESTERN FRONT-BRITISH HOLD CHIEF POINTS

Germans Make The Greatest Retirement on Western Front Since Stationary Warfare Began

British Troops Occupy Serre, Pys and Miraumont, All Defenses of Bapaume---Five Miles of Trenches Fall Into British Hands--Movement Backward By the Enemy May Not Yet Be Ended--The Newly Occupied Ground Opens Many Possibilities For the British Forces.

EXPLORING LIMITS OF GERMAN RETREAT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Germans make biggest withdrawal in two years. British occupy Serre, Pys and Miraumont, Germans quitting nearly five miles of trenches, all defenses of Bapaume. Exulting in their newly won possession of such historic towns as Miraumont, Petit Miraumont and Pys, the British forces were to-day exploring the exact limits of the German retreat. The movement backward by the enemy may not yet be ended. Patrols are out in all directions. They are pressing the Germans, who only a week ago offered the most stubborn resistance, but who now responding to their higher command, decided to retire without further fighting. The newly occupied ground opens many possibilities for the British forces.

(By William Philip Simms.)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, February 26.—Bapaume on which the Germans lavished great defensive works and which they have often declared would fall "only after the greatest price ever paid by a victorious army," is now directly threatened by the greatest retirement since the stationary warfare began more than two years ago.

REASON FOR FALLING BACK.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—The great German retirement before General Haig's armies on the western front, was partly the result of a call for more men and more materials for the Holland front, Allied diplomats here declared to-day. These diplomats said that with the Dutch Government incensed over the recent vast destruction of her merchant ships, more belligerently inclined than at any time since the war began, presents a big problem for the German land forces. They believe also that a Swedish menace is added to that seen in Holland, is a contributory reason why the German General Staff is willing to fall back in the west.

Such a line would be far more easily defended, since it would be nearer larger bases of supplies and for other obvious reasons.

Large British Steamers Sunk

Special to The Examiner:

TOKIO, Feb. 26.— British steamers Perseus, 6,728 tons, and Worcestershire, 7,176 tons, have been sunk off Colombo. No details have so far been received, but it was reported there were explosions aboard both vessels, due to German plotting. The Perseus was reported sunk from London on Feb. 23 and the Worcestershire on Feb. 19. It was then assumed they fell victim to the German submarine warfare in the barred zone.

Colombo is the principal seaport town of Ceylon, and an English possession.

LONDON, Feb. 26.— Eleven vessels were sunk during the week end, including five British.

SUB. BASE DISCOVERED OFF COAST OF SPAIN

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Details of the arrest by the police at Carthagena, Spain, of a man giving the name of Wood and calling himself an American, are contained in a telegram forwarded here by the correspondent at Madrid of Le Journal. After his arrest Wood received the protection of the German Consul at Cartagena, who said the presence of the man at that seaport was inexplicable except in connection with the discovery off the coast of a ship's boat marked U-19.

The Cartagena police, the correspondent adds, supposing that Wood had disembarked from a submarine, searched the roads and found a number of buoys to which were attached thirty boxes covered with waterproof cloth and containing dynamite, guncotton and gasoline.

La Liberte's Madrid correspondent says the Spanish Minister of the Interior announced that a man who was guarding the buoys and the German Consular agent, Meyer, have been arrested, and that a third person connected with the affair is being sought. The correspondent adds that the boxes attached to the buoys contained correspondence, tools and submarine parts, instead of gasoline and explosives.

"Her Money Troubles"—They get more vexatious as the cost of foods climbs skyward. Meat, eggs and vegetables are almost beyond the family purse. Happy is the housewife who knows Shredded Wheat, its low cost and its high food value. A better balanced ration than meat or eggs and costs much less. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with milk or cream make a complete, perfect meal, supplying all the nutriment needed for a half day's work at a cost of a few cents. Delicious for any meal with milk or cream, or with fresh or stewed fruits. Made in Canada.

British Advance In Mesopotamia

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 26. — British take four powerful lines of trenches before Sannayat, in Mesopotamia and cross the Tigris river near Kut town. Eleven officers and 533 men taken prisoners Friday and many more Saturday.

Foe's Potatoes to Disappear Before the New Harvest

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23.—The Vorwaerts, the German Socialist organ, a copy of which has been received here, says the German Minister of Interior has issued a proclamation stating that, owing to the complete stoppage of the potato supply, due to frost, the distribution of flour in many large towns has become necessary and that consequently the small available stocks of cereals have become greatly strained.

The Vorwaerts adds that as the final exhaustion of the stock of potatoes will occur some time before the new harvest, the cereals' stocks will again be greatly drawn upon. It, therefore, requests all rural authorities to take extreme measures to prevent farmers from withholding foodstuffs.

Farmers Are Hoarding Potatoes

400 Bushels in One Cellar—Potatoes Are Kept in Pits

LINDSAY, Feb. 26.—There are more potatoes in Victoria County than most people are aware of and when the weather becomes warmer they will not prove the scarce edible folks anticipated.

A north country farmer stated Saturday that many farmers stored potatoes in pits last fall and cannot interfere with them until the advent of spring weather. The township of Manvers that bears a record for years of producing not only large quantities of tubers, but the choicest quality, has been heard from. No less than 400 bushels, it is stated, are snugly stored away in one farmer's cellar, all in first-class condition. The above-mentioned party lives in the north-east part of the township and he expects to realize sufficient capital out of his store to purchase a nearby farm.

Dairy Act Stands For Year at Least

Prime Minister States That Supporting Sentiment is Not Strong Enough

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—Three afternoon and night sessions in a row took most of the desire for work out of the members of the Legislature, and yesterday's session lasted less than an hour. The chief item of business was the introduction by Sir Wm. Hearst of the legislation necessary to postpone the operation of the Dairy Standards Act, abolishing the "pooling system" of paying for milk by cheese factories.

The Prime Minister declared that the Government had no intention of abandoning the principle laid down by the late Hon. J. S. Duff, but it was considered that more educational work needed to be done. When he introduced the Dairy Standards bill the late Minister of Agriculture knew that considerable educational work would have to be done, and had postponed the operation of the Act until April 1 of this year. Since the bill was adopted an active educational propaganda had been carried on by the department through lectures, etc. There were many supporters if the Act, but a majority of the representations made to the Government were in opposition to the change.

"The point is simply this," he said, "that there has not been sufficient time for educational work to remove the prejudice that exists against such a radical change in what has been the custom in years past. Viewed from every standpoint, the Government has come to the conclusion that it is well for the present to postpone the coming into effect of the Act. But I would point out to those who are now opposing it that they should prepare for this Act, and remove as far as possible the disabilities under which they labour."

DEFERRED FOR ONE YEAR.

The Prime Minister referred to the feeling of many products that the milk tests for butter fat would not be fairly made. This was another objection that would be overcome by further educational work.

Sir William stated that the sections dealing with compulsory pasteurization of the whey sent back from the factories would also be allowed to stand. The chief objection at the present time was the scarcity of fuel which would be required in considerable quantity for pasteurization.

To Mr. Rowell the Prime Minister stated that the Act would not be brought into effect for another year at least.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Food in London is Cheaper Than in New York City

Traveller Tells of Potatoes at 4 Cents and Restaurant Steaks at 36—Taxi Rates, Lower, Too—About Half Those of New York, Although Gasoline Costs Three Times as Much as Here.

SEVERAL STRIKING DISCREPANCIES

NEW YORK, February 26. — Robert Mountsier, an American newspaper man, who has lived in England since last October, brought back with him on the Philadelphia, his housekeeping account book with prices which show the necessities of life to be, as a rule, considerably cheaped in England than they are here. Mr. Mountsier said that it was true to-day, as it was before the war, that money would go considerably further in London than in New York.

The most arresting entry in his domestic ledger was that of 5 cents a pound for the best potatoes shortly before his departure from England. The best potatoes retail in New York city at 9 cents a pound. He bought cauliflower in England, he said, at a uniform price of 4 cents a head, as against from 15 to 25 cents a head in New York city.

Cabbage, Mr. Mountsier said, were plentiful and cheap in London, though he had no statistics in his domestic ledger of the exact price. When he was told that wholesalers who had bought them on the farm last year for $3 a ton now had to pay as high as $160 for them, while they had gone up to 30 cents a head and practically disappeared from the market, said:

"That's very astonishing. All the London markets have been full of them at moderate prices. I've eaten more of cabbages, cauliflower, and potatoes than any other vegetables."

Other prices quoted in his book were 44 cents a pound for unsweetened butter, which has kept close to 60 cents here, and 10 cents a pound for Brussels sprouts. Milk, which is scarce and considered dear in London, is slightly lower in price than here. Coal, of which there has been something like a famine in England recently, is now selling in London at about New York prices. It is $9.68 a ton in small quantities, which is below what has been charged here during the winter for coal in lots less than a ton, but just about the present price.

"Sugar is expensive and is doled out only in small quantities. As a rule, one cannot buy sugar by itself, but can get it only after he has purchased other things several times the value of the sugar. Rules were issued that candy should be made from recipes calling for only half the amount of sugar formerly used. While sugar is high, candy is still sold in large quantities and is not dear. Wages, of course, are generally lower in England.

STRIKING DIFFERENCE.

"One of the striking discrepancies between prices in London and New York is that, in spite of the fact that gasoline costs nearly three times as much in England as in this country, London taxicab rates are about one-half the rates here. When in London I rode in a taxicab a distance of two miles, with nine pieces of baggage, and the total charge, including the usual tip, was 5s., or about $1.20.

"While the necessity for economizing in the use of food is felt, I have been told by economists and shipping men that England is well provided with food for a long time ahead, so that the submarine campaign must become far more effective than it has been to make a great impression. I have very good authority for saying that England has imported vast quantities of foodstuffs and for a long period has been storing it against the possibility that the German submarine campaign might cut deeply into shipping.

"Living in boarding houses and housekeeping in flats has gone up in cost considerably, but is still much lower than in this city. Eating in restaurants is far and away cheaper than in New York. At the Ship and Turtle Restaurant, which is popular with business men, I had the finest kind of a steak for 36 cents—one which you could not get in a restaurant of similar class in this city for twice the price. The Pall Mall Restaurant, which is frequented by fashionable people, has a table d'hote luncheon for 60 cents which cannot be approached in this city in a restaurant of that type for that price. In all classes of restaurants, the advantage in price over New York is quite apparent.

"While the limitations on courses are treated with some laxity, they have undoubtedly cut the consumption of food. The Northcliffe papers and some others are making a vigorous campaign against abuses, with daily attacks on different varieties of 'food hogs.'

"They send reporters to restaurants to watch diners who are suspected of disregarding the ration of two and a half pounds of meat per week for individuals, and other restrictions, which Britons are put on their honour to observe. When a man is found who goes over the limit habitually, he gets into the Northcliffe papers—not by name, but he is so well described that those who frequent the restaurant, which is named, know who is meant."

German Colonies Are To Be Divided Up

Britain, France, Belgium and Portugal Likely to Readjust Their African Possessions—Mikado's Empire Wants Kiao-Chau and Islands, While Australasia Also Intends to Expand.

JAPAN'S PACIFIC CLAIMS

LONDON, February 26.—The death knell of Germany's colonial possessions has been sounded, so far as the Entente Allies can effect that result, by the almost simultaneous announcement of the British Minister of Colonies, Mr. Long; the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Motono, and the Prime Minister of New Zealand, Mr. Massey, who voiced the view of Australia as well as New Zealand. Together these statements declare there will be no return to Germany of her colonies in Africa, Asia, or the Pacific.

This attitude is not only held by Japan and the British colonies chiefly concerned, but it has the backing of the British and French Governments, which have the largest interest in colonial Africa and Asia. It develops the fact, also, that the late Asquith Government was opposed to any extension of British colonial possessions in Africa, whereas the new Lloyd George Government approves this extension as in line with the aspirations of the British colonies in Africa. This in turn has established that there will be a general reshifting of African colonies, that the possessions of England, France, Portugal, and Belgium will be made more homogeneous instead of being as at present, scattered and irregular in outline.

JAPAN'S ACQUIRED INTEREST.

Japan's attitude toward holding the German colony of Kiao-Chau in China, and the Pacific islands occupied by the Japanese fleet, came up when the French draft of the reply to President Wilson was being cabled to the President Wilson May Address A Joint Session

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Facing an unprecedented situation in Congress, President Wilson is expected to reach a decision to-day or to-morow as to addressing a joint session before adjournment to ask for broad powers for handling the international developments after March 4th.

The President has been told that if he wishes some definite, concrete action by Congress at this time—power for instance, to arm merchant men for positive means of protecting American lives and property on the high seas—he can get it in quick time. In other words, the President's friends in Congress say that the Republicans and Democrats alike stand ready to support any definite and limited action he deems necessary now, but they do not propose to vest in him unlimited powers for the future. The President is canvassing the situation thoroughly.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(Later.)—President Wilson will address the Congress in a point session at one o'clock to-day.

UPTURN IN GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Huge export sales gave a sharp upturn Saturday to the wheat market. It is said the amount taken for Europe was around 1,600,000 bushels, including a large aggregate for the Belgian Relief Committee. Besides there wer said to be inquiries in the market for immense additional quantities. Opening prices, which ranged from 1-4 to 7-8 lower, with May at 1.75 1-2 to 1.76 and July at 1.49 1-4 to 1.49 3-8, were followed by a sudden rise to well above Friday's finish.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

"Who are you?" demanded Cody, sliding from the trunk, but not from the grasp that held him, his jaw falling.

"Detective from the central office, my garrulous friend," returned Bunsen, taking the handcuffs from his pocket. "You are helping the flight of a criminal, which in itself is a criminal offence. See? I fancy we can pry open your mouth."

"For Heaven, sir!" said Cody, the ruddiness fading from his face. "I know nothing about it, sir. I only tuk the trunks!"

"You lie," said Bunsen sharply.—"You were paid for keeping your head shut. How much?"

Cody seemed to shrink to half his normal height and his face took on a look of panic.

"I—I. The gintleman gave me five dollars, but he didn't tell me—"

"No matter what he didn't tell you! Where did you take the trunks?"

"To—to the Texas Line pier, sir, East River. That's the truth."

"I think likely!" said Bunsen flashing a glance at John. "When does the steamer sail?"

"So help me, I don't know, sir. This day, I think. If we let go your holdt I'll see. There's an X.Y.X. Guide inside."

"Get it," said Bunsen crisply, letting go his grip on the thoroughly cowed expressman. When the book was brought he ran over its leaves in feverish haste until he found what he wished.

"Texas Line to Galveston! Pier——, East River, The Lone Star. By thunder, Mr. Wentworth, she sails this afternoon at 5 o'clock! What time is it?"

Wentworth drew out his watch and snapped it back. "Three thirty-five."

"Good Lord! An hour and twenty-five minutes with the subway likely to be blocked and the elevated at a standstill!"

Both men glanced upward to where the line of trains still lay motionless. Down by Eighty-first street a crowd stood on the corner looking up ward.

"A car jumped the switch beyant the station," said the expressman, in a desire to ingratiate himself with the detective.

"What's to be done?" asked Wentworth, in consternation at the combination of circumstances which had thwarted them from the start. In face of the presence of Bunsen who was directing matters he did not look to his own resources.

"By the Lord Harry! Block No. 4!" exclaimed the detective. "The chances are that the subway is not running either; and if it were the trains would crawl. Is there a livery stable, or—better—a garage—hereabouts?" he asked, turning quickly to the Irishman.

"I don't know of wan," said the man, respectfully. "Yo might hov me wagon, only 'tis out."

"By the powers," exclaimed the detective, "this is desperate! Come on, Mr. Wentworth. There's one chance for us!—and only one."

"Why not phone to the pier and demand Bagshot's arrest?" suggested Wentworth. Bunsen laughed.

"On what authority? Would a mere telphone message be a warrant to drag a passenger from a steamer—or even delay the vessel's sailing hour? No, sir! I had thought of that. We have got to be on the spot, and show cause. Damn these roads! All things seemed to have conspired against us! But, as I said, there is one chance. Come, sir—we must step out."

They walked to the corner of Eighty-third Street, Bunsen looked up and down the long block. Half-way to Central Park, a taxicab stood in front of a private residence, the chauffeur nodding sleepily behind the steering-wheel.

"Aha—just the thing!" exclaimed the detective, catching his companion by the arm and hurrying him across the avenue. Almost on a run they reached the taxicab. Bunsen pulled open the door and pushed Wentworth in. "It's all right, sir. I'll attend to this."

At the sound of voices by his car, the somnolent chauffeur woke up.

"Whatcher y' mean, you blooming loafer?" he shouted. "Git out o' that. This here cab's engaged! Dontcher see th' sign?" He was off his seat, and on the walk before he finished his protest. Bunsen calmly confronted him.

"Yes; I see the cab is engaged—and I am the one who engaged it. If—"

"Don't you try to play me for a sucker, you rube. This here cab is engaged by a lady in th' house. I know what I'm talkin' about! Git out o' here." The last to Wentworth.

"Stay where you are, sir," said Bunsen; then turning to the irate chauffeur he wagged his finger in the man's face. "I've about thirty seconds to waste on you my friend," he said, again opening his vest and tapping his official badge. "I'm a police detective chasing a murderer. We want this car—as no railroads are running—and we are going to take it in the name of the law. Choke that into yourself. If you care to work for us and obey directions, well and good; if not, I'll seize her and run her myself—and it won't be the first time I have swung a wheel. Now, sir, as for you. I'll hold you unharmed in the matter, and moreover, it will be a ten dollar bill for you, over and above your regular fare. Speak quick; will you take the wheel or will I?"

"For two cents I'd smash you!" was the truculent reply, but without truculence of attitude.

"That's up to you, son! If you think you can down the police force of this ville take a try on one of them right now. This taxi goes—see? I'll give you you ten seconds to decide about going with it."

The man hesitated and looked up at the house. Bunsen turned and slammed the door of the vehicle, but before he could do more the chauffeur decided.

"That was all guff about the smashin', Cull."

"I imagine as much."

"You'll make it all right at the station?"

"I told you so."

"It'll cost me my job."

"I'll see that it don't."

"All right. I fall for a ten—an' take a chance. Where do you want to go?"

"First to the court house—then to pier—East River. And you can drive like it was a toy ride. I'll back you. But if you try anything funny with me you will find yourself in the cooler for your pains."

"You win!" exclaimed the man—"jump in." Bunsen stepped to the small seat by the driver. In a moment they were off.

Wentworth was fairly dazed by the suddenness of it all, and he had a new and mighty respect for the detective. The easy going man had not realised the possibilities for a strenuous spirit armed with the law—one of quick wit and determined character. But as the taxi flew along he regained his composure and lighting a cigarette, wondered why the swaying vehicle was not stopped by some outraged policeman of the traffic squad— then he thought of the detective's badge and was comforted.

All that troubled him now was the, to him, presumable fact that he had been fooled by a girl. He was losing sight of one of his motives in acting. At this time he was not chasing Bagshot so much for having stolen the map of the lost San Saba mine as for being the probable murderer, and the traducer of his father. And now he had hopes of catching him.

Going over to Madison Avenue as the least congested thoroughfare, and on down Fourth Avenue, the taxi stopped for an instant at Cooper Square and Bunsen jumped from his box and took his place by Wentworth. "What time now?" he asked, sharply, as they started again.

"Four o'clock," was the answer.

"Good! We'll get him! Shows the value of a strong bluff, sir," said the detective laughing easily.

"Had Cody called me I would have had to lay down my cards. I had no warrant—no shadow of a right to arrest him without one but I thought I saw through the fellow. This taxi is all right. I am chasing a criminal—the law provides for such cases, but I am weak from lack of papers, and dare not tackle any man without them now; the steamship company must and would protect its passengers."

"I see," said Wentworth; "but even if this had failed—even if we had not learned of Bagshot's whereabouts until he had sailed, we could still have recourse to wireless telegraphy. Every steamer carries wireless, I believe."

"Right you are, regarding the machine," returned Bunsen, whose brows were knitted as he looked straight ahead, "but do you know, sir, that as the powers that rule have decided that your father did not die by violence I doubt if they would care to reopen your case and prove themselves wrong. So much for humanity—or inhumanity. And would it do any good if they did reopen the case? Suppose we ordered the arrest of Bagshot, by wireless, and suppose that he traveled under another name. Where would we be?"

"Then telegraph to Galveston, arrested at once on his arrival."

Bunsen smiled grimly. "Do you know that he is going to Texas by sea—or to Texas at all? Does it not occur to you that the trunks may be a blind? What shall prevent him from doubling on his tracks?"

Wentworth sat back aghast.

"But, sir," continued the detective, "between you and me and the post, he is going on the Lone Star. Though I can't bank on my belief I am taking chances. Here is my plan, sir. I jump down at the court house and get a warrant of arrest—I have a pull in there. You go on to the steamer. Give the chauffeur ten dollars—I promised that—you are the bank. Then see the purser or the agent or the captain and do anything to hold the boat until I get there. I leave the matter to you. But first you had better be sure that our game is on board. Catch on?"

"Perfectly."

"And keep out of sight yourself. If Bagshot or Planet caught a glimpse of you our half baked cake might be made dough in a pig's whisper. However, you can bet I'll be there, if there is a judge on the bench."

The clean-cut rapid fire of the detective's speech and his decision of character, made it impossible for Wentworth to criticise the outlined plan, though he did not like his own commission. He was unused to this kind of business; he had been dwelling apart from a world in which the clash of man with his fellow cut such a large figure. In theory he accepted such warfare as necessary, but had never dreamed he would be dragged into it. He seemed to have been born anew. The ennui which oppressed him before and since his father's death had been dissipated in the rush of late events but mingled with the relief of changed conditions was a feeling of keen disappointment which centred around the personality of the girl who had hoodwinked him. He was thoroughly ashamed of himself.

Wentworth asked the detective for no details; he looked upon so doing as a sign of weakness and want of confidence; nor, when the taxi swung from Broadway and stopped in front of the granite monastrosity known as the "court house" did he have any plan of action; in fact he doubted the ability of any one not armed with the law to stop the sailing of the Lone Star if the officials decided it was to proceed on its voyage. But he did not voice this conclusion to Bunsen as that individual leaped out.

"We have all the time we need sir," said the detective, slamming the door after him. "Look for me in about half an hour. I will be there before she sails." He ran up the stone steps, and the vehicle went on.

On account of the blocked traffic it was some little time before the pier was reached. Wentworth got out and handed the chauffeur twenty dollars, turning away without seeing the salute of the astonished driver. A few moments later he stood in the pier office of the passenger-agent.

"May I see your list of passengers?" he asked of a hard faced man who in an inky linen coat, was writing as if his life depended on his haste. He stopped long enough to whirl a book in front of his visitor, but he did not look up. Wentworth glanced down the short column. There they were: Mr. Simeon Bagshot, Mr. Jose Planet, Miss Grace Merridale, all of New York. So she was Grace Merridale.

And it was somewhat evident that the criminal felt fairly safe. It was also possible, the young man thought, that Bagshot had too small a respect for the man he had outraged and robbed. The very display of the names was like an insult to Wentworth; he had presumably not been thought worthy of consideration; there was no disguise either of person or destination. The young man bit his lip, and turned to the writing clerk.

"Are you the agent, sir?"

"Yes. What do you want?"

"Sir," said John, his pulses rising, "you have two passengers on board of the Lone Star who are criminals running from justice. I have traced them here. With this knowledge you will put nothing in the way of their arrest, I presume? Is there an officer on the pier?"

The hard faced man dropped his pen and looked up quickly. "Running away! Criminals! What names?"

"Bagshot and Planet."

"What do you come to me for? What do you want an officer for? Are they condemned criminals?"

"No, sir; not yet."

"Haven't you a warrant?"

"No, I have not, but—"

"But nothing! What in the devil do you take me for, a fool?—and the police, too? Who are you?"

"A private citizen, sir. My name ——"

EXTREME WEAKNESS AND SUFFERING

Read How Mrs. Goodling got Relief and Strength.

York, Pa.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be all you say it is. I was so sick that I could not stand at my sink to wash dishes and I could not sit without a pillow under me. I had the doctor every few days but since I have taken the Compound I don't have to send for him. I have had three children and could not raise any of them, but since I have taken the Compound I have a bright baby boy. I advise every suffering woman to try it and get relief. It has done wonders for me."—Mrs. CATHARINE GOODLING, 133 E. King Street, York, Pa.

When a medicine has been successful in bringing health to so many, no woman has a right to say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." There must be more than a hundred thousand women in this country who, like Mrs. Goodling, have proven what wonders Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can do for weak and ailing women. Try it and see for yourself.

If there are any complications you don't understand, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

Its Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound", at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged.

Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A BRITISH BIVOUAC THE NIGHT BEFORE ATTACK

The British offensive in the Somme district of France. The Warwicks bivouacked before an attack July, 1916. (From the Sphere.)

THE BRITISH OFFENSIVE IN THE WEST-CLEARING VILLAGES

CLEARING THE VILLAGE STREET AFTER THE WAVE OF THE FIRST ATTACK HAS SWEPT FORWARD.

The street fighting in the villages through which the British troops advanced was magnificently sustained by the advancing soldiers, who fought with great dash and courage. The following picture of the assault on Montauban was given by a Sergeant who was present at the time:—"We went over in grand style," he stated, "and found nothing much in the way until we got into Montauban. Here the place was in an awful mess. Most of the houses had been knocked head over heels—the only ones I saw standing were a couple of cafes. As we came on we saw lots of Germans running out of the back of the village, but when we got into the streets there were plenty of them monkeying about the ruins. We had divided the company up into groups of six, but as we neared the village we all joined up again. My five pals were five of the best, and we kept well together." In the subsequent fighting these men gave a good account of themselves, and finally cleared the village. Another account—by a French officer with the British army—describes in detail the British offensive:—"In spite of the German machine-gun fire the British sprang over the parapet and advanced like one man. They acquitted themselves like tried soldiers, although three or four of the battalions were of recent formation and belong to the new army. Only one battalion is of the old army and has seen many combats. Well, in the fight the new battalions were not to be distinguished from the old. They were as sure and expert as veterans."

GERMAN COLONIES ARE TO BE DIVIDED UP

various Entente Governments for approval. Japan approved the terms as far as stated, on Serbia, Belgium, and in other respects, but pointed out that the terms omitted any reference to the German colonies of Kiao-Chau and the Pacific islands in which Japan had established interest.

France and England thereupon replied to Japan that it had been deemed desirable, in answering Mr. Wilson's request for terms, not to make these terms embrace everything which might come up later, but to confine them for the present to the readjustment of territory in Europe. Later on, it was pointed out, the future German territorial possessions outside of Europe would be considered, so that Japan's rights would be properly safeguarded and secured for future determination. This was satisfactory to Japan, who then gave her approval to the joint reply to Mr. Wilson, stating the Allies' main terms.

The Japanese Embassy here has given Japan's understanding of the arrangement, as stated by Foreign Minister Motono. He said:

"The absence of any allusion to the future disposal of the German colonies has justly attracted the attention of public opinion in Japan. That point has, however, never escaped the attention of the Imperial Government. The reply to the American note does not certainly contain all the conditions of peace to be demanded by the Allied Powers. They reserve the right to present these conditions when the terms of peace are discussed. Reference is made to this point in the note to the United States. In order to avoid all misunderstandings we took steps to safeguard our right when we addressed our adhesion to the draft by the French Government, and I am happy to say that a satisfactory understanding exists among all the allies on this point."

The attitude of the new British Administration was announced about the same time in the statement of the new Minister of Colonies in the Lloyd George Cabinet, who, in saying he spoke with "knowledge and full responsibility with regard to the German colonies of which we had acquired possession since the war began, and as the representative of the vast overseas dominions," said as to the British policy towards these colonies:

STRUGGLES NOT IN VAIN.

"Let no man think that their struggles for these colonies have been in vain. Let no man think that these colonies will ever return to German rule. It is impossible. Our oversea empire will not tolerate any suggestion of the kind. We have been able to rectify mistakes since the war began, and it now rests with the people of this country to help to an early and satisfactory peace, and to take care that they prepare before the war ends to face that other bitter and ruthless contest in trade and commerce which will follow hereafter."

About the same time the view of Australia and New Zealand as to the German island colonies in the Pacific was expressed by Sir Joseph Ward, Finance Minister of New Zealand, and W. F. Massey, Prime Minister of New Zealand, both of whom will be in the coming imperial conference. Sir Joseph Ward said:

"I saw with regret in the note sent to the United States by the allies in reply to the German peace offer that there was no reference to the manner in which the conquered German colonies are to be treated. There was not a word of reference to those islands in the Pacific which Australia and New Zealand had taken from the Germans, and which those dominions were determined should never go back again to the Germans. Unless the peace conditions provide for the reversion to Great Britain of those German territories, particularly New Guinea and Samoa, which had been won by the blood and treasure of Australia and New Zealand, the people of those dominions would never rest content."

Prime Minister Massey said at the same time:

"New Zealand holds Samoa, and means to retain it. I am sure the Australian people feel the same as to the enemy islands which they have occupied. When the war began there was no question of taking territory. But after what we have seen in Poland, we in the Pacific would not feel secure if German bases were to be permitted in the southern hemisphere with German warships within a day or two steaming from our settlements. No, we must hold what we have taken, and this attitude toward the German colonies will be the one taken by Australia and New Zealand in the imperial conference."

These views are so uniform from all British, Japanese and dominion authorities having an interest in the German colonies, that retention of these colonies, and a readjustment of their boundaries, has become pretty thoroughly understood. The change of the map will be made chiefly in Africa, where the west coast is now a patchwork of little colonies, alternating between France, Portugal, England and Belgium, and which are expected to be merged eventually into large, connected areas, capable of development in railway, telegraph and trade communication, and each part of an imperial domain in Africa—France in the west, England in the east and south, and Belgium and Portugal sharing in this community of interests.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Levi P. Bullied, who died February 19th, 1917:

There came a message o'er the river
From the palace of the King,
To this dear one dying lowly,
Words of comfort it did bring.

All unseen by mortal vision,
Heavenly messengers of peace
Hovered gently o'er his pillow,
Whispering words of glad release.

Can it be that I am dying?
Must I leave you all behind;
Father, sisters, all my dear ones,
And the friends so true and kind?

The happy years have flown so swiftly;
It seems as life had just begun;
But now my earth's work here is ended,
Oh, may our Father's will be done.

There comes to me, from o'er the river,
O'er that river, broad and deep,
Visions of the white-robed angels,
Who, their holy vigils keep.

And their presence seems to soothe me;
Lure me from the earth away;
In the blessed home up yonder,
There is room for me to-day.

I must go, 'tis Jesus calls me,
And I trust His power to save;
In His arms He'll bear me gently,
O'er the dark and stormy waves.

You must not be lonely, dear ones,
In your dreams I'll still be near,
There amid the guarding angels,
Safely kept from every fear.

On the other side death's river
There is beauty, rich and rare,
And there, within the gates so golden,
I'll await your coming there.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S APRON.

By Anabel Worthington.

8,055

In time of work, an ever present help is an apron that will cover every part of the dress and, of course, it must be on approved fashion lines. Such garment is shown in the illustration No. 8,055.

In this sleeveless model, the body part is neatly fitted to the figure, being rounded out over the shoulders as if to suggest that the military note is still in the air. A belt of material joins a three-gore skirt that is cut with ample fulness and arranged with a seamed panel front; a large well shaped pocket is stitched at either side.

Banding in contrasting color at the neck, sides of the waist and to trim the pockets will brighten up the garment, but is not really necessary. The closing is down the centre of the back.

For a nurse's apron this is an excellent design for developing in linen, gingham, or drill—for a housekeeper these same materials are good; also percale. It is easy to see that there are no weary thoughts connected with the making of such a garment.

The pattern No. 8,055 cuts in sizes 36, 40 and 44. To make in size 36 requires 3¼ yards 36 inch material.

To obtain the pattern, send 4 to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

50,000 NEW CITIZENS ENROLLED IN A DAY

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 21.—During the two weeks since the diplomatic break with Germany foreigners living in the United States, notably Germans and Austrians, have flocked to the courts to become American citizens in such numbers that Labour Department officials to-day said the total could not even be estimated. An idea of the unprecedented rush for naturalisation papers is afforded by the fact that on one day alone more than fifty thousand certificates of naturalisation were issued.

The chief rush for papers was reported from New York, Cleveland, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Detroit, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Boston and Philadelphia. To meet the demand the department has ordered the issuance of more than one hundred thousand blanks to be distributed to examiners throughout the country.

For the first time in the history of the department factory and mill employers with large numbers of foreign workers on their payrolls will aid their employes in a wholesale way to become American citizens. Tens of thousands of application blanks will be distributed among such employers to facilitate their reaching employes who desire naturalisation.

When the Panic's on the Stock.

(With all needful apologies.)

When the slump is on the market,
and the panic's on the stock,
And you hear the moan of sorrow
from the chap who owns a block,
And the chatter of the dopesters,
and the chucklin' of the bears,
Who emit their hallyhooyers at the
spreadin' of the scares;
Oh, it's then's the time a feller should grab fortune on the fly;
It is then that he should load up;
it is then they are a buy.
It is then it's best to plunge in 'ere the tape says three o'clock,
When the frost is on the market,
and the slump is on the stock.

There is something so depressing
as you gaze about the room,
Where the boys all sit and mutter,
with their faces full of gloom.
That it's hard to hold your courage, and to take this good advice, Still you'd better do it, Mr., if it's then you have the price.
Let your fancy paint a vision of the gold you'll reap in time
When the panic's safely over, and the market's on the climb.
'Tis a picture that no painter has the colourin' to mock,
When the slump is on the market,
and the panic's on the stock.

OVER-WORKED MAN

Bank Cashier Almost a Wreck—How He Regained Strength.

Peterborough people will realize that this is one more link in the wonderful chain of evidence proving that Vinol, which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, has no equal to create strength.

Mr. Chas. A. Ogle, Monrovia, Md., says:

"For many years I was a school teacher, then for three years was Deputy Clerk in Frederick County, Md., and for the last three years I have been Cashier of the First National Bank. My nerves got in such a bad condition, and with poor assimilation of food, I was fast becoming a physical and mental wreck. Seeing an advertisement for Vinol I purchased a bottle, and found it to be exactly what I needed. It has not only benefited my nerves, but built me up both mentally and physically, and I want to recommend it to anyone suffering as I did."

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

Fall of Kut-El-Amara Expected And Bagdad Drive To Be Resumed

BLOCKS BERLIN DREAM OF ASIATIC EMPIRE

Will Result in Control of Lower Mesopotamia with Base for Tigris Operations.

LONDON, Feb. 22. — "On to Bagdad!" is just now the cry in military circles due to the imminence of the capture of Kut-el-Amara, where General Maude, who at present commands the British expedition in Mesopotamia, has drawn an iron ring around the Turkish forces. These are now surrounded in the bend of the Tigris much as General Townsend was last year when he was forced to surrender on the point of starvation after a siege of 143 days. It is only anticipating by a few weeks to say that the march to Bagdad will be resumed.

When the history of the Mesopotamian expedition comes to be written it will rival in marvellous tales even the far famed "Arabian Nights" of the Mohammedan city. The British aeroplane dropping phonograph needles into the beleaguered camp to make music for the idle soldiers is every whit as wonderful as the roc of Sinbad the Sailor, with the additional value that it is true. The advance of the troops up the river, past the Garden of Eden, past the tombs of Ezra and Ezekiel and the scenes of Jewish captivity in Babylonia to the ruins of Ctesiphon, that rampart of the Persians against the legions of imperial Rome, was one of continual adventure and alertness as the panorama of the sinuous river unfolded itself to the British and Indian troops.

To Block Berlin-Bagdad Dream.

Begun for the purpose of protecting the Anglo-Persian oil fields east of the river, the expedition gradually developed into a thrust at the terminus of the Berlin-Bagdad Railroad, the concrete representation of the German dream of a Mittel Europa, dominating Magyar, Bulgar and Turk, and stretching from the shores of the North Sea to the Persian Gulf. Assembling near Koweit with a few small river boats soon after the war began, General Townshend's expedition pushed up the Shatt-el-Arab to Korna, at the junction of the Tigris and the Euphrates.

From this point the expedition began to move up the Tigris in the spring of 1915, six months after Turkey entered the war. Practically unopposed at first the Turks by summer began to take notice of the invasion, concentrating more and more troops on both banks of the stream. Then reinforcements, chiefly Indian contingents, were sent to General Townshend, who continued working his way up the river until he arrived at Ctesiphon, about twenty-five miles below Bagdad, with less than 20,000 men. Here a great force of Turkish troops attacked him in November and after several days of desperate resistance he was compelled to retreat with a loss of 4,567 officers and men.

General Townshend fell back, fighting every inch of the way until he reached Kut-el-Amara, ninety miles further down the Tigris, losing heavily all the time in men and seeing two of his gun boats wrecked in the mud shallows of the stream. The British at once began fortifying the place, constructing a ring of field works on both banks with barbed wire entanglements. The Turks swept past the city and the salt marshes north of the river and on the south crossed the Shatt-el-Hai, completely isolating General Townshend from all communication except by wireless and aeroplanes.

General Townshend's Surrender.

From December 7, 1915, to April 28, 1916, General Townshend held out, but was finally obliged to succumb to the pangs of hunger and the perils of disease. A river steamboat loaded with provisions sent to the besieged army was wrecked within the Turkish lines and aeroplanes were not numerous enough to supply the necessary food, although ammunition was not lacking. Finally, destroying his guns and military equipment, General Townshend surrendered and his force, then consisting of 6,000 Indian troops and 2,970 British of all ranks, became prisoners of the Turks.

Meantime a relief force of 50,000 men, under General Aylmer, had been fighting its way up the river, and was only sixteen miles away when the disaster overtook the British at Kut. By January 14th, 1916, they had reached Orah, only twenty-five miles from the beleaguered troops. There followed a series of battles on both banks, gunboats in the river taking part. There were the usual recriminations against the War Office here, and General Nixon, who had been in command of all the Mesopotamian operations, was replaced by Sir Percy Lake without much help to General Aylmer at the front.

Fighting continued through February and March until finally General Sir George Gorringe was sent out, replacing General Aylmer, in the first week of April. He stormed the Umm-el-Henna positions on April 5th, while General Kealy on the south, drove the Turks westward, until he arrived opposite Felahie. This was captured by General Gorringe the same night. From Felahie the British advanced against the Sannaiyat trenches, fifteen miles from Kut, and also on the north bank of the Tigris, hurling themselves against the Turkish works in vain. On the south bank General Kealy reached the Dujaila redoubt, only seven miles east of Kut, but was unable to relieve General Townshend.

Third Attempt Likely to Win.

After the fall of Kut-el-Amara the Turks abandoned their trenches on the south and withdrew to the west of the Shatt-el-Hai, but retained the Sannaiyat position, where they still remain facing the British both sides intrenched. The disaster to General Townshend resulted in sending out a third expedition of 120,000 men on December 13th last. These troops advanced along the southern bank, reached the Shatt-el-Hail on January 11, crossed that river on January 28, and bombarded a licorice factory opposite Kut. Last Sunday they crossed the Tigris west of Kut and completed the circle about the Turks drawing a line from bank to bank across the bend of the river within which Kut is located.

This completes the investment of the city, which is on low ground, without any strong natural defences. Gently rolling sand hills on the north form only the only relief to the plain, which is almost on the river level, and is frequently flooded. It is very doubtful that the Turks in Kut can hold out for long. Its capture will compel the evacuation of Sanaiyat and will atone for the blunder that resulted in the surrender of General Townshend. It will give the British complete control of the triangular system of waterways formed by the Shatt-el-Hai, which connects the Euphrates and the Tigris and will assure possession of lower Mesopotamia and afford a base for operations against Bagdad with a sufficient force and ample supplies. And this time there will be no turning back.

Why the West is For Union

By Dr. J. K. UNSWORTH, D.D., of Nanaimo, B.C.

REGARDING Union sentiment in the West you can count on it as solid. The average Western man ascribes the hesitation of the Easterner to his ignorance of Western conditions. He himself cannot think in any other terms, ecclesiastically, than Union. In church matters, as in all others, he co-operates readily toward a social objective. This is manifest in the advanced social legislation of the prairies.

But the hesitation of the obstructionist Easterner is not, as some Westerners think, due to ignorance of conditions, but to his conservative individualism in religion—in church as in other matters. Fine, noble, cultured as is Montreal Protestantism, Protestantism has never had elbow room, never the swing and expansion it has found in the West. The overshadowing Roman Catholic Church has prevented the full development of Protestantism towards social unification. It has emphasized traditional methods. It has prevented a full response to the spirit in experimentation. The difference between West and East is not in theology, it is in the social temper, in the co-operative spirit.

For these Westerners, as I said, are entirely social. The wide prairie, the new experiences which unify, the detachment from the past through emigration from home and childhood's associations, the predominance of Protestantism, has given them a temper and spirit which cannot fail to be union. If not born in them it is bred.

As to this present situation he has been patient with the delay, but he has never looked backward. And of this "Presbyterian Association" movement he expresses regret and hopes it will not grow; but it will not affect him one iota. He cannot undo his own personality. Why is there no Winnipeg minister on the list? Even if any of the ministers hesitated, the spirit of their congregations and of the whole community would master them. The average man has settled the matter. Union is taken for granted. There will be no going back.

Dr. J. K. Unsworth, D.D.

If these men of the "Presbyterian Association" elect to remain in a denominational church which will wither before their eyes during the next twenty-five years, they and they alone must be ready for the consequences. But the man who has seen that Christianity is a spiritual thing, a spirit to be left free to shape itself afresh in the everchanging enlargement of the human spirit; the man who has been by this war confirmed in his conviction that all forms may go, any unfamiliar adaptation made, if only the objective be attained; the man who holds that the welfare of humanity precedes and shapes the organization of the church. What it is the living man whom we should serve and not antique methods of serving him. These men, to use a Westerner's figure of speech, must unalterably hold the plow handles steady and yarder the whole stick. Hold thou to it!

RUSSIAN KINDEST OF FRIENDS TO CANADIAN

"Ministering Women," Writes Canadian Soldier—Their Self-Sacrifice When Prisoners—Fine Testimony

Pte. C. V. Combe, No. 236, 8th Canadians, British interned prisoner, sent an interesting letter to a Winnipegger from Hotel Marren, Switzerland, in which he wrote: A pair of socks or anything never come amiss to British prisoners in Germany. My own experience in Germany, however, was that I had about six times as many socks as I could possibly hope to use, for there are always plenty of Russians and Serbians in direst need. At Ruhleben we often had visits from Russian working parties going out to work, etc. These poor fellows, starved and beaten, often had not a pair of socks to their feet nor a shirt to their backs in the dead of winter. It was then that I, a man who am not overreligious, lifted my eyes to heaven and thanked the kindly powers that moved our people to send us those things in abundance.

Starved For Canadians

In all Germany I do not know of more deserving fellows than these same Russians. When our boys were first captured in April, 1915, the Russians, after seeing the starved and destitute state they were in, saved their bread rations and gave it to the Canadians." When you remember that the "Russkies" themselves were more than half starved, you will appreciate the largeness of heart which made them stand around all day and hungrily look at the food that they were saving for their Canadian comrades. In the future, whenever I meet a Russian I meet a friend, and my experience is the same as that of all my comrades. I have never yet heard a Canadian, or for that matter, a Britisher of any nationality, say anything except good of the Russians. These men are our constant good angels in bad times as well as in good. I have seen a Russian, sick himself, stay by the bed of a very sick Englishman the entire night through. There are not many Britishers who would do as much for their own compatriots.

Much Maligned Race

The Russian is essentially a religious man. His religion seems something like the religion of the Mohammedan in that he practices it very much in public. A Russian will seldom eat any food without first calling down the blessing of heaven upon it. He will seldom depart on a journey, even under the shadow of German bayonets, without first asking the blessing of heaven. And when a Britisher leaves a camp where his Russian friends are staying there is such a palaver of blessings and partings that one is rather glad to get away.

I know that this is very far from the average conception of the Russian. We commonly think of the ferocious Cossack as the representative Russian, but that opinion is very much in error. I have read of Russian barbarities and I have shuddered to think what would happen if Russia were ever to plant her foot firmly in German soil. And yet actual contact with the Russians leaves only a good impression on me. It is hard to think that men who act as they act in misfortune could act as the German press says they act when things are going well with them. The great mass of the Russians are as gentle as women, and it seems to me that when religious and political emancipation shall have ennobled their lives, broadened their visions and quickened their wits, we can look for great things from the civilization of these men who are our allies of to-day.

QUERIES FOR NEUTRALS

Clever Re-statement of the Case of the Entente Allies

The following was sent by "Armi Deg Hemmes" was published by the Boston Transcript: If a savage had broken into your neighbor's house and killed your neighbor. And if the brute had then attacked your neighbor's wife and daughters, committing fiendish outrages upon them. And if you had gone to the rescue, though poorly prepared, and had fought the beast for over two years.

And if one of your other neighbors had come nothing to help, and had told you frankly that they must be absolutely neutral even in thought. And if this neutral neighbor had made every endeavor to get your customers away from you, while you were consequently absent from your business.

And if at last you had succeeded in snapping a struggle hold upon the assassin so that he suddenly became very anxious to escape with his booty. Then, if your neutral neighbor should send you a "note" stating that he compelled you and the ravisher were fighting for the same objects.

And if he should ask you to sign and countersign a written statement of your peace terms. And if the spectacle friends of your neighbor's son-in-law should get the tip in time to call the stock markets and make it look like Belgium. And if the friend with whom you where fighting for your life should derive new hope and courage from your neighbor's intervention in his behalf.

Wouldn't you feel grateful to your neutral neighbor? And, wouldn't you consider him a man of rare tact and discernment? And, wouldn't you think that people that were too proud to fight were also too proud to notice? And, wouldn't the episode give you that happy, happy, Christmas feeling?

Canadian Chaplain's Bravery

The Rev. William Robert Fenwick Addison, V.C., Army Chaplain, was reported wounded. The official record of the deed for which he was awarded the Victoria Cross said in part: "By his splendid example and utter disregard of personal danger he encouraged the stretcher-bearers to go forward under heavy fire and collect the wounded." The Rev. Mr. Addison was, as a young man, for some time in a lumber camp in Canada.

Kut-El-Amara Has Been Recaptured By The British

TURKISH GARRISON IN FULL RETREAT

FALL OF KUT-EL-AMARA ANNOUNCED WHOLE ENEMY'S POSITIONS SECURED

Enemy's Positions at Sanaiyat Have Been Secured ---This Will Give the British Complete Control of Lower Mesopotamia and Afford a Base For Operations Against Bagdad---The Cunard Liner "Laconia" Torpedoed Off the Irish Coast.

LONDON, February 26.—Kut-El-Amara in Mesopotamia has been recaptured by the British forces, Chancellor of the Exchequer Andrew Bonar Law made the announcement this afternoon in the House of Commons. He said that the Turkish garrison was in full retreat. "The whole enemy's position at Sanaiyat and Kut-El-Amara have been secured." The Mesopotamian statement announced that "Kut itself is automatically ours."

The capture of Kut will give the British complete control of the triangular system of waterways formed by the Shatt-el-Hai, which connects the Euphrates and the Tigris and will assure possession of lower Mesopotamia and afford a base for operations against Bagdad with a sufficient force and ample supplies.

NEW YORK, February 26.—The White Star liner Lapland arrived at Liverpool safely Sunday afternoon, a cable to the local offices of the line announced to-day.

PARIS, February 26.—The American freighter Orleans has entered the Gironde River and will dock at Bordeaux to-morrow.

Her entry into the Gironde means she has successfully passed the danger of the German submarine zone.

LONDON, February 26.—(By Ed. L. Keen.) — Conviction grew in Great Britain to-day that Germany deliberately planned the torpedoing of the seven Dutch ships reported on Saturday—to have fallen victims to the German "ruthlessness." The belief was based on the theory that Germany, her belt tight from lack of food has for a long time looked longingly at comfortable, well-fed Holland.

Commenting on the Dutch crisis the London Daily Chronicle to-day made a vigorous editorial assault on President Wilson "Because he has never lifted a finger on behalf of any interests except America's, and seemed unlikely to do so."

WILSON ADDRESSES THE CONGRESS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 26.—President Wilson to-day appealed to a joint session of Congress for permission to arm American merchantmen to establish an "armed neutrality," and for full and immediate assurance that he may exercise such authority as he deems necessary to handle the German-American situation.

Declaring that he is "the friend of peace and means to preserve it for America as long as he is able" the President emphasized the fact that he neither asks nor contemplates a step which might bring war through the action of this country. He declared that war could only come through the act of Germany. "No course of my choosing will lead to war," he said "War can come only by the wilful acts and aggression of others." He added in almost the next sentence that "We must defend our commerce and the lives of our people."

In the course of his speech Wilson said: "The situation we find ourselves in with regard to the actual conduct of the German submarine warfare against commerce is substantially the same that it was when I addressed you on the 3rd of February. We can only say therefore, that the overt act which I have ventured to hope the German commanders would in fact avoid has not occurred. But while this happily is true, it must be admitted there are certain indication of expressions of purpose of the part of the German press and the German authorities which have increased rather than lessened the impression that if our ships and our people are spared it will be because of fortunite circumstances or because the commanders of the German submarines which they may happen to encounter exercise an unexpected discretion and restraint rather than because of the instructions under which the commanders are acting.

"It would be foolish to deny that the situation is fraught with the gravest possibilities and dangers. No thoughtful man can fail to see that the necessity for definite action may come at any time.

"I am not proposing or contemplating war or any steps that need lead to it. I merely request that you will accord me by your own vote and definite bestowal the means and the authority to safeguard in practice the right of a great people who are at peace, and who are desirous of nothing

AMERICAN MERCHANTMEN WILL BE ARMED

President Wilson Appeals to Congress for Permission to Take This Step and to Establish an Armed Neutrality

ANOTHER APPEAL FOR THE GRENFELL MISSION

Last week was "Grenfell Week" in Peterborough, when the attention of our citizens was called daily to the famous work, being conducted by Dr. Wilfred Grenfell among the deep sea fishermen of Labrador. For several years, as the result of such concerted appeals, the people of Peterborough have contributed liberally to the support of the mission, and it will be of interest to many to recall that last year the sum of $210 was realized.

Thus far this year only $57 has been received, leaving $153 to be made up if we are going to maintain our standard of giving.

It is hoped that the simple statement of the above fact will appeal to many who may be disposed to pass by this work, at a time when so many demands are being made upon them, and that it may also serve to remind those who have neglected to hand in their contribution. The work of Dr. Grenfell is not connected with any denomination, and is one worthy of generous and hearty support. May it not suffer in its efficiency through any failure of ours.

The subscription lists will be kept open until the end of the present week, during which contributions may be handed to either "The Review" or "The Examiner," or to Mrs. James Wood, Secretary of the local branch, box 990.—R. B. Grobb. President Ministerial Association.

LIBERALS ARE SUCCESSFUL IN NEW BRUNSWICK

Premier Murray's Government Beaten in Elections on Saturday —Liberals Won 23 Seats With Four Deferred Elections to Be Held

MINISTERS DEFEATED

ST JOHN, N.B., Feb. 27.—Premier Murray's Government met defeat in the general elections on Saturday. The Government now has 21 seats and the Opposition 23, with four seats to be filled by the delayed elections in Gloucester, Monday.

Chances for four Gloucester seats favor the Opposition, indicating a majority of six for the new Liberal Government. Three Ministers were defeated. W. E. Foster, Opposition leader, was beaten in St. John County.

In the last Legislature the Liberals had three members and the Independents two, out of a total membership of 48.

The members elected are:

CONSERVATIVES.

King's County—Murray, Jones, Dickson.

St. John County—Baxter, Carson.

Charlotte—Smith, White, Sutton.

Charlotte—Taylor, Grimmer, Guptill, Smith.

Albert—Smith, Peck.

93rd BOYS WERE IN SUCCESSFUL RAID ON GERMAN TRENCHES

Interesting Letter From Pte. Harry Blewett, Right Wing of Last Year's 93rd Battalion Team---Five Peterborough Members of Canadian Mounted Rifles Are Now Believed Dead---To-day's General Military News.

Hockey Player Writes.

Hockey fans in particular, and his many friends in general, will be interested in reading the following letter from Pte. Harry Blewett, right wing of last year's 93rd Battalion intermediate O.H.A. and now in France. It was received by his mother, Mrs. John Blewett, Lakefield:

France, Jan. 18th, 1917.

Dear Mother,—Here I am once more on phone duty and everything is quiet at present. It was noisy enough yesterday to make up for the past month's quietness.

Our battalion and the battalion Squib Webster is in made a raid on Heiney and the men went down as far as his third line trench and then came back. Altogether in the raid a hundred and fourteen Heineys were captured. Our battalion captured sixty prisoners, one being an officer. We also captured two machine guns and a trench mortar. On the whole it was one of the most successful raids made on the western front. Sorry to say we had quite a few wounded and several killed.

There were some awful sights to be seen but I didn't see much as I was on phone duty in the support trench and did not go over. But it was quite hot enough for me around our dug-out. A number of the killed and wounded were carried past the entrance of our dug-out. I only saw one wounded man and he had been hit with a piece of shell in the chest. He was bleeding considerably when I saw him and his steel helmet was covered with blood, but nevertheless he was quite cheerful.

A young fellow by the name of Brown, whom I met since I came out here, was killed. He usually chumed with Norman Patterson. Bill Lemay and I when we were out for a rest. Poor fellow, he went over to Heiney's third line and bayoneted a sergeant major and a couple of privates, and brought back the S. M.'s cap as a souvenir. Just before he reached our trench he was hit and died about half an hour after. He sure did die game. His last words to the officer were "not many die like this, sir," and died with a smile. All the Lakefield boys came out without a scratch.

The corporal of our section got hit in the richt hand, but it is not serious. He may be down the line for a few days. It is just about breakfast time so I shall finish your letter to-morrow.

I didn't do as I promised to do, I have let your letter run for three days. I said in the letter that all our 93rd boys were O. K. Well, I am sorry to say they are not. There were four of the 93rd boys killed, but none that you would know. The Lakefield boys came out alright without any wounds. A man by the name of Miller, of the 93rd, was wounded.

The reason I did not finish by letter before was that I was coming out for a rest, and I would not be able to tell you in the letter so I thought it better to wait a while. We expect to be here for some little time. We are almost out of the sound of the guns, at least we are out of their range.

I shall close for this time with heaps of love and best wishes to all.

Your loving son,
HARRY.

Pte. Harry Lloyd, of Peterborough, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, and now a dispatch rider in France, wishes to thank the members of St. Paul's church for the parcel which he received on Feb. 7th. Pte. Lloyd, who is only seventeen years of age, had his face split open recently by a Hun bomb, but in a letter to his mother, says that an injury like that is considered only a scratch in France.

Mrs. Fred Griffin, 472 Bolivar street has received word that her son, Trooper M. Griffin of the C.M.R., Hamilton, left that city on Saturday with a draft for the East. Speaking of the departure of the soldiers the Hamilton Herald Says:

Hamilton's latest contribution to the fighting forces of the empire, a draft of four officers, 150 non-coms. and men of the Canadian Mounted Rifles left for the East this morning to complete training. The departure took place at the T. H. and B. Walnut street station, and the draft left shortly after 11 o'clock, in command of Lieut. H. D. Delamere.

It was a stirring spectacle and one never to be forgotten by those who participated. The sight has been common enough in this city during the last couple of years, but it never loses any of its significence. The station platform was crowded with the mothers, wives, relatives and sweethearts of the boys, who braved the frosty weather to bid farewell to their loved ones. Brave men broke down under the strain of parting and many touching scenes were enacted at the depot.

Pte. Leonard Blake, of the 8th C. M.R., who has been missing since June 2nd last, is now officially reported killed. This is the second bereavement that has come to the home in six weeks, the other son being killed near his home in a sleigh-riding accident. Mr. and Mrs. J. Blake will have the sympathy of all their friends.

Mr. W. R. Morris has received the following letter from Capt. T. W. Jones, one of the Y.M.C.A. war workers, who was in Peterborough at the time of the campaign in aid of the Y.M.C.A. work for soldiers:

R. M. S. Grampian,
Jan. 29th.

Dear Mr. Morris,— I expect you wonder where I am and what I have been doing since those happy days in Peterborough.

As you see by the note I am on board the Grampian "Somewhere in the Atlantic," crossing with a number of troops.

We are having a very good passage. The weather is nice and save for a couple of days of sickness all is going well. I never knew how much the Y.M.C.A. meant to the men so well as I know it on this work—they certainly appreciate it. I keep them supplied with reading and writing materials, games, fruit for the sick boys as well as concerts or lantern entertainments every night and incidentally run an information bureau.

It certainly is great to be in such service, where one can minister to our brave lads while they are doing their duty so nobly.

In my set of slides on Canada I have one of the Lift Lock at Peterborough and when I show it I try to put in a good word for the town that treated me so kindly.

After the campaigns were over I was situated in Halifax for a few weeks working with both soldiers and sailors. The war continues much the same as when I was with you, does it not? It seems as if there is still great need for sacrifice and service on the part of all.

Please remember me very kindly to any friends. Believe me,

Yours truly,
T. W. Jones, Capt.

BIG RETIREMENT BY THE GERMANS

British Are in Possession of Pys, Serre, Miraumont and Petit Miraumont, Including the Famous Butte de Warlencourt — Huns Drop Back Three Miles.

TO EVACUATE BAPAUME?

British Headquarters in France, Feb. 25, via London, Feb. 26.—On one portion of the British front at least the war to-day became a war of movement. Under cover of fog and mist, which have been particularly heavy in the past 48 hours, the Germans carried out the greatest retirement they have made on the western front in the last two years, and the British have swept into possession of Pys, Serre, Miraumont and Petit Miraumont, including the famous Butte de Warlencourt, which has been the scene of some of the fiercest fighting of the war, and in places is deep with the bones of dead men.

The exact extent of the German retirement is not known to-night, but it is estimated that it approaches a depth of three miles at some points. British patrols are out in all directions, harrassing the Germans and keeping in touch with their movements. Until they report it will not be possible to say just where the Germans have determined to fix their next line of resistance.

Nevertheless it can be stated that the British now, or soon, will be in a position possibly to force the evacuation of Bapaume, which has been the key to the German position since the beginning of the battle of the Somme. The points which already have fallen into the British hands have stood out in the history of the fighting on this front and had been most stubbornly defended. Only a week ago, when the British attacked on a two-mile front east and south of Miraumont and Pys, the German resistance was bitter and the high ground desired was won only after desperate hand-to-hand encounters and the taking of more than 800 German prisoners.

The British had been waiting for a clearing of the foggy weather before pressing the advance, but meantime it is apparent that the German high command decided to retire without any further fighting to stronger positions prepared well to the rear.

Friday night fires were observed in the German front line trenches. They were only dimly visible through the thick mist of the particularly black night, but it was discovered that the flames issued from burning German dugouts. Patrols sent forward reported the evacuation of the German outposts.

Similar reports came from north of the Ancre and by nightfall yesterday the British had established themselves in Petit Miraumont and advanced all along the line, meeting only with sniping resistance here and there.

To-day the British patrols pressed forward keeping in close contact with the Germans, who had retreated a further 2,000 yards during the night. Thus the way was opened to the ground which for months had been contested.

Kept Up Show of Resistance.

There were bursts of stiff resistance from German obstructing parties which had been scattered in the rear of the retiring columns. Early today a big mine was exploded in the main street of Miraumont just before the British advanced patrols entered.

It is evident now that the Germans, taking advantage of the last days of

5 DRUNKS ARRESTED SUNDAY NIGHT IN THE SAME DISTRICT

Aylmer Street, Between Simcoe and Charlotte Streets Provided Five Young Men—$250 in Fines Collected From Them

TWO BOTTLES ON ONE MAN

Chief Thompson's force gathered in five drunks last night, and this morning Magistrate Dumble collected from them fines that aggregated $260, exclusive of costs. Two particular features of this haul were notable. The drunks were, without exception, young men, and the arrests were made on Sunday night; all of them within a short radius of the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets.

The first two were gathered in about 11.30 p.m., a few hours after the evening services in the churches were concluded. Complaints had come to the police station of the brawling of this pair in the vicinity of Aylmer and Charlotte streets, and Sergeants Kidd and Reid and P. C. Blade responded, locating the young men in a lane behind the Chinese laundry. One of them had two bottles in his possession. One bottle was almost empty, the other had not been tapped. This offender was fined $200 for having liquor in his possession, and his pal taxed $20. Costs were added.

One of these chaps told the highly coloured story of having been given a bottle from a man named Bennet from Detroit, whom he had met on the street.

Along about 2 o'clock this morning the police landed two more drunks, between Charlotte and Simcoe streets, on Aylmer. One of them got away, but returned in fifteen minutes. The police had waited, expecting that move, and at 3 o'clock the cells had four Sunday nighters.

The fifth man was landed in the meantime.

The latter three were each fined $10 and costs of $3.75.

"Y" BOYS ON A SNOWSHOE TRAMP TO STONEY LAKE

Three of the "Y" boys, Garnet Galley, John Carlisle and Minto Brownscombe, returned to the city this afternoon from a snow-shoe tramp to Stoney Lake. They started out last Saturday, fully equipped with snowshoes, toboggan, dunnage, etc., in fact everything necessary for a trip to the wilds in the middle of winter. They, however, overlooked one very necessary article, a canoe, as when they awoke this morning, and started for home it was raining like it does in the good old summer time. Nothing daunted, and as provisions were running low, the pangs of hunger prevailed, so they loaded their toboggan, put on their snowshoes and headed for the south. They followed the ice trail from near Burleigh, out around Juniper Island store, and down the centre of Clear Lake to South Beach, where they left the ice and followed the road to Lakefield and Peterborough. Needless to say they were wet when they reached here, but they did not mind that and they pronounce the outing one of the best they have ever taken, even if they did get wet to the hide. Next time they will remember that sometimes it rains in the winter.

THE WEATHER.

A rise in temperature of over 50 degrees in 24 hours is an unusual occurrence, but this has happened since yesterday morning. On Sunday morning the thermometer was down to 12 degrees below zero; this (Monday) morning it was up to 39 degrees above, and raining.—W. P.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

MONDAY, FEB. 26, 1917

REMEMBER TO-NIGHT.

The younger business men, whom Mayor Duffus is calling into conference through the medium of a dinner at Hooper's Palm Parlours, tonight, are urged to be on hand with some fresh, new ideas for civic betterment. The object of the gathering, the advance crusade it represents, appeals, or should appeal more strongly to them than to the riper set of citizens, whose business race is, in the course of nature, nearly run. Younger shoulders will soon have to take up the burden, but even now there is opportunity and call to every one, young and old, to get shoulder to shoulder in a united forward push. Above all is the necessity of keeping the ball rolling. It got a good start Thursday night. Give it another "boost" tonight.

THE TRENT CANAL.

There is no one thing that Peterborough needs in the interests of her industrial health, industrial growth, commercial prosperity and the general expansion of every interest than the Trent Canal. It has been coming for the past eighty years and hasn't arrived yet, and it may be two or three years more before it will be open to navigation from bay to lake. And this will only be possible with success of the most strenuous efforts to induce the government to take the Trent Canal seriously—to neutralise the sinister opposing influence of the railways against the canal. If governments for the past thirty or forty years and up to the vital present hadn't been manipulated by the railways, it is safe to assert that the canal would have been finished long, long ago, and Peterborough and district and the county at large, would have been getting the big advantage of its operation as a transportant medium.

When we see what Peterborough, is in danger of losing by delay in opening the Trent Canal—one of the greatest industrial losses of our history—it becomes the duty of the City Council as officially representing the citizens and of prominent and influential residents, as morally and by responsibility of their positions, representing the interests of the city, to organise some scheme of pressure upon the government to hasten the completion of the canal. The influences that deaden the zeal of the government in canal completion are so subtle, the authors so expert by long practice that it is impossible to see what course of action can be taken to arouse the authorities to effective action. But it is certainly worth while to try to do something to end a delay that threatens to have a bad effect upon our local, industrial and commercial interests.

In the event of failure of an attempt to get past the adverse influence of rail transportation interests, there might be a more vigorous attempt made to end the delay by interesting Sir Henry Drayton and the Railway Commission to pronounce upon and facilitate the success of a pending proposal, that will be a temporary substitute for the advantages we have lost, or possibly may lose, by delay in completing the Trent Canals.

THE HOUR FOR THE HOME GARDEN.

This is the hour of the home garden; the time when every atom of soil productiveness should be utilised as a factor in the fulfilment of a national, imperial and imperative duty.

Food stocks in Great Britain have fallen to the lowest point of record. Britain has not shrunk from nationalising all her forces in the interests of achieving victory. The latest to come is nationalization of the soil to insure greater food production. Power has been given to enforce production, which Premier Lloyd George considers the most important item of the generally intensified utilisation of resources.

We in Canada need to think and act in the same direction. Prices of food products are growing higher, and the only way to meet the advance seems to be to increase production of all sorts of food.

The Examiner for years has been harping upon the string of the home garden; and in the year that the practice became general, the results justified the effort. Now governments see the necessity and have joined the crusade. The Ontario Minister of Education has issued an appeal to school inspectors and teachers to see that food is grown in school gardens instead of flowers. He adds to his appeal a call to urban municipalities to do likewise, and he estimates that, if the urban municipalities of Ontario of from 1,000 to 10,000 population, would double the present production of their home gardens and poultry yards, and if vacant lots and areas were cultivated, there would result an increase in food products of a value of ten million dollars, "at a very conservative calculation."

It is hoped that the people of the city will take these facts to heart. A citizen in his first year of housekeeping, said he got off a little back yard garden about 35 feet square, vegetables to the value of $28, according to market prices (a good deal lower then than now.) He kept a strict record and his figures can be depended upon.

Assuming that there are in the city 3,000 home garden plots of that size —and there must be more—with equal care and success in cultivation, they would yield food products of the value of $84,000. If we added to these little plots, the cultivation—the planting to potatoes—of every vacant lot in the city, and immediate suburbs, with a fair yield, and at the present prices, the additional food products would be increased four or five fold and easily amount in value to half a million dollars, and perhaps more—according to the estimate of the Minister of Education.

We should concentrate upon the greatest possible production of potatoes, for according to present conditions and outlook, they will be scarcer and dearer next year. One of the most successful farmers of North Monaghan, said on Saturday that the city people must expect a smaller supply of potatoes from the farmers next year —the scarcity of labour and of potatoes for seed would mean less planting and less production.

Another farmer with a family of only two, with twenty bags of potatoes in his cellar on Feb. 26, has none for sale—not even a bushel—he will need them all for his own use and for seed.

With things this way, "it is up to" us city people to look out for ourselves, which we can do in a very important way by cultivating every possible foot of vacant back yard, to the greatest possible point of production. And the city council, will be doing a great thing for the citizens if they lend their influence and aid to the cultivation of every vacant lot and plot in the city and suburbs. Vacant lots are promising fields and easy of being made productive. They have by lying fallow for years accumulated a fertility, that should respond freely to cultivation..

There is no question of the immense amount of food that will be grown if all land that can be tilled is put under cultivation. The plots being small can be intensively cultivated and made to yield largely.

This is a matter of self protection and national and imperial patriotism. The Mother country will need every ounce of food, that herself and Canada can grow. The more we grow, the more we shall have for ourselves and the more to ship to the old land.

The home garden and the vacant lot potato plot constitute a subject of the very first importance. Individually the results may be small, but taken altogether, the results will be a big help to meeting the shortage of food supply, which, without some such sensible and practical generally applied and thorough measures will grow worse.

It is now full time for everybody that has a little home garden plot or vacant lot to prepare for planting. In Toronto the Department of Agriculture is sending out gardening experts to advise and help the citizens get a start in home gardening. And somebody in authority here could do a splendid work by giving encouragement and help in performing patriotism by production.

Do The People of Canada Realize The Seriousness of the Situation?

Premier Lloyd George rang the fire bells yesterday, and his speech will not be pleasant reading to those complacent people in Canada who have fondly imagined that the war was practically over, and that all that remained was to prepare for a return to peace with a period of tremendous prosperity, frenzied money making, high living, and jollification.

There are others, however, who will take comfort from the fact that Lloyd George did not mince his words, did not gloss over a serious situation, did not hesitate to picture the reverse side of the prospect. Better to have a nation thoroughly alarmed, they will say, than to have one resting in a fool's paradise.

It is, perhaps, unnecessary to caution our own people against undue depression, or to remind them that one reason Lloyd George sounded the tocsin was because he had to announce the imposition of extremely heavy sacrifices of imports considered advisable to forestall a situation that may never materialise.

From day to day we are impressed with the idea that, in Canada, far too many of us have not yet realized that we are, or ought to be, up to our necks in this war. Slight restrictions on our normal life, comparitively small charges against our usual incomes, trifling interferences with our ordinary comfort, little deprivations of our accustomed luxuries, are still exaggerated and resented by us.

"Sacrifice" is not yet the Canadian slogan. Few of us know what sacrifice really means. We have subscribed to this fund and that, we have done a little patriotic work here and a little there; but how many have subscribed and worked until it hurt?

We are three thousand miles away from the scene of the conflict, and we are three thousand miles short of a proper appreciation of the meaning, and the terrors, and the sacrifices of the war that is our war.

We need men to carry the fiery cross through Canada, to sound the tocsin in this country as Lloyd George sounded it in England yesterday. Lloyd George's speech should alarm us as it was intended, it should alarm the people of the British Isles—alarm, but not frighten.

Britain is taking steps to prevent a possible food famine.

What is Canada going to do to help in the same direction?

The task is clear, the method is easy to see. Shall we accept the task and go to it, each for himself? Of course we need men to lead us, to show us the way and to organise us, but it won't do for us individually to sit down and wonder why "somebody" does not "do something."

"Wake up England!" was a message that King George gave to the people of the Motherland before the war.

"Wake up Canada!" is the message that comes to all of us now.—Ottawa Journal-Press.

THE LATEST IN CHURCH UNION

To the Editor of The Daily Examiner.

Sir:—The spirit of domination which imperils civil liberty abroad, persists in effort to suppress religious liberty at home. Men who are free to leave the church if they wish, and go where they wish, are not content with that, but are doing their utmost to bring to an end the Presbyterian Church, and to drive her homeless membership into a new church combine.

May I refer to the latest agency, and the newest arguments for leading people to submit to such dictation and coercion.

The latest agency calls itself the "Montreal Presbyterian Publicity Committee." It has been sending out a series of letters to the press all over Canada.

Of its four members, the only two names known to me are Mr. W. M. Birks, chairman, and Dr. Bruce Taylor, secretary. The former does not belong to our church, but to the Presbyterian Church U.S.A.. The latter has only been a short time in Canada. Of the efforts of outsiders and newcomers to break up the Presbyterian Church and their good taste in assuming that task, your readers can judge.

Passing from this latest agency, note the latest arguments. The old arguments failed. Their only result in the four years between the two votes of the people was to increase the opposition by about fifty per cent.

The new arguments are of two kinds —names and pictures. Our people will appreciate this tribute to their intelligence.

First, come the names. The first letter of this "Montreal Presbyterian Publicity Committee," recently published, consists of the names, occupations, etc., of forty-eight "Presbyterian laymen" from Halifax to Vancouver. These names are not given as members of a committee, but as reasons why the Presbyterian Church in Canada should be blotted out because they think so.

Presbyterians usually do their own thinking. They do not suppose that a little prominence in finance, politics or law especially qualifies for deciding questions of faith and conscience for others.

Thirteen of the forty-eight names, more than one fourth of them, are given as from Montreal. One of these to whom they call special attention as heading the list, removed from Canada thirty years ago. Five others of the thirteen belong to the American Church of the Presbytery of New York, Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

It is a congregation of worthy people, and has done much of its mission work through the boards of our church —but for more than forty years it has lived outside the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and has not united with it. There was no special reason why it should do so if it preferred otherwise. It would not have done better work. It shows that Organic Union is not necessary to unity.

This "Publicity Committee" has thus published to the world, as belonging to and representing the Presbyterian Church in Canada, nearly half their list of Montreal names from another church. This is so plain an untruth that there need be no surprise at a second untruth, in that same letter, which declares that "the basis of union permits and expects existing congregations to continue in every particular exactly as before."

On the contrary it is self evident, and it is expressly declared in the Basis of Union, that every congregation "will be subject in general affairs, to the legislation, principles and discipline of the United Church"—a Church which has deliberately dropped from the ordination vows of ministers all declaration of acceptance of any system of Scripture Truth, dropping even the vow of acceptance of its own basis; leaving an open door for error, especially that error, all too prevalent which takes from Christ His Crown of Deithy and makes Him merely a man; a Church which, for its so-called eldership, has no ordination vows of any kind whatsoever; a Church which hands over all control of the calling and settlement of ministers to an arbitrary and irresponsible Settlement Committee, meeting once a year.

Some of the letters sent out by this "Publicity Committee" have the photos of the supposed writers. The pictures like the names are intended to impress.

One of their picture-letters tells of what it calls "The First Union Church in Canada," at St. Anne de Bellevue, near Montreal, the seat of McDonald Agricultural College. The letter implies that over-lapping and waste have been there replaced by a self-supporting Union Church.

This is a third untruth. What are the facts? We have a few good people at St. Anne who for many years, maintained religious services entirely self-supporting. During these years the Methodists and the Congregationalists had there neither people nor service. Shortly before the opening of the College the Methodists began holding a service.

Since the opening of the College and the presence of students, the three denominations have established a joint service, to which they give $1200 a year, the Presbyterians and Methodists giving each three-seventh ($517 yearly), and the Congregationalists one seventh.

It is not a union church, but a co-operative work supported in part by the General Mission Boards of the three churches, and keeping separate its record of membership.

This letter of the "Publicity Committee" states that the good work done there might be duplicated all over Canada. Who would pay the bills, twelve hundred dollars a year for each duplicate?

ADVERTISING A FLAG.

At the Mayor Duffus "booster" banquet, many good speeches were made as to the necessity of of advertising Peterborough and the possibilities she presents in respect of her suitability to manufacutring and as a centre of delightful summer attractions. This dependence upon advertising may be considered more necessary when our good American neighbours feel the necessity of advertising their national flag. Mr. Wilbur D. Nesbitt, a noted United States advertising writer, has composed a new national anthem, under the title of "Your flag and my flag." It is stated that "the simple stirring verses are sweeping the country." Mr. Nesbitt says the "flag verses are in a certain sense an advertisement for the American flag." He thinks they express what is in the heart of every American concerning his country's banner. To give the Canadian reader a sample of the new flag anthem the first verse may be quoted:

"Your flag and my flag—
And how it flies to-day,
In your land and my land
And half a world away!
Rose-red and blood-red
The stripes forever gleam;
Snow-white and soul-white—
The good forefathers' dream.
Sky-blue and true-blue,
With stars to gleam aright—
The gloried guidon of the day,
A shelter through the night."

The author of the flag anthem may think that, as it doubtless does, it expresses the heart of the people much better than the governing powers represent—in these latter days—the spirit, the meaning, the sheltering, protecting function of the flag itself. Some United States citizens think that in these stormy times, a good deal of the picturesque blasonment of the American flag has been somewhat washed out by submarine immersion, even if it has been made more "blood red" by the freshly-shed blood of United States citizens, whose lives the flag should protect on shore and sea. But the attitude of the government, its submission to insults to its flag, do not lessen the love of the flag in the hearts of its citizens, and it is no doubt a source of pain to millions of Americans who love their banner and humanity that Germany has been allowed to make a door-mat of the flag, and pile a Pelion of outrage upon an Ossa of outrage, contrary to the spirit of the flag and the most elementary ideas, and most primitive instincts of humanity. But the mistakes or the indifference or exaggerated caution of the ruling powers of the time cannot change in the hearts of the people their love for the flag and their loyalty to the high ideals its symbolizes.

Ambulance Association's Good Work

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—The Duke of Devonshire, who presided at the annual meeting of the St. John's Ambulance Association, has become Patron, succeeding H. R. H. The Duke of Connaught. During the past year the Association has instructed over 10,000 people in First Aid and Home Nursing, and also taught over 100,000 Canadian soldiers what to do in case of injuries. In almost every Province school teachers are required to qualify in First Aid, and in the mining districts this also applies to those in charge. The small button worn by the discharged soldier, showing that he has done service, is supplied through the Association. In addition to the nurses and assistant nurses sent overseas, graduates in First Aid and Nursing are proving of value in almost every convalescent home in Canada.

Over 4,200 people in Ontario were given First Aid instruction last year. General, the Hon. James Mason was re-elected a Vice-President, and General Sir H. M. Pellatt, W. K. George, Noel Marshall, Dr. Copp of Toronto, were elected to Council. Classes are held throughout the Province under the direction of Dr. Copp, 554 1-2 Yonge Street, Toronto, who will be pleased to answer inquiries.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Defender of the Barricade

A Story of the Paris Commune

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

The human race lives on the edge of the chasm of war. All modern wars, civilized people having now reached a stage where war is dreaded, may be referred to as stupidity. One of the most stupid contests within the last half century was the uprising of the Paris commune at the close of the Franco-Prussian war in 1871. If ever a country needed peace in which to recover from its wounds France did at that time. And yet a number of impracticable idealists, led by villains, for a time paralyzed the government by fire and sword. And when they had succeeded in acquiring the power to carry out their ideas their whole structure fell to the ground because these ideas were utopian.

The singular feaure of all this is the sincerity and devotion to a cause under which there was no foundation. That the leaders were unscrupulous, as well as idealists, goes without saying. But many of the revolutionists undoubtedly fought and died, actuated by pure motives.

During the period when the communists held Paris by means of barricades erected upon the streets through which the national troops were attacking them, Captain Pierre Le Moyne was ordered to take his company into a narrow street and demolish a barricade, behind which a party of communists were entrenched. There was but little room in which an attacking force could operate, the street being not over thirty feet wide. Captain Le Moyne was obliged to march his men down the narrow lane, the houses of which rose on either side to a height greater than the width of the street. The distance from the beginning of the street to the barricade was about 1,000 feet. From the windows and the roofs of the houses it was to be expected that the advancing troops would be picked off by the communists.

Many a soldier, when he received the order to march into the death trap or heard the reverberation between the houses of the first tap of the drum which announced it, felt that there was little chance of his ever getting out alive. Each stroke on the drum-head sounded sharp and loud and ominous. As the little column moved onward there was a crack from a window, a faint cloud of smoke, and one of the men fell on the pavement. Another crack from a roof on the opposite side of the street, and another man plunged forward on his face.

"At this rate," thought Captain Le Moyne, "by the time we reach the barricade there will be not enough of us left to take it."

"Tap-tap! Tap-tap-tap!" came the drumbeats, while at short intervals a crack of a weapon here and there added to their viciousness.

But as the men advanced the shots came fewer. When one-half the distance had been covered, where there had been a dozen shots a minute there was now only a straggling fire, and the marksmanship was wild.

"Either they are breaking down," said the captain, "or they have concentrated all their force at the barricade."

On marched the troops, reduced by a fifth of their number, till, turning a bend in the street, they came in sight of the barricade. The firing from the windows ceased entirely. The silence, broken only by the sharply reverberating drum taps, was more ominous than if the drums had been deadened by a fusillade. The pile of cobblestones which floated the blood red flag of the commune looked ugly—more ugly because the weapons behind it, aimed down the narrow street, were invisible.

Captain Le Moyne halted his men for the purpose of taking in the situation. He cast quick glances at the upper stories and roofs of the houses on each side. No one was in sight, nor was a single shot fired.

"They are reserving their fire," said the captain. "We shall get it from the windows when we charge the works."

He strained his eyes in an endeavor to get sight of something stirring within. Not even the flag moved, for there was no wind.

Silence before the storm is more depressing than after it breaks. Men standing waiting for a fight to open are more unreliable than in the heat of battle. Le Moyne's soldiers seemed restless. There was no reason for them to move till they received an order to advance, yet they changed position constantly, casting the while glances at the houses above them and the barricade.

Though they expected a hailstorm of bullets, when the order "Forward" was given they felt relieved. Suspense at least was ended. Again came the sharp tap of the drum as the little column moved on without opposition. Evidently the communists were reserving their fire till the last minute. When within a hundred yards of the barricade Captain Le Moyne halted his men again and called on the enemy to surrender. His demand was answered by a single shot.

Expecting this to be a signal for a volley, the captain quickly deployed his men so far as the narrow street would permit and gave the order to fire. A volley of bullets rained upon the stones composing the barricade. There was no response.

Le Moyne was puzzled.

Drawing up his men in two lines, the one behind the other, he ordered them to fix bayonets and advance. A third of the distance was covered, but no volley; another third, with the same result. Captain Le Moyne, who was in advance of his men, went to the barricade, climbed it and looked down on the other side.

There was but one living being there, and that was a woman. She had been wounded by a shot from the troops and lay bleeding on the pavement.

Most of the women who fought with the commune were hags. This woman was not more than twenty years old. She looked up at Le Moyne with a pair of large dark eyes. They expressed a spirit of martyrdom.

It was all plain to Le Moyne. The commune was breaking down. The barricade had been deserted except by this Maid of Orleans, who constituted herself its sole defender.

Le Moyne turned, called on a lieutenant to bring the men to a rest, then went down the barricade to the woman.

"Are you badly wounded?" he asked.

"No; I have a broken leg."

"Who are you?"

"Elise Fourchet."

"What are you doing here alone behind this barricade?"

"I could not get the men to stay. They heard that our defenses are broken down in other parts, and they dared not remain."

"And you?"

"I would not desert."

By this time the soldiers had climbed the barricade and were waving the tricolor of France from its crest. Le Moyne called upon them to carry its defender into a house beside it, going with them as they did so. There was only one person besides the captain and his men, an old woman, who ministered to the wounded girl. A surgeon accompanied the soldiers, and he was called in to set and bandage the broken limb.

Had the damage done by the commune ended with its loss of control perhaps the wholesale slaughter of its votaries which followed would not have taken place. When its leaders found that they were beaten, adopting the motto of rule or ruin, since they could not rule they resolved to ruin. They murdered the archbishop of Paris and other distinguished persons whom they held as hostages. Not content with this, they undertook to destroy the city. Paris was then full of beautiful buildings. Many of these were destroyed, including the most interesting, historically considered, the palace of the Tuileries, the ancient abode of the kings of France.

It was these acts of vandalism that led the government to get rid, so far as possible, of so dangerous a portion of the population of Paris. The captured communists were marched out to the yards of the prisons in which they were confined, stood up with their faces to the walls and shot down by scores. Doubtless many of these believed that they were dying in a sacred cause.

Captain Le Moyne could he have foreseen these horrors would undoubtedly have continued to save his prisoner from the universal sacrifice, though he had but little time, and Elise Fourchet was not in a condition to avail herself of a permitted flight. The only thing the captain could do for her was to leave her with the woman who was caring for her. He marched his men away, but the national troops were pouring into the city, and when Mlle. Fourchet was found wounded and confessed that she had received a bullet while defending a barricade she was removed to a prison.

If the communists received a trial they were tried in large numbers together. When Elise Fourchet was brought before a judge for one of these wholesale sentences, noticing she was of a different class from most of the others, he asked her why she had engaged in such nefarious work.

"I fought to build, not to destroy," was her reply. "I did not know that we were led by bad men. One of our leaders, Cluseret, fought with the Union armies in the late war between the states of North America, and I supposed that a man who had risked his life in the cause of civil liberty must be representing the same cause in France."

The judge was touched by this appeal and remanded the prisoner to prison for further evidence. But the Parisians soon tired of the wholesale slaughter of the communists, and Mlle. Fourchet was never again brought to trial. In time, when all danger of a recurrence of the outbreak had passed, the prison doors of all communists who had not been executed were thrown open, and among those who walked out free was Elise Fourchet.

She ever afterward had a horror of the men who had led so many innocent persons into crime. Not all of them were punished unless by their own consciences. A few escaped, others perished in the havoc they had made, while others were banished from France. Probably no body of men ever set in motion a revolution that involved so much ruin, not only of historic treasures, but of persons they deceived. As Paris is France, their chief devastation was in that city. Just before its capture bands of men and women—such men and women as followed Louis XVI. to the guillotine seventy years before—went from one historic edifice to another, applying petroleum and to petroleum the torch. When the ruin was completed Paris was a very different city from what it had been before. How that art treasure, the Louvre, escaped will always remain a wonder. While Elise Fourchet was long remembered as one of the heroines of the commune, she never afterward affiliated with communists. And as for the commune leaders, she detested them.

DYSPEPSIA
MOST DIFFICULT TO CURE
BUT B. B. B. DOES IT

Dyspepsia is one of the most difficult diseases of the stomach there is to cure.

You eat too much; drink too much; make the stomach work overtime. You make it perform more than it should be called on to do. The natural result is that it is going to rebel against the amount of work put on it. It is only a matter of time before dyspepsia follows.

That forty-year-old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, will cure the dyspepsia, and will cure it to stay cured as we can prove by the thousands of testimonials we receive from time to time.

Mr. Neil A. Cameron, Kiltarlity, N. S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what your great medicine Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled very much with dyspepsia for the past two years. I was recommended all kinds of medicines, but they did not help me any. At last a friend advised me to try a bottle of B.B.B. I took four bottles and was totally cured. I will gladly recommend it to all sufferers."

IN DREAD OF CROUP

Every mother dreads croup unless she knows about Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. Given in frequent small doses at the first indication of trouble, this treatment loosens the cough and affords relief and comfort. Its use should be kept up until the child is entirely recovered.

KISS IN EXCHANGE FOR AUTOMOBILE

Remarkable Verdict Rendered in a Scott County (Ia.) Court.

Scott County, Iowa, had a curious case in court a short while ago. According to the testimony Thomas Brown, the plaintiff, who brought suit against Mrs. Bertha Spangler for the recovery of an automobile, which this estimable lady had in her possession, and would not give up, but which Mr. Brown maintained was his property.

To the surprise and amazement of the members of the jury, Mrs. Spangler testified that she had paid Mr. Brown for the car, and when questioned by her lawyer stated that the reimbursement she had given Mr. Brown for the whizz-chariot consisted of one kiss.

According to all accounts Mrs. Spangler is a strikingly handsome woman, and the gentlemen members of the jury were apparently very favorably impressed by her testimony. The jury was out but a short time and they returned a verdict in favor of the fair defendant.

It is safe to assume that the consensus of opinion prevailing among the jurymen is to the effect that while the market price of cars varies anywhere from nothing at all to several thousand dollars, just one osculatory caress from comely Mrs. Spangler was worth the price of an automobile to any man.

It would be interesting to know just what kind of a car Mrs. Spangler secured in return for this kiss. A little light on this would enable us to determine more accurately the value of the kiss. Was it a big seven passenger limousine or a flivver?—Boston Post.

Statistics of School Taxation and Other Data in Ont. Towns

The woman teachers of Kingston, supporting a petition for higher salaries submitted the following comparative figures to their Board of Education. The school rate in Ontario cities was as follows:

We have obtained the following information respecting school taxation in the cities of Ontario. The larger cities are omitted, and in two or three cases replies have not yet been received:

	Pub. Sch. rate in mills	H.S. rate in mills
Belleville	7.00	2.70
Chatham	6.97	2.14
Galt	7.15	2.08
Guelph	7.40	2.14
Kingston	6.45	1.97
Kitchener	6.40	1.09
Peterborough	6.97	2.16
Sarnia	6.85	2.21
Stratford	8.40	2.40
Windsor	6.16	1.93
Brantford	(total) 7.70 mills.
Woodstock	(total) 9.40 mills

With the addition of the school appropriation which was uncollected last year the rate in Kingston would still be one of the lowest. It may be suggested that this comparatively low rate in Kingston is obtained because the assessment here is relatively high, but the facts do not support this.

Taking the statistics of population and assessment supplied by the latest bulletins of the Ontario Bureau of Industries we find the assessment per head of the population in cities between twenty and thirty thousand inhabitants to be as follows:

Brantford	$669.00
Peterborough	531.60
Kingston	550.00
Windsor	852.00

The total taxation for school purposes per head of the population in 1915 was as follows:

Brantford	$5.12
Peterborough	5.69
Windsor	6.31
Kingston	4.89

It may be thought that owing to the increased expenditure of last year the relative standing of Kingston would be altered, but this supposition is also wrong, since the school expenditure in other cities has also increased.

Taking the information given in the latest report of the Minister of Education and Bulletin No. 10 of the Ontario Bureau of Industries the expenditure per pupil may be obtained by dividing the total amount of taxes collected by the total enrollment in the schools. The result is as follows:

Brantford	$23.56
Kingston	22.22
Peterborough	24.15
Windsor	28.32

Secondly, Kingston has an assessment of $13,200,000. Allowing $2,200,000 off for exemption leaves an additional tax rate of almost a half mill on the dollar, all that is necessary to meet the request of the teachers, leaving Kingston's rate of taxation still among the lowest.

Finally, the plea that Kingston's general rate of taxation is high, if its school rate is low, suggests the question: Why should schools and school teachers suffer that lower objects be exploited?

NO COMPULSION, SAYS THE DIRECTOR-GENERAL

Mr. Bennett Says Nothing Can Be Done Till Time Limit Expires.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24.—There is no authority for the statement which appeared in a section of Thursday morning's press that "National Service registration is to be made compulsory in Canada."

Mr. R. B. Bennett, Director-General of National Service, said that he had made no such statement, and that nothing could be done until the time limit for filling in the National Service cards had expired, namely, March 31. The whole matter, he remarked, was a question of Government policy.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous, waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly

Poles Hang Back From German Cause

PREFER MUNITIONS WORK.

Many Voluntarily Accept Employment in Germany—New Regime Unpopular.

GENEVA, Feb. 22.—The appeal to the Poles in the newly-proclaimed kingdom to enlist in the Polish army and fight under Austro-German banners for the new State has fallen on deaf ears, according to recent information brought from Warsaw by neutral and German visitors.

The units of the new army have been formed, and a considerable number of officers and men from the old Austrian Polish Legion and from the the Polish troops of the Gemran army have been brought to the occupied districts of Poland to instruct the Polish volunteers, but only a few hundred troops, most of them students in Warsaw University who volunteered in the first flush of enthusiasm following the proclamation of the Kingdom, are said to have come forward. The two Polish army corps, of which the German advocates of the establishment of the new Poland spoke as the probable contribution from the kingdom to the armies of the Central Powers, are declared to show no signs of ever coming into existence.

The Polish workmen and peasants, it appears from the accounts of developments in Poland that have reached here, show a decided disinclination to take up arms, and the labour shortage in Germany has been made good in no small degree, it is asserted, by an exodus to Germany of Poles who feared being impressed into the new army and who decided to seek safe employment in the German munitions factories or on farms rather than face the risk of being drafted as soldiers.

Nor are large elements of the Polish population displaying any keen enthusiasm, returning travelers say, for the civil organization of the new kingdom. The fear of the consequences in case Russian rule should by any possibility be re-established exercises a lively deterrent influence upon many Poles, even those not suspected of any liking for Prussia, it appears, and there is asserted to be a widespread determination, even among the leaders who would probably welcome the permanent establishment of a new kingdom under Austro-German auspices, to wait and see the result of the war before they commit themselves to the new order.

The Polish Council of State came into existence only after long negotiations between the various parties, and the attempt to bring the representatives of all these parties into the Council had finally to be abandoned. Men like Prince Lubomirski, who headed the provisional civil government of Warsaw after the Russians were expelled, are quoted as saying frankly that, according to the law of nations, they are still Russian subjects and cannot participate in a Government under the new order until they are formally absolved from their obligations under the peace settlements.

Sentiment in Germany as to the advisability of proclaiming the Polish kingdom was divided from the start, and the reported lack of enthusiasm among the Poles over co-operation by their arms and with their counsels in the establishment of a national entity under Austro-German oversight seems to have carried over to opposition many Germans who at first favoured the new kingdom.

Some speculation is being indulged in, therefore, as to whether the indicated developments may not affect Germany's ultimate policy toward Poland in the peace negotiations. In some quarters, indeed, the question is being asked: "Why should Germany make sacrifices to establish the kingdom if the Poles are not willing to fight for it?"

Had Chronic Indigestion Thought She Would Die

After Years of Suffering Attributes Cure to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills

Eating too much or using foods that do not agree are the usual causes of indigestion.

The trouble usually begins not in the stomach, but in the liver, since it devolves on this organ to filter the excess waste matter from the system.

Now, since Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the greatest of liver regulators, it naturally follows that they are unexcelled as a cure for chronic indigestion.

With the liver, kidneys and bowels active the poisonous waste matter is quickly removed from the system and there is nothing to interfere with the natural and healthful working of the organs of digestion. In this way only can lasting cure be effected.

Mrs. Rebecca Elliott, Magnetawan, Ont., writes: "I feel it my duty to write you in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I had gastritis of the stomach for three years, and could get nothing to stop it until I tried Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I would have an attack of this trouble with my stomach every three or four weeks, and was so bad at times that my friends thought I would surely die. Thanks to these pills, I have not had an attack for six months, and believe that the cure is thorough. My husband has had very satisfactory experience with Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. He was much run down, and very pale and weak. I persuaded him to use the Nerve Food, and after having taken five boxes he looks and feels real well."

It is such experiences as these that have made a place for Dr. Chase's medicines in the great majority of homes. They do not fail, even in the most complicated cases. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50. All dealers, or Edmanson, Bates and Co., Limited, Toronto.

Dr. Halliday Broke Small Ankle Bone In Fall Last Night

Returning from St. John's Church last night, Dr. J. T. S. Halliday fell on the sidewalk leading to Brock street, from the Church grounds, near the Sunday School building, sustaining a fracture of a small bone in one ankle. Sergt. W. Gray, who was near at hand, hurried after Dr. Cameron, who had left by the Hunter Street entrance. Dr. Halliday was emoved to his home, on Water street, where the bone was set by Dr. Cameron. While Dr. Halliday will be confined to his house for a time, it was stated to-day that it was expected that he would be able to resume his practice in the near future.

Library Day In Trinity Church Sunday School

Yesterday was Library Day in Trinity Church Sunday School. A special service was held for the occasion. Mr. R. J. Kidd, ex-superintendent of the Sunday School, occupied the chair. A splendid address on books and reading was given by Mr. Duncan Walker, who traced the development of books from their origin to the present. He stated that books served for recreation, instruction and companionship, and enable young people to live in the past, in company with the great men of the past ages. Mr. Walker enumerated a number of rules governing the proper selection of books. One rule is that books should be chosen from a variety of authors and as carefully as a companion or friend. He advocated that parents encourage their children to read aloud and stated that the reading of books was useless unless some effort was made to recall and retell the story and comprehend its lessons and aims.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Walker, on motion of Dr. Morrison and Mr. Hone.

The school orchestra under the leadership of Miss Logan favoured the meeting with an excellent selection. Other items on the programme which were much appreciated, was a vocal solo by Mrs. F. Turner, and a violin solo by Miss Logan.

The collection, which was for the purpose of securing a new library for the junior school, amounted to forty dollars.

Presentation To Miss Agnes Horsfield

St. John's choristers, after Evensong last night, presented Miss Agnes Horsfield with a handsomely bound prayer and hymn book.

Mr. R. J. Devey expressed the regret of all the choristers that Miss Horsfield was removing from the city to accept a position at Oshawa and spoke of her splendid service to the choir for a long time both in practices and at the Sunday service. Canon Cornish gracefully made the presentation and said that no reward could be greater than the knowledge of unselfish services, rendered so faithfully as had those of Miss Horsfield.

Mr. W. F. Johnston, warden, also spoke kindly words of farewell on behalf of the congregation.

Big Retirement By The Germans

the recent heavy frost and hard ground, moved a great many of their guns well to the rear, leaving others forward to keep up a show of resistance. This they had been valiantly doing for the past three or four days, firing more rounds than any German guns in recent months. The reason for this is considered as probably a desire to shoot up stores of ammunition which there was not time to remove.

The foggy, misty weather was ideal for the beginning of the German retirement, as it completely hid the purpose of the movement from the prying eyes of the aeroplanes, which otherwise would have daily searched out the German positions.

Germans made prisoners yesterday and to-day said they had been left behind to walk about and fire their rifles and make as much noise as possible. They were delighted to be relieved from their thankless task.

Raids Force Withdrawal.

The dominant reason for the German withdrawal, which was made apparently with little opposition, was the individually small but collectively large advances the British have been making on the Ancre this month, taking advantage of the hardened ground. The last of these nibbling advances was recorded Friday, when a German outpost just south of Petit Miraumont was taken. By these small advances the Germans have been squeezed out of their positions, which had been nearly ruined by the accompanying bombardments.

The British line south of the Ancre has now been brought up almost even with the line established by the Somme offensive major operations last Autumn and runs practically straight north-west from Le Sars to Petit Miraumont. A salient has been formed in the German line north of the Ancre from Baillescourt farm to Miraumont.

Another raid was carried out by the British east of Vierstraat, Belgium. Here on a front of 500 yards the British entered German trenches, inflicted heavy casualties on the occupants, destroyed dugouts and other works, and took 45 prisoners.

The Germans near Ypres entered British trenches under cover of a heavy bombardment, but later were ejected. Bombardments continue on the remainder of the front held by the French.

SOLDIERS CLEANED UP STEAK FOUNDRY

COBOURG, Feb. 26.—Several members of the Cobourg Heavy Battery cleaned things up in general at the Chinese cafe in Cobourg Friday evening. The large plate glass windows in the restaurant were broken, tables were overturned and a large quantity of dishes smashed. It is also reported that the proprietors of the cafe was very roughly handled. The Battery left Cobourg Saturday morning and they took this means to mark their departure. No arrests were made.

THE FUNERAL OF THE LATE J. W. BENNET HELD TO-DAY

Service Was Conducted by the Rev. R. Pogue Assisted by the Rev. Mr. Mitchell—Difference in the Death of a Righteous Man and An Unrighteous Man—Inspiring Address by Rev. Mr. Pogue.

The funeral service of the late J. W. ennett was held in St. Paul's church is afternoon and was conducted by e pastor, Rev. R. Pogue, assisted y the Rev. Mr. Mitchell of St. Andrew's church. Mr. Pogue based his marks on Numbers 23:10, and "Let e die the death of the righteous. t my last end be like his." He said part: "The special purpose of such service as this is that it may minister comfort to the bereaved and sorowing friends. It also serves a purse to those who may be present who ay not be closely related to the deased and who come as friends that ey may pay their last tribute of reect to the departed. There is a wonrful difference in the death of a ighteous and that of an unrighteous an. There is no more beautiful ght that one could witness than the ath of a righteous man; to see the lifted eyes, the radiant countenice bright with a divine inspiration; see the elevation of thought, lifted ove the world and all terrestrial obcts, regarding them as already past; see the calm resignation to suffer, to hear words of comfort and eer to those who mourn their loss—l this makes a spectacle truly subme, a spectacle poets cannot dream d artists cannot paint. It is such a scene as this that convinces one of the reality of our holy faith.

Three Things.

He spoke of three things which make the death of the righteous desirable. First, the presence of Christ with them in their dying moments. Second, the prospects that await them. Third, the life that they lived. It was under this latter head that testimony was given to the worth and character of the late Mr. Bennet. The one word that best describes his life is the word 'righteous.' It was hoped that Judge Roger might have been present to-day to pay this tribute to the merit and worth of his life long friend. In his absence, said the speaker, the responsibility has fallen on me. I asked a number this morning to tell me what they knew of his character and life. The unanimous testimony of all was that his was a life of a singular uprightness, integrity and fidelity to duty and the trust imposed in him; that he was most conscientious in the discharge of his duty, sparing neither time nor energy to do his utmost for those who placed their interests in his hands. He was always on the side that he believed to be right. If he sometimes took a different position to that of his friends it was because he felt he was right, and his conscience would not permit him to act otherwise. One man said of him that "he was a thorough Christian gentleman," and added, "there were few like him." One could not help but be impresed at the number of his interests. How one who was never strong physically, and who for the last fifteen years has kept up a constant fight for health and life, accomplished what he did, is difficult to understand. The secret of it, no doubt, was the utter consecration of his life to the service of God. His was a beautifully unselfish career. He literally lived for others. The two institutions to which he gave of his time and talents without stint, were the Church of Christ and the Young Mens' Christian Association.

Many Activities.

He was practically the founder in Peterborough of the latter institution. It owes its existence to his untiring devotion in the early days of its history. When others were disheartened he took fresh courage. When they criticised he kept sweet and went ahead. When they spoke of impossibilities he assured them that all things were possible to those who believe. To him, more than to any other is due the present building with its splendid equipment and all for which the Y.M.C.A. has stood, and all that it has meant in the lives of the young men of our city. The church received of his time and energy the same unflring devotion. There was nothing he liked to speak so much about as the work of the church of which he was a member. Surely his was a righteous life. The city is the poorer to-day because of his loss. That loss will be felt in the profession of which he was an honoured member, in the church of which was an elder, in the different institutions in which his large hearted Christian sympathies led him to serve, and, more particularly, in the home where the tenderest love and sympathy existed. I speak as I do to-day to magnify the grace of God which made such a life possible. He was what he was because of that grace. The springs of his life were in Jesus Christ, and He alone made possible all that he was and did.

The pallbearers were Mr. H. Rush, Mr. J. C. Smith, Mr. W. Madill, Mr. J. D. Collins, Mr. W. R. Morris and Mr. John Crane.

OTONABEE MAN BREAKS HIS LEG

Mr. Jack Edwards, Lang, Otonabee, was the victim of a painful accident last Monday. Whilst engaged in cutting a tree, the chain broke and the log sprank back, breaking his leg above the ankle. He managed to crawl to his horse and rode out of the wood. However, weakness from pain and the intense cold forced him to dismount and wait by the road, where a neighbour's boy found him. Dr. Ross was called.

GETS KISS, NOT ALIMONY.

HIGHLAND FALLS, N.Y., Feb. 24.—Just before the separation action of Helen J. Jenkson, of Central Valley, a suburb of Highland Falls, was dismissed in the Supreme Court to-day the trial justice got her to take a kiss instead of alimony, from her husband, V. J. Jenkson. The justice, acting as peacemaker, after repeated efforts, affected a reconciliation.

The wife, charging Jenkson was cruel and had neglected her for two years, insisted on a separation. Justice Joseph Merschanser took them into the court chambers, and, after much coaxing, got the couple to kiss and make up. After the reconciliation, Mrs. Jenkson left the court room with the defendant, remarking: "We will get along all right now."

Getting Out From Under

About 25 per cent of the Jobber's Coal purchased by us in January (to keep Peterborough from freezing up), is just now coming through the blockade, together with an increased supply of D. L. & W. Coal.

Believing that the extreme scarcity has been relieved by the weather and other conditions, we are placing a few hundred tons of the Jobber's Coal in our Murray Street Yard as a margin of safety, and will pass along the balance of this coal to Towns less fortunate than Peterborough, in order to "Get Out From Under" as much of the higher priced Jobber's Coal as would be reasonably safe.

This will enable us to Reduce the Price 25 cents on One Ton Lots of Hard Coal and will increase the percentage of D. L. & W. Coal to our customers. This price is effective on all orders dated February 27th.

To those who have been disappointed in getting their supply of Coal through their regular dealers, we will reserve 200 Tons of Hard Coal at our Murray Street Yards, which will be sold at $9.25 per Ton. Customers to do their own delivery.

THE QUEEN'S FIELD AMBULANCE DRAFT IS WIDELY SCATTERED NOW

Pte. Vernon B. Lyle Gives Some Interesting Information About Conditions in the Old Country—Weather Has Been Very Cold.

WAS AT SEVERAL CAMPS

Pte. Vernon By Lyle, of Peterborough, who went overseas with a draft from Queen's Field Ambulance, gives some interesting information about that unit in a letter received by Mrs. Albert Warne, Park street.

Pte. Lyle says:

Witley Camp, Surrey, Eng.
Feb. 5th, 1917.

Dear Mrs. Warne,—Am sorry I have delayed so long in answering your most welcome letter and acknowledging the receipt of the very acceptable and useful Christmas gift which you enclosed.

When I received your letter I was in Dibgate Camp, but since then I have done considerable travelling, and have finally landed in Witley. I spent my first two months in England in Dibgate. It was a pretty good camp and quite close to Folkestone and several small towns. On the 2nd of February the training school was moved up to Westenhanger. This was a change for the worse, for Westenhanger is certainly a desolate place. There were no towns near the camp, and the continued wet weather made life pretty miserable while I was there. I could have left the place on a draft for France any time, but I was expecting to transfer to another unit, so I had to stay. But after spending nearly a month there I decided not to wait any longer for my transfer and so I did not refuse the first opportunity that came along to get out of Westenhanger. The opporunity came rather sudden and unexpected. I was sitting in the hut one night when the Orderly Sergeant came in and asked me what class I was. (We are all classified according to our physical condition.) I told him I was A2, which means physically fit. Then he wanted to know if I knew anything about sanitation. I told him I didn't but he he said I could easily learn, so he took my name and number and told me to get my kit packed right away as I was on the draft for France, which was going to leave the next morning. Well, I got ready and in the morning I found that another fellow and myself were the whole draft and that we were to go to Moore Barracks to fill the places of two other fellows who had been taken off the draft. On arriving at Moore Barracks we found that we were no longer in the C.A.M.C., but were attached to No. 6 Canadian Sanitation Section. Moore Barracks is a big hospital with no provision for troops, so we were billeted in a private house in Sandgate, right on the Channel coast. We drew our rations from the Barracks and slept in our billet. I spent four days here and had a jolly good time, as had nothing to do at all. We were only stationed at Moore Barracks temporarily and then the whole section, consisting of 25 men and 1 officer, was sent up to Witley to join the 5th division and to proceed overseas with it. But it is not very likely that the division will go over until spring. Meanwhile I am learning my new trade as sanitary inspector. I have been on so many different jobs since I joined the army that I will be able to do almost anything after the war is over. I don't know when it will ever come to an end. They say that the seventh year is going to be the worst and after that every fourteenth. A rather pessimistic outlook isn't it?

When I came into Witley Camp I thought I was in the backwoods of Canada, for this camp is built in the woods. Part of the New Forest was cut down and the land cleared to make room for this camp. There are a lot of troops here. A little town has sprung up along the main road and as the stores are all tin huts, it is known as Tin Town. Godalming, is a small town about 2 or 3 miles from here and is easily reached by 'bus. Altogether I like this camp much better than Westenhanger, and my only hope is that I shall never have to go back there.

I have met a lot of Peterborough boys here. You know the 52nd Belmont Battery is here and there are a lot of Peterborough boys with it. I have met Grey, who used to clerk for Mr. Lillico, Wilbert Regan, Wib. Yelland and Fred Walker and several others. I also met Bill Read, who lived out on King street. His brother George was killed at the front with the Princess Pats. Bill is with the 4th Divisional Ammunition Column. I used to know him well in Peterborough and I hope I won't be moved around any more now so that we can go to France together. Went down to Godalming last night with Bill and went to an English concert party. It was great. We certainly have to hand it to the English for entertainments.

Our draft that came over under the name of Queen's Field Ambulance has all been broken up and sent all over. Most of our fellows are in France now, but a lot are still around in hospitals as orderlies. Jack Smyth and Clarence Voaden struck it pretty easy. They are spending the winter in a hospital in Hastings. It has been terribly cold during the latter part of January and it still continues. It is considered to be the coldest winter England has seen for years, and I really believe it. When you are washing outside before daylight these mornings and the water freezes in the basin you would really believe that England had been moved up to the North Pole. We feel the cold here more because it is always so damp, and when the wind blew up from the Channel it was strong enough to blow a straw through a 2 inch plank. That is the way Mr. Steary used to describe a strong wind at school, so of course it cannot be an exaggerated description. Well, anyway an English winter is not at all pleasant and I shouldn't advise anybody to come to England in search of a winter health resort.

I suppose mother has told you I have been up to Scotland on leave. Had a grand time. Saw all the sights of London, or at least as many as I could in three days. Went up to Manchester next and stopped off there to visit Ward Brown. He was pretty glad to see me, and is looking as if he was enjoying himself. Then went up to Aberdeen and visited some distant relatives in that locality ,and then returned to London, I am going to try and get another leave to London before going to France.

Am having a pretty easy time at present. All I have to do is make a tour of inspection each day and report on the sanitary condition of the camp.

You might tell mother you have heard from me and probably she would like to read this little note.

Must close now or you might think I have been attending President Wilson's School of Note-writing. Again thanking you for your Christmas remembrance, I remain.

Sincerely yours,
Vernon B. Lyle.

POLICEMAN THIEF GIVEN TWO YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Odilion Raymond's Arrest Freed Other Constable From Suspension.

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—Odilion Raymond, a policeman, who was caught stealing from J. R. Lamy's dry goods store on Feb. 16th and who pleaded guilty to burglary, was sentenced to serve a term of two years in St. Vincent de Paul Pententiary by Judge Bazin. Sworn to protect the public from depredations by burglars, highway men and robbers, Raymond admitted that he turned burglar himself, depending on his uniform to avert suspicion.

The capture of Raymond by detectives Tierney and Constable Colangelo, brought the first joyful news in fifty-one days to another constable who formerly patrolled a beat where numerous robberies have been committed. Suspended for failure to make any progress in preventing robberies, this policeman spent days and nights with Raymond looking for the thief, when he heard that his fellow officer Raymond pleaded guilty, the suspended constable could not believe it. They had patrolled together many nights since the suspicion, and Raymond's plea did not seem real to the man under suspicion.

Raymond until three weeks ago was attached to the Seigneurs street station and at the time of his arrest was filling in at the Grand Trunk street station. Robberies in the centre district have been going on for over a year, and Raymond's confession it is thought, will clear up a most baffling case. The suspended officer was returned to duty the day following the arrest, and will be recommended for full pay while off duty.

Astor Baby's Keep Costs $75 a Day

Court Names Guardian to See If It Is Justified.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Cornelius J. Sullivan has been appointed special guardian of John Jacob Astor, infant son of the late Colonel John Jacob Astor, in the accounting proceedings by the boy's mother, Mrs. William K. Dick, filed recently in the Surrogate's Court.

The mother's report shows that the child's maintenance costs more than $75 a day, and it will be the duty of the special guardian to report to the Surrogate whether the expenditure is justified.

In connection with a canal system, France recently completed one of the world's greatest tunnels, four and a half miles long, by 72 feet wide, and 52 feet high.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

The death of Mr. J. W. Bennet is a great loss to the local Y.M.C.A. with which he was connected for thirty years. He held practically every office in the Association from committee man to president, of late years being the honourary president. Mr. Bennet was a thorough Christian man, a good financier and an inspiration to his associates on the Board of Directors and the employed staff. One of the last acts of Mr. Bennet was to place a knitting machine in the building for the use of our lady helpers in making supplies for soldiers. We will always cherish the memory of our dear departed associate.

The Mother's Club will meet on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock for Red Cross work. Every member of this Society is urged to be present.

Mr. A. Mowatt gave a very helpful address to young men Sunday afternoon, also presenting some war poems.

Mr. Joseph Wearing will speak to the senior Collegiate Club, Friday evening on "The practice of Law as a life vocation."

NO WAY OUT OF WAR NOW SAYS COLONEL WATTERSON

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 26.—That the break in diplomatic relations between this government and Germany will lead to war is the opinion of Colonel Henry Watterson, who is here. Commenting on the latest developments; the editor said:—

"I can see no other way round it or out of it. Another Lusitania would set the country afire. To be sure, we are wonderfully unprepared, but if driven to war we are not wholly without the means of helping to destroy the powerful U-boat fleet the Germans have turned loose upon the world. The Berlin military junta realise the crisis and they have not the resources for another spring and summer campaign, and hope to win by one wild desperate rush in total disregard of obligations and consequences. 'Whom the gods mean to destroy they first made mad.'"

Asked if he believed the Germans would pay the penalty of their military junta's crimes the Colonel replied:—

"The Kaiser, but surely not the German people. They are a brave, home loving race. Dynastic interest and their devotion to the state have lured them into war for a phantom. Betrayed, deceived and beaten, they will find themselves as we poor people of the south found ourselves after the war of secession. We, too, had been lured into war upon a phantom."

CANADIAN WOMEN AND CHILDREN MAY NOT CROSS OCEAN

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—The order prohibiting women and children taking passage to or from Canada through the barred zone covers the wives and children of Canadian officers overseas, according to the interpretation placed on it by the Government members here. Surplus Canadian officers whose families are in England and who by reason of their pay being stopped are compelled to Canada will have to travel alone and leave their families in England. Such officers will be given free passage back but no other concession. It is contended that as far back as six months ago Canadian women in England were warned to return home to Canada at their earliest possible convenience. Their early departure was desired not only for their own future safety but also in order to conserve British food supplies for those who had to stay. It is realised that the enforced temporary separation of wives and husbands will cause hardship but it is not considered possible that there will be any modification of the British regulations.

A cover for garbage or rubbish cans has been invented that prevents the entrance of rain water, yet does not interfere with placing material in the cans.

Music & Drama

MY KILLARNEY ROSE.

The visit of Al. H. Wilson, the well-known actor singer and his talented company to the Grand on Saturday, provided a very enjoyable entertainment for two large audiences. "My Killarney Rose" was the title of Mr. Wilson's offering, and it gave him a good opportunity to show his ability, both from a historic and from a musical standpoint. As the rollocking "Tom Carey," his infectious manner held the audience all the way, while his song numbers were delightful. His clear, baritone voice was admirably displayed in five or six tuneful songs, of which "My Killarney Rose, "The Love I Give to You," and "Where the Shamrock Grows," were perhaps the best. Mr. Wilson was supported by a capable company. A very clever impersonation was given by Mattie Edwards, as Mrs. Nora Donovan, comedy part of which the most was made, while William S. Gill, as Michael Donovan, and Wm. Cullington as Beetle Toby, both scored heavily.

To-night the favourite Fiske O'Hara, actor and singer, will visit the Grand, in his new vehicle "His Heart's Desire."

Ir. W. J. Hopwood's Claim For High Water Damages To His Is'and Before Exchequer Court

Mr. Justice Audette of th, Exchequer Court commenced this morning, the City Council Chamber she hearing of the evidence in support of ims for damages alleged to have en caused to properties flooded by gh water above the Buckhorn dam. The first petition heard was that esented by Mr. W. J. Hopwood who imed $150 for damage to his isnd at Chemong in 1912 and 1913. r. J. H. Burnham, M.P., appeared r the suppliant and Crown Attorney at on for the Crown.

Mr. Hopwood stated that his land as known as Block C, Plan 25, subck 12, west of the Communication oad. He bought it from Alex. A. Elett on the 10th of September 1900. lock C was the island in Chemong ake. During the periods of low water could be reached over dry sand, but communicating bridge had been ilt by Mr. Hopwood for high water asons. The island is 25 miles above e Buckhorn dam, reached by the aters of Buckhorn Lake and narrows id Chemong Lake. Mr. Hopwood imed the shore of the island where e water struck it by two feet and herwise expended considerable oney in improving his summer home. bout that time he observed that the ater was rising to a higher level ound the rip-rap he had built to rotect the shore line. Mr. Hopwood ound that this was due to certain ork done at the Buckhorn dam. He ade a claim on the Government for amages in 1910 and received $150 nd gave a release for any other damges that might result from the water bsequently rising to the highest oint, which the water reached dur g the years 1906 to 1909.

Mr. Hopwood made a mark on the oundation of his cottage which regisred the highest point at which he bserved the water during those years. e expended the $150 in raising the oundation 18 inches. In the Spring f 1913 the water had swollen to a eight of 2 inches above the new foun ation. In other words it went to 20 ches above the highest point reach d in the year 1906-09.

To Mr. Hatton, Mr. Hopwood said he release given in 1910 included the overament's right to maintain the ater at the highest point registered t the Buckhorn dam and at such inreased height as caused by Spring reshets. Mr. Hopwood had made a eneral claim for damages done to his property in 1912, but made no itemized claim. He and Mr. Wilkins, the Government appraiser, visited the island in 1913 and in a rough estimate of $148 was suggested as a damage award. Mr. Hopwood admitted having made a written claim for that amount for the damages in 1912 and 1913.

Mr. Hatton also put in letters from Mr. Haywood to Mr. L. J. Jones, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals dated June 11 and July 12, 1913; also to Mr. Burnham, June 12 with respect to the high water in the Spring of 1913 and Fall of 1912 and the damage his island and summer home sustained thereby.

MR. WM. IRWIN.

Mr. Wm. Irwin stated that the Spring of 1912 saw extremely heavy freshets from snow and rain. He believed that the new dam at Buckhorn held back the water. It was not provided with as many sluices as the old dam.

To Mr. Hatton witness said there was an addition sluice cut in the dam in 1913 to facilitate the movement of the water in the Spring.

Mr. Hatton asked witness how he knew he was at the dam in 1912.

Mr. Irwin replied, with some heat, that he knew he was alive that year, and stating that that ought to be sufficient, refused to recall particulars of that year.

GARRET GALVIN

Garret Galvin testified that the new dam appeared higher and narrower than the old one. The result was that the outlet seemed smaller and the water above the dam was held up.

G. W. MANN.

Mr. G. W. Mann stated that he had two miles of shore line on Chemong Lake, margined with Cedar trees. In 1912 the water was so high it washed the earth from the roots of these trees, loosening them and causing them to lean forward toward the lake. There was no ice in Chemong Lake at that time. Mr. Mann has a claim for loss before the court.

ENGINEER'S EVIDENCE.

Mr Grant, resident engineer of the Trent Canal work, said that the discharge capacity of the new dam was less than the old. The new dam was completed in 1908. It was constructed for the purpose of conserving the water above Buckhorn dam and also for the future enlargement of the canal.

The level of the lake, in 1912, Mr. Grant stated, did not exceed the levels recorded in previous years. In 1913, thirty feet of spillway of the dam was cut out and sluices were opened instead. The sluices were controlled by stop logs.

OBITUARY

THOMAS L. HAMLEY.

Thomas L. Hamley died yesterday at Nicholls Hospital, aged 41. He was born in Cornwall, England, and was a Methodist.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock. A short service conducted by Rev. Mr. Peever will be held at the house before leaving for Ray's cemetery Lakefield.

MAURICE MULCHAEY

The funeral of the late Maurice Mulchaey, who died on Saturday evening at his residence 50 Ware street, aged 67, took place this morning at 9 o'clock to Sacred Heart church and St. Peter's cemetery.

Mr. Mulchaey is survived by one brother, Timothy and one sister, Mary of this city.

EDWARD FITZGIBBON

Edward Fitzgibbon died in St. Joseph's hospital this morning, aged 21.

Mr. Fitzgibbon was born in Peterborough and went about six years ago, to reside in Detroit, returning here a short time ago. He is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Murphy of this city and one brother, John of Dummer.

The funeral will take from the home of his aunt, Mrs. Jas. Swanson, 500 Driscoll Terrace on Wednesday morning at 8.30 o'clock to Sacred Heart Church, thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

RECRUITING MEETING ON WEDNESDAY

The meeting called by Major Campbell, the chief recruiting officer of No. 3 Military District for to-morrow night, has been postponed until Wednesday night at 7.30 o'clock and will be held in the recreation room of the armouries. All local people interested in recruiting are asked to be present, especially all the members of the Speakers' Patriotic League.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

but the rights of peace, to follow the pursuits of peace in quietness and good will—rights recognized time out of mind by all the civilized nations of the world. No course of my own choosing or of theirs will lead to war. War can come only by the wilful acts and aggressions of others. You will understand why I can make no definite proposal or forecasts of action now, and must ask your supporting authority in the most general terms. The form in which action may become necessary cannot be foreseen. I believe that the people will be willing to trust me to act with restraint, with prudence, and in the true spirit of amity and good faith, that they have themselves displayed through these trying months.

"My theme is of the great principles of compassion and of protection which mankind has sought to throw about human lives. The lives of noncombatants, the lives of men who are peacefully at work keeping the industrial processes of the world quick and vital, the lives of women and children, and of those who supply the labour which ministers to their sustenance. We are speaking of no selfish material rights. But of right which our hearts support and whose foundation is that righteous passion for justice upon which all law, all structures alike of family of state, and of mankind, must rest upon the ultimate base of our existence and our liberty. I cannot imagine any man with American principles at his heart hesitating to defend these things.

GERMANS SHELLED MARGATE.

LONDON, February 26.—Sir Edward Carson announced in the Commons to-day that a German destroyer shelled Margate and Broadstairs Sunday night. One women and one child were killed, and two children injured. Broadstairs is the home of Lord Northcliffe and has several times been bombarded by German aeroplanes.

NAVAL BATTLE ANNOUNCED.

LONDON, February 26.—British destroyers met a German squadron between eleven o'clock and midnight Sunday night in a heavy engagement in the North sea, Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, announced in the Commons this afternoon. "After a heavy engagement with guns and torpedoes our ships remained undamaged.

He said the extent of the damage is unknown. Another force of enemy destroyers shelled Broadstairs and Margate, but fled before our destroyers arrived on the scene.

NEW YORK, February 26.—A cable message to the Cunard line this afternoon told of the sinking of the Laconia and said one life was lost.

SUNDAY SCHOOL RALLY.

HAMILTON THE TEAM TO BEAT FOR HONOURS SAY SO THEMSELVES

The Hamilton Herald says:

As stated in the Herald exclusively on Thursday, Hamilton Hockey club will open its series with Peterborough on Tuesday night, with the first game being played there. The return game will be staged at the local arena on Friday night next.

The opinion, based on the form shown by the locals in last night's game with London, is that Hamilton is the team to beat. The London boys believe that Kitchener will fall under the local attack, and advices from Peterborough are also encouraging to the local team. Kitchener according to George Arthurs, rover of the London club, have a well perfected system of team play, but they are not fast skaters, and can't touch the Hams in this respect. Ha believes that the locals' checking will break up the team play.

Train connection with Peterborough will necessitate the H.H.C. taking two days for the trip down east. The squad must leave on Tuesday morning at 11.30, arriving in Peterborough late in the afternoon. They can't get out of Peterborough until Wednesday morning at 8.20, arriving home at 2.47 in the afternoon. It is expected that trouble will be experienced securing leave of absence for Grant McEwen. All of the other boys will be available.

H. H. C. officials are not at all worried over the threatened protest by the London club. They claim that none of the local players are tainted with professionalism, and are hoping that the London club decides to go ahead wih it.

"We would welcome an investigation," said Secretary Frank Robins, this morning. "We know we are free from professionalism, and about the only thing I can see to the protest is that London will lose its protest fee."

Three of the London team are soldiers—Joss, Hiller and Leroux. Hiller has been discharged, and will be out of uniform on the first of next month. Hamilton has three soldiers on its team—Frank Sloan, Harry Reid and Billy Coir, but no battalion name is used by the locals.

"Frank Sloan has "done his bit."

Private Ross Kendry Tells Of Bombers' Raids On Hun Lines

Was One of Six Men Who Returned One Night - Forty-five Was the Number of the Attacking Party

The Bobcaygeon "Independent" publishes a letter received by Miss Maye Morrison, from Private Ross Kendry of the old 2nd Battalion. He is in a London Hospital, having been wounded in a night raid on the Somme front. Private Kendry was a member of the Strathcona Club of Peterborough, the members of which in the days of peace, used to spend their summer vacation at Bobcaygeon. Extracts from the letter follow:

"Maybe you'll be wondering what I am doing here. Well, I'll explain a little later on.

Since I last saw you I have seen some very funny sights as well as some awful ones, too awful to think much about.. Might also add that I have a lot to be thankful for that I am still alive at all, after twenty months in the trenches. Of course there were times when we were about to make a charge that I simply wrote my own life off and then wonder after how I came through it without more than a few scratches. Then there were times, too, when Friz would attack us as well. After his artillery would bombard us for hours and the trench pulverized he would proceed to take a jaunt over to finish what few of us remained with the bayonet, but it was just a case of standing fast and meeting him in the good old-fashioned way—eighteen inches of cold steel.

Yes, Maye, I used to be in No. 1. Company, but about eight months ago I transferred to the battalion bombers which, by the way, is generally known as the suicide club. There is a good deal to learn, and, so far, I have had three courses at Grenade Schools. Of course it has to be admitted that bomb throwing is a pretty dangerous job, as the one in use to-day are loaded with very high explosive, and any carelessness on the part of the thrower means in most cases, death to himself as well as some of his comrades. Often, too, as you might note by the daily papers, the bombers have to make attacks and raids on the German trenches, when the rest of the boys are "neutral." But these raids, etc., have a meaning of their own—best known to ourselves.

In a charge, which we made not so long ago, forty-five of us went over in the Bombers; but we only came back with six, yours truly was. I am glad to say, one of the six. All that night, and all the next day we had a fierce grenade battle with Fritz's grenadiers. Take it from me, Maye, it was no sham fight, either, but a case of kill or be killed, and with only two of us left, we kept up such a shower of grenades in amongst them that they finally gave it up. We get the name, whether deserving it or not, of being a cruel hearted bunch, but we stick together and are not attached to any company. We don't carry rifles, but revolvers and knob-kerrys, the latter being a short stick with an iron cogwheen on the end which comes in handy at close quarters.

While out on a raid in the Somme district one night, one of the Hun shells landed beside me and burst; the concussion breaking the drum of my left ear and a piece of shrapnel (iron casing) ripped open my left leg above the ankle, and on the outside of the leg. The wound measured six inches in length by three inches in width. After the attack was over I "made it" to the dressing station; was sent to a hospital behind the line, down in France. At this place they operated and took one piece of shrapnel out. My temperature was high. After ten days at this place they invalided me to England, where fortune favoured me, and I was sent to St. Luke's War Hospital in Bradford, Yorkshire. My leg did not seem to be healing as it should, with the consequence that an X-ray examination showed another piece of shrapnel still in and was lodged under the shin bone. Another operation was immediately performed. Result, the piece removed and the bone scraped. While in this hospital at Bradford, I cannot speak too highly of the treatment and the hospitality of the people there. Each Wednesday and Saturday were visiting days, and each "Tommy" had his own particular visitors, whose coming he eagerly looked forward to when I was able to get out of bed one of "my visitors" used to take me out in a motor to spend the afternoon and evening and also have tea with them. Their kindness to me I'm sure I shall not forget in a hurry. But alas! as I began to improve I was marked to go to this hospital, which is near London and here I am. My wound is still open, and I have to go each a.m. to one of the sisters to have it dressed.

Yours sincerely
ROSS KENDRY.

GREAT INTEREST IN TUESDAY'S BATTLE

Record Crowd Will See Hamilton and Peterboro' Clash in Intermediate O.H.A. Semi-finals--Should Be a Grand Battle Between Two Clever Teams.

With the Peterborough team closer to a championship than they have been for many seasons, there is the greatest possible interest in to-morrow night's game with Hamilton, in the semi-finals of the O. H. A. intermediate race. Brock Street rink will be jammed with the biggest crowd of the season, and the game should be a corker all the way. The weather man promses colder weather to-morrow, which all that is needed to make the game the feature event of the hockey season. Hamilton are coming east with a big reputation, and undoubtedly are a clever team but the fans have confidence in the local outfit and claim that the boys from Tigertown will realize that they have been in a game. Incidentally, it is the first time that Hamilton and Peterborough hockey teams have ever clashed, and the appearance on the Hamilton line-up of a well-known ex-Peterborough boy, "Snap" Parker, makes the series still more interesting. Oscar Bershardt will referee the game and will start the teams away at 8.15 o'clock, sharp. The 247th Band will be in attendance.

AN ALL-STAR N. H. A. TEAM

MONTREAL HERALD

Scene—The old table. A bunch of ardent hockey fans "punching the bag."—i.e., conversing.

First Fan—Well, I'll tell you what less do. Less us pick out an All-Star N.H.A. outfit. Who's got a pencil and a sheet o' paper? I'll write 'em down.

Second Fan—Thass a good idear. We kin send it to some sportin' editor to be printed in the paper. I'm always readin' sportin' writers' junk on All-Star teams, but I never did see no selections by reg'lar fans like us.

Third Fan—Yeh, it'll give people a line on what us outsiders think o' the hockey players. We pay the freight, so I guess our opinion's as good as anybody else's.

Fourth Fan (as the first fan smooths out a sheet of paper, and poises a lead pencil)—We'll start with goal-tender. I don't think we'll have no trouble agreein' on the best man 'at job. Put down Vezina, of the Canadiens.

Fifth Fan (in astonishment)—Whudduh doin'—kidin' somebody? Vezina? Where duh you git 'at noise? Clint Benedict is the guy. Clint stands out all alone, he does. For goal—Clint Benedict, o' Ottawa. Got 'at down, Charley?

First Fan (argumentatively)—Benedict's a goo' man and so's Vezina, but if they made Benny stan' up he might be so good, and I don't see no medals hangin' on Vezina when he plays them Ottawas. Taken 'em all th' way roun', I like Lindsay. There's a regular goal-tender. Putta team in front of him and there'd never be nothin' git past 'at guy.

Second Fan (warmly)—Say, you people ain't been following hockey clost lately, have yuh? Whud's the matter with Sammy Hebert now? Them bulldogs' bin goin' great lately, and Hebert's lookin' like a real find.

Sixth Fan (mildly)—Them's all good men, though pussonly I like Bill Nicholson, and don't think Livvy ever give him a chance. But less put somebody down, and go on. I got a choice for cover-point whud I want to git on this team. I want to git Harry Mummery on, I do. He's a friend o' mine.

Fourth Fan (bluntly)—This ain't no beef trust we're talkin' about. We won't git to cover-point for a long time, and then Bert Corbeau's the man—no argument there. About goal-tender now, how can you git away from Vezina? He's aways delivered the goods and Canadiens would be a bum without him.

Fifth Fan—Aw, don't be kiddin'—don' be kiddin'.

Second Fan—Naw, less be serious about this thing. Put down Hebert and less go on.

Fourth Fan—I ain't kiddin. I know a hockey player when I see one, and this Vezina's a real player. He's the best man in the country.

Fifth Man (soothingly)—Don't let anybody outside o' us hear you say 'at. They might think ou was daffy, 'specially when Benedict's still alive.

Fourth Fan (heatedly)—Daffy, hey? Maybe somebody here thinks I'm daffy? Maybe they do? What? (Glares around) I'd like to hear some body here say they think I'm daffy.

Fifth Man—Well, a guy 'at thinks Vezina is better than Benedict must have som'pin the matter with him.

Fourth Fan (with choler)—Zat so? Well, if I hang som'pin on somebody's chin around here they won't think nothin's the matter. I—

Sixth Fan (mildly)—Less go on and pick Joe Hall for poin, and then git to cover-point. I want Mummery on our team. Mummery's a good man. Nice fellow, too.

Fifth Fan.—Ain't nobody gonnah hang nothin' on nobody's chin around here, I guess. At least I don't see nobody thass gonnah do it.

Sixth Man (half to himself)—Mummery can certainly stop 'em guys. He's big, but a clean body-checker. He kin do anything but referee.

Third Fan (with an air of settling the argument) — Say, while we're all chewin' the fat here about these different guys we're overlookin' a good man, even if he ain't playin' any more. Whud's the matter with Percy Lesueuer? He's as good as any of them—

Fourth Fan—I guess the kiddin's somewhere else now, ain't it?

Fifth Fan—Yeh, I should say 'tis. With Vezina in the game, too.

Fifth Fan—And Benedict.

Sixth Fan—Mummery can git 'em, too, when hey come his way. He's a wonderful fellow. Mummery is. You'd all like him if you knew him.

First Fan (turning on mild Sixth Fan in anger)—Say, git away with 'at Mummery stuff, will you? This ain't no comedy. We started out to do som'pin serious.

Second Fan (indignantly)—Yeh, can 'at; can it—Mummery 'll be about eighteenth when we pick out cover-point. Where would he come in with regular cover-points?

Third Fan—I never heard such nonsense. I thought John had better sense, Mummery! Say, he skates like a Clydesdale.

Fourth Fan—I should say he does. Whud's more, he's a dangerous risk out there because he's liable to keep us from seein the game.

Fifth Fan—Outside with 'at Mummery bing.

Sixth Fan (feebly)—Well, I like Harry, gen'l'men, and I'd like to git him on our team. It'd be a favor to me. A pussonel favor.

First Fan (poising pencil again)—All right, now, who was it we settled on for our goal-tender—Lindsay?

Second Fan—Hebert.

Third Fan—No such thing—it was Lesueller.

Fourth Fan—There's 'at kidder again. Ev'body said Benedict. Now for point, we'll—

Sixth Fan — It wudden hurt our team none to put Harry at cover-point. Thass all I want to see—I haven't said nothin' about nothing else.

First Fan (impatiently)—Aw, less give it up. We can't nev' get together.

Fifth Fan—Not as long as there are fatheads in the world who believe 'at Vezina is a better goaler than Benedict. Thass too ridickluss to argu. Hey, barboy, take an order here, and then I'm goin' home.

Sixth Fan (impatiently(as the argumen dies away)—Well I suttinly wuddah liked to see Harry Mummery on 'at team. Thass all!

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Mark Street team of the church league, wish to challenge a picked team from the other three church league teams for a friendly game to be played as soon as possible at Brock Street Rink.

An Irishman who had walked a long distance, feeling very thirsty and seeing a milkman, asked the price of a quart of milk.

"Threepence," replied the the milkman.

"Then give me a quart in pints," said Pat.

Pat, on drinking one pint, asked, "How do we stand?"

The milkman replied, "I owe yer a pint."

"And I owe you one," said Pat, "so we are quits."

As a matter of fact your neighbours think just as disagreeable things about you as you think about them.

Brantford After New Industries

The manufacturers committee of the City Council decided recently to ask the finance committee for funds to carry out a campaign to interest a number of concerns now looking for a Canadian site into the possibilities of Brantford. The manufacturing committee is at present time in touch with several concerns wanting a Canadian location, two of them being in the United States. The committee thought if the inducements offered by Brantford were properly put before the concerns in question results might accrue, but the committee found themselves without the necessary funds to plead their cause, hence the request.—Brantford Expositor.

Mr. T. G. Telford, Rochester is the guest of Mrs. Record, 417 Roger street.

The members of the Women Teachers' Guild were entertained at a Grecian Tea at the Queen Alexandra school on Friday, February 23rd, the Kindergarten room being very nicely decorated for the occasion. During the evening an excellent article on Modern Greece was read by Miss Runnings.

The Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O. D.E. had a successful afternoon tea at the Empress on Saturday, the hostesses being Mrs. Widdifield and Miss Ruth Robertson. The colour scheme was black and white and those assisting were very pretty in white dresses and white boudoir caps with large black bows. About fifty people dropped in to tea during the afternoon.

Mr. G. D. Frewer, Toronto, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Dela Fosse.

Miss Agnes Horsfield left to-day on the 11.40 Grand Trunk train for Oshawa, having taken a position there.

The Weekly Tea of the Canadian Kitchener League will be held in the tea room of the Oriental Hotel on Wednesday, Feb. 28. Mrs. Kirns and Miss L. Flynn will be the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Burnham and Mrs. Bommer. A cordial invitation to all is tendered. As this is one of the means this League has for raising funds, it is due the ladies, who have worked so conscientiously, making comforts for the boys "Somewhere in France," that everyone reading should make a special effort to be present. Silver collection.

Miss Eva Rhoderhouse went through an operation this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital and is progressing as favourably as can be expected.

Miss Helen McLaren, Homewood avenue, has been called to Toronto by the illness of a member of the family.

The usual Saturday afternoon recital at the Conservatory was postponed till Saturday, March 3rd.

Mr. W. F. Stubbs, Galt, has been called to the city by the death of his mother, the late Mrs. Jos. Stubbs.

Mr. Gordon Langley is in Schenectady on business.

THE COAL SITUATION RELAXING

Coal consumers will be somewhat relieved by the announcement of Messrs. Robert Hicks & Co. in to-day's Examiner.

It would appear that weather and other conditions have had the effect of relieving the blockade of their large consignments of coal this month. The quantity of hard coal arriving at their sidings and in transit, would seem to justify the relaxing of the unprecedented rigid methods adopted this month in the distribution of their coal. Sufficient stocks are now in sight to be able, not only to meet local requirements, but to spare several hundred tons, if necessary, to outside points less fortunate than Peterborough.

CUNARD LINER LOST.

LONDON, February 26.—The 18,099-ton Cunard liner "Laconia" fell a victim to-day to the German submarine warfare, being torpedoed off the Irish coast. The vessel was en route from New York to England. The Laconia is the biggest victim of the German submarine warfare since the new decree was announced. The Cunarder carried mail from America. She was torpedoed Sunday. Six Americans were aboard. Another steamer rescued two hundred and seventy of her passengers. They were expected to land this evening.

The Laconia was torpedoed without warning.

AMERICAN LIVES ARE LOST ON THE LINER "LACONIA"

Two Chicago Women Were Buried in the Open Sea

AMERICAN LIVES LOST ON THE LINER LACONIA

Mrs. M. Hoy and Miss Hoy Both of Chicago Perished in an Open Life Boat and Were Buried at Sea—Report From American Consul—First Torpedo Struck the Cunarder a Vital Blow—Vessel Sank in One Hour—Weather Was Calm.

THE OFFICIAL FIGURES

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, February 27.—Official figures of the Laconia disaster to-day showed:

Total passengers and crew, 294.
Survivors landed, 281.
Drowned, 5.
Died of exposure and buried at sea, 8.
At hospitals, six.

These figures were furnished by the American Consul at Queenstown and sent to Ambassador Page to-day.

Consul Frost reported that the Laconia sank in one hour after the torpedoing.

STUCK TO THEIR POST.

QUEENSTOWN, February 27.—Wireless Operators Donnes and Taylor were heroes of the Laconia disaster. They were the two last survivors to leave the sinking Cunarder. They stuck to their apparatus, sendinging out "S.O.S." calls until a British warship responded—and then jumped overboard. The lifeboat commanded by Captain Irvine picked the two men up, little the worse for their experience. All survivors' stories to-day united in eulogy of the splendid conduct and discipline of the Laconia's officers and crew. The first torpedo which struck the Cunarder was a vital blow, and it was immediately seen that she must sink. Boats were ordered off. It was while they were moving off that the second explosion occurred. Captain Irvine and his officers were the last to leave the ship, except the two wireless operators. The weather was comparatively calm, according to survivors, but there was a heavy swell running. The Laconia was struck at 10:50 p.m. Sunday. The survivors were afloat until 4 a.m. Monday morning, when a rescue ship arrived on the scene and picked them up.

LONDON, February 27.—Mrs. M. Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy, two American women on the Laconia perished in an open lifeboat after leaving the sinking vessel. Their deaths were due to exposure. They were both buried in the open sea. American Consul Frost forwarded this word to the American Embessay here to-day.

LONDON, February 27.—After the Laconia's survivors had taken to the boats the German submarine which apparently sank the Cunarder approached one lifeboat, inquired for the captain and asked the nature of the cargo. Receiving information in the reply to these enquiries from the second officer of the Laconia, the German officer remarked that a British Ad-

NEWS FROM ALBERTA

(By an Occasional Correspondent)

A copy of an interesting leaflet, entitled "Operating a Modern Alberta Grain Ranch," has been sent "The Examiner" by a former well known Peterborough lady stenographer now filling a responsible position in one of Youngstown's Alb., legal offices. The leaflet is issued by Collins & Nelson, Limited, of Youngstown, and gives interesting details of grain growing, etc., in Alberta. In a letter which accompanies the leaflet, the writer says:

"The embargo on wheat makes it next to impossible to move the grain, as the elevators at Saskatoon, Fort William and Port Arthur are not shipping, and absolutely ties things up tight.

"We are having glorious spring weather, but it changes very quickly here, for it is snowing and blowing to-day, after raining heavy during the night."

What are Peps

Peps are the new treatment for coughs, colds and lung troubles. They are little tablets made up from Pine extracts and medicinal essences. When put into the mouth these medicinal ingredients turn into healing vapors, which are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes. The Peps treatment is direct. Swallowing cough mixtures into the stomach, to cure ailments and disorders in throat and lungs, is indirect. Peps are revolutionizing the treatment of colds, as their price is within the reach of all. 50c. box all druggists, or Peps Co., Toronto.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

"I don't care a curse for your name! —Don't you see I am up to my neck, and with no time to waste on ignorance? The steamer sails in less than half an hour, and ——"

"Can you not hold her for a few minutes over if the warrant does not arrive in time? I am expecting—"

"Not a second, sir, not a second! Mr. What's-your-name, if you find your parties on the pier you can take them for all that I care, but on our boat, sir, they are safe, unless you can come to me heeled better than you are. I mean no disrepect—but there is the door behind you."

And, without vouchsafing another word, the agent bent over his papers.

John was angry, but what could he do? To argue would be a loss of time —moreover, he had no argument.

"I wonder what, numbered block Bunsen would call this!" he muttered, as with a heightened colour he left the office. In the shelter of a pile of freight he halted and considered. There was nothing for it but to go aboard the steamer and risk being seen by those he wished to avoid, and leaving his cover he approached the gangway with his head down. He dared not look up and therefore did not catch the cautionary wave of a handkerchief nor did he hear the light call of his name from the rail of the deck above him; the growing thunder of the escaping steam from the safety-valve of the waiting vessel prevented that.

CHAPTER XI.
ON THE LONE STAR.

The list he had looked at showed Wentworth that there were not more than a round dozen of passengers bound south; it was not the time of year to attract travel to Texas, and, therefore there was no confusion on and round the gangplank as he walked up to its incline; even the bustle of stevedores was lessening. He inquired his way to the purser's office, and on finding it was informed that the purser was on the pier attending to business. After a glance at the weak face of the young assistant, Wentworth concluded that he would be incapable of helping him any and therefore determined to strike at once at the highest authority, the captain. He was told that that official was probably on deck, aft, and with a gradually fading hope of being able to do much with the vessel's commander at such a time, he went down the long dim passage between decks, towards the stern of the steamer. He met no one until he emerged into the saloon and was about to go up the companionway, when he heard a quick exclamation and found himself confronting Grace Merridale.

Next to Bagshot himself the girl was about the last person that Wentworth cared to meet, for with his present notion of her untrustworthiness, and the necessity of his presence remaining unknown to her uncle, he felt that for him the fat was in the fire. Bagshot would be warned of his coming and so enlightened would know what was afoot. The young man drew himself up stiffly.

The girl's face was drawn and haggard, notwithstanding that her cheeks were flushed and her eyes shining from excitement. "Oh, I saw you coming up the pier!" she exclaimed in a whisper.

"Yes?" There was an uncompromising terseness in the return.

"I—I—am so glad! But we cannot stand here," she said, apparently not remarking the man's coldness. "Come with me, please."

She turned from him, whisking herself into the short passage from which she had emerged, and Wentworth with no definite intention of any kind, followed her, perhaps only for the reason that she had asked him. At the further end of the passage she opened a state room door and with a finger on her lips held it for Wentworth to enter, which he did. Closing the door she turned and faced him. "Thank Heaven!" she exclaimed, breathing as if after a violent exertion. "Then you received my letter? Why did you come this way? They might have seen you! Have you—are you quite recovered?"

For the past two hours the young man had so completely lost faith in the girl that he had tried to befriend that on the instant of the unexpected meeting he had only the feeling that, as Bunsen had expressed it, his half-baked cake had gone suddenly to dough. But as he now saw her face in the clear white light coming through the open port hole he felt that possibly his disappointment had tinctured his judgement—that possibly he had leaped to a conclusion which might prove unwarranted. Or was it that she was still playing with him? guessing his errand, and holding it from its completion? Looking into her face it was impossible to believe it. Wentworth was human—and young, but he did not propose to be deceived again. If he had been deceived; yet he knew now that the policy of honesty would serve him better than inventing a lie.

"I have had no letter from you," he answered.

"Then how did you know—"

"I traced you here—and came without the hope of meeting you. I am waiting for an officer with a warrant for your uncle and Planet."

"No letter from me! I sent one by special delivery—and paid the janitor to mail it. Oh, it is too late! The steamer sails in a few minutes! It was not until last night that I knew of my uncle's intentions. I did not demur; I appeared to be glad. And he suspects nothing. I have had no chance to recover the paper yet."

There was no doubting her honesty. If ever Truth came up from her well to peer through a woman's eyes she was there looking at the man, in the person of Grace Merridale. Wentworth felt his doubts slipping away, and in their place came the old longing to help her, though then his power to do so seemed slight enough.

"Where are they—your uncle and Planet?" he asked, looking at his watch. There were fifteen minutes left; perhaps Bunsen was already on the pier.

"On deck—with their heads together. Planet is ill—from the way you treated him. They did not see you. I—I was looking for you. I thought you might—"

"Where are you going?"

"I don't know. Home, presumably; but I shall go wherever he goes—until I have that which is mine. I think he wishes to get rid of me now. I think he would desert me if he could —or dared."

"And Planet?"

"Desert me? Oh, no! He—" She stopped and a vivid blush took the place of words. Wentworth snapped the case of his watch with unnecessary vigor, and his voice, which had softened, again became cold.

"It is to be hoped that your uncle does not abuse you?"

"No, he would not dare."

"I see. Of course not. Jose Planet would protect you."

Her lips parted at the change in his tone—a change of which he was hardly aware himself—and she looked at him as she quietly answered: "Of the two I would prefer my uncle's abuse to Planet's protection, Mr. Wentworth. I am in an extremely awkward position for a woman. Think what I have to contend with; think what I have to do, and do alone."

"If Bunsen gets here in time you will be relieved of the necessity. I have been unable to do much alone, myself. I was about to go to the captain when I met you."

"For what?"

"To get him to hold the vessel in case the warrant is delayed."

"It would be useless," the girl answered. "If the captain did not order you off the ship he would laugh at you. He and my uncle are friends of years' standing."

"Ah! then our hope lies in Bunsen getting here in time! You do not consider yourself in any danger?"

"No—unless they learn of my knowledge of what they have done. I don't dare to think of what might happen in that event. Bagshot is a desperate man—you know that. I think he might kill me—kill us both —if he knew that you were with me here. He would guess what it was for."

She put her hands to her face. Wentworth cursed himself for having doubted her, at the same time seeing how his presence in her stateroom might compromise her. "Forgive me for jeopardizing your safety," he said. "I did not think. And —"

He was interrupted by the sound of a bell being rung in the passage, and a man shouted as he passed: "All ashore that's going ashore."

Wentworth turned to the door, leaving unfinished what he was about to say. "You will let me hear from you?" he asked.

"At the first chance. Probably from Galveston."

"Then Heaven send you luck, Miss Merridale. I cannot forgive myself that it is through my stupidity you are in this coil of circumstance. My interest in the matter is as great as yours. Good-bye."

He held out his hand. The girl took it and as the young man looked into her eyes he saw both dread and appeal in them, but the smile she gave him was a brave one.

"I'll do my best to win," she said briefly and turned away.

Wentworth hurried back to the gangway in a frame of mind that would have made it unlucky for either Bagshot or Planet to have met him then. Had he felt certain of non interference he would have hurried to the upper deck, tackled the greater villain of the two and dragged him ashore, but in an instant he recognised how nonsensical had been the idea. Yet was he to stand by and see the man whom he believed to be the murderer of his father go scot-free? It looked so, and his spirit rebelled at the hopelessness of the situation.

And the girl! He was stirred by a greater feeling than pity—a feeling new to him—as he remembered the forlorn face that had seemed to appeal to him, the face that had seemed to tied to two brutes. Would she be brave? Would she accomplish her end alone, or would her spirit fail her?

Though the warning to those going ashore had been sounded for some minutes Wentworth saw the gangplank had not yet been removed; therefore he took his stand on the lower deck, near the gang way. From this station he could command a view of part of the pier and a stretch of the street along which he knew the detective would come. A line of trucks crawled over the hot highway, but no hurrying taxicab met his vision; no men on a run. Would Bunsen never come?

His mind swung from his business to the girl who, he thought, must now be feeling unutterably lonely. With his open watch in his hand he waited, his brain busy, but his mind a blank to his immediate surroundings. The bustling stevedores had now ceased their rush; a group of deck hands were taking their stand at the falls of the great gang plank, and the rattle of empty baggage trucks trundled along the hollow pier was drowned in the strident roar of the escaping steam.

John glanced at his watch. The hour set for sailing was already past, and he was suddenly hoping that the delay would be prolonged, when he was approached by an official in uniform.

"Are you a passenger, sir? If not, you have less than a minute to get ashore."

Wentworth looked up and realised that the time had come. He was brought suddenly to himself, and something within him protested at the interruption of his thoughts. He closed his watch and was about to move to the pier, when from an impulse which had no backing of reason or invention, and which allowed him no chance for consideration, he lounged to the bulwark, threw his arm along the broad rail, and assuming an attitude of careless ease, answered:

"I am a passenger, sir."

Prepare This for a Bad Cough—It's Fine

Cheaply and Easily Made, but Does the Work Quickly.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy—costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations—can easily be made up at home. The way it takes hold and conquers distressing coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth). Pour this into a 16-oz. bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 54 cents and gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of a most effectual, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

What a Kiss Cost

A Story of Southern Persons Long Ago

By F. A. MITCHEL

My granddaughter Marian was my favorite of all my descendants of her generation. What was the cause of my feeling for her is hard to specify. She was Marian Whitlock, and there was but one Marian Whitlock. It was not that she was a strong character, for she was not. She was not only heedless, but blind to the result of her heedlessness. But she was lovable. Indeed, she was loved through her faults rather than her good qualities. At least I, her grandmother, loved her on that account.

Marian used to tell her grandmother more about what was going on between her and her young men associates than any one else. Why she did this I don't know unless it was because I realized and therefore sympathized with the conditions under which she labored. Candor compels me to admit that she possessed traits which had shown themselves in me when I was her age, and it is more than probable that she inherited them from me. While I endeavored to guide her out of the effects of her indiscretions I never lectured her for having been indiscreet. I realized that indiscretion was a trait, born in her and was not likely to be eradicated till she had grown beyond the age when it would lead her into trouble.

Marian used to come to me in a light hearted way with her perplexties, but one day she gave evidence that what she had to tell was of a serious nature.

"Grandma," she said, "I have gone and done it now and no mistake."

"What is it, child?" I asked.

"You know Elliot Walker?"

"Yes."

"Well, Elliot and I were in the music room, I at the piano, he turning over the sheets."

She paused. I gave her time.

"Elliot bent lower and lower over my shoulder. I suppose I should have moved, but I didn't."

"Well?"

"He kissed me."

I refrained from comment on this and waited for the denouement.

"I don't know what it was that prompted me to act as I did. I was certainly not offended. I had expected when I didn't move that he would kiss me and should not have thought much of him if he hadn't. It was not that I was prudish; it was—well, I don't know what it was, unless it was Old Nick got into me. But I arose from the piano, looked daggers at him and, turning, started to leave the room. What was my surprise to see Herbert Kenworthy standing in the door of the music room. Elliot and I had not been aware of his approach, and he had seen the whole performance."

"What did you do next?" I asked anxiously.

"Why, you see, I couldn't very well say that I had encouraged Elliot to kiss me, could I?"

"Go on."

"And I couldn't say that I was not really offended."

"What did you do?"

"Why, I went on out of the room."

"And didn't go back?"

"Yes, after a few minutes."

"And what did you say?"

"Nothing about what had happened. I began to chat with Herbert, while Elliot sat looking very much embarrassed."

"Oh, Marian!"

I was aware that these two young men were rivals for Marian's favor. We were southern persons, and in the south our men are hot blooded. Herbert Kenworthy had seen Elliot Walker give Marian what appeared to be an insult, which she could only resent as a woman. If trouble between the young men did not result then I was no judge of human nature. All this flashed through my brain, and I said to Marian:

"Did your two visitors show any animosity toward each other?"

"None whatever. But, grandma, I have heard since that which leads me to fear"—

"What?"

"I have been told that this morning they were playing billiards together at the club and Elliot charged Herbert with shoving up points that he had not made. Herbert called Elliot a liar, and Elliot struck him."

I did not ask to hear any more. I knew well that the young men would not play billiards together after what had occurred except for a purpose, that purpose being to make it appear that a different cause from the real one had resulted in an animosity which would doubtless lead to a duel, their object being to keep Marian's name from being involved in the affair.

"What have you heard since?" I asked anxiously of Marian.

"Nothing."

I doubted if Marian foresaw what would be the probable result of all this, and I dreaded to tell her. Nevertheless if she did not prevent a meeting between these two young men and one of them killed the other, she being responsible for the act, her life would be blighted.

"Marian," I said, "you must go at once to Herbert Kenworthy and tell him that it was your fault that Elliot kissed you."

"Oh, grandma, I can't!"

"This quarrel has nothing to do with billiards. It is about you. Herbert has constituted himself your champion, understanding that Elliot insulted you."

"I have thought that myself," said Marian, paling.

"A duel will surely follow."

Marian looked at me with a frightened expression that excited my pity, but I knew that it was no time to indulge in anything but action. I impressed upon her the necessity of her preventing any further trouble between her two suitors. During our conversation it came out that she had made a choice between all her suitors, including the two in question. This she revealed to me, though I was the only person she confided it to. She loved Elliot Walker. Thinking she needed my support, I told her that I would go with her to see Herbert Kenworthy. She made no reply for awhile to this proposition. I could see that a struggle was going on within her, but I was ignorant as to just what it was. Presently she rose.

"What are you going to do?" I asked.

"I am going to see Herbert."

"Do you wish me to go with you?"

"No, grandma."

This was the first indication of strength I saw in her, and it was some relief. She left me, and later I heard her pony phaeton on the gravel walk. I waited anxiously for her return. When she came I saw by the expression on her face that she had not succeeded in her object.

"Well?" I said interrogatively.

"I went to Herbert's house," she said, "called him out and we had a conference on the veranda. I told him I had heard that he and Elliot had had an altercation. I inferred that he had seen Elliot kiss me and me resent the act. I begged that he would not constitute himself my defender. He replied that he had not done so, but admitted that he and Elliot had got into a quarrel from words that had passed between them relative to Elliot's act. I then admitted that I had encouraged Elliot to kiss me.

"He looked very much surprised and pained at this. I knew that his contempt had passed from Elliot to me. I told him that since I had exonerated Elliot I should expect him to apologize to Elliot for anything he might have said under a misunderstanding. After some thought he told me that any woman in such a case, to prevent trouble between two of her men friends, would assume the blame. There was no sin in my doing so. The affair had gone too far to be smoothed over. I argued with him for some time, but could get nothing out of him. Then I came away."

"You must see Elliot. The one who has given the challenge is the one to offer the olive branch."

"I have seen Elliot. The challenge had come from Herbert. Elliot, having struck him. Elliot apologized to me humbly for having kissed me. He admitted that the scene in the billiard room had been connected to keep my name out of the quarrel. He would gladly on my account put a stop to it, but could not refuse a challenge without being disgraced."

"And as the matter stands the two men will meet tomorrow morning?"

"I suppose so."

The case was a knotty one. The only way I could see out of it was for Marian to choose between the two men. She might tell Herbert that she loved Elliot, but I doubted if this would prevent a meeting that had become a public matter and with which she was not known to be connected. It would probably save Elliot from injury, but this would not be fair to Herbert.

"The only hope I see to prevent this meeting, Marian," I said, putting my arms about her, "is to tell them both that you love Elliot. That would, I think, dispose of the matter. Herbert would withdraw his challenge."

I could feel her shiver in my arms at this alternative, but she said nothing, though later she told me that Elliot had made her no proposal.

The day was now ended, and nothing had been accomplished. I determined to leave Marian free to act for herself till the last minute; then if she did not act I would endeavor to force her to do so. We remained in the same room through the night without disrobing. After 12 o'clock I fell asleep on a lounge. I was aroused at dawn by Marian.

"Come," she said.

Without asking her where we were to go I went with her. I knew. She knew where the meeting would take place, and we proceeded there. Since Elliot had not proposed to her I could not see what she would do. We waited an hour a short distance from the field and finally saw one party come on to it, then the other. The seconds were engaged at the preliminaries when Marian advanced, I following her.

"What will stop this affair?" she asked.

There was no reply from either. Marian asked all to withdraw except the principals.

"I can think of only one way to stop it," she said. "I love one of you gentlemen. Will you both agree to shake hands if I name the one I love?"

At this they were all attention. Then Herbert nodded an assent, and Elliot followed.

"The one who kissed me," said Marian and covered her face with her hands.

Elliot started for her, but I was too quick for him and carried her away.

The duel did not take place. There is a sequel to this story, but it is a long one. Elliot was a long while in gaining Marian's consent to marry him. That kiss kept him from another for more than a year.

Why the Trunk Was Slow.

"I had a most delightful time last summer," gushed Miss Noling, "but I was dreadfully inconvenienced at Leufandville waiting for my trunk. I went there by the N. T. C. so as to take advantage of the scenery along the route, but I had to send my trunk on the slow B. C. and E."

"But why couldn't you have sent your trunk on the N. T. C., too?" murmured Miss Sterling.

"Because," explained Miss Noling, glad to show her superior knowledge, "I learned from a friend of mine that the N. T. C. is not a trunk line."—Brooklyn Life.

HELPS FOR THE COOK.

A One Time Royal Chef Gives These Hints About Ovens.

Tear up a sheet of kitchen paper into not too small pieces and try the oven by placing in it one of these every eight or ten minutes till you obtain the desired temperature.

If on being put into the oven the paper blazes up or burns at once the oven is manifestly too hot for anything.

If after a stay of two or three minutes the paper turns a dark, almost chocolate, brown the oven is a hot one, fit for patties and small pastry generally.

If after the same time the paper becomes a Havana or cigar brown the oven is "quick" and ready for tarts and such like.

If the paper in the same time only turns a yellowish brown (the color of a good deal plank) the oven is a "moderately quick" or "soaking" oven, ready for bread, large meat or game pies, poundcake, etc.

If, lastly, when left in for this time the paper is barely tinged with a yellowish shade, sponge cakes, meringues and such like may be safely put into it.

A Plain Hint.

"Why don't you ask that nice girl to marry you?"

"I wouldn't stand a chance. She keeps telling me that she has two admirers and can't choose between them."

"What stronger hint do you want, you dummy?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Had Violent Coughing Fits

Looked Like Consumptive

Mrs. Mary Wheten, North Forks, N.S., writes: "Having taken five bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, during the past few weeks, to relieve a chronic cough and general throat trouble, allow me to express my unbounded satisfaction and thanks as to its sterling qualities. A short time ago I became subject to violent coughing fits at night and directly after rising in the morning. I began losing weight, and all my friends cheerfully informed me that I was going into consumption.

"After taking the 'Dr. Wood's' I am pleased to relate that the cough has entirely disappeared and I have since regained the lost weight. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" on the market for you see that none of these so-called "pine syrups" are handed out to you when you ask for "Dr. Wood's." It has been on the market for twenty-five years, is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

The Sad Tale Of a German And His Cook

A pitiful story of German iniquity is told by the Frankfort Volkestimme:

"Bearer has conducted herself for fourteen years to my entire satisfaction. She was unable, however, to adapt herself to the present conditions of existence."

Such is the text of a "testimonial" furnished by Herr and Frau Eduard Kuchler to their cook who, after so many years of faithful service, they summarily discharged because she was not proof against starvation.

For the last six months the woman was refused all nourishment by her employers, except a small daily ration of turnips and bread, whereas Herr Kuchler and his family were in the constant enjoyment of nourishing meals. These were prepared by the cook under the direct supervision either of Herr Kuchler or his wife, who by turns stood over her armed with a dog-whip and forcibly prevented her from putting aside any of the food for her own use.

Between October 3 and December 15th the woman was twice allowed a small portion of meat, but no sugar, milk, butter, or flour, though madame's little dog was provided with its daily ration of cooked meat. Eventually the cook became too feeble and emaciated to continue her duties. She was then dismissed from her employment and conveyed to an infirmary where she now lies prostrate as the result of semi-starvation.

As though all this were not bad enough, the discovery was incidentally made that the Kuchler family were food hogs of the worst description. In their dining-room were found, carefully hidden in a big cup board, three hams, twelve pounds of smoked beef, fifty-two pounds of lard and dripping, and twenty-two bottles of salad oil, besides large quantities of sugar, cheese, condensed milk and coffee, all of which articles appeared daily on the family table.

Herr Kuchler has a well-paid position in the registration department of the Third District Court.

FAIRMOUNT NEWS OF LOCAL INTEREST

FAIRMOUNT, Feb. 26.—The usual peaceful tenor of our congregation has been very much effected by events transpiring of more than local interest during the year just closed, and others of recent date. Change in pastors was occasion for usual regretful farewells at the termination of Rev. Mr. Butler's very successful sojourn. The introduction and welcoming to our church and homes of Rev. Mr. Clark whose ministrations are appreciated. The social life has been subjected to severe disarrangement.

The call of duty to our Empire was nobly responded to by Mr. Percy Seymour, son of Jas. Seymour, who is now in France.

Special interest in Red Cross and Patriotic work is being manifest especially by some having sons eligible. The art of war reports of battles are sketched with deep interest. The Ross Rifle having an ardent defender in the person of Sergt. Major Hooten. Scarcely less interesting are the results of the engagement of 1916, in which cupids' darts was the chief weapon, results of which three of our popular young ladies have been subjects of special attention by their friends. First call to duty was heralded nobly by Miss Rose Sutton, popular teacher in our Sabbath School. Miss Mary Ross, one of her pupils also a number of her friends were invited to Miss Sutton's home, where upon announcement of her approaching marriage to Mr. Charles Moore was generously remembered by a shower of essentials in her future home in Saskatchewan. The home of Mr. Seymour was next visited. Where a similar duty was performed. Miss Eva, now Mrs. Gordon McIntosh was the recipient. The third and last on the list being Miss Wood, an innovation was allowed and an opportunity developed to secure recruits by permitting the young men to take part. A pleasant evening was spent. Graced by the presence of the coming bridegroom, Mr. Richard Earl.

A copious shower of confetti on eligible subjects for similar honours did not exhaust the store.

PERSONAL.

We are pleased to note that Mr. Thos. McIndoo and Sons who were ill with a severe attack of La grippe is much better.

Children Had Eczema Doctors Failed To Cure

Two Letters Which Prove the Efficiency of Dr. Chase's Ointment as a Cure for Eczema

Fortunate are the mothers who know the virtues of Dr. Chase's Ointment, for there is no treatment so suitable for use after the bath to relieve irritation and chafing and to thereby prevent eczema and similar skin diseases.

Mrs. W. L. Barnes, Timmins, Ont. writes: "I want to tell you about the case of my little boy, who had baby eczema when he was three months old. It started on the top of his head, on his forehead and around his ears. The doctors failed to do him any good, so I tried D. Chase's Ointment on the recommendation of a friend, and in a month's time the child was entirely free of this disagreeable skin disease. He is now four years old, and has never had any further trouble from ailments of this kind. I also have great faith in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and believe that it cannot be beaten as a restorative for pale, nervous women."

Mrs. George McNair, River Charles, N.B., writes:—"We use Dr. Chase's Ointment in our home, and would not wish for anything better for cuts, burns and bruises. A few years ago a friend of mine, whose baby was terribly afflicted with eczema had her child treated by their own family physician, but the little one got no better. They tried several remedies, but they all proved useless in this case. Upon the advise of a neighbour they got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and before the first box was used the child was completely cured. I can also recommend Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to suffering friends who I now will be glad to learn of something to relieve their nervous trouble. You have my permission to use this letter for the benefit of others."

murky boat would reach the survivors shortly. And then departed without offering assistance. American Consul Frost, at Queenstown, reported this incident to Ambassador Page to-day. Frost also officially reported to the American Embassy to-day that the Laconia was sunk without warning, and by the explosion of two torpedoes. The second torpedo was fired twenty minutes after the first had struck.

WASHINGTON, February 26.—Asking for authority to arm merchantships and to take any other means which may prove necessary to protect American lives and interests of high seas, President Wilson at one o'clock to-day addressed a join session of Congress on the German-American situation. Realizing that this step taken by the President draws the United States measurably nearer to open hostilities with the German government, Congress listened with the deepest gravity to the President's pronouncement. The determination of the German government to carry out her ruthless U-boat warfare was cited by the President, and series of offenses against America and other neutrals since the diplomatic break Feb. 3. "The time has come," the President declared, "when influences other than "mere material things" must be considered if the United States is to uphold the rights and privileges of her citizens."

RICE SUBBING FOR POTATOES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—The potato famine has reached the parliament building. Civil servants and members of the Legislature visiting the dining room were surprised to read the following announcement to-day at the top of the menu card: "Owing to the scarcity of potatoes boiled rice will be served as a substitute three days a week."

Premier Hearst, N. W. Rowell, Leader of the Opposition, Allan Studholme, M.P.P., and Mr. Justice Hodgins, conducting the insurance investigation, ate rice instead of potatoes, like all the others who lunched there to-day.

Russians Penetrate German Trenches

Was Anaemic FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing quantities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

YE OLDE FIRME

Heintzman & Co. Art Piano

Grand or Upright

In the Heintzman's tonal range each note of the human voice finds its perfect complement, sustaining it with sympathetic sweetness and flawless purity. This is why Tetrazzini and so many other world-famous singers insist on having a Heintzman at their concerts on their Canadian tours. And the beauty of it is that this tone is permanent—it does not deteriorate with age.

LADY'S BLOUSE.

By Anabel Worthington.

The present vogue of the blouse that is worn over the skirt would make it seem that the garment is here to stay. It is cut straight from the shoulder and on the loose lines of the chemise frock that is so exceedingly popular. In a few instances it has proven its secret worth in hiding the partly worn or soiled portion of a skirt.

One will look longingly at the blouse in the illustration, not alone because of the collar of great renown, which is laced a bit up the front, but as well because of the treatment at the waistline to gain the panel effect. The ribbon sash, inserted through slashes at the sides, draws the fulness to the back and holds it there by tying loosely.

The blouse is made to slip on over the head and may be developed in silk, wool, poplin, satin, serge or velvet. The cuffs, on sleeves that are easily full, are of self-material, but the collar will be attractive in contrasting goods. If a square collar be more to your liking you may have it, as the pattern is perforated for this style also; if you care for fringe you may add this trimming to the collar edge, as it is quite fashionable.

The blouse pattern No. 8,079 cuts in sizes 34 to 40. To make in size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 36 inch material with ½ yard 27 inch contrasting goods for the collar.

To obtain the pattern send to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Ontario Wheat Slightly Firmer

British Successes Dominant Factors in Wheat Market—The Cattle Market

The general tone of the market yesterday was bearish, though prices were but fractionally changed at the close. British successes seem to have been the dominant factors. Winnipeg closed 1-2c. lower on the May option and Chicago 5-8c. Cash quotations for yesterday reflected the easier tone of the market, except that Ontario wheat is held slightly firmer.

Manitoba wheat— No. 1 northern, $1.06 1-2, track, bay ports; No. 2, $1.03 1-4; No. 3, $1.88; No. 4, $1.78 1-2.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 72c. to 73c. nominal; No. 3, 70c. to 71c.; extra No. 1 feed, 70c. to 71c.; No. 1 feed, 69c. to 70c. all rail delivered.

American corn—No. 3, $1.15, subject to embargo.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 63c. to 65c.; No. 3 white, 62c. to 64c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter, per car lot, $1.75 to $1.77; No. 3, $1.73 to $1.75, according to freights outside.

Peas—No. 2, nominal, car lots, $2.45.

Barley — Good malting, $1.21 to $1.23; feed barley, nominal.

Buckwheat—Nominal, $1.28.

Rye— No. 1 commercial, nominal; No. 2, new, $1.40 to $1.42.

Manitoba flour —First patents, in jute bags, $9.50; second patents, in jute, $9; strong bakers, in jute, $8.80, Toronto.

Ontario flour—New winter, $7.25 to $7.35, in bags, track, Toronto, prompt shipment; $7.00, bulk, seaboard; export grade.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $42; bran, $38; feed flour, per bag, $2.80.

Hay — Baled, track, Toronto, car lots; No. 2, $12; mixed, $9 to $11; straw, $9.

RUSSIANS TO BUY MORE IN CANADA IN THE FUTURE

COLONEL KOVALEFF, FORMERLY OF NEW YORK OFFICE, TO HAVE CHARGE HERE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26.—Of immense importance to Canada is the fact that the Russian Government has established an office in Ottawa, through which purchases of munitions and other war supplies in this country will be made, and that a Russian credit has been negotiated through one of the leading Canadian banking institutions.

It is understood that so far some seventy-five million dollars has been expended in Canada since the war began on munitions and supplies, but the Canadian Government, noting that immensely greater purchases were being made in the United States than in this country took the matter up with Petrograd, with the result that the Russian Government has decided to considerably extend its war business with the Dominion.

General Zoluboffsky, president of the Russian Supply Company of America, whose headquarters are in New York, was in Ottawa recently, and arranged for the opening of the office, which is in the Standard Bank Building, on Sparks street, as well as the financial end of the business. Colonel Kovaleff, formerly of the New York office will be in charge here.

This expansion of Canadian trade relations with Russia is very largely due to the energies of Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, who sent representatives to Petrograd to take up the matter there, and himself had negotiations with the Russian representatives on this side of the Atlantic and in Great Britain, while he was over there recently.

A large expansion of general trade between the two countries is also anticipated. Two Canadian representatives of special ability have been in the Czar's country for a considerable time, one being located at Petrograd, and the other in Siberia. The reports of the trade situation in Russia which they have sent to the Trade and Commerce Department from time to time have received a good deal of attention from business men, and developments are under way.

THE IMPORTANT POINT

to remember with regard to Zam-Buk is that, unlike ordinary ointments, Zam-Buk is so refined that it is capable of penetrating to the seat of the trouble, which in the case of skin diseases and old sores is found in the diseased underlying tissues. This is due to the fact that Zam-Buk contains no animal fat or coarse mineral drugs whatever, but is entirely of herbal origin. Ordinary ointments, on the contrary, owing to the animal fat and mineral drugs contained in them, are incapable of penetrating beneath the surface skin, so that the relief, if any, can be only temporary.

In addition to this, Zam-Buk is a strong germicide, and having reached the underlying tissues, it destroys all germs and thoroughly cleanses the diseased parts. Then Zam-Buk's healing essences promote the growth of new skin and a permanent cure results.

Zam-Buk is best not only for old sores, eczema, and all skin diseases, but also for blood-poisoning, ulcers, abscesses, boils, scalp sores, piles, burns, scalds, cuts and all skin injuries. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

GERMANS SHOULD ENVY

Dieting in Hunland—Gaiety in London Hotels

The luncheon tables were crowded at the Savoy Hotel and there were the usual brilliant dinner parties in the grill room and the restaurant. The menu here offered an amazing variety of rich dishes. At restaurants like the Trocadero the guests had to push their way through the crowd that choked up the vestibule. An orchestra was playing lively music and the whole atmosphere was one that reflected a dazzling prosperity. Here there was not so much champagne as at the Criterion, but there were other rich wines in plenty as well as liqueurs.

At the Criterion there were champagne bottles in profusion—in fact more there than anywhere. No empty seats could be seen at the Monico, and there was just the same scene of feasting. Nearly all the men at Romano's were in khaki, and this restaurant was also full. In another of the largest hotels over 400 customers were served with six-course dinners at from 7s. 6d. a head.

By way of contrast to these scenes the newspapers published the German food rations which for one week follow: Meat, 8½ ounces; bread, 4 lbs.; potatoes, 6 lbs.; butter, 2 ounces; eggs, 2; sugar ½ lbs.; rice, 2¾ ounces; barley, 3¾ ounces; margarine, 1 ounce.

Like Tagging in Reserve

The following communique has been received from the Canadian War Records Office: "A great feature in the life of the men at the front is the training which they carry out when in reserve. There are a vigor and purpose about this training which are quite remarkable. Men who have faced the enemy in battle appear to realise what training will mean to them and by this training, the purpose of which is constantly in the minds of all, the pure seeds of victory are being sown."

A YEAR INDOORS.

Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework and have a family of ten.

REMEMBERS CANADA'S NEED

Fine Example of Former Canadians in Duluth Not Isolated

Thirty ex-Canadians located in Duluth, Minn., held a dinner at the Kitchi Gammi Club in that city with the idea of doing something to aid the great cause. Before these gentlemen had left the table the sum of $3,126 had been subscribed and it was decided that of this amount $2,000 should be remitted to various centres "just across the line" where it would do the most good. The cities of Winnipeg, Port Arthur, Fort William and Fort Frances have each received a substantial amount of this $2,000 to be applied to the wants of families of soldiers at the front. The Canadians in the United States have not forgotten the land of their birth.

Fine Gift and Letter From Boston Couple to War Work

The following letter was received in Montreal from Boston by one of the doctors at the Children's Memorial Hospital: "My dear doctor—Before the war started Mrs.—— held some stock in one of the industrial concerns which is now manufacturing munitions for your allies. This has led to increased dividends, which increased dividends both Mrs. —— and I feel belong to your country or your cause. The enclosed check ($500), representing part of a recent dividend, Mrs.—— is sending to you.

"Both she and I have, of course, given as largely of our income as is possible to the various funds which have been formed to aid in the relief work which is being done for your allies, but it seemed to both of us that the intimate contact which you must have with the work would make it possible for you to use some of this money in a way that would be more vitally of value.

"Neither Mrs. —— nor I wish to have any publicity given to what little we may be able to do to help you, and for that reason, in any records which you may have to make, please see that our names do not appear. Simply have it acknowledged as from a friend in America, who appreciates all that your country is doing for us.

"Remember that you have our very best wishes in all that you are doing and if there is anything special which you think any of us can do to help the cause, you will, I hope, feel free to let us know. With the hope of a speedy settlement of the difficulty, but a settlement in which final justice is possible, I remain, very sincerely yours, ——."

LIFE ON FLIP OF COIN

Brothers Tossed, Loser Enlisted and Killed Himself

Private C. Nastrom, the Roblin man who enlisted on a Wednesday night with the Two Hundred and Fifty-first and died on Thursday morning, it is stated, staked his life on the toss of a coin—and lost. He and his brother owned a quarter-section near Roblin, and in discussing the war, they decided that one ought to enlist and the other stay to take care of the farm. To decide who should enlist, they flipped a coin and the choice fell on C. Nastrom.

He packed his grip, went to a lawyer, and later turned a quit-claim deed over to his brother, for his interest in the farm. Then he quietly bought some gopher poison containing a large proportion of strychnine, in Roblin, and brought it with him to Winnipeg.

Nastrom passed the medical board and joined up with the Two Hundred and Fifty-first, sleeping in barracks that night. Before retiring he was heard to state that he had a premonition that if he ever reached the firing line, he would be shot. He appeared very despondent, but finally went to sleep. Awakened at reveille Thursday morning and finding himself in military environment, he swallowed some of the gopher poison, and within a few moments was found dead in his bunk in the barracks on Cumberland Avenue.

CANADA SHOWED WAY

Gifts to British Red Cross Made Good an Ontario Boast

The London newspapers contained reports of the meeting of the British Red Cross Society and the Order of St. John with respect to the collections of money made throughout the Empire on "Trafalgar Day." His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught presided, and Sir Robert Hudson, chairman of the committee on Finance, paid a gratifying tribute to the Province of Ontario, in the course of which he referred to the unique proclamation issued by Sir John Hendrie, and said the result had been that £400,000 of the total of £1,098,000 collected from all parts of the Empire, including the British Isles, had come from that province.

It is interesting to recall that the Lieutenant-Governor had expressed the belief, when Canada was asked to contribute to the British Red Cross Fund, that Toronto would set the pace for Ontario, Ontario for the Dominion, and the Dominion for the Empire. He was not disappointed, and the people of Ontario were to be congratulated on standing first on the list of contributors.

CANADIAN'S BIG POST

Interview With Major Boyer, Returned French-Canadian

After nearly two years on the firing line, and being wounded four times, Major Guy Boyer, of the famous 22nd Battalion, was given leave of absence and visited Montreal. He left with the 22nd with the rank of captain. He earned promotion through his devotion to duty and became attached to the British General Headquarters Staff, engaged in railway construction "Somewhere."

Only those in khaki have the right of criticism as to the conduct of any of the combatants, says Major Boyer. The splendid harmony existing on the Western front between the English, French and Canadians is a big feature. There was no such a thing as race or creed cries there. The war and how to win was the uppermost thought and that is how it should be in Canada. Major Guy Boyer speaks with pride of the gallant work of the 22nd in the battle at Courcelette, when the French-Canadian unit at half strength resisted fourteen attacks in forty-eight hours and captured nearly two thousand prisoners.

The Decision Must Come From Pres. Wilson

Six American Sailors Lost With Laconia

The Sinking of the Laconia Is Considered A Clear-Cut Case

No Investigation is Regarded as Necessary in Washington--Decision as to What Shall Be Done and When is Altogether in the Hands of President Wilson--Six Americans Among the Crew of the Laconia Lost Their Lives.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

QUEENSTOWN, February 27.—The horror of the Laconia's destruction grew this afternoon as the stories of its survivors were pieced together. And with it came to light a story of women's bravery and defiance that stirred Queenstown to its depths. When the rescuing patrol steamer brought the survivors into this port there was a defiant sound of voices from her deck. Eager observers made out the picture of dishevelled women snatched from death in the cold waters of the sea. Standing forward on the little boat's deck and leading in the singing of "Rule Britannia," the women were huddled together, hair streaming over their shoulders, and like the men who were saved, wearing life-belts inflated and strapped across their shoulders. Every soul on board sang the song. Their almost hysterica lvoices raised in degiantly strident tones. First ashore was a tall stewardess, hair streaming and cuddling close to her breast a tiny baby that was almost lost in the voluminous wrapping of the woman's life-belt.

The pitiful company straggled across the gang plank and were met with eager sympathy. They were hurried to a fleet of waiting automobiles and carried to the Queen's Hotel. There magnums of champagne and bowls of steaming soup awaited them. A big staff of Red Cross nurses and surgeons looked them over and hurried the survivors off to bed.

(By Robert J. Bender.)

WASHINGTON, February 27.—The sinking of the Laconia according to highest official interpretation is a "clear cut case." No investigation is necessary. This became known as the Administration's attitude following a conference at the White House between Secretary of State Lansing and President Wilson. Evidence now in hand presumely contained in cable despatches from American representatives abroad, it was stated eliminates any necessity for further investigation. The Laconia incident—What shall be done and how it shall be done—Is altogether in the hands of President Wilson—Any decision it was flatly stated, must come from him.

It was strongly intimated that the President has no immediate intention of again going to Congress. The official interpretation of the Laconia incident as a "clear cut act" did not bring in the word "overt," but the manner in which it was described left the very strong impression that "overt act" was in the mind of the official who interpreted it.

NEW YORK, February 27.—Six Americans of the twenty listed in the crew of the Laconia lost their lives when the big Cunarder was sunk, Sunday, according to the best figures available to-day.

PARIS (French Official Communique), February 27.—Southwest of Vailly we entered the German lines and returned with prisoners. There were patrol engagements in the region of Bezon Vaux, and in the Vosges. Elsewhere calm prevails.

LONDON, February 27. — The British steamers Headley and Aries have been sunk. The Headley, a new ship, had a tonage of 4,953, while the Aries was a 3,071-ton ship.

OTTAWA, Ont., February 27.—The report that the Government has decided to place an embargo on the export of potatoes from the Dominion lacks foundation, according to the Department of Agriculture. Whether action will be taken at a later stage is not know.

WASHINGTON, February 27.—The House Foreign Committee split on President Wilson's request for authority in the international situation, and failed to-day to report the Flood bill giving the President that power. Shortly after the meeting broke up, Chair Flood made an appointment with President Wilson to discuss the amended resolution. It is probable that the President will inform Flood of the new and critical development resulting from the Laconia's sinking, and urge reconsideration of the resolution to include exactly what he asks for.

HIS LIFE STILL REMAINS ONE STITCH UPON ANOTHER

CHICAGO.—As he plied his needle and thread in his tailor shop at 3341 West North avenue, Jacob Levine had golden visions of wealth that some day might come to him. But his dreams did not come true, and his humdrum life remained just one stitch after another.

Three strangers entered his shop Thursday. They said they were prospectors from Alaska, where they had discovered a gold mine of fabulous richness. When they showed him a lot of glittering nuggets in a steel box the little tailor opened his eyes. Here was the gold he had dreamed about.

The prospectors offered him the nuggets, which they said were worth $1,000, for $500. Levine hurried to give them $415, which was all his savings, and put up his gold watch and chain as security for the remainder. The men promised to return later for the rest of the money. They never came back.

Elated at his bargain, Levine called in a neighbouring jeweler and opening the box, showed him his treasure. The jeweler looked at the nuggets with an expert eye.

"These are only lumps of brass," he said.

Barking Dog Saved Lives

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Aroused by the barking of a half suffocated dog, seven persons in the home of Charles Hearndon here, escaped from their burning house at four a.m. to-day. Mrs. Hearndon and her three children were carried down ladders by firemen. Hearndon and a man boarder jumped from the windows. The dog lost his life.

"NATIONALIZING" THE GOVERNMENT.

The Toronto Telegram remarks in the course of an article, which is characteristically pointless, that "if Sir Robert Borden can nationalize the Canadian Government by getting out, then let Sir Robert Borden get out." Of course, it is well known that the Telegram has no love for Sir Robert and would be glad to get rid of him, but Sir Robert Borden, as the Telegram should know, has been doing his best to "Nationalize" the Government by taking in as many Nationalists as he could find room for.—Halifax Chronicle.

RESOLUTIONS THAT WERE ADOPTED BY YOUNGER CITIZENS

Endorsed the Industrial Association and Pledged Themselves to Do All in Their Power to Advance City

PASSED LAST NIGHT

The resolutions unanimously passed at last night's organization meeting of the Peterborough Industrial Association were as follows:

Moved by Mr. G. H. Logie and seconded by Mr. D. Davidson that this meeting endorse the plan of forming an organization to advance the interests of the City of Peterborough, the executive and organization to consist of five members, who will act for the organization in all matters and call a general meeting when they deem it advisable; that the Committee consider the matter of a constitution and report at a meeting which they shall call; that the Mayor of the City be one member of the Executive Committee and that he appoint two others to act with two appointed at a meeting recently held, and that in the meantime the organization be known as the Peterborough Industrial Association.

Moved by Mr. B. D. Hall, seconded by Mr. R. Fair that this gathering, well knowing the facilities and advantages in Peterborough for manufacturing industries and recognising that united effort will carry the city forward to greater prosperity and success, pledge ourselves individually and as a gathering to do all in our power at all times and to use every effort to advance the city's interests.

To Cut Kingston's Police Force in Two

Two Men Resign, Four More Will Be Dropped, Owing to Prohibition

KINGSTON, Feb. 27.—Kingston's police force is to be reduced as a result of the new Ontario Temperance Act, which has so decreased the work of the constables that the force could almost be cut in two. It happened that yesterday two policemen resigned, and their places will not be filled. Mayor Hughes will ask the Police Commission to cut off four more constables, and save the city $3,000.

1911 Recriprocity Measure Before The United Farmers

Examiner Special:

TORONTO, Feb. 27. — That the 1911 reciprocity agreement with the United States be entered into by the Dominion of Canada at once, and that other free trade laws be enacted—these will be propositions to come before the United Farmers of Ontario, representing ten thousand agriculturists of the province commencing their convention here to-morrow. Other big subjects affecting politics and production will also be discussed.

T. H. GRAHAM'S FARM STOCK SALE

Mr. T. H. Graham, of Lot 6, Concession 4, Township of Smith, will hold an important auction sale on his premises on Wednesday, March 7th, beginning at 12 o'clock. In the list there are several head of registered cattle, a lot of fat cattle, 12 young cows in calf, and a number of yearlings. Also a number of fine pigs and poultry. There are eleven good horses to be sold, together with a splendid lot of implements, waggons, sleighs, carriages, buggies, harness, etc.

CALLS UPON UNCLE SAM FOR REVENGE

LONDON, February 27.—A demand that the United States avenge his mother and sister's death in the sinking of the Laconia was made in a cable despatched to President Wilson to-day by Arthur Young Hoy. He requested the President to grant him permission to be the first volunteer in case an American citizen army was raised, and said otherwise he expected to enlist in the British army.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE WITH CHIEF RECRUITING OFFICER OF DISTRICT

Major Campbell Will Meet Members of Speakers' Patriotic League, Business Men and Other Citizens To-morrow Night---Interesting Letter From 93rd Boy---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Business men, members of the Speaker's Patriotic League and all citizens interested in recruiting are reminded of the meeting in the Reception Room of the Armouries to-morrow night which will be addressed by Major Campbell, chief recruiting officer for No. 3 military district. Major Campbell has a very important message of vital interest to the 247th battalion to make and there should be a large and representative gathering of Peterborough citizens to confer with the recruiting officer. Developments in military circles in this district may be expected and to-morrow night's meeting will have a very important bearing on the subject.

Among the Canadian officers mentioned in a cable yesterday as sailing for Canada appears the name of Maj. R. P. Watt of the 93rd Battalion.

Major C. R. Cameron, mentioned in the Gazette for good work in connection with the war is thought to be Major C. Ross Cameron, formerly of the 57th Regiment who went overseas with the 39th Battalion.

A. E. BRITTAIN, Lieut., Adj., 247th O. S. Battalion, C.E.F.

Mrs. Bradshaw, 187 Sherbrooke street has received the following most interesting letter from Corp. John H. Haw, of the 21st Canadians, formerly of the 93rd.

Somewhere in France,
Wednesday, Jan., 31, 1917

To Mrs. Bradshaw,
187 Sherbrooke St., Peterboro'.

Dear Friend,—Thanks very much for socks and packet of gum, which I received from you with the complements of Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club. There are several of the boys of the old 93rd in my battalion, besides myself. Some of them, like me, have already received a pair of socks each. I guess they will all write the friends, who sent them before long. The gifts from those at home are appreciated very much by the boys here and when we get anything from Peterborough it seems to draw you nearer home. Well our old Peterborough Battalion is all broke up now and we are all scattered in other Battalions; but whenever we meet we greet each other with 'Hello, the old 93rd.' Well the friends in Peterborough will be pleased to know that the boys are doing their part just as good as any of the others who left Canada before us. Some have already given up their lives for King and Country. I was quite near two of our boys when they fell in action. Pte. H. Hatcher and Pte. F. Birdgenan, they were killed by a shell, and were carried away back from the scene of action and laid to rest in a Soldier's cemetery by the side of many others who have fallen on the cause of liberty and freedom, and so we mourn their loss. I mention this because I thought that our wives and mothers and sisters and sweethearts would like to know something of the Peterborough boys, from a Peterborough boy, who is with them. My address is Corp. J. H. Haw, 21st Battalion, Canadians, France. In conclusion I will say that our Peterborough Battalion boys are just as cool under the fire of rifle and shell as any of the others I have seen here. I trust and pray that the great God and Father of us all, the King of Kings, will in His own good time bring about a lasting peace amongst the nations and that before long our Canadian boys may be returning home to the dear ones they left behind. Please convey my thanks to the Soldiers' Wives' and Mothers' Club of Peterborough for the noble work they are doing for the boys in the trenches. I must close with best wishes. Believe me,

Sincerely yours,
J. H. HAW.

Pte. T. Dagnall, who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion, and is now with the 6th Reserve Battalion at East Sandling Camp, wishes to thank the ladies of St. Johns' church for the parcels they sent to him.

Only One Necessity Says Hollweg "It Is Gain Victory"

Special to The Examiner.

BERLIN, via Sayville, Feb. 27. — Germany's peace conditions are based on "Reparation for all wrongs suffered, and guarantees for the existence and future to a strong Germany." Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg so outlined them in a speech before the Reichstag to-day.

"There is only one necessity of the day," he declared. "It dominates all questions of policy, both foreign and domestic. It is to fight and gain a victory."

ARMSTRONG WILL PLAY

It was announced this afternoon that Bobby Armstrong would in all probability be on the Peterborough line-up to-night. It had been feared that the star centre would be unable to take part owing to the injury he received in the Oshawa game.

Young Business Men Endorse Establishment Industrial Association

Renewed Enthusiasm at Citizens' Meeting Held Last Evening—His Worship Mayor Duffus Presided—Big List of Speakers.

THOSE PRESENT

The organizing committee of the Peterborough Industrial Association is now composed as follows:—

T. F. Matthews
W. H. Denham
Roland Denne
Reg. H. Turner
Mayor Duffus.

"We must be animated with the spirit of unity and take hold of the situation as it presents itself." — Mayor Duffus.

With the foregoing words, His Worship Mayor Duffus concluded an address that was given last evening in Hooper's Palm Parlours to a body of citizens, representing the younger element of the city. The meeting took the form of a banquet, supplementing the one held on Thursday evening last. In a very concise and practical address, the Mayor expressed his inability to meet a much larger body of citizens for obvious reasons. It would be impossible to get every citizen's opinion at such a meeting evening if the accommodation were available. Only a limited number could be accommodated under the circumstances. His Worship expressed the hope that the two meetings would not be without good results and the sentiment expressed would be spread broadcast.

The meeting opened with a toast to the King and was followed by the Mayor's address. That the Mayor's office is no sinecure was emphasized in a practical manner during the course of the meeting when His Worship was called to the telephone to hear a complaint about a man's garbage which had not been removed by the garbage collector.

Second Meeting.

His Worship explained that the second meeting was called to give another body of citizens an opportunity of expressing an opinion regarding present day conditions and future prospects. "We are passing through a very trying period," said Mayor Duffus. "It is not good business to wait until conditions get worse until we make some preparations to cope with them. When you take several hundred thousand men from constructive occupations and put them into destructive work you create an abnormal and serious situation. The city is now passing from a town into a city. It is the most serious time for the city, as we have to create an assessment on a city basis. From the standpoint of transportation we are well situated and with the completion of the Trent Canal will be in a better position than ever. To the north of us we have the Kawartha Lakes, together with many other natural attractions. The supply of power is as good and reasonable as can be secured anywhere, and we have to commend our parliamentary representatives for the efforts they have put forth to improve the power situation. The fact that we have no slum district makes it a very attractive city.

The Tax Rate.

For our present state of advancement we have to thank ex-Mayors Rush, Morrow, Bradburn and Buller,

EIGHTEEN KILLED IN COLLISION ON PENNSYLVANIA LINE

Mercantile Express Struck by Fast Freight Train While Stopped at a Station For Repairs—Pullman Telescoped

SEVERAL WOMEN VICTIMS

Examiner Special:

ALTONNA, Penna., Feb. 27.—Eighteen passengers were killed at Mount Union early to-day, when the Pennsylvania Railway's mercantile express was struck by a fast freight train. The Pullman car Bellwood was telescoped. The train had stopped at Mount Union for repairs to its brakes. The killed included several women and children.

Theda Bara At The Royal

In the Great Photo-play of "The Eternal Sapho"—And Beatrice Fairfax in "The Forbidden Room"

For Wednesday and Thursday of this week, the proprietor of the Royal offers a splendid bill for theatre-goers. The superb William Fox photo play, "The Eternal Sapho," with Theda Bara in the title role; also Beatrice Fairfax, in the Million Dollar serial, "The Forbidden Room"; and a number of sprightly comedies. These two great film stars will present fascinating parts which have attracted overflowing houses at Lowe's and Strand Theatres, Toronto.

EXTRACTS FROM SPEECHES MADE AT THE CITIZENS' MEETING LAST EVENING.

"It is not good business to wait until conditions get worse before we make some effort to cope with them."—Mayor Duffus.

"There is no more beautiful place in the world than the playground to the north of the city."—Mr. Breyfogle.

"I am glad to see we are going to have more adequate fire protection. We have been lacking in that respect for years."—Mr. Adam Hall.

"I am strongly in favour of radial railways and believe that a line to Stoney Lake would be an asset to the city."—Mr. Robert Fair.

"Efforts should be made to improve the market square, also the market "senate." Our parks should be linked up by good roads."—Mr. Kerr.

"One good thing the late lamented Board of Trade did and that was to get out some advertising."—Mr. Basil Hall, President of the Board.

"We did not improve the appearance of the main street of the city when we removed one half of the magnetite arc lights to other parts of the city."—Mr. R. H. Turner.

"Let us do something, even if we have to bring Billy Sunday here to help the work along."—Mr. C. R. Banks.

NEW BARBER.

Mr. Fred Parker has taken over the barber shop lately occupied by the late S. H. Baker. The shop is located at the corner of Water and Hunter streets, and is operated in connection with the Munro House. The business will be carried on by Mr. Parker on the same efficient and satisfactory basis as characterized the efforts of the late proprietor. 2d-40

THE DR. GRENFELL MISSION.

In last night's Examiner an appeal in respect of funds for the Grenfell mission was renewed. It appears that Peterborough is not up to the mark of last year's contributions for this splendid cause. The total contributions of $57 fall $153 dollars short of last year's gifts—$210.

This is regrettable for two reasons; one for the sake of the great work; the other for the good name of Peterborough for generosity to good works. It is admitted that the calls upon the means of the people have been many and large. Still we must remember that this is a time when the spirit of sacrifice must be indulged. We, in Peterborough, we in Canada know nothing of the sacrifices others are making, nor of the sufferings the many sacrifices involve. And the relief of human suffering, of our own fellow subjects, women and children, is a paramount duty. We know what sense of disturbance and sorrow an accident illness or misfortune to one of our own causes, and we deeply feel it with all the comforts of home and the help and healing readily accessible, medical skill and reasonable means can bring. What must be the sufferings in the miserable scattered homes along the Labrador coast, amidst the rigours of a winter such as we cannot know, when illness or accident comes. No doctor at hand, no kind and capable neighbours next door, and no means or appliances to deal with accident or disease. The suffering when the dread tuberculosis or other wasting, prostrating disease, seizes its victims is beyond description, and even beyond belief, to us with our comfortable homes, kind neighbours and nearby hospitals. It is suffering and deprivation like these that the Dr. Grenfell mission relieves to the extent of the means available. Dr. Grenfell himself, and his heroic co-labourers spend their lives in perpetual sacrifice, and it should incite keen self-communion, when we seek sleep in our comfortable beds, with all our loved ones sheltered, sound and safe, and suggest the thought, that a little of our surplus resource would be a part of the means to relieve an immense amount of suffering among the fisher folk of the Labrador coast. If we do not feel called upon to practically sympathise, as a Christian duty, the claims of patriotism, a paramount consideration these times, should be an added incentive. Every life we save, everybody we help keep robust, is another added to the roll of the best and hardiest sailors in the world, for our navies—to help in the fight against ruthless sea slaughter, and the triumph of the forces of evil. Nobody is urged to give contrary to conviction, but everybody is urged to take the situation to heart; and, if this is done thoughtfully and seriously, the call of duty will not be unheard or unheeded.

During the present week contributions may be left at the Examiner or Review offices or with Mrs. Jas. Wood, secretary, Post Office box 900. Don't let the good name of Peterborough suffer; don't let the families of the deep-sea fishermen suffer, either.

THE ROYAL CLOUDLAND CORPS.

Elsewhere on this page is found the text of an appeal which should go to the hearts, fire the imagination and enlist the zeal of red-blooded young Canadians. There is a splendid blend of patriotic service, romance of service, and romance of novelty in being preparatory contributors in the splendid fact of war in the clouds; war above the earth; in being a member of the crews, or even makers of the "aerial navies grappling in the central blue," that Tennyson half a century ago saw in prophetic dream, now terrifically fulfilled, even to raining "ghastly dew" upon sleeping camps and embattled hosts. This is an appeal to all that is strong and thrilling in the spirit of the young to take a part in such a service, even as that of mechanics and others, in the Royal Flying Corps in Canada, the daring "dicky-birds," as they are called, not only in the British Isles, but in every battle zone of Europe and Asia.

The National Service cards have unearthed and tabulated a host of mechanics and others from whom some 10,000 have been selected, from a score of trades and details of trades whose services are needed. Three thousand are demanded for this service, and there should be no difficulty in getting this number to offer in so attractive and unique a service, which offers opportunity of taking up flying, as well as mechanical work. The work is not hard and both ground and flying workers say it is more of a recreation than otherwise, and the standard of skill required is not very high—"any good mechanic that can hold down a job now may be assured that he will be accepted;" and the pay is good.

Here is a chance for many men who have been rejected for the infantry and other units. The medical requirements are not too exacting; even those rejected for minor defects will be accepted. There is no heavy marching, no kits to carry.

Here is a splendid chance for those not physically qualified for the sterner duties of trench fighting, to do their bit. This war has brought opportunity for everybody, both sexes, and every condition, to do service effective in its way—from the grand-dam, whose arms are her needles, to the men to operate a 15-inch gun; and such an alluring, novel, exciting and romantic service as that of the Royal Flying Corps, should find prompt devotees. The reader is referred to the article on this page—"An Alluring Appeal to National Service."

THE NEW BRUNSWICK BEBACLE.

The government of New Brunswick has, for the past five years, been riotously living; making ducks and drakes of provincial interests and political morality apparently to the cry—"After us the deluge." And the deluge has come and swept away the government and its works. In the general election of 1912, the Flemming Government swept the province, capturing enough seats to give them a majority of 46 in a House of 48, the Liberals electing only two members. The result of the voting on Saturday was to give the Liberals a majority of six, according to late returns. If, however, the Liberal majority is small, the result is a sweeping popular condemnation of political crookedness and a companion proof to the results in Manitoba and British Columbia that the people have had enough of the German methods of crookedness in the management of their political affairs.

The Examiner is not called upon to condemn a government that the people have condemned, nor detail the record of a government that called out this condemnation. In respect of that let a Conservative newspaper, the Quebec Chronicle, formulate the indictment upon which the people of New Brunswick returned a verdict of "guilty" on Saturday. It said a day or two before the election:

> The terrible revelations of official graft in New Brunswick are a disgrace not only to that province, but to all Canada. They almost completely destroy public confidence in the honesty of our public men, and unquestionably inspire grave doubts as to the possibility of ever securing anything like an upright administration of public affairs under our present system. Yet no administration ever came into office with more pious professions of high virtue and devotion to the public weal than did the Flemming government of New Brunswick. In the strength of these it literally swept the province at the last general election in 1912, only two members being returned to support the opposition.
> There is no longer the shadow of a doubt that loot was the object for which the men now in charge of the government of the sister province down by the sea sought office. Their conduct of public affairs was dishonest from the start, and today under their manipulation, no province in Canada has been so betrayed, so shamed and so degraded as New Brunswick by these same men, who have played in the most heartless manner upon the good faith, the loyalty and the patriotism of their people in order that they might scatter the contents of the treasury among themselves and their heelers.

When a journal of the same party as the long discredited and now demolished government of New Brunswick, thus speaks of its record, it is no surprise to see the people take the work of government house leaning into its own hands.

Such results, the sequence of a newly awakened public conscience, and a popular impatience of political crookedness, is a warning to other Canadian governments, Grit or Tory, to walk with more political and administrative circumspection. This war has been a terrible scourge, but its horrors have been almost worth while if they end the reign of corrupt political methods in Canada, that were eating, and in some respects are eating still, into the vitals of our national life. The war will end Kaiserism in Europe, and promises to end the very substantial similarorum of Kaiserism in Canadian political parties.

AN ALLURING APPEAL TO NATIONAL SERVICE IN THE CANADIAN ROYAL FLYING CORPS

Another call is now being made by the National Service Board, and owing to the attractiveness of the service to be rendered and the benefit that will accrue to those rendering it there is every likelihood of a quick and spontaneous response. The call is for the object of recruiting mechanics and others for the Royal Flying Corps in Canada—the daring "dicky-birds," as they are called, not only in the British Isles but on every battle-ground in Europe and Asia.

The National Service card records have been gone over and some 12,000 have been selected from among the following trades: Acetylene welders, blacksmits, carpenters, coppersmiths, motor cyclists, motor fitters, millwrights, sailmakers, (tailors), milling machinists, metal turners, motor drivers, electricians, engine fitters, motor cycle fitters, engineers, storemen, cooks, painters, tinsmiths, cabinet makers and vulcanizers, who have offered to "do their bit," and to whom will be sent booklets showing just what the Royal Flying Corps is, what their duties will be, rates of pay, etc. As only 3,000 men are needed for this branch of the service at once the call will be confined to the Eastern Provinces.

This service is not to work in machine shops in the cities nor for aerial work, but at the different flying corps camps and airdomes, where they will erect, re-build and repair machines, keeping them in running order for the pilots. There is of course nothing to stop a man that joins up from taking up flying if he desires to do so, and can pass the test.

In the flying service the percentage of non-commissioned officers is very high and promotion is rapid, while it also gives a splendid opportunity to men who up to the present have been prevented, either by physical disabilities or home ties, from taking part in national defence, who now have an opportunity to do yeoman service for Canada and the Empire.

After the war those who are members of this service will have gained such an experience in the transportation of the future that they will be in the position of the early electrical workers of a short decade ago, whose services became practically priceless as the use of electricity developed and who from workmen mechanics quickly jumped to foremen, superintendents, and managers of plants. No great stretch of the imagination is required to see airships carrying our mails and passengers in the near future, and it is the men who have had the advantage of the knowledge gained in the Royal Flying Corps who will be in the greatest demand to carry on this work at very high rates of remuneration.

The work is not hard. In fact, airmen both ground workers and flyers, say it is more of a recreation than otherwise and the standard of skill required is not exceedingly high. Any good mechanic that can hold down a job now may be assured that he will be accepted. The pay is good. Take for instance, the rank of a married sergeant. It is equal to an income of about $1300 a year, being based as follows: Pay, $14 per week, food and clothing equals $6 per week, separation allowance $5 per week, or $25 per week in all. The rates of pay for the different branches of the service are as follows: Unskilled men who enlist as 3rd class air mechanics, $1.10 per day; those who have some skill in their respective trades, enlist as 2nd class air mechanics, at $1.35 per day, and those who are first class mechanics in that class at $1.60 per day. Corporals get $1.70 per day, sergeants $2 per day, flight sergeants, $2.30 per day, and warrant officers, $2.80, and in each case when married $20 per month separation allowance, besides all clothing, food, medical attendance, etc. Promotions are quick in the air service, only depending on a man's skill and his ability to use it.

Men who have been rejected for the infantry and other units have here a splendid opportunity to serve their country, as the medical requirements are not by any means as stringent and even those that were turned down for flat feet, etc., are accepted, as there is no heavy marching to do or heavy kits to carry. Any man who can do a fair day's work in a shop can, by joining the Royal Flying Corps of Canada improve his health considerably as the work is not only light, but besides being interesting is a health builder, as those in the Royal Flying Corps have found. Men who have not received a National Service booklet or call card can apply for enlistment to the Chief Recruiting Officer in any Military District.

Clear the Track For Cleaning the Truck

Special to The Examiner,—

TORONTO, Feb. 26. — It looks as if race track gambling is going to occupy quite a bit of the attention of the legislature in the immediate future. Mr. Samuel Carter has put on the order paper two more sets of questions and these together with a previous question by the same member and a motion for a return b Mr. Wigle, Liberal member for South Essex, makes quite a programme.

Although nothing has been said publicly about the matter as yet, it is understood that the government feels disturbed.

Mr. Carter's most recent questions deal with the Hamilton Jockey Club, and the Ontario Jockey Club, the increases in their capital stocks and the relation of the increase to the war tax payable to the Dominion Government under the Federal Act of 1916. A sample of the questions is as follows:

"Is there an application pending before the government from the Hamilton Jockey Club to increase its capital stock so that each holder of a share for which $40 was paid will receive a certificate for $1,000 of new stock, or for an increase of capital stock for any purpose?"

"If any application is pending, is it the intention of the government to grant the application?"

Mr. Wigle, who comes from South Essex, in the vicinity of Windsor, is asking in regard to the Devonshire Race Track Company in that county. He wants copies of all correspondence between the government and the Devonshire Race Track Company, and in particular correspondence between J. T. White, Solicitor to the Department of the Provincial Treasurer, and Hon. Dr. Reaume.

Mr. Carter's other question asks how many questions have been issued to racing associations operating in Ontario since the year 1912.

CONVICT FOOLED PURSUING HOUNDS

MOULTRIE, Ga.—Warden J. B. Lamar, of this county, has no more patience with blood hounds. Here is the reason: H. D. Rogers, a prisoner, escaped from the chain gang.

Two bloodhounds were put on the fleeing man's trail. It was hot, and they followed it easily. When they found the convict he quickly made friends with the two dogs.

Rogers was then struck by a clever idea that resulted in his making good his escape. He decided that he would pretend he was a trusty in search of a prisoner that escaped, so he came boldly into the open and asked every person he met:

"Have you seen an escaping convict?"

So well did Rogers' bluff work that some of those he questioned thought he was a sort of assistant warden, despite the fact that he wore a "zebra" suit.

The prisoner finally reached a house where the family was away, and here he got a suit that was not quite so conspicuous. He took the dogs on with him.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, colour or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

THE UP-TO-DATE WOMAN

Veils are often worn upside down, in other words, with the plain side over the face.

Touches of embroidery or soutache are used to relieve the severity of the walking suits.

A pretty finish for the neck of a frock is to cut it around and then trim with a band of fur.

Tulle, especially the delicate, well-chosen hues, is particularly becoming to the complexion.

Pointed scallops finished with buttonhole stitch, make a very pretty finish for lingerie.

Plump women should be careful about wearing ruching; they will make themselves look plumper.

Silks are now woven in the designs of the old Paisley shawls, and they make beautiful blouses.

Young Business Men Endorse Establishment Industrial Association

together with the Councils that served under them. We have a good staff of city officials together with thorough, efficient municipal bodies such as the Utilities and City Trust Commissions, the Board of Education and others. Our rate of expansion has increased our debenture debt, with a consequent increase in the tax rate. Last year our tax rate was twenty-eight mills, including one mill for Provincial war tax, and seven-tenths of a mill for garbage collection. This year the rate will be the same plus any additions that must be added to meet new and unavoidable expenditures such as sixty thousand dollars for the Patriotic Fund, the sewage disposal plant and other public works. Having regard to all these conditions it was thought best to hold a meeting of citizens as a means of securing their co-operation and strengthening the hands of the City Council.

New Industries.

Mayor Duffus expressed the hope that the spirit of municipal management would broaden out, and should an emergency arise the city will be in a better and stronger position to meet it. The development of Peterborough can best be accomplished by the addition of new industries. That is one way of keeping the tax rate down and increasing the revenue. There are a great many men in Peterborough who are doing a great work, but there are no outstanding figures such as the late Senator Cox, who did so much for the city. "We must all hang together or we will hang separately," said the Mayor with emphasis. We must have more assistance from the members of parliament if we are to have a fair share of what's going."

Radial Railways.

Mayor Duffus referred to the proposed radial railway scheme which involves the acquirement of the Peterborough street railway. "The days of the steam roads is past," said Mayor Duffus. He instanced the case of three steam roads paralleling the lake front, with a consequent increase in rates and a minimum amount of business to each of the roads. "The members of parliament who allowed that should have their heads read," said the Mayor. "Such a condition is not the product of economy or good judgment, and for that reason we have got to have radial roads," he added.

Trent Canal.

The next speaker was Mr. W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the De Daval Dairy Supply Company. Mr. Breyfogle echoed the remarks of Mayor Duffus and among other things expressed the opinion that it was highly necessary to secure the completion of the Trent Canal. "By all means we should have radial railways," said the speaker. It has been predicted that the life of the steam roads is short and it should not be much of an undertaking to interest some one in the construction of a radial line south to Lake Ontario. The cost of such a line should not exceed one hundred and fifty thousand dollars."

Mr. Breyfogle cited a number of cases where the construction of radial lines had directly benefitted the communities through which they passed, resulting in a big gain in population. The speaker referred to the Kawartha Lakes to the north, which he characterized as a "playground." "There is no more beautiful place in the world" said Mr. Breyfogle. "The river drive is a beautiful thing and the matter of good roads is essential from an economic standpoint as well as pleasure."

Fire Department.

Mr. Breyfogle was glad to learn that the fire department was to be improved. He also suggested that steps be taken to improve the present radial railway inside the city. Difficulty was experienced in getting labour in some of the industries to the south of the city owing to the inadequate street railway service.

The speaker commented upon a movement that was inaugurated by ex-Alderman Edgar respecting sanitary plumbing. He thought it was one of the sanest things he had hear of in a long time. "If we are going to attract industries we have got to dress up," said Mr. Breyfogle. In other words Miss Peterborough is on view and when prospective manufacturers come to look her over, our city must be dressed up."

Head Office Here.

In introducing the next speaker, Mr. A. L. Young, Vice-President of Henry Hope & Sons of Canada, Mayor Duffus made the pleasing announcement that the head office of the company was to be moved from Toronto to Peterborough, where the factory is located. Mr. Young said that he was induced to come to Peterborough by the late Senator Cox. Following the embargo in the early part of the war, on certain commodities required by the company for manufacturing purposes, the Company turned its attention to manufacturing munitions. He was much interested in radial railways and said that the biggest things was to get more industries for the city. He was willing to lend his help and co-operation and tell any manufacturer why he came to Peterborough.

Fire Protection.

Mr. Adam Hall, of Adam Hall, Limited, manufacturer of metal products, was the next speaker. Mr. Hall remarked upon the inadequacy of the present fire fighting equipment and was glad to know that the Council contemplated improvements this year. He was of the opinion that a sub-station should be erected in the south ward, where a number of factories are located and that the east ward and the west ward should have more adequate fire protection. The firemen should be the best men available and should be well paid. Mr. Hall would like to see radial railways running north, south, east and west.

Tree Pruning.

Mr. Robert Fair endorsed all that was said by Mayor Duffus. He was strongly in favour of radial railways and hoped that the movement inaugurated by the Mayor would not be spasmodic but would continue throughout the year. Mr. H. O. Fisk, read an interesting paper on tree manager of the Utilities Commission, pruning, showing how shade trees could be cared for in a city despite the presence of pole lines. Trees should be trimmed up to a sufficient height so as not to interfere with the street lighting system. Such a condition had been obtained in other cities and the beauty of the shade trees preserved.

A Vision.

Mr. F. D. Kerr commended the Mayor for his efforts to advance the interests of the city. "These efforts should concern the future as well as the present," said Mr. Kerr. He told of a man who once visited the city and when asked what he thought of it, replied: "The Lord has done a lot for Peterborough." Mr. Kerr hoped to see the public parks improved and linked up by good roads. A high level bridge was needed on Hunter street so as to provide East City with a street railway service. A new city hall opposite Central Park on George street was a vision of the future, likewise an improved market square, including the market "senate." Mr. Kerr urged the citizens to back the Peterborough Fair a little more than they had done in the past. Permanent grounds should be provided for the Fair and the people urged to attend in large numbers. If fifteen thousand citizens took a day off and went to the Fair and fifteen thousand people came from the country, the Fair would have an attendance of thirty thousand people. It would be a small sacrifice for any one to make yet it would mean much to the city.

Mr. A. W. Cressman said that if one half of the suggestion proposed at the meeting were carried out the city would derive considerable benefit. He promised his support in all matters pertaining to the city's welfare.

Board of Trade.

That the Peterborough Board of Trade is a defunct institution, was admitted by the President, (Mr. Basil Hall. The latter told of the various attempts that had been made to revive the Board of Trade with diminishing results. The Board finally died, or as Ald. Dobbin remarked, it is a case of "suspended animation." Mr. Hall hoped that the meeting addressed by the Mayor would produce better results. "One good thing the Board of Trade did," said Mr. Hall, "was to get out some advertising. We didn't get out much, and what we did get out we didn't pay for." Mr. Hall was of the opinion that advertising would produce good results and submitted several examples of advertising as adopted in Hamilton, Regina and other places. He suggested that the Ottawa Town Planning Commission be asked to send a representative to Peterborough and that the city arrange to get out some advertising setting forth the possibilities of Peterborough.

Post Card Advertising.

Mr. R. H. Turner was the next speaker. He endorsed Mr. Breyfogle's suggestion for dressing up the city through the means of improved conditions such as sanitary plumbing and other measures that might be adopted to improve the general appearance of the city. Mr. Turner did not approve of the city's action in removing one half of the magnetite arc lights from the centre of the city. Peterborough was advertised as the "Electric City," and the removal of one half of the lights to other parts of the city tended to depreciate the value of the cognomen. The speaker condemned the indiscriminate manner of circulating picture post cards showing inferior views of the city.

MR. FRED L. ROY.

In supporting the proposal that gardening be undertaken in Peterborough on a broad scale this year, Mr. Fred Roy instanced what he had accomplished upon a small plot at his home. He called attention to the possibility of utilizing Victoria Heights, if a practicable method could be devised. The owners of the lots might themselves co-operate in the work or engage others to do it.

MR. W. A. HASLAM.

The value of a public body assisting the Council in the promotion of the city's interests, was illustrated by Mr. W. A. Haslam, in the accomplishments of the Board of Trade in the town of Windsor. The efforts of the Industrial Association in a similar direction, he believed, would be a decided asset to the city. Mr. Haslam incidentally drew attention to the public nuisance of wandering dogs which were allowed to roam the streets practically unrestricted. They were a disgrace to the city and a serious effort should be made to keep them in their proper places—the yards of their owners.

MR. FRANK WHITEHOUSE

Mr. Whitehouse dealt with the subject of advertising the city, that its advantages migh be widely circulated. The use of letters bearing on their exterior facts concerning the city might be used not only by the large companies in Peterborough, but also by the more modest local offices such as Mr. Whitehouse represented. In this way even the humblest concerns might contribute their bit. He strongly endorsed the proposal to secure the Agricultural Exhibition grounds upon an enduring basis.

MR. ROLAND DENNE

Referring to the work of the directors of the Agricultural Exhibition, Mr. R. Denne stated that in five years afer reorganizing, an overdraft had been paid off, a new grandstand erected and a balance of $1,200 remained. And only $500 had been received from the city. This was but an example of what might be effected under favourable conditions. Speaking of the Horticultural Society Mr. Denne stated probably with a feeling of envy that St. Thomas, with 7,000 of a population, boasted of practically every citizen as a member of their Horticultural Society. Peterborough has but 400 members. He supported the idea of a Parks Commission for the proper supervision of all the city's parks.

MR. G. O. CAMERON

Recalling the Board of Trade of revered memory Mr. G. O. Cameron stated that there had been certain jealousy between that body and the City Council which had militated against effective team work. He hoped that this would not reappear between the Industrial Association and he Council, and suggested that every member of the Council should be an ex-officio member of the Association. Mr. Cameron deprecated unreasonable criticism of the Council, which, he regarded as a "bunch of philanthropists working five nights a week and receiving nothing but abuse from the people in whose interests they laboured. "Don't spoon feed the city officials," he advised.

"If they don't make good get men who can. We should be able to go to the city Hall to information, and get a direct answer without waiting around for weeks for a report."

MR. JAMES HAMILTON.

Mr. Hamilton had joined the late lamented Board of Trade in a desire to further the city's interests. The war had upset the operations of that body. The Board had no money and couldn't get any. Members contributed with bad grace. He was just as eager now to assist in such endeavours and hoped there would be an opportunity for service in the Industrial Association.

MR. JOHN R. CORKERY.

The need of action in the present stage of the city's development was clearly presented by Mr. J. R. Corkry, Jr., who expressed the hope that something material would result from the several meetings. Some of the men present would be entrusted in the future with the city's destinies, hence it was advisable that they should begin to take an active interest in civic problems.

MR. C. R. BANKS.

"Let's do something, if we have to bring Billy Sunday here to help it along." was Mr. Banks' beginning, and with a touch of the famous preacher's vividness, he proceeded to touch the spots where the first applications of the new enthusiasm might be effectively tried out. Peterborough had in Mr. Ryerson Ritchie an expert in modern civic organization, and he might be glad to assist Peterborough. Mr. Banks endorsed the proposed banishment of roving dogs. He criticised past councils for permitting valuable stretches of the Otonabee water front to pass into the hands of the C.P.R. and added that western towns would reserve Little Lake for public boating, instead of allowing private corporations to monopolize it.

MR. R. H. PARSONS

City Engineer Parsons, speaking as a citizen, dealt with the city's assessment and taxes, remarking that since our assessment must be comparatively low it was evident that we did not consider our property as valuable as property in Stratford, for example. As a means of beautifying the city, Mr. Parsons suggested the narrowing of the roadways. A road of 25 feet would be sufficiently wide in the residential districts. Curbed boulevards would enhance the attractiveness of the streets and lessen the cost of maintenance of the road and would facilitate their maintenance in a neat and tidy condition. When citizens had complaints to make about matters under he care of the Engineering Department, Mr. Parsons requested that they be immediately referred to the Department without the circuitous procedure of writing to the newspapers. Finally he asked that the members of the Association call his attention to any deficiencies or danger spots that required attention.

MR. G. H. LOGIE

Mr. Logie remarked that the city's slogan might be properly altered to "Peterborough Possesses Actualities Unexcelled." His business had required him to live in quite a number of towns and from his experience had found Peterborough a splendid place to live in. Mr. Logie endorsed the proposals that had been put forward and hoped to see the Association realize a permanent success.

MR. S. R. ARMSTRONG.

At last Thursday night's meeting City Clerk Armstrong presented a succient statement and a wholly encouraging one, of the city's debenture debt, and municipal rate, comparing them with other cities in the Province. Last night he reviewed practically the same pleasing facts, and also sought the assistance of the gentlemen present in making Peterborough and its attractions more widely known.

MAJOR G. S. CAMERON, M.D.

Major Cameron expressed his accord with the proposals for renewed activity in endeavouring to secure industries for Peterborough, and suggested that the City Clerk should be given more time, money and freedom to pursue this work. The advertising of the city should be taken up in a scientific way and effort made to get in touch with manufacturers who may be considering new locations. Major Cameron intimated that as a taxpayer he would endorse to the fullest limit the securing of new industries and also the holding of those industries already located here.

MR. R. L. DOBBIN

The Superintendent of the Waterworks, Mr. R. L. Dobbin, stated that he had found in his visits to other cities that Peterborough had one of the best water systems in the country. It seemed too bad that with this splendid facility the Fire Department had not been brought to a higher state of efficiency, since it used the water pressure provided by the Water Works.

ALD. F. H. DOBBIN

Ald. F. H. Dobbin, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, was next called and the gathering caught a humorous aspect of their sequence. The son has charge of the water works, and the father is Chairman of the Fire Department Committee. Ald. Dobbin touched upon a number of topics, paying particular attention to the town planning act, which was held up by the outbreak of war. It would give a city broad powers over its streets, the planning of sub-divisions, the use of vacant lots and other authority that is now lacking.

MR. R. M. GLOVER.

Backyard gardening was urged by Mr. R. M. Glover, who stated that this question should be seriously considered this year. Production in every line was going to count in Canada, and in no branch would it be more important this year than in foodstuffs. The Examiner had arranged with the Department of Agriculture to send a competent man to Peterborough to give an address on gardening, and Mr. Glover hoped that the meeting would give a new interest and impetus to gardening this year. He endorsed the proposals to assist the Agricultural Exhibition and to extend the radial railway, and suggested a means by which the Trent Valley Canal guide books might be distributed where they would have a good effect.

MR. L. V. POTVIN.

Mr. Potvin suggested that the question of improving the mail service between Peterborough and Montreal should be taken up.

It requires three days for a letter posted here to reach Montreal. Mr. Potvin remarked that these meetings of the Mayor's should have the effect of arousing young men to consider matters of public interest.

CITY FATHERS HEARD.

Ald. Duncan and Langford made short addresses promising the Council's support to the Industrial Association and suggesting that there should be profit to the city in the association of the aldermen and citizens at conferences of this kind.

Mr. E. H. HOWSON

An idea presented by Mr. Howson was that in firms circularized by local manufacturers there might be included attractive pamphlets or booklets, dealing with the city. Mr. Howson promised to assist the new Association in any way presented to him.

MR. W. A. RICHARDSON

"We have a city worth advertising," said Mr. Richardson, who believed that Peterborough was getting a fair share of the industries coming into Canada. Certainly we were getting the cream of them. These firms came here not through any inducements held out to them, but largely because they felt that Peterborough was the best place in the world to locate in. The men who had promised to further the interests of the city were capable of accomplishing big results. "We can put over this stunt if the men will remember that they belong to the city rather than that the city belongs to them."

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Mr. Sam. Taylor welcomed the garden plot idea and discussed several other questions of interest. He referred to the discouraging fact that when a man paints his house or improves his lawn that it does not escape the assessor.

Mr. A. Weddell spoke on the topic of advertising the city by the use of envelopes bearing advertising formation of Peterborough's advantages.

Mr. H. J. McCannon referred to the fact that sub-divisions given the city had been opened up without considering the connection with city streets. The result was more or less confusion to traffic.

Mr. Dickson Davidson and Mr. E. Rodgers hoped for good results from the meeting, not only from the gentlemen present, but from the citizens generally.

Those Present.

The following citizens were present: Messrs. F. D. Kerr, A. Weddell, City Engineer Parsons, Denne, R. M. Glover, R. W. Breyfogle, A. L. Young, W. A. Robinson, J. H. Hamilton, L. A. Potvin, E. Howson, D. Davidson, G. H. Logie, A. W. Cressman, R. Fair, B. D. Hall, J. Corkery, A. E. Rodgers, R. Turner J. Picard, F. Whitehouse, O. Cameron, W. A. Haslam, F. H. O. Fisk, C. R. Banks, H. McCannon, Dr. G. S. Cameron, Adam Hall, W. G. Ferguson, and Ald. W. Langford.

Getting Out From Under

About 25 per cent of the Jobber's Coal purchased by us in January (to keep Peterborough from freezing up), is just now coming through the blockade, together with an increased supply of D. L. & W. Coal.

Believing that the extreme scarcity has been relieved by the weather and other conditions, we are placing a few hundred tons of the Jobber's Coal in our Murray Street Yard as a margin of safety, and will pass along the balance of this coal to Towns less fortunate than Peterborough, in order to "Get Out From Under" as much of the higher priced Jobber's Coal as would be reasonably safe.

This will enable us to Reduce the Price 25 cents on One Ton Lots of Hard Coal and will increase the percentage of D. L. & W. Coal to our customers. This price is effective on all orders dated February 27th.

To those who have been disappointed in getting their supply of Coal through their regular dealers, we will reserve 200 Tons of Hard Coal at our Murray Street Yards, which will be sold at $9.25 per Ton, without delivery.

Keeping Well During the Winter

Don't let your blood get thin this winter. For people who have a tendency towards anæmia—which means bloodlessness—winter is a most trying season. Lack of exercise and fresh air, being too constantly indoors, combine to lower the tone of the body, and deplete the blood of those elements necessary to vigor and good health. As soon as you notice the tired feeling, lack of appetite, and shortness of breath, that are the warning symptoms of poor blood, take a short treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Do not wait until the colour has entirely left your face, until your eyes become dull, and until you feel breathless after the least exertion. It is much easier to correct thinning of the blood in the early stages than later.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up and enrich the blood and strengthen and tone the nerves. In this way the general health is improved, the appetite is increased, digestion strengthened and new ambition and energy developed. Then work becomes easier because it does not cause exhaustion. You can keep your system at the highest efficiency by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the great blood builder and nerve tonic.

You can obtain these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50c a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Suit Of Rose Jersey is Named "Jeunesse"

This is one of the many New York Models our ready-to-wear buyer bought when in New York. The Paris creator of this new suit model has named it "Jeunesse" or "Youth." The jacket is fashioned with a yoke in the front and back below which the jacket is slightly gathered and is then softly held to the figure by one of the new "girdle" belts. The pockets and turn back cuffs are of the "eblouissant" type, flaring in outline, though caught to the garment at intervals in a new button trimmed pointed outline. You will see this model in our Ready-to-Wear Department in the course of 10 Days.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

Mrs. V. Eastwood, Sr. Died This Morning

Was the Oldest Member of Murray Street Baptist Church

Margaret Paul, relict of the late Vincent Eastwood, died this morning at the residence of her son, Mr. Vincent Eastwood, 610 George street.

Mrs. Eastwood was born in Berwick, England, 87 years ago. In 1832 her parents, John and Margaret Paul came to Canada to reside in Smith township, 4th concession on the farm on which her brother, Mr. Wm. Paul still resides. After her marriage, Mrs. Eastwood settled in Peterborough, where she has resided practically ever since. Mrs. Eastwood's life has always been a model of devoted motherhood and her untiring interest and practical help in all church and charitable works has endeared her to a wide circle of friends. She was at her death the oldest member of the Murray Street Church, and was one of the first members of the Gilmour Memorial Church, Smith township. Two sons, Mr. Vincent Eastwood, manager of the Royal Bank and Mr. J. P. Eastwood, Barrister, of Toronto survive; also a brother, William, and one sister, Mrs. David Eastwood, Riverton, Neb. A wide circle of relatives, including the Scott and Edmison families of Smith, also survive.

Her eldest son David, formerly of Smith, and afterwards of North Monaghan, died some four years ago.

The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. A short service, conducted by Rev. Mr. Webb, will be held at Mr. Eastwood's home at 2.30 before leaving for the Little Lake cemetery.

GOVERNMENT BADGES FOR DISCHARGED MEN

And For Rejected or Exempt—Penalty For Wearing or Selling Others

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.— The following memorandum was issued last night by the Minister of Militia:

"As a number of inquiries have appeared from time to time with reference to badges for discharged soldiers and men who have applied for service and been rejected for various reasons, in which it has been intimated that these badges were to be issued or sold by private organizations or concerns, it is considered desirable to point out that an order in Council has been prepared and will shortly be promulgated dealing with this whole subject. This order will provide for the free issue of official Government badges to all who are entitled to such by reason of being honourably discharged soldiers, or having been rejected for or exempted from service with the forces. The order will also provide that no persons other than those to whom badges have been duly issued shall wear any such badge, and it will be illegal to manufacture, sell, purchase or wear any other badges purporting to be for such purposes as provided for in the order in Council. Heavy penalties will be provided for infringments of the order."

ng Hit Writer Makes Hit That Leads To Wedding

dgson Grundy, who was born on day, christened on Tuesday, and n throughout the week to his fun- on Sunday, had nothing on Dr. Jones, dentist, of Bridgeport, who on last Thursday met Miss Owen, composer of "Daisies 't Tell," "Dreamy Eyes," and song hits whistled along Broad- several years ago.

ter the meeting on Thursday in York, Dr. Jones invited Miss n to a dance Friday night. On rday he proposed, on Sunday he was accepted and on Monday they were married at the Little Church Around the Corner, thereby cutting down Mr. Grundy's record by two days.

Friends of Dr. Jones were much surprised to receive news of his marriage, as it was known that he had only met Miss Owen last week.

"Love at first sight," was Dr. Jones' explanation. They will live at No. 203 Golden Hill street, in Bridgeport, upon their return from their wedding trip.

Returned Soldiers Not Eager To Take Up Agriculture

Prefer Vocational Training—Good Results Already Accomplished

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 23.—The need of greater accommodation for the vocational training work of the Military Hospitals Commission was emphasized by E. B. Kidner, the vocational secretary, who continued his evidence before the Parliamentary Committee this afternoon. There was a shortage in Winnipeg and also in Montreal, but arrangements now being made would meet the need of room, but in the event of heavy spring casualties there would be difficulty, especially in the matter of staffs. To some extent this would be remedied by utilizing the services of returned men being treated by the commission.

The commission planned extensive instructions in agriculture for returned soldiers.

1,500 TAKE TRAINING.

About fifteen hundred men had so far taken vocational training in different lines, and most of them had finished the course of instruction. Twelve thousand had passed through the Hospital Commission, on to their homes. Quebec had trained more men vocationally than any other province. It had turned out 513, as the institutions in Quebec were the first to enter on the work, aided by instructors from the provincial polytecnic schools.

Only about twenty soldiers had so far been afflicted with total blindness. These had been trained largely in England at the Pearson institution, but four had come back to Canada. This class was taught type writing, messaging and salesmanship, and instructed in small business undertakings. Broom and basket making were not favoured, as it did not carry the men very far.

CANADA IS THE VAN.

A number of specific cases of vocational re-education were given. One man was getting $112 a month as a station agent, while another, after a course in Montreal, increased his earnings from $3 to $6 per day. Canada was the first of the warring nations to evolve a definite plan in regard to the re-education of soldiers.

OBJECT TO FARMING.

"In your contact with returned soldiers, have you encountered objections to going to the land?" asked Mr. Pardee.

"Yes." By actual count of the first 348 men who returned to one province (Alberta) only six wanted to go to the land. Several who were farmers before wanted to go to the cities. There seems quite a tendency in that direction and the commission is endeavouring to discourage it."

Mr. Kidner said he personally had questioned fifty men and only one wanted to go on the land. Some, however, had intimated they would do so if they could get a farm in a pleasant valley and two or three thousand dollars in cash.

AN EXPLANATION.

Sir Herbert Ames accounted for this by the fact that the first men to come back were Britishers, who made up 80 per cent. of the first contingent. They had largely been recruited in the cities. The situation would be different now that rural and essentially Canadian battalions were coming back.

Unanimous For Woman's Suffrage

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 27. — Premier Hearst will make the pronouncement of the Government in favour of woman's suffrage in the Legisalture this afternoon in a speech of some length befitting the importance of the legislation affecting so important a constitutional change. As the Liberals have already declared themselves for woman's suffrage, the bill will, like the Ontario Temperance Act last session, be passed with a united Legislature behind it.

Ontario's Fire Loss $12,000,000 in 1916

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—Provincial Fire Marshall Heaton, addressing the Mutual Underwriters Association this afternoon made the rather startling statement that the fires in the Province of Ontario during the past year number over 8,900 with an aggregate loss of twelve million dollars. This, Mr. Heaton said, was the highest fire loss in the province in any year since the year of the great Toronto fire.

The Original He Meant.—The persevering landscape painter knew that he had an observer looking over his shoulder at the easel. He knew from the rustle of skirts that the observer was a woman; yet he worked steadily on. Presently the observer spoke. "A charming landscape," she said. "Ah, you flatter me," said the artist modestly. "Compared with the original landscape it is very poor stuff." "I meant the original," said the observer.

BOWLING NEWS

J. D. Fitzpatrick won last week's high score for three consecutive games, beating Cy. Bedgood by the small margin of 4 pins. His total score was 620.

On Thursday night the Grocers play an exhibition game with the Printers, who won the championship in the past league. An interesting game is expected, as the Grocers are bound to win.

The new league is expected to start the beginning of next week, as several teams have already entered. Any new teams wishing to enter kindly leave word at the bowling alley.

3rd Anniversary Leap Year Annex Event

To-Morrow, Wed., Feb. 28, 1917

Leap Year is but one in four, nevertheless, every year just at this time we hold an Anniversary of the Last Leap Year Event. This year we follow the usual custom of big offerings and we think that they are just a wee bit bigger than previous occasions and that is saying a great deal. The time limit sales are unusually attractive and they alone will amply repay you for your visit, but read carefully, there are others that have not been given the same prominence. The windows contain a formidable array of merchandise sharply reduced.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Permit us through your valuable daily to endeavour to correct the views of some of our valued fellow-citizens with regard to the "Protestant Benevolent Federation of Canada" to which we have the honour to belong.

We are united to promote those interests which we believe are for the benefit of protestants in general.

In this we only claim the same privilege as others having at heart different views, with whom we have no quarrels and towards whom we have the most kindly feeling.

We are not affiliated with, influenced by, nor connected to, any other body, club, society or organisation in the Universe.

We are non-partizan in politics, we find fault with no man's creed, we antagonize none.

We attach our application form, which you are at perfect liberty to publish. In fact for the sake of harmony, We beg your indulgence if you think the eight objects of our Federation would be of interest to some of your readers.

H. Johnston—President.
R. B. McGill—Secretary.

Application for membership in "Protestant Benevolent Federation of Canada"—its objects:

1st—The uniting together of all Protestants for mutual protection.

2nd—The maintenance of all principles relating to Protestantism.

3rd—To support candidates for Municipal, Provincial and Dominion Honours who will pledge themselves to support Protestant measures which may be brought before them for Legislative adjustment.

4th—Support of the National Public School System.

5th—To place in public offices as many Protestants as the pro rata of population entitles us to.

6th—To allow of no infringement of the Constitutional rights of the voter.

7th—To see that the Public School Supporters' Taxes are paid to the Public School Board.

8th—To maintain equal rights to all and special privileges to none, even ourselves.

DANGER, KEEP OUT!

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—With the approach of spring weather near at hand, may I, through your columns, draw the attention of the public generally, and our young friends of a roving disposition in particular, to the danger attendant on rambling among the ruins of the Quaker Oats Company's buildings.

The company has been very considerate in demolishing many dangerous walls, but the thawing out of enclosed ice may cause disintigration, and render walls unsafe that were quite reasonably safe when cemented up in this way.

Yours very truly,
W. H. PRETTY.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I am glad to see that both Canuck and Common Sense have come to the support of Mr. Burnham's idea re a contingent of women for service at this critical time, and that the public will not be led to believe that we are all such cats as one of your correspondents would make out. I hope the Government will accept Mr. Burnham's offer, and that we women will be organized for some work, even if it is not overseas. We women at this time are not blessed with the gift of "watchful waiting," but feel that the crisis demands that we should be doing something; so many of us have all our male relatives in khaki and it is deadly monotonous to sit at home doing nothing, when there is so much to be done. If the young men would do as they should do, if they had a particle of manhood left in them, the women could take their place; a woman could sell hardware and pots and pans as well or better than a man, because a woman's workshop is her kitchen, and she would know what sort of goods another woman would like, and the same in the men's outfitting does a man ever buy a sink that he doesn't ask his wife's opinion on, or if she likes his tie or the style of his hat. If they get the benefit of her taste second hand at home, why not first hand in the stores? I have made up my mind that I would not go into a store where there are eligible young men.

Last week, when shopping, I passed a good many stores until I found one with only one old man in, and he has his boys at the front. Where ever one looks they see young men having a good time who could enlist if they hadn't a streak of yellow in their composition. Men who stay at home and let married men with little children do their fighting for them, it makes one's blood boil to think we have such men in our midst; cravens who have not the pluck to fight for their God, their homes and native land. I was talking to a man the other day who went away, and he said I am sorry to go, in one sense; I should like to be here, if it ever comes time to take these single men; I should like to be one of the squad to go after them; I hope they get a big C. C. on their uniforms. I said, what does C.C. stand for, and he said: "Canadian Coward." So the single men will know what the married men think of them when they go off to do the work that the single men should do.

Miss Towers seems to think that a regiment of women would be difficult to handle. I don't think so; if it was composed of women who meant to accomplish what they set out to do; and once we set our hand to the plough there would be no turning back, and what we undertook to do we would do. I hope Mr. Burnham will see his way clear to organize the women for whatever work is needed, and I am sure the women of Peterborough will rally to his standard. I was a book-keeper for a number of years in the Royal borough, and in a place where we had the Royal Warrant and served Royalty. I was ledger clerk and kept the accounts of Queen Alexandra, the Duke and Duchess of York before they were King and Queen; also of Princess Charles of Denmark, who is now Queen of Norway, and was Princess Maud of Wales. I was second in an office of ten, and never had a junior refuse to take an order from me. I was also in a French House, where we hadn't a single man on the place. I did all the banking, paging of milliners and dressmakers and all the financial part of the business. The buyers, heads of departments were woman and saleslades and errand girls. There were nearly a hundred of us and for three years I never knew of any quarreling or unpleasantness of any kind, so that it doesn't follow at all that where a lot of women are together there are bound to be quarrels. I am willing to do anything I can to help in any way, and I don't think Mr Burnham need be afraid that if he gets the right kind of women together, like Canuck and Common Sense, we shall make good in whatever we undertake to do. Every male member of our family is in khaki, including husband, and when the men are away there is very little to do, and work would be better than killing time when there is so much to do. If we were only organized we would feel that we were of some use in the world and "doing our bit." Last winter I was in the country, our mail carrier was taken ill with the grippe; the eldest son, who would have taken his place was away. There was no one to take the mail a distance of fifteen miles each way, so his wife got up every morning at 4.30, watered and fed the team, attended to her house, and put everything ready for the day and left it in charge of a girl aged 14, (there were four younger), at 6 o'clock she hitched up and left the store where she got the mail and passengers at 6.30, sharp. This was January. That woman carried the mail, delivered bread and parcels over that route for three weeks a distance of thirty miles a day, and came in from an hour to an hour and a half better time than her husband made every day. As long as Canada has women like this, we do not need to be afraid that they can rise to any emergency when called upon and can put the men to shame. If the men won't enlist then the women will, and the men can retire to the kitchens and housework and keep the homes, while the women do the business of the day and attend to the affairs of the Empire. Woman is at last coming into her own. Never again will be told the home is our sphere; we have been tried and not found wanting in this crisis and when the time comes we will have as much right and more to the vote than the man who keeps a soft job and won't go out to defend their homes, their women and their country.

SOCKS FOR A COLONEL

By PATRICK MacGILL

"And ye mean to say that ye liked the Sassenach so much, said the old Shan Doherty looking intently at his son who was home on ten days' leave from the trenches. "Ye're tellin' me that there are no boys like them. It used to be another story at wan time" said Shan, "I mind hearin' ye say that ye wouldn't be bewuldin' to a black Sassenach for anything. 'Black Sassenach, thim was the words he used, wasn't it, Biddy?"

The soldier's mother, sitting on her hassog knitting a good pair of woollen socks, nodded her head. "But it's no harm in changin' one's mind at times, is it, Shan?" said the woman.

"If ye knew the boys out there ye wouldn't speak a word agin them," said young Doalty Doherty. "Ah! they're grand min. They sing and laugh in the trenches just the same as if they were at a dance or fair. They don't know what fear is and even if they do, they keep a good stiff lip in the wildest, red roaring emotions. I went into an English regiment because I was workin' in an English town and the recruitin' office was just round the corner. Ivery-body was jinin' up and I tuk it in me head to put on the red-coat and see fun and divilment whin it was goin'.

"'Twas thin I met Spudhole, him that ye're makin' thim socks for now, mother. He is a card. Me and him are always together; we share everything. What one has the other has. He'd give me the sugar out of his tea and I'd do the same for him. He's a little lump of a boy nineteen or twenty years old maybe, and he's always up to some trick or another.

"Ye should see him in the last charge we made. The regiment captured a village in the mornin' and some of us, bombers, went through it clearin' out snipers and others that were in hidin'. Well we were in one house and I went down to explore the cellar with bombs. When I came up I heard a man who was standing at the door say, 'What's up ith that fool out there?'

"Who," says I.

"'Come and see,' said the man at the door and I went over to him and I looked out. The sight took me breath away for there in the broad daylight out in the street was Spudhole with the smoke of a shell coilin' round his body. He looked round at me and I could see a smile on his face.

"Spudhole, you damned fool-" I shouted to him. "What are ye doin' there?"

"Yook! Yook! Yook!" he answered in a coaxing voice.

"Is it goin' mad ye are?" I called to him.

"Yook! Yook! Yook! was his only answer."

"A bullet will give you Yook Yook in a minute," I roared.

"Git under cover and don't be a fool."

"Yook! Yook!" he shouted again.

"Then a shell knocked a house about and out iv the smother iv dust and lime runs a long-necked black hen and flew down in our direction. Right in front iv us it stopped and wobbled its head from side to side as if it was thinkin' of things and not findin' them to its own advantage. Spudhole came racin' down the road.

"'Don't frighten it away!' he shouted. 'Don't make a noise. I want that hin; it's me own hin. I discovered it. Yook! Yook! Yook."

"He came over to the hen with cautious steps. It was now standin' on one leg, the other drawn up under its wing, its head to one side. It looked sorry for itself. 'Twas just like Spudhole when he squints down the neck of a rum-jar and finds the jar empty."

"'Not wan word now, said Spudhole fixing wan eye on me and notice on the hin. 'It's up to me to grab this cackler. I found it up there sittin' atop iv a dead Girman. Yook! Yook! That's what ye must say to a bloomin' fowl when ye want to nab it.'

"Just the same as we say here at home," said Mrs. Doherty turning the heel of the stocking.

"Well, Spudhole threw a crumb to the fowl," Doalty went on. "The hin picked it up, swallowed it and hopped off for a couple iv yards.

"It's a cliver hin," I said.

"'It's a damned cliver fraud,' says poor Spudhole. 'I have give it half of me iron rations.'

"Where's yer rifle?" I asked.

"'I left it in the trench" he answers. 'I only came out to look for sooveneers and this is the only sooveneer I've seen. Yook! Yook! I'll sooveneer ye, ye swine. Don't yer understand yer own language.'

"The hin made a noise in its throat just like a frog.

"'Ye may yuck- yuck!' Spudhole shouted. 'But I'll soon stop yer yuck! yuck! ye one legged von Kluck. Who has a rifle to spare?"

"I handed him me rifle and he laid down on the roadway, fired a shot and blew the hin's head clane off. But it was cool work; the shells blazing away at the village and the machine gun bullets whistlin' down the street, and there was old Spudhole thinkin' of nothin' but his sooveneer hin."

"He cooked the hin that night, and when he was fryin' it, bendin' down over the brasier in the trench, some wan shoved agin him and almost flung him into the fire.

"'Who the blurry hell is that shovin' about!' spluttered Spudhole rubbin' the smoke from his eyes and not lookin' round ahint him.

"'It's only yer blurry Colonel,' a voice made answer, and poor Spudhole turned round like a flash and saluted the C. O.

"'I'm sorry, Sor,' he said.

"'It's all right' said the C. O. 'If I was in yer place I might have said worse things than that'.

"We all like our C. O.," said Doalty Doherty. "But Spudhole's in love with him. He'd follow him to the gates of hell and further, and no wonder. No man could help likin' an officer like him."

"I've just come to the finish of the socks for Spudhole (Isn't it a foreign name?)" said Biddy Doherty. "They're well knit, but why wouldn't they? There's not a soul can handle needles like meself in the three parishes."

"Three for you, Biddy," said Shan.

"Well Doalty aroon, when you go back will ye ask the Curnel this," said Biddy. "He'll not take it amiss, I'm shure. Ask him will he take a pair of good woollen socks knit with me own two hands and wear thim in the cowld trinches. His feet must be feelin' the wet at times just like any other bouchals."

Doalty smothered a laugh.

"All right, mother," he said. "I'll tell him and I'm shure he'll be glad to wear thim."

Windsor Prisoner Has Five Wives and Forty-one Children

Soldier of Fortune Fought Under Late Lord Roberts

WANTS TO RETURN TO THE ARMY AND DO SOME MORE FIGHTING.

WINDSOR, Feb. 27—Valdo Schipo, a full-blooded Zulu, who says he is 61 years old, but looks not more than 35, appeared before Police Magistrate Leggett in police court charged with a violation of the Canadian immigration laws.

He told an interesting story, not the least part of which was a statement that he is the husband of five wives, and that 41 children, of various kinds and colours, call him "Daddy."

Schipo expressed surprise that the court should show signs of shock when he explained his numerous matrimonial entanglements, but assured the magistrate that his wives and progeny are still in South Africa.

As a soldier of fortune, the Zulu has fought for the British flag and beneath it for 28 years, he said, his most active participation being in the Boer war, where he served under Lord Roberts.

Schipo was brought into court because he had been in trouble with the authorities at Welland over a little stabbing affair, following which he had gone into the United States. His anxiety to mix up in the present war accounted for his returning to Canada, he said. The chances are that the man will be given the opportunity he craves.

Another Sort of D. C. M.—A miner who had enlisted at the outbreak of war wrote home some time ago that he had received a D.C.M. Two months later he was allowed home on sick leave. When he arrived at his native town the local band was waiting for him and he was taken by the Provost to an open air meeting. The Provost mounted the platform and said—"Ladies and gentlemen,—I am proud to say that one of our local men has received the Distinguished Conduct Medal." The minter, who looked perplexed, rose up and said—'Distinguished Conduct Medal? Why, it was a district court-martial I got for stealing a scraggy chicken."

French Crowd Welcomes Crew Of U. S. Steamer

Special to The Examiner.

BORDEAUX, France, Feb. 27.—Thirty thousand persons stood on the water front here to-day and cheered the American freight ship Orleans as she docked. The crew and officers of the boat were taken through the streets in a parade to the city hall. Later a lunch was given them.

Spring Thaw Made Work For Street Men

Yesterday's thaw developed more quickly than Commissioner Evans could find men to stem it. All over the city the water collected in the low spots which overflowed and generally presented the first evidences of a spring freshet. Gradually, however, many of the sewer approaches were opened up, and this morning the Commissioner was still hustling to drain other pools.

A WEAK HEART.

When the heart is weak or irregular in action, when the blood is thin and watery remember the blood forming qualities of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by its use flood the system with rich, red vitalizing blood. This is nature's way of curing weakness and disease. It is the only way to escape death from heart trouble.

Always At Home To Him.—The favoured suitor rang the door bell. "Is Miss Blank at home?" he inquired. "Oh, yes, sir," replied the maid, and she ushered him into the drawing room. Having waited for almost an hour he summoned the maid. "Did you forget to tell Miss Blank that I was here?" he asked impatiently. "No, sir," was the reply. "Miss Blank hasn't got home from shopping yet." "But you said she was at home." "Yes, sir. She told me positively that she was always at home to you."

GOOD ICE FOR TO-NIGHT'S BATTLE

amilton Team Arrived at Noon Confident of Winning the Round From the Soldiers—Record Crowd Will See the Game—Reserved Seats Sold Out.

The drop in the temperature today has made it possible to provide a good sheet of ice for to-night's semi-final battle between Hamilton and the 247th Battalion at Brock street rink, ensuring the fastest game of the season. The Hamilton team, with a dozen supporters, including Bob Parker, their president, and an old Peterborough boy, arrived at noon via C.P.R., and are staying at the Empress. They are confident of winning the round, if not to-night's game, and are at full strength. The Petes are facing the probability of starting the game without Bob Armstrong, who is still suffering from the effects of the toss he received in the game with Oshawa a week ago. The absence of the big centre man will be felt if he is unable to play. If Armstrong is off, Thornton will be used on the defence, and either Pat Flanagan or Grover Halpin at rover.

The biggest crowd of the season will be out. All the reserved seats were sold yesterday afternoon, and another block put on sale last night, disappeared just as rapidly.

Oscar Bernhardt will referee, and the game will be started at 8.15 o'clock with the teams lining up as follows:

Hamilton		247th
	Goal
Sloan		Legros
	Defence
Parker		Halpin
Reiso	P. Flanagan or Thornton	Rover
Coir	Evans or P. Flanagan	Centre
Reid	Armstrong or Evans	Right Wing
Boyd		Adams
	Left Wing
McEwen		A. Flanagan

The fans are notified that no smoking will be permitted at to-night's game. With a huge crowd in the rink it is hard enough for the players to breathe freely, without the added handicap of a smoke cloud in the air, so that the fans can help by foregoing the pleasure of a smoke until it is all over.

HAMS HAVE PLENTY OF CONFIDENCE IN THE ABILITY OF THEIR TEAM

The Hamilton Herald says:

Hamilton Hockey club's great effort on Friday night last against London's 118th battalion team, and their chances of annexing the intermediate O.H.A. championship are the chief topics in sporting circles. This is the best showing a Hamilton team has made in the intermediate ranks for many years, and their movements are being watched with intense interest.

To-morrow night they go to Peterborough for the first game of the semi-final round with the 247th battalion. If they survive the clashes with Petes they will stack up against Kitchener in the final.

The boys all came out of Friday night's game in good shape and will be in their best form for the very important meeting with the representatives of Bob Parker's home town. There may be a little difficulty experienced securing leave for Grant McEwen, but if this is not met with the team will line up the same as against London.

Down Peterborough way interest in the game to-morrow night is arousing more interest than any other sporting attraction in recent years. The Easterners think quite highly of their team and have a large sized bank roll to back up their belief. When Peterborough and Oshawa met in a third-round game last week, Oshawa grabbed a four-goal lead in Oshawa, and the Soldiers went back to Peterborough and won by 7 to 0; that's the class of team that H.H.C. must hook up with, but evidence of the fact that the H. H. C. officials have plenty of confidence in their team is given by the sending of $200 on Saturday to Peterborough to be wagered on the round.

Peterborough or any other intermediate club in the O.H.A ranks will find Hamilton a mighty hard team to defeat on any ice. As long as the red and white crew sticks to its knitting and checks back as it has been doing all winter there need be no alarm in the camp. The team is strong offensively and defensively and the team that stops the Hams will have to step faster than at any previous time in its hisory. This, of course, is based on the form shown by the locals on Friday night last.

A change has been made in the plans of the locals regarding their trip down east. They have now decided to travel on the C.P.R., leaving here to-morrow morning at 7.35, and reaching Peterborough about 11.40. On the return journey they will leave Peterborough on Wednesday morning at 4.58, arriving in Hamilton at 9.13.

Music & Drama

"HIS HEART'S DESIRE."

Ever popular Fiske O'Hara, actor and singer returned to the Grand and the hearts of his legion of Peterborough friends last night when he scored a triumph in his new play, "His Heart's Desire," one of the most delightful vehicles in which he has ever appeared in Peterborough. No role has suited him better than that of Sir Harry O'Neill, in which he added new laurels to those already won here. His charming personality, cheerful smile and easy manner made his work most pleasing and won all hearts, while his singing was as delightful as ever. Four new songs, "Don't Forget to Kiss the Blarney stone," "How the Fairies Came to Ireland," "Heart's Desire," and "Molly Mine," each one a gem, were sung in his inimitable manner and the audience demanded many encores which were cheerfully given. A splendidly balanced company gave the star the best of support and the scenic investiture and costumes were equal to the fine work of Mr. O'Hara and his associates. The plot was one that provided some excellent situations and some very enjoyable comedy and altogether "His Heart's Desire" was a treat. The audience, one of the largest of the season, was a striking tribute to Mr. O'Hara's popularity. Special mention should be made of the work of the augumented orchestra and the violin and cello soloes that formed part of the entre act music.

"The Crown Is More Absolute Than Under The Stuarts" Said Mr. Burnham in Hopwood Case

The petition of Wm. J. Hopwood before the Exchequer Court yesterday for $150 damages to his island at Chemong was concluded about five o'clock. Mr. Justice Audette stated that he would write out his judgment. When the evidence presented by the suppliant was completed, Mr. G. W. Hatton, counsel for the Crown, without calling any witnesses for the defence, moved for a non suit on the following grounds:

The petition as filed and in its amended form did not show a cause of action.

That there were no facts alleged.

No specific claim was made, no dates given showing at what time of the year or month during the year the said damage, if any, was done.

There was no evidence that the damage was done on the waters known as the Trent Valley Canal waters, a public work within the meaning of the R. S. C.

It was not alleged nor was there any evidence that the claim arose out of damages done to property on any public work resulting from the negligence of any officer or servant of the Crown while acting within the scope of his duties or employment, see Sec. 20, Sub-Sec. "C" Exchequer Court Act.

There was no evidence that the Suppliant was the owner of and had title to Block "C" the property referred to in his Petition of Right at the time the alleged damage took place namely in 1912.

Mr. Burnham argued that the water was part of the public work and the Hopwood land was thereby on a public work within the meaning of the Act.

Judge Audette referred to the judgment in Olmstead vs. the King, in which a claim for damages to property on the Rideau river and 12 miles from a public work was disallowed. In Mr. Hopwood's case his island was 25 miles from the Buckhorn dam.

"Am I to understand then," asked Mr. Burnham, appearing for Mr. Hopwood, "that there is no redress for persons whose property has been damaged in this way?"

His Lordship replied with a gesture of finality that he had not made the law. It was his duty only to interpret it.

Mr. Burnham replied that the suppliant was out of court and apparently there was no way of him getting into court. If there was no way of getting at the Crown, logically the suppliant was shut out.

Referring to the phrase, "on a public work," Mr. Burnham said of the laws and their administrators that it was assumed they would be governed by common sense.

His Lordship admitted the limitations of the statute and added that not long ago he had given judgment in favour of a petitioner in a similar case, but the Supreme Court reversed it. He implied that he was therefore following the statutes strictly within its meaning, and guided by his experience in similar cases.

"The Crown is more absolute than under the Stuarts," commented Mr. Burnham. If the Statute means that damage must emanate directly on, and not indirectly from, a public work, there is no possibility of obtaining compensation."

Mr. Burnham remarked after the adjournment that in the event of the petition being refused he would put forth a strong endeavour to have the limiting sub-section of the Act made more comprehensive.

Not Concerned With Motives.

Mr. Burnham called W. Fraser, claims agent, and Mr. A. L. Kilally, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, to show the motives that had prompted a settlement with Mr. Blewett, owner of a saw mill at Buckhorn.

Judge Audette supported Mr. Hatton's contention that the Court was not concerned with motives in a former case.

"We must deal with the case on its own merits," said His Lordship.

Romance of a Robin

A Cat Catastrophe, a Lady's Rescue and a Robin's Recognizance

We think of the sight of the first robin as an event in the course of a long, dreary winter—as bringing a hint of a warmer country; but Peterborough has a robin that has not only stayed with us all winter, but has showed a sense of gratitude and fidelity to a friend that we don't always find in that noble animal, called man.

Mrs. John McAuley, 394 London street, had the experience. Last fall a cat—"drat the cat" as Sairey Gimp would say—brought a robin it had captured into the house. It had not been seriously hurt. Mrs. McAuley startled the cat into dropping the bird, and she performed the Good Samaritan act, pouring oil and wine into its wounds; in other words, took care of the robin, and later, gave it its liberty. Since that time the bird has returned regularly every day for its meals, and it was on hand yesterday for the usual supply. What's the use of cats, any way? They don't deserve their reputation for mousing or they wouldn't spend the golden hours of summer sneaking and snatching and eating our beautiful birds. Cats on this continent destroy millions of birds that would destroy, if they are let, billions of grubs, and worms, and insects that take toll of millions of our fruit and other crops. A cat's a sneak at the best; no greater insult can be given a woman than to call her "a cat," especially "an old cat." A bird is a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

INFANT MORTALITY WILL INCREASE.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 23.—The Berlin Vorwaerts anticipates an increase in infant mortality this year, as compared with 1916, as a consequence of the rise in the price of milk from 32 to 44 pfennigs a liter.

SONG OF THE SOCK

Strapping young man, speaks: "No one could expect us married men to leave our homes and go into the trenches, but we are doing our bit all the same. Why, my wife has knitted more than 20 pairs of soldiers' socks already."

With her pretty face set in a frown,
With her fingers as stiff as a rock,
A woman sat in a silken gown
Knitting a soldier's sock.
Knit, knit, knit, from weary chime to chime;
Knit, knit, knit, as a convict works for crime;
Bridge has no charm for her now,
Let the picture-show go "by the board,"
She is trying to do with her knitting pins
What her hubby should do with his sword.
Oh, boys in the trenches out there,
Fighting to save our lives,
'Tis not only socks you are wearing out,
It's the slackers' loyal wives.

Becky, in Brantford Expositor.

MILE-LONG PETITION FOR SUNDAY PAPERS

100,000 Signatures on Border Appeal to Legislature.

WINDSOR, Feb. 27.—Within a week or ten days it is expected that the Provincial Government will receive a petition one mile in length and bearing signatures of one hundred thousand persons, from all along the Canadian border, asking that the sale of Sunday newspapers in Ontario be permitted, and that the Lord's Day Act be amended so as to permit this.

St. Thomas, Tilbury, Ford, Walkerville, Sandwich, Belle River, Tecumseh and Amherstburg are all enlisted in the fight to secure the Sunday papers.

REV. MR. POGUE'S ADDRESS ON THE SUBJECT OF REPENTANCE

"We Must Change Our Minds About the Church"—We Cannot Be Saved Outside the Church of Christ," Said Mr. Pogue

Speaking to his congregation in St. Paul's church Sunday, on "Repentance," the Rev. Robt. Pogue said that a great many people never stopped to think of God. The majority, if they stopped to think at all, thought of him as a loving and tender father—or perhaps more nearly as a large-hearted mother, whose sympathy for her children was so great that she would not punish them for their sins. They thought of Him as an indulgent parent, and went about doing very much as they pleased, thinking that it would all work out agreeably some day, and that when the time came for punishment, God, in His love, would relent. This idea was altogether false. God was not so pure that he could not discern iniquity. He was infinitely just and we have it promised in the Bible that "God's wrath abideth upon men because of sin." He was so holy and righteous that He has said that if men shut Him out from their lives He will cast them into eternal darkness.

Rev. Mr. Pogue took as the text for his sermon, the 37th and 38th verses of the 2nd chapter of Acts, which read: "Now when they heard this they were pricked in their heart and said unto Peter and to the rest of the Apostles, men and brethren, what shall we do?

"Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost."

It was frequently asserted that the doctrine of repentance did not receive the same emphasis by the preachers to-day that it did in former days. The speaker did not think it could be said truthfully against the pulpit of St. Paul's church. It was not necessary to use the word repentance to preach about this doctrine. But from the numerous assertions, and from the tone of religious books just off the press, it was evident that there was a tendency in this direction. In fact we have very little doctrinal preaching to-day. In regard to a doctrinal sermon one shrewd layman who adhorred the lack of positiveness in the sermon, had said that the sermon was something like this:

"Now brethren, you must repent, as it were; be converted, in a measure; or go to hell, so to speak."

This was an exaggerated illustration, said the pastor, of the efforts of some ministers not to offend any in their congregation.

Note of Repentance.

This note of repentance had been sounded by John the Baptist, the forerunner of our Lord. It had been the theme of his preaching, and Christ began His ministry in the same way—by the doctrine of repentance. Among His very first sentences were the sayings: "The time is fulfilled, the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye and believe the Gospel," and "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." And Peter, at the very beginning of the spread and rule of the Gospel answered the people, saying, "Repent and be baptised every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." And so, all through the Gospels, the note of repentance was one of the dominant notes.

"I still believe," said Rev. Mr. Pogue, "that that is the preaching God will bless." The voice of the minister should be as a voice positive, militant, triumphant, the voice of one crying in the wilderness, "Repent! Repent!"

A Translation.

The Greek preposition, explained Mr. Pogue, which had been translated by "in" the text, also might bear the translation of "depending on." Thus the text would read, "Repent and be baptized every one of you, depending on the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Here we have the doctrine of repentance and faith. Those two doctrines which were inseparable throughout the new testament. Will repentance alone save you? No. Not without faith in Jesus Christ for the remission of sins.

The Greek words which were translated by "repent," meant a change of mind" and "sorrow for sins." Both these ideas must be included when we speak of repentance. The change of mind comes when a man begins to think differently of God, of sin, of life and of Jesus Christ. This change of mind was what Peter meant when he addressed this audience of Jesus. These Jews, many of them, had seen Jesus in the flesh and had cried Hosannah as He rode triumphant into Jerusalem, and in all probability had cried with others on the dread day of the Crucifixion, "Away with Him! Away with Him! Crucify Him! Crucify Him!" Peter was saying to them, "You rejected Him, now accept Him. You despised Him, now honour Him. You did not believe in Him; now depend on Him." He was urging upon them a change of mind.

We must change out minds about God, sin, life, the way of salvation, Jesus Christ and His church. God was not an indulgent Father. He was infinitely just and would administer just punishment. We should acknowledge His Lordship and bow to His authority.

Missing the Mark.

Sin is the transgressing of the Holy Laws of God, missing the mark in regard to the aim and end of life. We cannot live in sin and be at one with God. We must confess our sin and get rid of it. We must change our minds about life. "Life is God's gift to be used for Him and for His glory." We must get rid of the idea that our life is our own to be squandered as we please in selfishness or pleasure.

Concluding, the speaker said we must change our mind about the church. We cannot be saved outside of the Church of Christ, in the sense that the church meant the confession of Christ. Jesus says, "Whosoever is ashamed of me, I will be ashamed of him, by and by." We need repentance, faith in Christ, and confession of our faith.

A Cool Reply.—Two young men were remitted to the Sheriff from St. Rollox Police Court, Glasgow, recently, on a charge of alleged housebreaking. They are said to have entered the house of a workman jus tafter he had left at 6 a.m. On his return at breakfast hour he found the accused there. "What are you doing here?" he asked. "Oh," replied one of the accused, "your house has been broken into, and the police have left us in charge until they come back." The complainer summoned the police, who arrested the accused.

Retreat May Lead To Open Warfare

Von Hindenburg Is Known to Dislike Trench Tactics

GENEVA, Feb. 28.— Although the withdrawal of German forces in the Ancre region may signify merely the abandonment of a tactically unfavourable project of the German lines at this point, another explanation is suggested by Americans who have come to Switzerland recently after a long stay in Berlin. It is that the German retirement may perhaps be the regrouping of the Teutonic forces in the west, with the intention of bringing on a decisive open field engagement to settle the fate of the war.

At the time of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's appointment to the chief command last year, when the correspondent was in Berlin, there was much discussion of a question, the answer to which may be given by the developments of the next few days. They announced the field marshal's plans for concluding the war and particularly the possibility of some daring strategy to bring the opposing armies out of the trenches and substitute for trench warfare the "warfare of motion," which Von Hindenburg favours. This was considered in German military circles to have various advantages for the German army, whose great number of veteran professional officers and long-service men were trained and disciplined for open field fighting in the years of drill and manoeuvres before the war.

G. T. P. WILL STAY IN ALASKAN TRADE.

Steamships Will Link Canada's Most Northerly Transcontinental With Alaska and Yukon.

MONTREAL, Feb. 24th. — Grand Trunk Pacific officials announce that the inauguration of their service to Alaska has been attended with such success that its continuance has been decided upon for 1917.

The route through Canada to Alaska and the Yukon offers so many advantages that there is an increasing demand from travellers in the United States, whence the big bulk of this travel comes for particulars of the Dominion's transcontinental facilities. Last year marked the first entry of the Grand Trunk Pacific into the Alaskan business and with the Western terminal of that line situated only a few miles below the Alaskan boundary, this new gateway to the Northland became popular immediately. The steamships of the Company, the "Prince George" and "Prince Rupert," will therefore be employed on the Alaskan voyages again this summer. Skagway, which had a world-wide fame during the Klondike gold rush of '97, is the northern port of call on this route, the Grand Trunk Pacific vessels linking up the most northerly of America's transcontinental railways with the White Pass and Yukon line which enjoys the distinction of being the "farthest north" of the World's railways now in operation. This line has a mileage of one hundred and ten miles, ending at White Horse on the Yukon River.

Over Half A Million Women Are Enfranchised By Ontario Government

Sir William Hearst Speaks to Mr. Johnson's Bill Changing "Man" to "Person" in Manhood Suffrage Act—Women Voters Might Outvote Men Owing to the War—Couldn't Declare a Blockade.

RESULT OF THE BILL

TORONTO, February 28.—Over half a million women are enfranchised by the Woman's Suffrage measure of the Ontario Government.

When the members of the Legislature assembled in the legislative chamber yesterday afternoon, they found on their desks a small bouquet of yellow daffodils, placed there by the Woman's Suffrage Association. Attached to the daffodils was the note: "Will you wear our colours and vote for the enfranchisement of women?"

This was the prelude to the big debate on woman's suffrage.

Two hundred women's earnest faces peered down from the Speaker's and public galleries. The ladies were radiant in anticipation of favourable action in the direction of the immediate acceptance of a measure extending to them equal voting privileges with men in Provincial and municipal elections.

J. W. Johnson, Conservative M.P.P., West Hastings, in making the second reading of the bill for the enfranchisement of women said: "The time had come when the women of Ontario should have a right to decide who should rule the affairs of this Province. The tide of public opinion was strong in the direction of woman suffrage. It was now almost irresistible. He preferred to give the movement the more dignified name of womanhood suffrage as the term women's suffrage was not complete enough in its meaning."

CHANGE "MAN" TO "PERSON."

Mr. Johnson explained that he proposed enfranchisement of women should be brought about by a simple change of a word in the Manhood Suffrage Act to make the word "man" where it occurred in the Act read "person." "A simple stroke of the pen will do it," remarked Mr. Johnson. "And bring about this great and important step in legislation."

Mr. Johnson expressed the belief that women with the right to vote, would exercise a great influence upon the public life of the Province. They would, he believed, help keep in force the temperance legislation of last session from which such great benefits had been derived.

"I would not want to see the bar restored in this Province if it was within my power," said Mr. Johnson. "I say this as one who a year ago was not so convinced of the wisdom of adopting the Ontario Temperance Act, but I am now convinced that this legislature in passing that Act, had done the wisest thing possible.

"If in Great Britain women were called to the Councils of the nation, surely in Ontario we could extend to the women the ballot.

"We will take the patient by the hand and seize the skirts of happy chance," exclaimed Mr. Johnson amid laughter. Concluding he asked the Government to get behind his bill and place it upon the statutes of the Province.

MIGHT OUTVOTE MEN.

Sir William Hearst said that the proposed bill was of the utmost importance to the country and the Province generally.

"The result of the bill, if it becomes law, will bring about tremendous changes in the constitution of this Province, and no doubt will very strongly affect the political life of this country. Just what advantage or what disadvantage will accrue from such a measure, I cannot say. If the bill passes as it stands it will possibly more than double the strength of the voting power of the Province."

According to the 1911 census, there were in Ontario 1,229,290 males and 1,223,894 females. Of these over 20 years of age there were 802,136 males and 742,221 females. This balance would be increased to some extent unfavourably for males on account of the war, so that it was probable that the women would be able to outvote the present electorate on a particular question, about which all of one or the other sex were divided. That is a contingency that is very improbable, but I am only giving it as an example of the great change suggested by this bill. I don't, however, expect a strong line of cleavage. I am inclined to think that votes for women will not accomplish all or nearly all that enthusiasts claim for it."

For First Time Women Will Drive London Mail Carts

LONDON, Feb. 28. — To-morrow, for the first time, four women Royal Mail van drivers will be sworn in at the general post office. For some time the London mail contractors have been short of drivers of horse vans and horsekeepers at the stables. In nine days, 609 horse services failed, which meant that the mail was unduly delayed. In one case, incoming foreign mail had to lie on the railroad platform for 12 hours. The dearth of men is due to the claims of the military service and competition of better jobs.

ARE TEACHING THE WOMEN.

The woman driver must be something of a whip before she will be passed. Wm. Marsh, well known at Tattersalls, who taught most of the members of the Coaching Club, and Linford Palmer, animal painter, two of the finest whips in the coaching world, are teaching the women to drive. No woman will be passed until these critics are satisfied. A number of the sportswomen have applied for the posts.

SAME WAGES AS MEN.

Women will be paid the same wages as men, the rate having been settled by the post office. For a week of 89 hours, 30 shillings will be paid the driver of a one horse van and 32 shillings to the driver of a pair. A uniform of navy serge piped with red, the G.P.O. cypher on the shoulder and cap, will be supplied by the post office. A new whip and gloves will also be given.

The woman will be expected to sign for six months. With a view of training them, their initial duties will be to drive the mail vans between big railway terminals and the district offices. Work will begin at 4 a.m., ending at 4 p.m. Arrangements will be made with hotels for drivers near the stables.

THE HORSE TOILET.

On Saturday women grooms were to be seen hard at work on horses' toilet in stables where electric hair brushing is in operation. The most troublesome mare in the stables puts down her head and gives a whinny of pleasure when the power driven brush is passed over her back. The women grooms wear Bedford cord breeches and leggings, linen coats, and the traditional groom's caps pulled down over their hair. All that are used to horses groom 120 a day. They receive 33 shillings a week at the beginning.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Meinerzhe says he can take any of these cases and cure any one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found these 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are soothed by the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

Declares President Wilson's Action Unprecedented

German Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg is Peeved at Uncle Sam—Says His Method Was Very Brusque—An Heirloom From Frederick the Great.

SAYS ALLIES WERE RUDE

BERLIN, via Sayville, February 28.—German Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg told the German Reichstag yesterday that President Wilson's action in breaking off relations with Germany was "unprecedented." He characterized the method by which America terminated friendly intercourse as "brusque." He drew a parallel between President Wilson's course in the Mexican imbroglio of 1913, and the German situation after the start of the war.

The Chancellor called attention to President Wilson's notification to Congress in 1913 that he would "follow international usage," and put an embargo on shipment of arms to both factions in Mexico. But a year later, the Chancellor said, "these usages apparently were no more considered good." Hollweg dilated on the "countless" war materials shipped from America to Germany's enemies.

The Chancellor referred to America's insistance upon right of American citizens freely to travel to France and England, but he declared "the same right of American citizens toward the central powers did not seem to be as worthy of protection and as valuable."

The Chancellor found fault with the abruptness of Gerard's recall, and complained he did not yet know officially why America had broken off relations.

SAYS ALLIES WERE RUDE.

After dealing briefly with the problem of the inner, or domestic policy, the Chancellor recalled his last speech to the Reichstag, in which he announced the central powers' peace offer to the allies. "Their answer," he continued, "was more rude and presumptious than any sensible person in our country or in neutral countries could have imagined. The effect produced by this document of barbarian hatred and of fear is manifest to the whole world. Our alliances and our front stand firmer and the German nation is more united and none the less resolute than ever."

The Chancellor then turned his discussion to the establishment of the barred zones around England, France and Italy, and to the answers received from neutrals to the communication by the Central powers. "We by no means under-value the difficulties caused neutral shipping," he said, "and we therefore try to alleviate them as much as possible. For this purpose we made an attempt to supply neutral States within the boundaries of our sea forces with materials needed by them, like coal and iron. But we also know that all these difficulties after all are only caused by England's tyranny of the seas. We will and shall break this enslavement of all non-English trade.

MEET WISHES HALF WAY.

"We must meet half-way all wishes of neutrals that can be complied with. But in our endeavour to do so, whenever we can we will, except we cannot go beyond the limits imposed upon use by our irrevocable decision to reach the aim of the establishment of the barred zone.

WILSON "BRUSQUE" ACTION.

"One step further than the European neutrals has been made by the United States of America. President Wilson, after receiving our note of Jan. 31, brusquely broke off relations with us. Authentic communication about the reasons which were given for his step have not reached me. The former United States Ambassador here in Berlin only communicated by spoken word to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in breaking off relations, and asked for passports. This form of breaking relations between great nations living in peace, is probably without precedent in history."

"For more than a century friendly relations between Germany and America have been carefully promoted. We honour them—as Bismarck once put it, as an heirloom from Frederick the Great. Both countries benefitted by it, both giving and taking. Since the beginning of the war things have changed on the other side of the waters. Old principles were overthrown. On Aug. 27, 1913, during the Mexican trouble, President Wilson, in a solemn message to Congress, declared that he intended to follow the best usage of international law by the prohibition of the supplying of arms to both Mexican parties at war against each other. One year later, 1914, these usages were apparently no more considered good. Countless war material has been supplied by America to the entente, and while the right of American citizens to travel without hindrance to the entente countries, and the right to trade without hindrance with France, England — even through the midst of the battlefield of Europe, for which we had to pay with German blood—while all these rights were jealously guarded, the same right of American citizens toward the central powers did not seem to be as worthy of protection, and as valuable."

TO CONVERT SEVEN GIANT SHIPS INTO FOOD CARRIERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—From the reports in shipping circles it is evident that Great Britain, in conjunction with France, had decided to take quick action on the warning given by Mr. Lloyd George with regard to the German submarine menace. The rumor that seven gigantic passenger steamships, which are building or have been engaged in transatlantic service, will be converted into freight ships and carry foodstuffs from this port to England and France is fairly well substantiated. Armed and remodelled, these great vessels would give the Allies 300,000 more gross tonnage to be utilised for taking necessities to England and France.

The seven vessels to be converted for this work are the Statendam, the Olympic, the Mauretania, the Aquitania, the Belgenland, the France and the Paris.

The Statendam is a vessel of 35,000 tons and was being built in England for the Holland-America line at the beginning of the war. She was taken over by the British Government and used as an auxiliary cruiser and transport.

The Olympic, of the White Star Line is of 46,000 tons. She has great speed and for many months has been used by the British Government in transporting troops from Canada to England.

The Mauretania, of the Cunard Line, sister ship of the Lusitania and holder of the transatlantic speed record between New York and Liverpool, is of 33,000 tons. At the beginning of the war she was taken over by the British Government and was used at the Dardanelles as both transport and hospital ship.

LARGEST CUNARD LINE SHIP

The Mauretania, of the Cunard Line, is the largest and latest of the fleet. She has been in this port but twice. She has served the British Government as a transport and hospital ship. She is of 45,000 tons.

At the beginning of the war the Belgenland had just been completed for the Red Star Line. She is of 33,000 tons and has been used for transport and hospital use.

The France is the finest steamship of the French Line and the largest vessel flying the tricolor. She is of 33,000 tons. The Paris is the latest of the French Line boats, and is being finished at St. Zazaire. While her tonnage is not known, she is a larger vessel than the France.

The average speed of these vessels is twenty-two knots. This gives them an advantage over all submarines, with the proper amount of watchfulness. Any of these ships could outrun the under water boats, but it was unofficially stated that they will not have to care for themselves in the danger zones, as a heavy convoy of destroyers will accompany them on all trips east and west. Some time ago it was rumored that these vessels would be converted into food and munition carriers, but nothing was done. Yesterday, in the face of the statement of Lloyd George, it was felt in shipping circles that action would be taken in this direction immediately.

Capture of Kut Is of More Than Local Importance

Victory Must Entirely Change the Turkish Position in Mesopotamia

LONDON, Feb. 28.— Continuing his statement on the capture of Kut-el-Amara, Earl Curzon, in the House of Lords, said it was obvious from General Maude's telegram that the scene of operations had shifted from the Kut to a point considerably up the river, and the success announced yesterday was being continued and pursued. He believed the total number of prisoners was several thousand, but he had not the exact figures.

Regarding a question as to the degree of confidence these events might inspire in the future, Lord Curzon remarked that he should like to wait a little before answering it clearly.

"The slur upon our arms—if that might be the phrase applicable — caused by the events of last year," continued Earl Curzon, "is entirely wiped out. The position unsuccessfully held by our troops and subsequently by the Turks has been wrested from them, and a series of engagements which has taken place, and which has carried the fighting more than 12 or 15 miles west of Kut, constitutes more than merely local events, and must alter, if not entirely transform, the Turkish position in Mesopotamia."

Little Son Was A Pitiful Sight

With Ringworm Which Turned to Eczema. Just One Mass. Cuticura Completely Healed.

"My little son, three years old, took ringworm on his left arm, and he scratched it so that it turned to eczema. It then spread to his back, chest, arms, legs and head. It was just one mass of corruption and it made my heart ache to see him scratch; he would just tear himself. He was a pitiful sight.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. BOTCHKISS

The officer turned away. "Haul out the gang plank!" he shouted above the thunder of escaping steam, and the next instant the heavy bridge swung clear of the deck. Not until then did Wentworth become fully conscious of what he had done. Even at that time he could have gained the pier head by a vigorous jump, but he did not attempt it. It was a decidedly undreamed situation for the young man. It seemed to him that his act had been directed by some power outside of himself; indeed, so dazed was he by his own unexpected determination, a determination having no recognised relation to a previous mental state, that he stood where the officer left him until the steamer had drawn well away from its berth. Even when he had fully realised what he had done, how unprepared for the situation he was, and how probably useless to himself or to the girl would be his quixotic attitude, he did not regret his act. Neither did he consider of his wisdom or foolishness. It did not take a deep analysis to discover why he had thrown himself into a path which he knew well enough might easily become dangerous—would certainly become so the moment he showed himself to the man to whom he was a threat and an open enemy.

Wentworth had no definite plan but he knew that to make his purpose on board anything more than an absurd farce a plan must be laid. The primary object, he thought, was to be the means of capturing his father's murderer; the secondary object, to follow and protect the lady, who but a few hours before he had mentally cursed as a false siren. However, be his design what it might, he recognised the fact that he must not have his presence known to Bagshot or to Planet until he had fixed upon some mode of procedure against them. He must obtain a room and conceal himself, and with a last despairing look at the now deserted pier, and up the street, he turned and made his way to the purser's office. A moment or two later he came to the hurried conclusion that he had been guided by the goddess of Good Fortune.

As he entered the small room, having met no one on his way there, a man was busy at the desk, but it was not the weak faced clerk, he was absent. As the door opened and closed the man looked up.

"Do you wish to see me?"

"If you are the purser."

"Yes, sir, and—why, hello Wentworth! It is Wentworth, is it not? I didn't know you were with us!"

Wentworth looked at the man in surprise, then the light of recognition came to him. "Van Buskirk, by all that's holy!" he exclaimed, grasping the outstretched hand. "What are you doing here?"

"Purser here," said the other. "Went to Texas two years ago, you know. Knocked around hopeless for a spell, then through a pull fastened on to this job. Been here a year. I am glad to see one of the old class. How do you come to be aboard? Your name is not on my list."

"I know it; that is why I happened in. The Lord has delievered me into your hands! It is a streak of luck! Get me somewhere where I will not be seen until I have a talk with you."

The purser frowned. "You not seen! What's the matter? Male or female?"

"You are still the same kind of an ass you always were in college, Van," said Wentworth, good naturedly. "The matter is serious but not yet tragic. Do as I ask you. I'll tell you about it later."

The purser looked closely at his old classmate, and saw that there was something more than banter in the demand. Without further words he opened a door. "Go right into my room," he said. "I'll be with you when I get a breath of freedom from this business."

Wentworth entered at once. The purser, laying a hand on his friend's "Lord!" he ejaculated, as he sat down again. "Wentworth doing a dodge!—Wentworth—of all men!"

But two hours later he had heard his old college mate's story, or as much of it as the young man thought advisable to give him. Of the murder of his father he made no mention confining himself to the theft of the paper, though he did not tell its character. In fact he made his presence appear to be the result of a chivalrous impulse inasmuch as he allowed it to be inferred that he was acting more in behalf of Grace Merridale than for himself.

"What I wish," he said finally, "is to keep concealed from Bagshot and Planet; not that I fear them, but it would put the lady in a bad position, and make her efforts useless if they knew we had anything in common. I wish their arrest."

"Naturally—but how will you accomplish it?"

"You are fixed with wireless. It's the law, I believe."

"Yes."

"Then, perhaps messages can be sent from here to the New York police, and an order returned authorising the captain to hold the criminal. You see——"

"My dear fellow, it is you who don't see," interrupted the impressed purser, laying a hand on his friend's knee. "No question or message goes to or from this vessel without the captain's knowledge. And Shearpole? Not on your life, John! You say you have no warrant; then you are crippled. Captain Shearpole and Bagshot are as thick as thieves. They were at sea together years ago, when Bagshot did the act I'm doing, aboard this Lone Star. He always goes and comes this way with Shearpole. No, Jack, you won't catch him that way; the captain would be more likely to block your game than block Bagshot's. Your man, Bunsen, don't know you are on board? Don't even know for certain that Bagshot is?"

"I suppose not—unless he gets the list. He knows nothing of my being here, that is certain."

"Ah! And not finding you he'll be likely to let the matter drop, as you will appear to him to have done! Let me think." The purser rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "I don't see a hole out!" he usually said. "If you telegraph the police the captain must know of your being on board; then the whole ship would know, and you would be in the soup. Bagshot will hatch up a story. Shearpole will raise the dickens—and how will you come out? It's an easy conundrum. I would advise you to let wireless alone, Jack."

"You are a Job's comforter, for sure, Van."

"Well, not altogether, I think. It is more than likely that Bunsen will telegraph orders to Galveston and have your friend nabbled when he steps ashore. That would be better than warning them ahead of time. There are more or relations between the police forces of the two cities, while the captain of a ship is an uncertain quantity."

"That's a fairly brilliant idea," said Wentworth. He had been depressed by the outlook, but the purser's suggestion appeared logical.

"And it is necessary that you keep out of sight; I see that," continued Van Buskirk, cheerfully. "All I can do for you is to give you a room. Of course you pay your passage—you are are not a stowaway. If you haven't the money I'll let you have it."

"Thanks, I have sufficient."

"All right! You can play sick; be an invalid, you know, and I'll see that your meals are served in the stateroom. At night, you can go out for air and exercise. I'll share my clothes with you, we being about the same size, and in a uniform cap I do not think they would catch on to you if they saw you, especially in the evening. I dare do no more than this; I don't wish to be ruined. At Galveston you can consult with the authorities. Shall I let the lady know that you are aboard?"

"No," returned Wentworth, "I believe that I can manage that when I am ready."

"I'll warant it for a million," returned the other, laughing and thrusting his tongue into his cheek. "Come—I'll get you settled away from Bagshot, and then send you in some clothes and some supper. You must be nearly starved. I know I am."

While Wentworth in the secrecy of his cabin, was eating his first meal on board the Lone Star, he had one source of satisfaction and one hope: First, that he would see the girl again and mark the surprised pleasure on her face; and, second, that the astute Bunsen when he arrived at pier and found the steamer gone, would telegraph to Galveston and have the criminals arrested on their landing. It was bright of Van Buskirk to have foreseen that—but then, Van had always been bright enough and faithful to his friends. He should be rewarded.

And, on landing, he, the outraged Wentworth, would be on hand as a witness and identifier. He knew that unindicted criminals were often caught by means of the telegraph, though just how it would be in Bagshot's case he could not feel certain; but he would be there; and he now that that it was well that he had obeyed the impulse to remain aboard.

He sat back in satisfaction, and, taking out a cigar, sent its smoke to tangle among his dreams of the future, not knowing that almost across the now heaving vessel in her cabin Grace Merridale was also dreaming dreams not so roseate.

Neither did he know that at the very moment he was thus heartening himself Bunsen was lying in a hospital in a dazed and half-conscious condition. That individual had hurriedly closed the taxicab door on Wentworth, giving his card to the chauffeur, rushed into the court house and up the long stairway two steps at a time on his way to the office of the district attorney. Once there he knew how to make the wheels run rapidly for himself.

As he reached the head of the broad stairs the green baise doors of the hall were dashed open and a hurrying messenger drove into him at full speed, knocking him backward and together the two had rolled down the steps.

The messenger was not badly injurred but Bunsen lay unconscious and was at once hurried to the Hudson street hospital. The fates were not yet ready to smile on Mr. John Wentworth.

CHAPTER XII.
A CLIMAX.

That evening, clad in dark clothes, and with a yachting cap borrowed from the purser, John went on deck. He had hoped and expected that at least he would have a sight of Miss Merridale, but in this he was disappointed; a strong wind was blowing from the south, and the ship, driving into it, gave the air the force of a whole gale. It was very damp, too, and the deck so unpleasant as to be almost deserted; to the young man it was evident that the girl preferred the comfort and the solitude of her stateroom.

But he faced the strong wind, striding up and down and thinking of the consternation caused by his sudden and unexplained absence from his studio. Neither Harper nor Thomas could have any knowledge of his whereabouts, or even of his safety; and it would be impracticable to communicate with either in less than a week. Bunsen, he thought, would be bright enough to understand his absence, but the others might be possessed by the idea of foul play, and so arouse the police to action.

"A fine mess I've made of the whole thing, from the beginning up to date! he muttered to himself, halting in his walk and rewrapping the leaf of his cigar, which was glowing in the wind, as though it would burst into flame. As he did so, and saw the uselessness of smoking in such a rush of air, a figure emerged from the shadow of a sheltered nook and accosted him.

"May I beg a little fire, sir? One can't light a match in this cursed draft."

With a glance Wentworth recognised the man.

It was Bagshot. There was no mistaking his figure, his Southern accent, or the quality of his voice,, although the gloom was too deep to allow more than the outline of the features to be seen. John did not start. He knew that his own identity was not suspected, and without speaking he tendered his half-consumed cigar.

But he watched the face of the other as it was faintly illumined by the fitful glow of the fire. It was hard and ugly and there was a two days' growth of gray stubble on the square chin, while the lines under the small gray eyes were dark. It was the countenance of a tired and a worried man.

The cigar was returned with a gruff "Thanks" and with a stiff bend of the body, and Bagshot went back to his shelter. Without a return of the salutation Wentworth threw the remains of the cigar over the rail, and to avoid the appearance of sudden retreat he took two or three more turns up and down the deck, his eye open for Planet. But Planet was not in sight. Wentworth returned to his quarters and for a moment was tempted to do a foolish thing; find and force the door of Bagshot's stateroom, and search it for the red paper; but when he stopped and considered that the Mexican might be there, and that in all probability his enemy carried the precious document on his person, he saw both the uselessness and danger of such an attempt.

The following two days were stormy and so boisterous that the deck was untenantable. Night and day Wentworth remained in his room, lonely, save for the infrequent visits of the purser, and beset by ennui and discouragement, though he was not seasick, being too hardened a yachtsman for that weakness.

The fourth night out was ideal. The sea had gone down and the soft, warm wind bore a hint of the tropics the vessel was approaching. There was no moon, but the stars were bright, their light glinting from the tops of the burnished swells, though barely illuminating the black sea. It was a night for romance and adventure, a night for music and languor—for love and lovers.

Hot, impatient of himself and thoroughly disgruntled with life and these from a cause he had not attempted to analyze, Wentworth went on deck as soon as it became fairly dark. The change of weather and the steadiness of the ship had brought nearly every passenger from below, and Wentworth had not made half the tour of the deck when he saw the subject of most of his thoughts sitting on the starboard side, near the main stairway, and at some distance from the chattering group of convalescents. The girl was alone, her head resting on one hand as she reclined in a steamer-chair. In the reflected light from the saloon her face showed very pale, while both attitude and expression spoke of lowness of spirits. She did not notice the tall young fellow who passed her, nor did he attempt to attract her attention; just then he dared not; he first wished to see if the coast was clear.

Wentworth did not find Bagshot or his henchman, though he looked sharply as he went around the deck. By then he was keyed up, though he held himself at apparent poise, and as he completed the round of his vessel's deck, he flung away the remains of his cigar and approached the lady.

"Miss Merridale."

At the sound of her name uttered by a stranger the girl looked up quickly, then she leaned forward, her lips parted, her eyes very wide. She might have sat for a model of Consternation. Wentworth was at her side in an instant.

"Pardon me. I was inconsiderate to startle you so," he said softly. She turned and looked at him, her eyes glowing, her hands clasped over her bosom.

"You! You! What are you doing here!" The voice was barely above a whisper.

"I hardly know, myself," said Wentworth, attempting a light laugh. "Only I am here. At the last minute my spirit protested. I could not leave you alone. I—I—stayed to help you."

"I—I—am glad that I did not know it. I should have forbidden you."

"Why?"

"Not that I do not appreciate what you do for me. You were good to think of me,—but you will only make matters worse! Mr. Wentworth, you must not stay here, by me. He is coming up in a moment. Don't let him see you! Think of what might happen!"

"I feel reasonably secure for the present; it is for you that I am anxious. Is there anything new?"

"Nothing. I have been sick in body and heart. Oh, do go."

"How is our mutual friend and admirer, Jose?"

PIMPLES and BOIL
ALL OVER FACE AND BODY

When the blood becomes impure you will find that pimples and boils will break out all over the body, and although they are not dangerous trouble, they make you appear unsightly both to your friends and yourself.

Burdock Blood Bitters will cleanse the blood of all the impurities and poisons which cause the skin to break out in these eruptions.

Miss Sylvia Swanson, Theodore, Sask., writes: "I am letting you know what great value your B.B.B. has been to me. A year ago I started to grow pale and weak, the cause being bad blood. I got so many pimples and boils all over my face and body that I would not let strangers see me, and I used to avoid company. I tried many remedies but all seemed a failure. I read about how good your B.B.B. had been to thousands of people so I got a bottle and after I had finished the second one my pimples and boils had all disappeared. People thought it a miracle how well I looked.

"Your grand old remedy sure has been as good as gold and better, to me".

Burdock Blood Bitters has been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Company, Limited, Toronto, Ont. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

SAYS BODY IS A POISON FACTORY

Urges Everyone to drink glass of hot water before breakfast.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before eating breakfast each morning drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the thirty feet of bowels the previous day's accumulation of poisons and toxins and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache colds biliousness constipation others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.

Remember inside bathing is more important than outside bathing, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood causing poor health, while the bowel pores do. Just as soap and hot water cleanses sweetens and freshens the skin so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Farmer's Son

His Father and Mother Stood by Him With Parental Affection

By GREGORY MOORE

They say that doctors and clergymen see more of humanity as it is than any other class of men, but I question if the endless panorama of incidents typifying the different phases of human life is witnessed by any class that every day passes before bankers. Sometimes whole stories are enacted before us spread over a term of years. I am the repository of one such story that I watched from its beginning to its climax.

One afternoon a weather beaten old farmer with silky white hair scattered over his head came to my desk and, pulling out a wallet, asked for a draft on Denver for $200 in favor of Thomas Williams. He counted out the money, and then, having nothing to do while the draft was being prepared, began to tell me the beginning of this story.

"I'm sendin' the money," he said, "to my boy out in Colorado. He went out there a year ago, takin' some money with him that I give him, but he hasn't had much luck, and it's all gone. First he got sick; then when he got well he went prospectin' and struck somepin that looked good, but some other fellers jumped his claim, whatever that means, and took it all away from him.

"Then Tom got sick ag'in and went to a horsepittle and stayed there three months. Now he's got out of the horsepittle and lookin' about for somepin. I'm sendin' this money to give him a chance. Tom's his mother's pet, and she lays awake nights worryin' about him. I'm mighty fond of the boy myself somehow.

"When he got old enough to work I wanted him to help me on the farm. He tried it for awhile, but I see purty quick he didn't take to it. He was too smart to be contented to follow a plow same 'a his father, who didn't never get no eddication. So I says to him one day: 'Tommy, reckon you'd better go to the city and work that a-way. This don't suit you.' He was mighty well pleased at that. It almost broke ma's heart to part with him, but she knowed it was better for him and let him go.

"Tom didn't like it in town so well as he thought he would. Leastaways he didn't stay long in the place he went into. They must 'a thought a heap of him, though, for they raised his salary twice, so he wrote me. But he got into a fight with one of the head clerks and got himself discharged. He said the head clerk accused him of stealin' some money.

"Tom was allus an ambitious little chap, and after leavin' his place he concluded he'd go west and try and do somepin big, for ma and me agin we got too old to work. So we scraped up $500 and give it to him, and he"—

At this moment a clerk laid the farmer's draft on my desk, and the first chapter of his story was finished, for he began to count over his soiled and torn bills, now and again wetting his thumb on his lip as he turned them up. Then, leaving them to me and carefully folding his draft, he put it in his wallet, crammed the wallet down into the bottom of his pocket and with a "Goodby, Mr. Cashier," left the bank.

The second chapter of the story is very short. There is hardly enough in it to make a chapter, but there is a good deal beneath the few words required to tell it. A girl of eighteen came to the bank, laid down $24, nearly all in silver coin, and asked for a draft to cover the amount.

"To whom will you have it made payable?" I asked.

"Tom Williams," in a soft voice, almost a whisper.

I ordered the draft made out, and the girl stood waiting. Unlike the farmer, she didn't tell all I would have liked to know, so I asked:

"Is Tom Williams your brother?"

"No," she replied, looking down on the floor.

I had not liked the indications as to Tom's character as they appeared in his father's account of him, and now that money was going to him from his sweetheart I began to despise him. I handed the girl the draft and had a good opportunity to study her, for she never once looked up at me. She went out with it hugged up against her heart, as though she loved it because she had saved it for Tom.

My next visitor in behalf of Tom was his mother. She stood by my desk emptying on it from a carpetbag a lot of bills and silver and copper coins. Not knowing who she was, I asked what I should do with the money, and she said, "Send it to Tom." By this time I was not likely to forget Tom and asked if she wished a draft for Thomas Williams. She said she did. I turned her funds over to a clerk to count, and he reported that they amounted to $643.47. I ordered the draft to be made out, placed a chair before the old lady and said, with a view to my enlightenment:

"Mr. Williams pretty busy nowadays?"

"No, pa ain't busy. He's sick. I wish we had our boy here to help us. He's out in Colorado perspectin'. He says he's struck a mine or a-goin' to strike a mine or somepin and wants some money for grubstakin' or somepin like that. We're sendin' him all we kin jest now, but hope to send him sor more bime by. We had some money saved up for old age, but we've been a-drawin' on it for Tom, and this is all there is left."

When she went out with her draft I found myself boiling with indignation at this worthless scamp who was sucking the lifeblood out of his old father and mother—even his sweetheart.

There was a visit from the sweetheart after this to ask for a draft of $18.50, which convinced me that Tom had accepted the last amount she had sent him. Then one day the old farmer came in pale and trembling, evidently just out of a sickbed, with the check of a mortgage company for $1,000. He asked for a draft in exchange for it payable to this vampire of a son. We bankers make it a rule to mind our own business, but I had reached a point where I could no longer refrain from warning this poor old man.

"So you have mortgaged your farm to send money to your son?" I said.

"Yes; Tom's in powerful need of money. The mine he thought was goin' to turn out so fine petered out. He says it closed up as he went down instead of openin'."

"And you lost all the money you sent him for the development?"

"Yes, we lost it," replied the old man, with a tremulous voice.

"Aren't you afraid you'll lose this too?"

"I dunno. Tom's got another mine. He says he's sure o' this."

"Of course it's no business of mine, but I don't like to see you, an old man, mortgaging your farm to send money to a son who should be giving you money instead of you giving it to him. Suppose you can't pay the interest on the mortgage when it is due. You will lose your farm."

The old man stood wiping his face with a bandanna handkerchief, the picture of misery.

"I know what yer mean," he said, "but ma she won't keep back anything the boy wants. She never did. I always told her she'd spoil him."

"I'm afraid she has spoiled him. You should know that your son is not wanting your money at gambling or something like that and telling you that he's on the verge of making a fortune in a mine before risking any more money on him."

"That's what I tell ma."

At this moment the draft was laid before me, but instead of handing it to him I said:

"Hadn't you better think this over?"

He stood, his eyes fixed on vacancy, slowly swaying or tottering, and I knew there was a great contest going on in his mind. His love for his boy conquered.

"I'm 'bliged to you, Mr. Cashier, and mebbe you're right, but I allus believed in my Tom, and I can't go back on him now."

I handed him the draft, and he scuffled slowly out of the bank.

The old man must have borrowed all he could on his farm, considering the transaction as a sale, for he failed to pay the first interest that fell due on the mortgage. I knew this, because I saw in a newspaper a legal notice of foreclosure proceedings on his farm.

"Well," I sighed, laying down the paper, "the old man has given his home to his reprobate son. He has nothing more to give. I shall not suffer again at seeing him come into the bank to do what I can't prevent his doing."

On the street the same day I met the young girl who I was sure was Tom's sweetheart. I stopped her and asked:

"Is Farmer Williams turned out of house and home?"

"Not yet, sir."

"But he will be?"

"I suppose so."

"Has his son sent him anything to help him?"

"No, sir. He wrote to say that he was awful sorry to see the farm go, but he could not help it."

"H'm! Do you think a son who will treat his father and mother like that would treat a wife any better?"

Tears came into her eyes. I was ashamed at giving her this useless pain. I walked on.

About a month after this a strapping young fellow with a fine, manly face came into the bank and said he wished to open an account. I assented, and he made a deposit of $49,506.

"Will you please leave your signature in this book?" I said. He took up a pen and wrote:

"Thomas Williams."

"You Tom Williams?" I exclaimed.

"Yes. What do you know about me?"

"Son of Farmer Williams?"

"Yes."

"Sold your mine?"

"Yes; I've sold a mine in Colorado, or two-thirds of it. This money I'm leaving with you is the first cash payment. There are two others of $50,000 each."

"Has your father's farm gone to the mortgagee?"

"No; I'm in time for that. I was afraid I wouldn't be, though. Anyway, I'd have bought it back. If it hadn't been for the money father sent me I couldn't have carried the deal through. I expected the farm to go for the mine."

"And the young girl to whom we gave drafts payable to your order?"

He colored and said: "It's in with the rest, but she and I'll be one anyway. I shall transfer two-thirds of this deposit to father. I took him and mother in for thirds."

I went to see the old farmer and his wife and found them jubilant. "I told you I had confidence in my boy," the farmer said. "He was always straight."

I attended Tom Williams' wedding and kissed the bride. I couldn't help it.

MRS. MAY'S LETTER to WOMEN

More Proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves Suffering.

Chicago, Ill.—"I suffered from a bad case of female ills. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and I took about six bottles. It fixed me up all right. The common symptoms of such a condition—pain when walking, irritation, bearing-down pains and backache, nervousness and disordered digestion—soon passed away. I look much better now than I did before, and I recommend the Compound every time for female troubles, as it did for me all it is claimed to do. You have my permission to publish this letter." Mrs. J. MAY, 3548 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

If you have any of the symptoms mentioned in Mrs. May's letter, remember what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and try it yourself. It is a good old-fashioned medicine, made from roots and herbs, and it has helped countless numbers of women.

If you need special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

MILITIA REORGANIZATION.

Col. Mewburn Expected to Sift Suggestions at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—The plans for the reorganization of the militia of Canada have not been developed to the stage of any definite decision. Col. Mewburn, of the Toronto Military Division, who has been asked to assume direction of the scheme, is expected here any day now, and will digest various proposals which have been made. The matter will afterwards be taken up in the Militia Council, and a recommendation submitted to the Cabinet.

STRIPPED AND FLOGGED.

Fearful Ordeal of the Ackou Binat in the Sudan.

Is the black man more stoical or merely less sensitive than we are? "At a fantasia in the Sudan," says Mr. Edward Fothergil in "Five Years in the Sudan," "I have myself seen the part that a young man plays of his own free will in order to obtain the title of ackou binat (the brother of the girls). This ceremony would turn a reformer's hair gray.

"The men and the women of a village sit round in a circle, leaving a space in the center of some six yards in diameter. I describe it as I saw it myself. The strongest man in the village is then picked out of the crowd, and, armed with a whip of hippopotamus hide, he and the young man who is to strive for the title enter the arena. The women beat their drums, and the men clap their hands to the tune.

"The candidate for honor is stripped to the waist. He stands with his arms folded in the center of the ring, and the strong man dances up to him to the tune which is being played. He brings the whip round with all the force of which he is possessed and lands it on the bare back of the man in front of him. He dances away; again he advances, and the operation is repeated. This goes on until the number of strokes previously agreed upon have been dealt. In the particular case I saw it was twenty-five. If the man who is being flogged winces, if he so much as moves an eyelid as the whip descends, he is disqualified and branded as a coward until such time as he may choose to undergo the operation a second time.

"On this particular occasion he went through with it like a Trojan. Indeed, the man who was delivering the blows got tired first, and the last three cuts of the twenty-five were unsteady and flickered round the ear and neck of the 'brother.' I leave my readers to imagine the state of his back when all was over, but he appeared to be as happy as a king, and certainly he was accorded a great ovation by the assembled crowd of women."

NOBLE FATHER LACOMBE.

Was One of the Bravest of Canada's Pioneers.

Father Lacombe, who died recently at his home in Midnapore, Alta., was not given to tell overmuch of himself. He did not need to. What he did was known not only to the people of his own faith, but was recognized and valued by everyone who read western history with fair-mindedness. For more than six score years this man of the cloth worked in the West. He went from Quebec, a young man, in the days when it took six months to travel from Eastern Canada to Edmonton. The route was either by way of the Ottawa, across the Great Lakes, or up the Mississippi to St. Paul, thence by ox cart to Fort Garry, and from there still a weary jaunt over the trail to Edmonton.

In 1849 Edmonton was but a handful. The Indians called it the Fort of the Beaver Hills; the French called it the Fort of the Plains, the English in a later day called it Fort Edmonton. Working from Edmonton south and west and north Father Lacombe established missions among the Cree and Blackfoot Indians, and won his way into the confidence of both. That in itself was a missionary triumph, for the two tribes were sworn enemies and fought many a desperate duel, staining the plains with rivers of blood before they killed themselves out.

For years no king or prince was surer of respectful hearing and honest esteem than was this venerable priest, in any part of the great West.

Even in his later years it was with some hesitation that Father Lacombe expressed himself in English. The accent of the old Quebec still lingered on his lips, and his words came slowly and with occasional effort. It may have been for this reason that he was eloquent in gestures, expressing by a shrug of the shoulders, a wave of the hand, or a quickening of the eye a thought which would sometimes take many words to express, and not half so well. For instance, in telling of one of the Indian massacres of many years ago it was not necessary for Father Lacombe to describe in many words the horrors of a scene, of which he himself had been a witness. The stretching with hands of an imaginary rope, the bending of his head, and the quick stiffening of his body was enough—his hearers seemed to see the line of bodies hanging in mid-air.

Imagery, it may well be taken for granted, was long an art in which this veteran missionary was practised; for in interpreting the Better Things to the children of the wilds, he, like every other preacher, had found it necessary to paint pictures that could be seen and understood.

There is much in word-emphasis, too. Father Lacombe knew the West, knew the spirit of the West, knew what it was that sends men here and gave them hope. It takes pages and pages of text and picture for the magazine writer of to-day to explain all this, but Father Lacombe told little stories, and in his quiet, quaint, graphic way laid stress upon one word, and made his hearers feel just what it was that inspired all with confidence in our West.

The priest himself passed through many a fearful experience, when the two Indian foes fought in very devilishness of savagery, he was within an inch of his life. Through all the following stages of the Indians' history, through war and peace, through scourges of smallpox and wilderness tragedy, Father Lacombe ministered, as few men have ever ministered to the needs of the Red Men. To a very great extent they have, as a race, passed away, but the priest still treasuring the memory of the past, where the Reds were a great and powerful people, proved himself their friend to the end. He regretted the degeneration of the half-breed, but he pointed out, with his accustomed knack for summing things up, that the half-breed has been the link between barbarism and civilization.

Weakened By Anaemia Doctors Gave No Hope

Said She Was Threatened With Consumption, and Gave Her Three Weeks to Live

Anaemia is indicated by thin, watery blood. The gums and eyelids grow pale, there is great weakness and fatigue and digestion fails.

Since Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms new, rich blood, it is naturally most suitable as a treatment for anaemia. This letter proves its efficiency in the most severe cases.

Mrs. J. Adams, Port Hope, Ont., writes: "About six years ago I was taken with very weak spells and though I doctored with the family physician and used other medicines for two years, I got very little relief and, in fact, continued to grow weaker. I was so weak I could not wait on myself or raise my hand to my head and decided to go to my daughter in Toronto. When examined by Toronto doctors they pronounced me to be in a dangerous condition, threatened with consumption and other ailments and said I would not live for three weeks. One day I was looking through Dr. Chase's Almanac and read about the cure of anaemia by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I began the use of this treatment at once and am now well on the way back to health, after having used the Nerve Food for six months. I want my friends to know that my cure was effected by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food alone and after my discouragement from the use of other treatments. I feel it my duty to let everybody know about this remarkable cure."

As a restorative for persons who are pale, weak and run down there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Gradually and naturally the red corpuscles are increased in the blood, the color is restored to the cheeks and the strength comes back to wasted nerves and muscles. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

LENT BRINGS BIG DEMAND FOR CANADIAN HALIBUT

PRINCE RUPERT, Feb. 24.—With the arrival of the Lenten season the fisheries at Prince Rupert, B.C., are meeting with an exceptional demand from all points of the continent for supplies of halibut. From a comparatively small catch a few years ago Prince Rupert is now sending to the large Canadian and United States cities more than 15,000,000 pounds of halibut annually. The halibut caught in the waters off this port weigh as much as three hundred pounds to a single fish, and measure five or six feet in length. The average weight of halibut, however, and that most esteemed, is about sixty pounds. With its firm white flesh the halibut, experts declare, does not develop as rapidly as other fish and large specimens are taken from time to time that have attained an age of twenty years.

With the creation of splendid rail facilities through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific's Transcontinental Line, the freshly caught halibut is shipped by Canadian Express refrigerator cars, and reaches the markets in the eastern and central portions of the continent in splendid condition. Although it is little more than two years since the Grand Trunk Pacific was completed, Prince Rupert has already gained a pre-eminent position in the halibut trade.

Men Cheaper Than Machines.

When earth embankment can be placed by man-power at a cost of 2½ cents a yard it is evident that there is little use for excavating machinery in Chinese railway construction, even if that machinery costs no more in China than it does at the point of manufacture. Accordingly, in building the Canton-Hankau Railway, which will be, in point of population served, one of the most important trunk lines in the world, mechanical equipment is used only where absolutely necessary, as on bridge work.—Engineering Record.

Potatoes for the Army.

Potato growers and merchants met in London and nominated a committee to act with the military authorities to secure the necessary supply of potatoes for the forces, says London Mail. Mr. A. S. Harper said Mr. Runciman had told them in conference that 20,000 tons of potatoes are needed every month for the army. A small expert committee is to assist the Board of Trade as regards the civil supply.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

A woman to-day is only as old as her gown concedes, we are told. While there is more than one way to achieve a youthful and stunning effect in an afternoon dress, the illustration shows one of the best for this season.

The plain waist is well set off with a handsome collar of contrasting goods, descending to the waist line in back in a point and tassel tipped for novelty. The sleeve shows its fulness gathered in at the wrist, where a frill cuff finishes.

The two gore skirt is prettily draped with a four gore tunic that is made with a gathered heading and pleated at each side. It is effective with a cord or ribbon lacing at centre back and front, as pictured.

Wool embroidery has first place in fashion's favor for trimming such frock, and while separate motifs are employed, the band effect is strongly indorsed. Braid, of course, is next in rank and may be substituted. If made of broadcloth or velvet, combined with another chosen fabric, a dress of this character may be worn with furs, without a coat, on milder days. It will form a pleasing change from a winter suit. For wear under a coat an afternoon frock may be fashioned of charmeuse, taffeta, crepe or similar weave.

The dress pattern, No. 8,081, cuts in sizes 36-42. To make in size 36 requires 8 yards 40 inch goods, with ⅝ yard 36 inch contrasting and 2¼ yards ribbon.

Invented the Fog Horn.

The man who invented and installed the first steam fog horn died blind and in poverty despite his varied attainments and achievements in widely different fields. He was John Foulis, a Scotchman, who came to St. John, N.B., in the early years of the last century. An interesting description of this versatile Scot is given in a paper recently read before the St. John Historical Society by William Murdoch, C.E. Murdoch says of Foulis:

"He was a nephew of the brothers Robert and Andrew Foulis of Glasgow, printers and publishers, whose productions were the admiration of all their contemporaries, and whose edition of Horace, published in 1744, was hung up sheet by sheet, in Glasgow, and a reward offered for the discovery of a single error.

"This scion of an intelligent breed was a graduate of Glasgow University. After various experiences when a young man, even to serving as surgeon on a whaling ship, he finally settled in St. John and became a land surveyor, artist, analytical chemist, and a civil and mechanical engineer. His survey of the River St. John is still in vogue in the Crown Land Office of this Province. His chemical knowledge ranged from analyzed ores to making his own whiskey when overtaken by adversity.

"While operating as a mechanical engineer and owning a foundry he engined the first steam ferryboat to cross St. John Harbor, besides the first steam craft to ply the St. John River. Later on, when Mr. Foulis was the engineer of the Light and Signal Service of the Government of New Brunswick, his principal charge being Partridge Island (at the harbor's entrance), whereon was an automobile fog bell, he proposed a steam whistle, steam whistles being then new to the world.

"Later on his suggestion was acted upon. There was no patent law then and, though in his old age, blind and poor, he was given no compensation, and the inventor of the fog horn died in poverty."

The Peace Honors.

"For gallantry which, had it been displayed in the face of the enemy, would undoubtedly have won the V. C." one reads in explanation of the Albert Medal conferred upon Lance-Corporal George Broadhurst of the British Army, who at bombing practice heroically seized an exploding bomb and thus probably saved many lives. Still, there would have been a precedent for the bestowal of the V. C. in this case, had the authorities seen fit to follow it. It happened as long ago as 1866, when Private Timothy O'Hara, of the Rifle Brigade, when stationed in Canada, broke open the doors of a railway van laden with powder and ammunition, and put out a fire, which, had it reached the powder, would have caused an immense explosion. This did not occur even in wartime, but the action was accounted so immensely plucky that the supreme military decoration was awarded.—London Chronicle.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

"The Poet of the Pats"

TO the late Sergeant Frank S. Brown has been given the name, "The Poet of the Pats." His fame is spreading throughout Canada, and people read his poetry with a thrill because he died a hero's death for his country. Frank S. Brown was the son of the Rev. S. G. Brown, the Presbyterian clergyman at Almonte, and he went to England in the autumn of 1914, holding the position of sergeant in the Third Company of the Princess Patricia's Light Infantry. He was a typical young Canadian and knew the Dominion thoroughly, having lived in both the East and West. His interests combined a love of outdoor life and intellectual pursuits. He was a good horseman and first-class shot, as well as a musician and writer. Just before the war he was an enthusiastic worker in the Boy Scout movement, and when the Germans made their pounce upon Belgium, he was among the first to join the colors, his keenness as a soldier winning him early promotion. He did not go to France with his regiment, being laid up in the hospital on Salisbury Plains with an attack of influenza. It was early in February of last year that he joined his regiment, and he was killed at St. Eloi on his first day in the trenches.

Holbrook Jackson, the editor of T.P.'s Weekly, has written a character sketch of the soldier poet, in which the following description of him is given:

"Fair, slight but sturdy; keen-eyed, self-confident but unassuming; such is my impression of the young soldier who came into my room on that grey January morning. He was the type of the British soldier: healthy, cheerful, untroubled by mental subtlety or overweening ambition, but willing to square brain and brawn with the general effort towards the attainment of an end known to be righteous and certain. All this was evident from the external view, but the intimacy of conversation revealed exceptional characteristics. It was evident that Sergeant Brown resembled the admirable type of British soldier only by an effort of the will, born probably of an equally British objection to being thought remarkable. On the three or four occasions on which we met, I learned to value the mental qualities of the khaki-clad son of the Empire. His intellectual interests were wide, and although backed by a considerable bookish experience, they always sought a practical end. He was an Imperialist, but no jingo words escaped from him in my hearing. On the contrary, his soldierly reticence was based on enthusiasm for personal endeavor. 'The Empire is kept going by character,' he said on one occasion, 'not by shouting.' He had read much in modern literature; liked Rudyard Kipling 'where he resembled Whitman,' he said, and Whitman 'where he resembled Kipling.' Then he pulled himself up as though concerned at having convicted himself of a thing he loathed, namely, modern verbal cleverness."

The verse written by "The Poet of the Pats" was mostly topical. He wrote "The Rubaiyat of a Man-at-Arms," "The Veteran," and "The Grouch," and the titles indicate their nature. They were swinging poems written from the view-point of the soldier. One of his few serious efforts is worth quoting. It bears the title, "Fallen":—

Christmas (at arms)—the shrapnel screams;
Its laden death to earth in streams
They, wanton, fling.
Peace and Good-will — with awful stench
A shell explodes in shambled trench,
The where we cling.

Christmas (at arms)—the mantling snow
Reflects the burning town, aglow;
Nose stay the flame.
Peace and Good-will—so bellfries ring,
No clam'ring chimes the tidings bring;
We slay and maim.

Christmas (at arms)—this ghastly strife,
This senseless sacrifice of life,
Must be a sin.
Peace and Good-will—the sacred night
We desecrate; we kill; we fight
'Mid awful din.

Christmas (at arms)—hark! rabid notes
Are roaring from the hostile throats;
A bugle's wail.
Peace and Good-will—Oh! misplaced dreams
Amid this holocaust: the screams
Of leaden hail!

Christmas (at arms)—is there a trust
To nerve this arm for bayonet thrust
Or bullet's speed?
Peace and Good-will—was ever peace?
Will e'er this panting struggle cease?
Who dare give heed?

Christmas (at arms)—the conflict wanes;
Each dripping bayonet thrusts and strains;
Back they are thrown.
Peace and Good-will—Ah, breathe the peace—
Tho' hate may rule till war shall cease—
I die alone.

Christmas (at arms)—Oh, bitter thought,
Peace and Good-will—even this is nought
But irony.
This agony! . . . Hugh! . . . the angels weep . . .
Peace . . . Peace at last . . . ah! . . . dreamless sleep.

STITCHES THAT TRIM.

Suggestions About Using Needlework on Small Gowns.

In the days of grandmother, when cheap trimmings—braids, laces and edgings—were not so cheap as they are nowadays, there was real economy in finishing off the little girl's dresses by means of neat lines of herringbone stitch, or tatting. In fact, almost never did children's frocks show any sort of trimming that cost anything but the time taken to make the stitches and the trifling cost of thread.

It is usually more convenient to finish the child's garment entirely before adding the stitches. Sometimes it is more convenient to buy inexpensive, absolutely untrimmed frocks and rompers for the children and bring them home to double their value by a half hour or so spent in finishing them with handwork.

To begin with, if you do not know how to make the herringbone or feather stitch practice with a piece of heavy embroidery twist and a piece of gingham or kindergarten cloth, such as you use in making the children's clothes. Practice until you have acquired a uniform stitch. There is an infinite variety in the length and the angle of the stitch, and it doesn't much matter which you adopt so long as it is always uniform. This stitch is useful for trimming the neck and wrist lines of the frocks. If the dress is made at home simply baste the skirt hem and use this stitch by way of hemming and trimming the skirt at the same time. A simple chain stitch made with coarse cotton is another good way of finishing hem, cuffs and collars.

Even woolen dresses can be trimmed in this way. Our grandmothers made herringbone stitches in colored wool on the brown holland everyday frocks their little girls wore, and, though we do not have to give our children brown holland frocks these days, this sort of colored woolen trimming is very pretty. Besides that, it is very smart just now, and for that reason, as well as because it is inexpensive, deserves attention. It is not difficult to learn the sort of wool embroidery that trims the new frocks, and a little practice with bright wool threads will make anybody an adept at doing it.

YOUR FURS.

How to Care For Them So They Will Look New and Wear Long.

Many women have an idea that it is not necessary to take special care of good furs. They think that because the latter are a good quality they will stand more or less rough treatment and that they can be subjected to all sorts of variable conditions of weather.

Never hang wet furs near the fire to dry. In the natural state the animal, whose pelt has been converted into a coat or muff or scarf, dries itself in the open, and this fact should be borne in mind.

The bright sun is also harmful to good furs. In winter little harm is done in this direction, but furs carried to warm climates and worn even occasionally in a garish light are likely to lose the luster which comes to them, not only from natural causes, but also from the scientific dressing and dyeing to which many of the fashionable pelt-ries are subjected.

Curious Street Names.

There are some curious street names in London, such as Beer lane, Pickle Herring street, Shoulder of Mutton alley, Hot Water court and Tiger bay. But there was a time when London possessed a far wider collection of cacophonous thoroughfares than is now the case. King Edward street, the site of the general postoffice, was for centuries known as Stinking lane. Crackbrain court and Cutthroat lane were in Whitechapel, and Dead Man's place adjoined Dirty lane in Southwark. Hangman's Gains stood near the Tower, and there was a Bandy-leg alley off Fleet street. Breakneck court, opposite the Old Bailey, where Goldsmith lived when he first settled in London, has also disappeared.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mushrooms.

Henri Coupin reports to Cosmos that from 90 to 90 per cent of the mushroom's substance is water; from 0.5 per cent to 1.5 per cent (according to species) of mineral salts (soda, lime, sulphur, magnesia, silica, chlorine, potassium, phosphoric acid); from 2 to 10 per cent of sugar; a trace of lecithin; from 2 to 4.5 per cent of nitrogenous matter and from 2 to 4 per cent of cellulose, that has no nutritive value. Dr. Coupin says, "The mushroom is an almost complete food, fairly nourishing, which is comparable up to a certain point—although inferior—to bread and meat."

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This perparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Sitting Cross Legged.

The next time you ride in a street car notice the number of people who sit cross legged. It has been estimated that four-fifths of them do. Probably you do. A prominent London physician has investigated the habit, and his advice is "don't sit cross legged." He states that the prime objection to the habit is that the return flow of blood is stopped at the knee, the result being that the veins in the leg swell up. As all of the weight is thrown to one side of the body, the under leg is likely to go to sleep. The body should be equally balanced. Much crossing of the legs is also dangerous in that it is likely to cause lopsidedness. The limbs should be allowed to rest easily, so that the flow of blood is natural and the body equally balanced.—American Boy.

Struggle to Hide the Truth.

"What makes you insist on always dancing with that girl? You know you dance badly."

"That's true," replied the determined youth. "I think a lot of that girl. If I dance with her instead of letting her sit down and watch me at a distance maybe I can keep her from seeing what a fearful dancer I really am."—Washington Star.

United States Papers Call On President Wilson to Declare War

"A Disgrace to the American People That There Could Have Been an Hour's Wrangling Over the Question" Says New York World---"Nothing Short of a Declaration of War Will Suffice," Remarks the Tribune---British Casualties in February Lightest Since Last July.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

(By Carl D. Groat.)

WASHINGTON, February 28.—World happenings brought the United States closer to the war vortex to-day than for weeks past.

House members are still grudging as to the extent of the power to be given President Wilson. However, it is said finally Congress will give the President what he wants.

While Congress fiddled with the bill the Administration had before it, Germany's unofficial admission that she still held the Yarrowdale men "because of infeceion" at their camps. This was looked upon as a flagrant insult by some officials. It threatened to complicate and hasten the trouble, officials fear.

The Austrian situation remains a puzzle, though the Government permitted sufficient news to leak out to show that it is preparing for a break, and that Ambassador Penfield is quietly paving the way to get the American Consuls and citizens out of Austria in case of a break.

NEW YORK, February 28. — Under the heading "Time to Declare War," the Tribune says: "At last the Administration faces an 'overt act' on Germany's part, which it can hardly explain away. Mr. Wilson has said many times that he would not tolerate any more such murders. If his words mean anything the Administration is bound in honour to ask Congress to declare war. Nothing short of a declaration of war will suffice."

The World says: "It is a disgrace to Congress, it is a disgrace to the American people, it is a disgrace to the eternal principles of the Republic, that there could have been an hour's wrangling and haggling over the question whether the United States should maintain its honour or surrender abjectly to German ruthlessness."

The Boston Journal says: "Germany confronts us with two flagrantly and overtly dead American women. What more can American men ask? What more can Woodrow Wilson say? and as for Congress, will it continue to Bryanize and whine its way through hair-splittings of national conscience."

LONDON, Eng., February 28.—The British casualties for the month of February show a new low record per day in comparison with other months since July, 1916. The total for February of British killed, wounded and missing reached 1,243 officers and 17,185 men, being a daily average of 44 officers and 614 men. The highest daily average was last August with 151 officers and 3,975 men.

LONDON, February 28.—An air raid on Sunday over the iron works at Brubach, Germany, was announced by the British Admiralty to-day. There were several air encounters, the statement said, in which one hostile machine was destroyed.

WASHINGTON, February 28.—Austria has officially denied that one of her submarines sank the American schooner Lyman M. Law.

WASHINGTON, February 28.—The House Foreign Affairs Committee to-day upheld President Wilson's request for power to meet the international situation, but with two important restrictions. "Authorization for use of other instrumentalities aside from guns. Gunners and money was stripped from the original Flood bill, thus limiting the President's authority." The second restriction was the insertion of a provision against the use of the war risk bureau to insure ships carrying munitions. This may develop an unpleasant complication when the vote comes.

MONTREAL, February 28.—Stewart Lynn, representative of Canadian Press, cables that Sir Robert Borden and Sir George Perley are endeavouring to secure a modification of the regulations announced by Lloyd George, prohibiting the importation of canned salmon and fruits from Canada.

WASHINGTON, February 28.—Word has been received that Ambassador Gerard and party sailed to-day from Corunna, Spain, for Cuba. The ship is crowded with passengers, mostly Spanish immigrants.

LONDON, February 28.—The British forces are giving the retreating Turks beyond Kut-El-Amara no chance to reform their columns. The pursuit is continuing and the retreating enemy forces are being engaged on three sides. They have abandoned much stores and thrown several big guns into the Tigris River. The British gunboat Firefly, lost during the British retreat from Ctesiphon, was recaptured. The statement also said that one Turkish ship was captured and one destroyed.

PETROGRAD, February 28.—A counter attack of Russian forces partly drove back an enemy assault on the Jacobeni-Kimpolung high road, the official statement said to-day.

More Women Voters In Ontario Than Men Now

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—Dominion Census' estimate of the womans vote in Ontario as a result of the Ontario Government's Woman Suffrage Bill, is 729,000. The voting strength of men in Ontario is about 700,000, of which forty thousand is at present overseas.

LIVE STOCK MARKET

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—Live stock receipts fair. Trade strong. Light sheep $9.75 to $10.50; spring lambs $10.75 to $15; hogs, fed and watered, $15.10. Others unchanged.

5,000,000 SOLDIERS FOR BRITAIN'S ARMIES

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The army estimates, issued to-day, provides for an army of 5,000,000 men, exclusive of India. An additional navy estimate calls for 50,000 officers and men, bringing the total of the navy personnel to 450,000.

U. S. EXPERT SAYS SUB. CAMPAIGN IS PROVING A FAILURE

While Serious Damage Has Been Done German Efforts in February Fell Far Short of Schedule Necessary to Bring Allies to Terms

THE DEFENCE IMPROVING

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK. Dec. 28.—J. W. T. Mason, the war expert of the United Press, says to-day:

Germany's campaign of unrestrained submarining, has been in operation for a month without demonstrating its effectiveness for bringing the Allies to terms. Serious damage has been done to the Allies and neutral shipping, but not sufficient to give a real hope of victory to the German Government.

More than twice as much destruction of shipping as has occurred during February, must fall to submarines monthly before the real danger line of defeat may become visible to the Allies.

If the Germans have put forth their best efforts during the past month, as is probable the February record cannot be seriously surpassed while the submarine campaign proceeds. The rapid improvement of defensive methods has been shown by th frequent falling off in submarine victims during the last days of the month. The restriction upon imports into the Unied Kingdom announced by Lloyd George on February 23, are in themselves more than sufficient to counteract the additional effect of the new submarine campaign. In proportion to their numbers, the merchantmen of the Allied powers can take care of themselves. It is the unarmed neutral shipping that proportionately has contributed most seriously to the increased sinking since the submarines began to fire on all vessels at sight. If neutral vessels arm themselves and defend their right to traverse seas, there will be a still further drop in the number of submarine victims.

Major A. W. McPherson Of Peterboro' Mentioned For Valuable Services

Name of Peterboro's Health Officer Appears in Gazette in List of Canadians Brought to the Notice of the Secretary of State---Motor Cyclists Recruiting in Peterboro' ---To-day's General Military News.

In the list of Canadian officers brought to the attention of the Secretary of State for valuable service in connection with the war, as published in the official gazette, appears the name of Major A. W. McPherson, Peterborough's Health Officer, who has been overseas since early in 1915. Major McPherson was in charge of the Canadian Convalescent Hospital at Bromley for a long period, and is now in France. His host of friends will be glad to learn that his services have been officially recognized.

Mrs. Florence Sharman, 488 Homewood Avenue, has received official word from Ottawa that her husband, Pte. Arthur Sharman, formerly of the 93rd Battalion who was reported dangerously ill at No. 22 Casualty Clearing Station is progressing favourably.

Sergt. G. R. Hale of the Motorcycle Platoon with present headquarters at Kingston is in the city this week looking for recruits for what is regarded as one of the best branches of the service. The platoon will, when completed, consist of thirty men and fifteen have already joined up. The work at the front will be mostly despatch riding, a line of work that is so attractive it is expected the remaining fifteen men will be secured in short time. The motorcyclists will move to Toronto about the middle of March for their training. There is practically no drill. Sergt. Hale who came from the United States to enlist will be at the recruiting rooms on Simcoe street and will be glad to explain the service to men who are thinking of enlisting.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. W. SHEA

Reid Street Resident Found Dead in Bed This Morning

A terrible shock awaited Mr. William Shea, 211 Reid street, this morning, on returning to his home.

Mr. Shea, who is a motorman with the Peterborough Street Railway, went to work as usual at six o'clock and on returning at 10 found the painters whom he had engaged to do some indoor work waiting at the door unable to get an answer from inside. He forced the door and rushed upstairs where he found his wife, who he had left apparently as well as usual, dead in bed. He immediately summoned the coroner who pronounced death to be due to heart failure.

Milk Vendor Sold Booze as a Side Line

Two milkmen figured in a liquor case in the police court this morning, with Inspector Stewart as prosecutor. One of them had received a shipment of the stuff and his fellow milk vendor obtained a share of it for his own use. Hence he had a milk bottle filled with it and paid over the money. Hence the former was held on two charges of having liquor for sale and being drunk, and the other milkman of having liquor in his possession other than at his private residence. Both pleaded guilty. The case was remanded. The penalties that may be pronounced aggregate over $400.

ONTARIO WOMEN TO GET THE VOTE

Legislature Made History Yesterday When it Endorsed Without Dissent the Principle of Women Suffrage.

LANCE CORP. A. PAGET, of Peterborough, who went overseas with the 21st Battalion, and is now in England with Ordnance Corps.

WAR WORK RECOGNIZED

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 28.—"Having taken our women into partnership with us in our tremendous task, upon which the successes of the future of the British Empire depends and the civilization of the world, I ask can we justly deny them a share in the government of the country, the right to have a say about the making of the laws they have been so heroically trying to defend? My answer is I think not."

Thus spoke Premier Sir William Hearst in the Legislature yesterday when that body made history by endorsing without dissent the great principle of votes for women, thus completing the chain of Provinces that have adopted this reform from the Pacific Ocean to the Ottawa River.

"I feel the time has now come," the Premier went on, "when we should give our women a greater part in the public affairs and the greater service that the ballot affords. (Applause.) In this case the Government endorses the principle of the bill before the House. That means they take Government responsibility for it. I call for my supporters to vote in its favour, and I take full responsibility as leader of this House for what the vote may be. (Applause.) This is not the time to discuss the details of the bill. Opportunity, of course, will be given in full time for that. There is one point, however, I may mention. The Government having decided to give women the vote, it is anxious they should have full opportunity of exercising that right at the earliest date possible, and the Government will try and devise some plan whereby they will be entitled to record their vote at the next Provincial election."

The Suffrage Movement.

Sir William Hearst spoke to a crowded and expectant House and galleries when the second reading of the bill of Mr. J. W. Johnson, Conservative member for West Hastings, to grant the legislative franchise, came up. Later a bill introduced by Mr. J. U. Elliott, Liberal member for West Middlesex, to give women the municipal franchise, was also given second reading.

HAIG'S FORCES PUSH FORWARD ON WESTERN FRONT

General Gough's Corps Have Established Themselves in Ligny, a Mile South of Bapaume and Latter Stronghold Will Fall Next

HUNS RETREAT CONTINUES

With the British Armies in the Field, Feb. 27.—The British troops are still advancing all along the line of positions from which the Germans are withdrawing, but are meeting with some resistance here and there from bodies of men left behind with machine guns to delay the pursuit.

There was fighting to-day with some of these outposts in the neighborhood of Box Wood and Rossignol Wood, east of Gommecourt. The British came under machine gun fire and the German guns put over a shrapnel barrage, but it did not succeed in checking the patrols for more than a short time. They took possession of Rossignol Wood and captured Rossignol trench and other ground northeast of Puisieux.

FIGHTING AT PUISIEUX.

So far Puisieux itself is not yet in complete possession of the British German machine gunners are scattered about the village and defending it with determination in order to sell the place as dearly as possible. Early this morning a party of British established themselves securely in one corner of the line, and other parties are now working through, routing out the defenders and clearing up the hornets' nest.

Southeast of Puisieux the British line began to thrust out far above Miraumont and Beauregard Dovecote. Some of the Germans are still lurking about Irles, and small parties of them have taken refuge in a quarry in the right of the village.

In the Gommecourt salient the German heavy artillery flung a large number of shells into Miraumont, and is scattering high explosives about the fields in a general way.

The resistance mentioned is not serious, only affairs of ouposts armed with deadly machine-guns, which makes them unpleasant to tackle. There is no doubt that behind the positions the main strength of the Germans is still retiring to a new line of defence.

A vice-skips' bonspiel will likely be held at the Curling Rink probably next week if the ice remains favourable. It is being urged by some of the vices and has met with general approval around the rink. Such a series of games would afford a good test of the improvement of the men who should be progressing toward the most prominent positions.

THE POTATO PROBLEM.

The potato problem, with threatened scarcity and virtually prohibitive high prices, is a serious one. Potatoes in Canada as elsewhere are a staple of diet. In some homes potatoes in some form are a menu of every daily meal. This lends importance to the demand to increase production by the cultivation of vacant lots; and additional weight is given the proposal of home planting by the evidence that if the potato problem is to be solved the people will largely have to depend upon themselves. The Dominion Government so far refusing to take action that will help by preventing exportation, cannot be depended upon. A despatch received yesterday states there was no truth in the rumour that the government had decided to prohibit the export of potatoes that have been going out of the country at an alarming rate. But it does show a little activity in punishing the crime of combining to keep up prices. It is stated that the New Brunswick Potato Exchange, the same that was guilty of shipping thousands of bags of Canadian potatoes to Cuba, were charging now $3.25 per bag, and that it was holding potatoes for a price of $4 per bag. Criminal proceedings are to be brought against the Exchange, and it is to be hoped that information will be brought out that will help explain how prices have been manipulated, and what is the relation of the combine price to that paid the producer.

If the Dominion Government won't take action to protect the public to the extent that prohibition of export would avail, it is creditable to the Ontario Government that it shows greater interest. Premier Hearst told the Legislature yesterday in answer to a question by Mr. Dewart, that it would be found that the matter of potatoes for seed would work out satisfactorily. The government was investigating; the reports received from district representatives were being tabulated, and it would perhaps be found that there would be a greater supply for seed than was anticipated. The government, he said, had taken care to ascertain where seed outside the province could be secured, if that were found necessary.

However, the best trust is not in government assurances but in our own efforts. We can make no mistake in growing all the potatoes we can. That action will not only provide enough for ourselves but help to bring down the prices that have reached a point where a potato costs as much as a prime Niagara peach — in a scarce season.

MAKE THE STRANDS ROPES.

Mayor Duffus deserves credit for the initially successful outcome of his two civic symposia. There has been frank conference between the aldermen and prominent citizens. There have been a host of suggestive proposals, some good, and some—not so good. There has been shown a creditable and encouraging desire to pull in harness with the City Council. There has been shown a promising spirit of cooperation. But here the real work comes in: there must not only be a spirit of cooperation, but a coordination of effort. The stray strands of good counsel must be twisted into a rope; the [illegible] sifted—the wheat separated from the chaff.

To effect [illegible] as a result of these conferences, the policies proposed must be hand-picked—the purely theoretical and visionary be rejected; and attention concentrated upon some two or three main proposals that show promise of practical application. Little will come [illegible] proposals, if something practical is not hit upon, and pursued to a finish. Mayor Duffus' conferences have sowed the seed; it must be cultivated if we are to have a crop—if all the brave talk—earnest and honest talk—is not to evaporate and vanish in thin air.

One of the things upon which attention should be concentrated is the completion of the Trent Canal, by far the most important factor in Peterborough's industrial development. Every one who attended the two late civic banquets, every thinking citizen knows, how Peterborough's interests, are menaced by the failure of canal completion; and if our efficient Industrial Commisioner were to tell what he knows, he would say that many a promising industry has turned away from Peterborough because of the absence of the deciding factor in location—of water transportation. We should if possible do something to bring about the completion of the canal. It will be a hand-to-hand fight, because we shall not only have to fight the active hostility of railway interests, but have to stimulate the government and eleminate government paralysis of will and indifference resulting from rail transport influence.

This condition is an argument for nationalisation of our railways. If they were government-owned and controlled, there would be coordination of effort in the interests of transportation between government-owned canals and government-owned railways. The public interests would be the first consideration, not corporation earnings and dividends. The people of Canada have invested more money, through governments, in railways than in canals. The canals are operated in the public interest; the railways are operated—like railways.

THE PEOPLE ARE AWAKE.

Governments can no longer commit political and administrative crimes with impunity. The Manitoba and the British Columbia Governments learned this to their cost, the cost of power, and of the opportunity to prostitute their functions in New Brunswick the government which betrayed its trust, has been absolutely smashed. The tide of popular anger—no other word explains the temper of the people—that literally overwhelmed the government candidates, swept Cabinet ministers from their seats; and many candidates of a government that five or six short years ago almost unanimously carried the province, barely saved their deposits. The popular turn-over could not be more complete, or the defeat more crushing.

Sometimes we almost feel that the popular conscience is dead and that partizanship has altogether submerged principle. But there is less cause for this feeling in these latter days, when government depravity has grown bolder and when Germany has shown to what lengths surrender to crooked methods and disregard of popular rights and human interests will bring. We are fighting against such things in the ranks of battle; and the most obtuse elector cannot but see that the same principle underlies government crookedness; and that unless vigorously fought, will bring disaster at home. This war has brought national unity of cooperation and a higher sense of the duty of citizenship to act together; a clearer vision of the fact that the interests of the country—of the people—claim precedence over party considerations. The people as a whole, are shaking themselves free from the slavery of party, and more and more disposed to regard their own interests as superior to the interests of any party.

But the leaven of partisanship is hard to eliminate. There are journals that only see with party eyes. For instance, a government organ a few days ago took a large part of its space to glorify the record and character of the Ontario Government; it was the ne plus ultra of governments, without stain, without fault. This spirit of foolish adulation even went to the extent of saying that the Ontario government was stronger than ever, in the public esteem. This in view of the fact that a procession of bye-elections has been a steady pounding at the government's position in popular favour; where bye-elections generally triumphs for governments, have not gone decidedly against the government even in their strongholds; there has been a notable reduction of majority, indicative of a lapse from the grace of the electorate.

A strong government will maintain its position by vigorous assertion of its own policy. It becomes a sign of weakness when it seeks to retain strength by feeding upon itself—swallowing itself. The Ontario Government seeks to retain strength by stealing or implementing the policy of its opponents. In this regard, Mr. Rowell, the opposition leader, is helping keep the government in power. It stole his temperance act thunder, appropriated it and now claims credit for doing which it would not do till forced by the necessity of self-preservation, to meet the demands of the situation. It is now doing the same in the matter of woman suffrage. The government has persistently opposed the principle, but it adopts it now, when popular opinion favours it strongly. In the matter of the Hydro-Electric, that great bulwark of municipal interests, the government damaged it by faint applause and sought to make political capital out of it till

Promise of Votes-for-Women "Fad" Becoming a Five-Province Fact

The Scope of Woman Suffrage Laws in the Other Provinces

It is intimated that the Hearst government will probably make official announcement to-day of its adoption of the equal suffrage plank of the Liberal platform, thus making Ontario the fifth Canadian province to concede "votes for women," the others being British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba. In the Maritime Provinces there is little demand for the enfranchisement of women although in 1915 New Brunswick women received the municipal franchise after a short campaign. With the advent of a Liberal government to power in that province, it will probably be willing to go a step further. As for Quebec it is apparently unwilling to consider very seriously either temperance or electoral reforms.

It is noteworthy that Dr. Emily Stowe, who was a resident for many years of the village of Mt. Pleasant (Brant county) before her removal to Toronto, was the pioneer of the woman suffrage movement in Canada, and her daughter, Dr. Augusta Stowe-Gullen of Toronto, has been a leader in the same cause. Like the Prohibitionists, the supporters of equal suffrage were for years branded as faddists and cranks, and that they have at last succeeded in so many of the provinces is not due to the fact that they have aroused any general interest in their cause on the part of the members of their own sex, but rather that they have succeeded in convincing the average man of the injustice of placing woman in an inferior position in the matter of the franchise. This injustice has been greatly accentuated by the heroic part the women have played in the war.

In Alberta equal suffrage was assented to on March 14th, 1916, by "An act to amend the statute law," of which one section consists of an amendment to "the Saskatchewan election act by striking out the words 'male person' and substituting the words 'person, whether male or female' and after 'he' inserting 'or she.'"

The "Manitoba Election Act" came into force the day it was assented to, January 28, 1916. It simply amended the existing act by adding after the word "person" the words "male or female, married or un-married."

The British Columbia "Woman Suffrage Act," which comes into force in March, is perhaps the most explicit, not only placing women on the register on the same terms as men, but stating that "thereafter they shall be capable of being elected members of the Legislature." If the name of a female registered voter is changed in consequence of marriage, the registrar of voters has authority to cause the register to be amended accordingly, so that she shall not be disenfranchised.

None of the other three acts except the Alberta one state explicitly that women may sit in the respective Legislatures, but there is no doubt that they will be allowed to do so.

Whether provincial enfranchisement automatically means enfranchisement for Dominion purposes is a question for the lawyers. It is contended and denied that, under the law as it stands, women whose names are on the povincial lists in Manitoba and British Columbia, and also in Ontario, can also vote in Dominion elections, but it is beyond doubt that, owing to special provisions in the Dominion act, the women of Saskatchewan and Alberta cannot secure the Dominion franchise by this means. It will be well, therefore, for the Dominion parliament, when it meets again, to deal with this anomalous situation by providing that in any province where women have the vote in municipal and provincial elections they shall also be qualified to vote in Dominion elections.—Brantford Expositor.

Beck made it too strong a popular card for a government to trifle with; but even now there is a strong undercurrent of popular feeling that the government is not any too solidly behind the Hydro. The government antagonized the hydro-radial railway idea, voting down repeated Opposition resolutions in their interests, till the present session, when the resolution of Mr. Marshall of Lincoln, Sir Adam Beck's chief backer in his fights for Hydro, favouring hydro development, was concurred in by the government, even if unwillingly. This motion protested against approval of the plans of the Canadian Northern Railway for a line running from Toronto to Niagara Falls, over a route that had been surveyed by the Hydro-Electric Power Company.

From home indications and from the results of three recent provincial general elections, the government is beginning to see that the people are awake, and awake to their own interests, and that they will not permit their subordination to the over-lordship of great corporations or of interested affiliations with governments. The government is beginning to see that the people are determined to keep the Hydro a people's enterprise, and that the attitude of the government as to control and management must be "hands off." This is becoming more and more the feeling of the people, irrespective of politics—that the Hydro is a municipal enterprise, and that its success depends upon keeping it free from the entanglements of politics and government interference or manipulation, except as a legislative or administrative agency.

FOR some time we have been advertising the need of Life Insurance in general. NOW we propose to show you WHY you should place your insurance with the Sun Life of Canada.

Fifteen years ago a parent in this City placed a ten pay 15 year Endowment Policy (No. 200916) in the Sun Life of Canada, on his son who was then 11 years of age.

On the 1st of February, inst. he was offered any of the following Options:—

First, a fully paid up Policy of $4045 00 payable at death.

Where can a man take $89.30 per year for 10 years and invest it in ANY OTHER WAY and produce an immediate estate of $4045.00 in case of death?

Or he could withdraw $905.55 which you will notice is more than he paid in, ALL TOLD, and still retain a FREE paid up participating policy of $1000.00, payable at death; thus his dollars did two things at the same time,—carried the risk, and gave a FREE POLICY and he saved his money for himself too.

Or he could have drawn $1266.80 in cash, which was $373.80 more than he paid in, or a return of over $141 for every hundred he paid, besides having had free protection for the past fifteen years.

HONESTLY NOW does not that look pretty good to you.

WM. L. CREDEN, Butte, Montana, Managing Director

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

MANAGEMENT

The management of the Company's properties has been placed in the hands of Wm. L. Creden, E.M., of Butte, mining engineer, geologist and mine administrator of great repute, who has accepted the position of managing director. Mr. Creden is well and favourably known for his record as general manager of the Davis-Daly properties, in the immediate vicinity of the Butte-Detroit properties, which he has turned from a losing to an earning proposition through the prosecution of a well-directed policy of deep development, for making the Utah-Apex Company, of Bingham, Utah, under his management, a dividend payer, and through his connection as consulting engineer with Butte & Superior, which has developed into the largest and most profitable zinc producer in the world.

PROPERTIES

The Ophir mine, about 20 acres, is located in the south - western portion of the Butte district, in the heart of the City of Butte, a few hundred feet from the Travona mine, where the first lode location in the district was made in 1864. The company retains surface rights to about three acres of ground, on which the mill and the shaft, assay office, etc., are located, in the heart of the business district of Butte. The shaft of the Ophir, down about 1,065 feet, is the only shaft available in that vicinity, indicating that it will become in time an outlet through which the ores of surrounding properties may be hoisted. It is said that the shaft will command in this way a rich mining acreage many times the actual dimensions of its own estate.

The company's mill, which is now operating, is a splendid piece of construction. It has at present a rated capacity of 200 tons daily, but structure and foundation will admit of this capacity being enlarged to 450 or 500 tons, while the site will permit of the enlargement of the mill to 1,000 tons. The properties are located on the Butte, Anaconda & Pacific electrified railroad and on Colorado street, with trolley line.

The property was recently enclosed with a high fence, the mill was overhauled, three-compartment shaft cleared of water and fully repaired, etc. Under Mr. Creden's recommendation a fund of $300,000 is being expended for deep development work and mill enlargement. Prior to Mr. Creden's association with the company $1,000,000 had been expended on the property.

DEVELOPMENT

The Ophir mine is opened up by workings on the 100, 200, 300 and 500 levels to the extent of about three and one-half miles, and gold, silver, copper and zinc ore values have been opened up. The management will sink the shaft to a depth of 2,000 feet to develop copper and zinc ore bodies, and at the same time will do an ample amount of lateral work in crosscutting, drifting, etc., to intersect the Ophir vein and other veins which are exposed on the surface and on the different levels. The Ophir vein shows 42 feet on the surface, where it has the same characteristics as the Black Rock Vein of Butte & Superior. The Ophir vein is opened on the 100, 200, 300 and 500 levels, and crosscutting is now in progress from the 1,000-foot point to intersect the vein. The north vein has been opened up for several hundred feet both on the 200 and 500 levels, and the south vein has been exposed for over 1,200 feet on the 200, 300 and 500 levels and about 900 feet on the 100 level.

Examinations and reports on the Ophir mine have been made by the following engineers in the order named: A. J. Poser, graduate of Freiburg, Germany; W. J. Bailey, of London, England; W. H. Monroe, of Butte, Montana; Edward Walters, of Silverton, Colorado; W. L. Creden, of Butte, Montana; Wm. Walsh, of Butte, Montana, at the time State Mine Inspector of Montana; John A. Ryan, of Butte, Montana, general mining manager of the properties of former Senator Wm. A. Clark, and Max Atwater, of New York, formerly general manager of the Butte & Superior Company. Besides these, a written report was made by S. W. Hall, mining engineer, in the mine's early history, also one by Arthur Clark, mining engineer associated with S. W. Hall. In addition to these, the mine has been examined and informally reported upon by numerous mining engineers and experts of Butte and elsewhere.

All of these examinations were more or less exhaustive in their scope, and in the cases of Messrs. Poser, Monroe, Creden and Walters the underground mine workings were thoroughly sampled every five feet on all levels. Mr. Creden spent approximately a year in making not only a mining, but geological and metallurgical examination. In the sinking of the shaft from the 500 level to 1,050 feet, Mr. Creden examined and sampled the ground every five feet. Messrs. Poser, Monroe and Walters each spent about a month underground measuring and sampling the ore bodies.

Mr. Creden in a report on the properties says:

"MY EARLY REPORTS ON THE OPHIR FAVOURED COPPER. TO-DAY THERE IS DEEP DEVELOPMENT GOING ON IN CLAIMS LYING BEWEEN THE OPHIR AND WHAT MAY BE CALLED THE CENTRE OF THE COPPER ZONE. IN ONE CLAIM, THE EMMA, DEVELOPMENT IS GOING ON FOR ZINC. ONLY A FEW HUNDRED FEET AWAY FROM THE EMMA, DEVELOPMENT IS BEING CARRIED ON AT THE DAVIS-DALY FOR COPPER, AND SOME OF THE HIGHEST GRADE COPPER IN THE DISTRICT IS BEING MINED AT PRESENT FROM THIS GROUP.

"I BELIEVE THAT THE OPHIR AREA OF BUTTE WILL BE THE SEAT OF SOME VERY EXTENSIVE DEEP DEVELOPMENT WITHIN THE NEXT FEW YEARS—DEVELOPMENT FOR ZINC, AND I BELIEVE THAT THIS DEVELOPMENT WILL UNCOVER ENORMOUS BODIES OF ZINC SULPHIDES."

CONCLUSION

The success of the Ophir mine lies in a campaign of deep development. A definite zinc zone has been entered on the 500 level, the bottom of the later workings. The shaft location of the Ophir is of great potential value as to the control and acquisition of a large area.

The location of the property admits of all the economies of operation and transportation.

The mill on the property, now operating and on an earning basis, is of the best possible type and provided with all facilities for the greatest possible extraction of the values of the ores and the most economical operation. As a matter of record, the initial recoveries of values from the ores mined from the Davis-Daly properties, on which the mill is now operating, showed a recovery of 94 per cent., a record which we believe is unsurpassed.

The earnings from the mill should gradually increase as the Davis-Daly and other properties are able to supply it with a larger quantity of ore, and there are two directions in which the earning power of the mill may be practically doubled during the next few months. One is an increase in the capacity of the mill from about 200 tons to from 450 to 500 tons, as described above, and the other the security of the amount now paid for the ores from other properties, when the Ophir mine itself is able to provide a full supply of ore, which Engineer Creden believes will be the case when the vein is reached by the crosscut on the 1,000-foot level sometime this spring.

The mill is, therefore, now a potential factor in the earning power of the company, and this earning power may be doubled within the next few months. There is every prospect that under the management of the Butte-Detroit directors and Managing Director Creden the Ophir mill, as it is known locally, will eventually become a most important factor in the spelter output.

The character of the management and the careful economy in mining procedure are beyond criticism and point to large possibilities in profit-sharing.

Mother Spurns $50,000 Coming By Legal Flaw

BLOOMINGTON, Feb. 27.—Miss Louise Seiman of Paris is bequeathed $35,000 in the will of Miss Fannie Watson of Winnebago County, but who has resided in France for a number of years, recently dying there.

Mrs. David King Irwin of Short Hills, N.J., wo was a schoolmate of Miss Watson at an eastern college was left $5.000.

The total estate aggregates $50,000. The sum of $20,000 was divided among a number of friends of the testatrix in Paris.

SAVED LIFE IN RUNAWAY.

Miss Seiman, who was willed one half of the estate, is a French woman, who was an intimate friend of Miss Watson. On one occasion she saved the life of the latter in a runaway accident and the bequest is an appreciation of the heroic action made at the imminent risk of her own life.

Mrs. Charlotte Watson, mother of the testatrix who was cut off without a penny, waived all claim and asked that the will be admitted to probate. Due to the fact that one of the witnesses refused to swear that Miss Watson was of sound mind when the will was written, it was refused admittance to probate and the estate would have reverted to the mother.

DECLINES TO TAKE MONEY.

The latter, however, declined to accept the money and insisted that the testament be approved by the court and the various bequests be taken care of in accordance with the wishes of the daughter.

With the magnanimous action of the mother, the court agreed to probate the will and the legatees in France will soon be in receipt of the money.

CARTRIDGE MAKING MACHINERY SENT BY JAPAN IS IN MEXICO

DE FACTO GOVERNMENT ALSO EXPECTS TO MANUFACTURE ITS OWN ARTILLERY AMMUNITION.

MEXICO, CITY, Feb. 28.—The cartridge making machinery purchased from Japan is being unloaded at Manzanillo from the steamship Kotchiro Maru and soon will be put in operation. Two hundred Japanese experts accompanied the shipments in order to set up the machinery and operate it.

It is hoped by the government that this machinery will make Mexico independent of other countries for ammunition.

The machinery was purchased through efforts of Major Carpio, of General Obregon's staff, who went to Japan several months ago.

It will be necessary to rebuild the piers at Manzanillo in order to land the machinery.

The government is expected also to purchase machinery for the manufacture of artillery ammunition.

Decided increases in the export duties on crude oil and its products are provided for in a decree outlined by the Department of Fomento, and now awaiting the signature of General Carranza.

According to the decree the tax will be graduated according to the specific gravity of the oil. Oil of a higher gravity than .94 will be taxed eighty centavos a ton and lighter oil will pay 10 centavos additional for each degree less than .94. A tax of five per cent on the commercial value will be placed on refined products, which now pay no export tax. The present tax of sixty centavos a ton on crude oil for Mexican consumption is abrogated. A tax of 120 centavos is placed on all oil wasted at new wells. The proposed decree is intended to become effective July 1. The present export tax of sixty centavos a ton without regard to gravity.

It is believed the tax will increase the government's revenues largely, but oil men say it will make it difficult for Mexican products to compete with foreign companies on kerosene and gasoline and other derivatives.

Asks Leave to Prosecute Alleged Potato Combine

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—The operations of the New Brunswick potato exchange have been creating a great deal of interest in Ottawa in view of the rapid rise in the price of that commodity, and the direct charge of "combine" which was made at the Ottawa investigation into the cost of that commodity by Mr. W. F. O'Connor, K.C., the Cost of Living Commissioner.

As a result of that charge and the inquiries which he has made himself, Mr. O'Connor has applied to the Attorney-General of New Brunswick for leave to institute criminal proceedings against the New Brunswick Potato Exchange and the members of that exchange individually.

As soon as leave has been granted action will be taken by Mr. O'Connor.

The price of potatoes quoted by the New Brunswick Exchange is around $3.25 per bag. In Ottawa on Saturday they were quoted at $3 and upwards wholesale.

It is understood that Hon. B. F. Smith, Minister of Public Works in the New Brunswick Cabinet, is a member of the potato exchange, so that he will be one of those prosecuted. Mr. Smith was one of those who survived after the general election in that province, on Saturday. He is the most prominent opponent of Mr. F. B. Carvell in New Brunswick.

HELD FOR $4.

The allegation is made that large supplies of potatoes are being held in New Brunswick in anticipation of an increase of price to $4, but a bomb shell fell amongst the dealers on Friday when the cables announced that Lloyd-George had fixed the price in England at $1.17 a bag. Unquestionably this will affect the market here, and Mr. O'Connor's action against the New Brunswick Exchange is sure to provide valuable information as to how the price was run up and what figure was paid the producers.

Bail-Jumper From Southern States is Caught in Kitchener

DETECTIVE'S LONG CHASE ENDS WHEN HE REGISTERS AT HOTEL THERE.

KITCHENER, Feb. 27.—An important arrest was made here by Federal Detective Arthur Barney of Buffalo, when he took into custody M. W. Cosart of New Orleans, La., wanted down south for having jumped his bail while waiting for his trial on a charge of fraudulently using mails in disposal of some oil stock, of which he was promoter.

The detective had a long chase, as Cosart zig-zagged through the western states before coming to Canada, and not until he reached Kitchener was the pursuer successful. The detective, who arrived this morning registered at the Walper House, and found his man registered at the same hotel. Constable Blevins assisted in the arrest. The prisoner waived extradition, and left with the detective to-night for the United States.

The town council of a small Scotch community met to inspect a site for a new hall. They assembled at a chapel and as it was a warm day a member suggested that they should leave their coats there.

"Some one can stay behind and watch them," suggested another.

"What for?" demanded a third. "If we are all going out together, what need is there for anyone to watch the clothes?"—Tid-Bits.

Situation in Regard To Quaker Oats And Canadian Cereal Milling Companies

The Lindsay Warder says:

The destruction of the Quaker Oats plant at Peterborough in December last, quite materially affected the market of cereal products. Ever since that time there has been a very considerable amount of speculation as to what steps the company would take to meet their Canadian trade, as it was well-known that the Saskatoon mills were not capable of meeting the enormously increased demand, even if the freight rates to points east had not made this an impossibility. Some time ago it was announced that the company had purchased the plant of the Sudbury Milling Co., at Sudbury, Ont. This plant had a daily capacity of 1,000 bbls. of flour, but was not equipped for the manufacture of oats meal. Still later the company purchased a 300 bbl. mill at Neepawa, Man. The latest move in the campaign to once against place the business on a working basis was announced. A few days ago, when Mr. Jamieson, of the Canadian Cereal and Flour Mills Company, whose sales offices are in Toronto announced that his company had sold the Quaker Oats Company their 400 bbl. mill at London Ont.

Quaker Oats Brand Changes Hands.

One of the greatest items of interest in connection with this sale is that the Canadian Cereal Company also sold all the rights to manufacture and sell their well-known brand Tillson's Oats. This brand will in future be manufactured by the Quaker Oats Company. Not that the Canadian Cereal Company contemplates going out of the oatmeal business.

They still have a large mill at Tilsonburg of 500 bbls. capacity to look after this end of their business as well as other mills at other points in Ontario. The money derived from this sale will be used to operate one of two idle plants at Tilsonburg and Lindsay. Which of these plants will be opened will depend on the amount of assistance offered by the municipality in which the plants are located.

Peterborough Plant.

As far as is yet known no action has been taken relative to the possible re-opening of the Peterborough plant. Officials of the company will not commit themselves on this point, but are ready to state that with the purchase of these three mills in conjunction with what assistance may be obtained from the Saskatoon plant, they are able to handle the present business. Of course it is to be noted that while this is a heavy using season for cereal products, it is not the heaviest from the standpoint of the manufacturers, as most of the large jobbers have stocked fairly heavily for the winter trade. It remains, therefore, to be seen what action will be taken to meet the demand of the busier business season.

No Embargo On Potatoes

According to the Department of Agriculture—Exports Continue

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—The report that the Government has decided to place an embargo on the export of potatoes from the Dominion lacks foundation, according to the Department of Agriculture. While it is understood that the question of the potato shortage has occupied the attention of the Government, it is stated that no such decision as that outlined in the report had been reached. Whether action will be taken at a later stage is no known.

Large quantities of potatoes from the Maritime Provinces have been finding their way to Cuba, while consumers in Central Canada have been paying $3 to $5 a bag for this household necessity. It may be that something will be done to curtail this export, but it is not considered likely that an embargo will be instituted excepting as a last resort.

Now that the New Brunswick elections are over, the Government may take some action toward controlling prices charged by the New Brunswick potato exchange.

Bathe Internally And Keep Well!

Nature has mightily equipped us all, old and young, to resist disease—but she requires that we give her a chance.

We give her no chance if we permit the Lower Intestines to be more or less clogged with accumulated waste. Yet that is a universal condition to-day, as is proven by the number of laxative drugs that are consumed.

You can help Nature in Nature's most effectual way by Internal Bathing, and in an easy, non-habit-forming way keep the Intestines as sweet and clean as Nature demands it to be for perfect health and surer defence against contagion. Over half a million keen, bright, healthy people testify to its results.

"Take From Dr. Blank, Too"

In an infant class in a south end Sunday school last Sunday, the lesson brought up the idea of infants. One little girl felt her share in the subject and said:

"Please teacher, we have got a new baby at our house."

"And who brought it?"

Dr. Blank.

Another little tot was quick to appreciate the situation and exclaimed:

"You get yours from Dr. Blank! We take from Dr. Blank, too."

A ZIGZAG RAILWAY.

First Means of Crossing the Blue Mountains of Australia.

In looking back over the history of the original settlement at Sydney, at first it seems strange that the base of the Blue Mountains, a plateau 3,000 feet in height and a day's ride from the coast, should mark the edge of known land for twenty-five years after civilization.

There are, however, good reasons for this seeming lack of enterprise. The Blue Mountains, though not lofty, are broad, and constitute a formidable barrier. There are no long valleys heading in practicable passes and furnishing access from the east and the west; the stream heads are boxes inclosed by walls, and it was only when the narrow divides were chosen for causeways that the passage of the mountain was successfully accomplished.

The famous "zigzags" of the first railroad, now replaced by a dozen expensive tunnels required for the precipitous descent of 2,000 feet, give even the casual tourist an impression of the ruggedness of the plateau; and when one is led out onto one of a hundred flat-topped promontories and gazes down into canyons whose walls may be scaled only by an experienced mountaineer and looks out over a tangle of canyons and cliffs and tables at lower levels, he realises that "magnificent scenery" for the present generation must have been "disheartening obstacles' to the scout in search of tillable land.

It is as if the only feasible crossing of the Appalachians which confined the American colonists to the coastal belt were through the most rugged portion of West Virginia rather than along the Mohawk or through the Cumberland Gap.—National Geographic Magazine.

THE KAISER AS HE REALLY IS

A Physical Wreck, Who Believes the War Was Lost to Prussia in the Battle of Jutland

The German Emperor is a physical wreck and is constantly under the influence of morphia and cocaine, according to Edgar M. Moore, a real estate dealer of Lafayette, Ind., who returned recently from Germany and is stopping in New York city. Mr. Moore, because of the story he tells regarding the Kaiser, which he obtained from Otto Helmuth, the chauffeur of Wilhelm II., has asked that his New York address be withheld according to the New York Herald.

Mr. Moore was in Germany with his wife, an invalid, about three weeks ago and says:—

"The German Emperor is considered to be a madman, even in Germany. He is hopelessly addicted to the use of drugs because of chronic ailments in the throat and ear, which cause constant pain. The Emperor spends most of his time in the royal palace at Potsdam. He believes Germany lost the war in the battle of Jutland and his most intimate advisers believe that the country must make peace by July. The Emperor's one hope is that the submarines will starve England and that peace overtures will come first from Great Britain. He does not care whether America enters the war, believing it immaterial."

Mr. Moore's passports show that he was permitted to enter Germany via Rotterdam and Simplefeld on the day after Christmas. He went abroad because Mrs. Moore had an ailment which could be treated successfully only in the baths at Aachen, which is a short distance from the Holland frontier, and because his wife's condition was serious he was allowed to take her there following a recommendation to that effect by a German surgeon attached to the German consulate in Rotterdam.

CHATS WITH CHAFFEUR.

Mrs. Moore was sent to a Sanatorium. She speaks German like a native, her husband said. After the baths she was placed in a wheel chair and passed hours on a verandah of the hospital. Next to her on the porch for several days was Helmuth, the Kaiser's personal chauffeur for the last eight years. Because of exposure Helmuth suffered an attack of inflammatory rheumatism, which has rendered him helpless, and on the personal order of the German Empress the chauffeur was placed in the baths at Aachen.

"Helmuth did not think for an instant that my wife was other than a German woman and during the long morning hours that their wheel chairs were side by side he talked freely of his most interesting master, the German Emperor," Mr. Moore continued. "He said that the Kaiser is in constant dread of assassination and for that reason he takes the utmost precautions when travelling. There are three automobiles in his retinue. First there is an automobile with four aided in it, a chauffeur and riding with the chauffeur is a soldier with a gun and fixed bayonet. Then comes a huge automobile of the limousine type, and on either side of it, fore and aft, are the imperial arms. An armed guard sits on the front seat beside the driver, while a wax imitation of the Kaiser in uniform sits in the enclosed portion of the car. The third automobile is a small gray one. The Kaiser rides in it alone. There is a trunk tied beside the driver and another strapped on the rear, making it appear that the gray automobile is only a baggage van.

"Helmuth said that the road is cleared in advance for the Kaiser's retinue, and that especially while suffering pain the Kaiser drives at a speed exceeding a mile a minute. He also is very irritable when his ear causes pain ,and he and his ear and throat physician, who is one of his aids, are constantly quarreling over the enormous quantities of cocaine and morphine which the imperial patient insists upon every day. The Kaiser carries a hypodermic syringe with him and often 'slips' an injection when his physician is not looking, Helmuth said.

"LAST HOPE GONE."

"The chauffeur told my wife of the manner in which the Kaiser received the news of the Jutland defeat. They were driving in the vicinity of Potsdam at the time, and a staff officer in a powerful automobile overtook the imperial cars, which halted. The Kaiser read a telegram which the staff officer handed to him and his face clouded. 'My God!' he said, 'my last hope is truly gone!' The Emperor believed that the German fleet could destroy the British fleet, and that with her food and munitions problems solved Prussia could win the war. Helmuth said that his royal master had never been the same since receiving that news.

"Helmuth heard many things, because frequently officers would discuss matters with the Kaiser while they stood beside his automobile. The Emperor does not do very much of the actual directing of the campaign, and consultations with him are largely perfunctory. The one thing he insists on is that proper etiquette shall be shown him at all times. If he desired to go to Potsdam to Frankfort by motor, Helmuth said, the road would be cleared for him. But en route he might change his mind and stop in some village. If the Burgomaster is not there to greet him he is apt to be offended, and, therefore, all village officials and all troops en route are kept waiting and the soldiers at attention until the royal cortege passes. The Emperor is gradually growing worse physically. An internal sore above his ear is the cause of his trouble, and when the sore is open he gets relief, but if it closes he suffers tortures, takes drugs and often acts like an insane man. He finds some satisfaction in speeding when in pain and often will drive all night rather than lie sleepless in the palace.

"Lately he has been practically confined to Potsdam. Helmuth said reports are frequently given out on the western front that the Kaiser is on the eastern front and vice versa, just for the purpose of keeping up the spirit of the men. His chauffeur said that he was in the Champagne district of France more than eighteen months ago, and that since then he has not seen a battlefield except on one trip to Austria."

The Kaiser is pitied in Germany by the people, according to Mr. Moore. They do not believe he started the war; they lay the blame for the most part on the Deutsches Bank and on financiers and men with large shipping interests.

THE FOOD QUESTION.

"Much of my time was idle in Aachen," Mr. Moore continued. "I (speak German) and spent some of it in motion picture houses and in public houses, where I talked with many soldiers. One was a Cincinnati German-American. They believe they are defeated and are most eager for peace. Reports have it that the civilian population is starving, so that the soldiers may have full stomachs, but they are not true. This German-American told me that seven months ago the rations were cut exactly in half. I stopped at a hotel which cost me $5 a day, and here is the menu I had every day:

"Breakfast, two small pieces of dark bread made of wood pulp and Kaiser-kaffee, or coffee, made of acorns and oats. Luncheon consisted of a small apple, a glass of dunkle beer (beer without malt or hops in it), pancake made out of a chemically prepared flour with no wheat in it, and at dinner I had two small potatoes, a small dish of spinnach, and once I had a small orange for desert by paying a mark extra for it. There is no bread allowed in a German home, except for the one meal—breakfast—and that isn't really bread."

Mr. Moore also said that Von Hindenburg is no longer a national hero.

"The women hate him," he said, "and call him the butcher. They have discovered that he has uselessly sacrificed the lives of thousands of men by his methods of fighting. The victories he won have all been dear in human blood. The campaign into Roumania was undertaken for the sole purpose of getting food. They knew that Roumania was a great granary, but when the German troops arrived there they found the grain either had been destroyed or that oil had been poured on it. All the oil soaked grain was sent back to Germany, where an attempt was made to feed the hogs with it, but the hogs wouldn't eat it; then it was cleaned and the oil used, but the grain was hopelessly ruined."

Mr. Moore was in Dusseldorf one day when there was a food riot. More than one thousand women went to the Burgomaster and demanded food.

"He told them in an address that he had no food." said Mr. Moore," that victory was in sight and that further sacrifices must be made. One woman, acting as spokesman, shouted that they had given the lives of their sons, brothers and fathers, and were themselves starving. The Burgomaster ordered them to disband, threatening to call the troops. The leading women laughed and said they all wanted to be shot. The troops were ordered out—three companies of infantry. They were not strong enough to force the women from the square, so they were ordered to shoot into the crowd. This they refused to do.

SAVING THE MEN.

"At the beginning of the war refusal to obey such military order meant death, but Germany has learned to conserve her men where she can. Instead of shooting these men who refused to murder their own wives, sisters and mothers, they were punished by being sent at once into the trenches of Russia, near Riga. Soldiers told me that that meant almost certain death, either from bullets or from pneumonia or freezing to death. The thermometer in those trenches stays thirty and forty degrees below zero week in and week out this time of the year. The leaving of those troops for the Russian front next day was one of the most pathetic sights I ever saw."

Mrs. Moore was treated in Aachen by Dr. van Rey, who is in charge of thirty-eight military hospitals there. These hospials are all filled with wounded. In one there are 3000 men blind, while in another there are 4,000 men who were driven insane by shell fire, Mr. Moore said. On January 18 last medical inspectors went through the other hospitals. Any man who could stand after being patched up was sent again to the trenches.

"My wife's physician was very anxious to get some real news of how the outside world regarded the war," he said. "He told me that he knew the glowing accounts of victories, etc., and of revolts in India and Ireland were fiction and he wanted the truth. I told him I was a stranger in a strange land and that I didn't care to talk. After he promised that 'what I said shouldn't be used against me' I told him a few things that made his eyes open. Then he told me some things, one of which was that Germany did not care whether America got in the war or not. The physician said that the indemnity that America could claim would be so small as to be unworthy of consideration. He also told me that the war party was playing its last card with the submarines, and he was positive that England could be starved.

"I believe that when the German people realize that they cannot starve England by sinking ships they will demand of the ruling classes that the war shall cease. While I did not hear it openly, there were covert hints that the present might be the last Kaiser, and it wouldn't surprise me if Germany, after the war, became a republic. The Crown Prince isn't at all popular with the people because of his militaristic and autocratic spirit."

Haig's Forces Push Forward

REVIEW OF THE OPERATIONS.

London, Feb. 27.—The Germans are still retreating beyond the Ancre and the British are still pressing forward swiftly. The troops of General Gough's corps have now established themselves in Ligny, just one mile south of Bapaume and the latter stronghold is expected to fall into their hands at any moment. It is highly probable that the German troops have already evacuated Bapaume.

North of Serre, on the right wing of the British lines on the Ancre, Gough's forces pushed forward and captured the western and northern defences of Puisieux, while to the southwest of Ligny the village of Le Barque was also occupied.

These operations represent an advance by the British of nearly a mile on both flanks of the Ancre-Somme line. The latest reports indicate that there is no halt in the German withdrawal as yet.

BRITISH OFFICIAL REPORT.

The British official comunication issued to-night says:

"We have made further progress north and south of the Ancre. During the night we captured the village of Le Barque. To-day we occupied Ligny and established ourselves in the western and northern defences of Puisieux.

MORE SUCCESSFUL RAIDS.

"We raided the enemy's position this morning southward of Lens and destroyed a number of dugouts and machine gun emplacements and took a few prisoners. Another successful raid was carried out by our troops during the night east of Armentieres on a front of a half mile. Three lines of hostile trenches were entered, and considerable damage was done the enemy's defences. We captured seventeen prisoners and brought back searchlights and a machine gun.

"Artillery activity has continued on both sides north and south of the Somme."

Lakefield Protests Over Train Service

It is understood that Lakefield's Council and Board of Trade have protested to the Railway Commission that the G.T.R. service is entirely inadequate since the recent cancellation of several trains. On two days last week the Toronto mails missed the transfer in Peterborough, causing considerable inconvenience.

FISH IS THE BASIS FOR SEVERAL DISHES

If Preferred, Smoked Fish May be Chopped up and Served in Salad.

SMOKED WHITEFISH.

Wipe the fish well, place under the broiler, and broil a small fish for five minutes on one side and then five on the other. Take up, remove skin, take off fillets carefully—that is, take off each side, leaving the bone—butter these, and serve with lemon juice.

Since the fish is as moist as need be, much more so than that of herring, it is not necessary to butter the outside before heating it. It may be flaked and used variously as a hot appetizer and flaked and well buttered and seasoned with a bit of cayenne, or it may be surrounded with a border of boiled rice and hard boiled egg yolk riced over the whole for a kedgeree.

BRANDADE.

About four years ago, the thing that excited my attention most in the restaurants of Marseilles, France, was a white mound of something looking like whipped cream, piled on a plate. This seemed to be the favourite dish there with which to begin a luncheon. It was of salt codfish or "morue," and here is the recipe I worked out for it from a cook book of that old city and other French sources:

Take one pound of perfectly soaked and boiled codfish middle, four to twelve tablespoons of olive oil (boiled cream or milk may be used instead), two tablespoonfuls of cream if oil is used, one clove of garlic, the juice of one lemon, a bit of cayenne pepper, and other seasoning to taste. Cut the thoroughly soaked codfish in many pieces, and put it on to poach (this means to simmer gently, not boil), for fifteen minutes after it comes to boiling point. Drain, take out bones, put in a mortar or wooden bowl, and pound until shredded into the finest of little silver fibres. Heat the garlic in a little of the oil and remove before adding the fish. A finely chopped onion may be just sweated in this oil as well, but the garlic is necessary if we would have the real provencale flavour. Put the fish in the hot oil and stir it constantly over the fire, adding the rest of the oil little by little, alternately with the cream. Stir and beat until it stands up like whipped cream.

The French either salt their "morue" or codfish less than we, or soak it longer, so that when ready to cook it is soft and white. For this reason probably we could make a better brandade of fresh codfish, salting to taste, than with the salt, but I have never done it this way. The inexperienced will undoubtedly get a better blend by using boiled cream instead of oil, especially if she has not a mortar in which to pound the codfish to the finest shreds. This makes a pretty thing for a party luncheon.

CANNED SHAD.

As the shad season approaches bargains in canned shad are likely to be offered. Of course, this is much off from the fresh as to flavour and daintiness, but it can be made acceptable by taking it out of the can carefully, sprinkling over it fle slices of little new onions and squeezed lemon juice over it, with chopped parsley and other seasonings. Let the shad so prepared stand for an hour or considerably more to marinate, then put on a tin plate and heat up under the broiler. Serve with plain or prepared butters and quarters of lemon.

HERRING APPETIZERS.

Brush herring cut into small strips with lemon juice and melted butter, and heat thoroughly. Garnish with parsley and lemon.

SMOKED FISH SALAD.

Heat up two or three smoked fish on each side, on a stove cover or iron plate over the gas, take off the skins, cut off the heads, split fish, remove the bones, and cut into small square pieces. Mix with these a bit of hashed onion, a chopped hard boiled egg or two, a cold potato cut in small pieces, and a freshly cooked beet cut up small and mixed with the other ingredients or sliced and served as a garnish. Add a little chopped parsley if liked, and serve with a French or cooked dressing. Daintily made, this is not so bad; coarsely put together it is coarse food.

JUVENILE ASYLUM NEEDED.

Mental Defectives Hamper Work of Children's Aid Society.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—That the Children's Aid Society must not be turned into a juvenile asylum for mentally defective children if the society is to fulfil to the utmost limit its duty in bringing about a higher scale of social life, was the note struck at the 25th annual meeting of the society yesterday afternoon.

Mr. J. K. Macdonald, the president, pointed out that the society was obliged to care for so many backward children that other branches of the work suffered. None of these children could be placed in foster homes, so remained a permanent care. He stated that a clause in the statute of the society prohibiting demented children from being taken into the institution, had been expunged. The Provincial Secretary will be asked to have the clause reinserted.

The following as officers of the society were elected for 1917: President, Mr. J. K. Macdonald; Vice-Presidents, Dr. W. Harley Smith, R. S. Baird, Dr. T. Millman, Hon. Thos. Crawford, Mr. C. V. VanNorman; Treasurer, Mr. A. M. Campbell.

HAS TWENTY MILLIONS AND HE CAN'T EAT

Picture the plight of a man with $20,000,000 and no appetite! That is the sad situation of James Buchanan Brady, New York millionaire sportsman, whose diamonds and idiosyncrasies have kept him in the limelight for years.

That he has been ordered to forgo dancing, the stock ticker and all other exciting diversions until his nerves are restored and his heart is functioning as nearly right as it ever will, by the Manhatton specialists who sent him here for rest, is the least of the troubles of "Diamond Jim."

He cannot eat! That is the tragedy which o'ershadows all other considerations for James Buchanan Brady. He confessed it to his friend, Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, while they breakfasted at the Shelburne. Hitchcock ate heartily Brady's rising repast comprised a cup of hot water and two health biscuits.

Time was when "Diamond Jim" Brady could sit down and punish a steak two inches in thickness, two or three dozen oysters, a great dish of chicken salad and various other things. And he did it for years, until the inevitable happened — his stomach went back on him. "Diamond Jim" went to Johns Hopkins Hospital, in Baltimore, where Doctor Young deftly extracted his stomach, pronounced the professional opinion that it had been worked to death, gave it such scientific treatment as he could and put it back into place again.

On Strike Again.

It showed signs of being nearly as good as new and Brady was so grateful that he gave the doctor a fee of $100,000, three motor cars in successive years, and finally a very handsome mansion in Baltimore. But surgical science has limitations. The Brady digestive machinery went on strike again, his nervous system is out of kelter, and his heart is behaving so badly that the doctors have told him exactly what he may expect if their mandates are not met to the letter.

More Power at Less Cost

Both Series "18" Studebaker FOUR and Series "18" Studebaker SIX are noted for their great power, and especially their great power in ratio to their very low consumption of gasoline.

It has taken Studebaker four years to improve, refine and perfect the wonderful Studebaker motor. It has been solved through the experience of 250,000 cars in the hands of owners. It is only through an evolution like this, that perfection of power in ratio to fuel consumption can possibly be developed.

There are no secret processes; no basic patents; no features of design that are unknown or prohibited by patents. The Engineer can use what he wishes, but he can only know how to use the best features by continually improving, refining and perfecting—through the experience of a motor in actual service.

This is why Studebaker can truthfully claim that the design of its motor is unsurpassed in simplicity, accessibility and power. By the refinement of reciprocating parts, vibration has been reduced to an almost unobservable minimum.

The bearing areas of the motor have been enlarged and increased, giving greater durability, more strength, still further insuring smooth, vibrationless operation.

But you cannot appreciate the splendid POWER of the Studebaker car until you TRY it.

EMBARGO MAY BRING APPLES DOWN QUICKLY

MONTREAL, Feb. 27. — Wholesale produce men have an encouraging word for the housewives, the price of apples is coming down, and it will come down perhaps with a thump.

The decision of the British authorities to prohibit the importation of apples into the United Kingdom in order that the ships can be used for war purposes, will leave 65 per cent. of the Canadian apple crop with out a market. And consequently apples will be sold cheaper in Canada. Whether they will be cheaper right away is a matter upon which produce men are divided. Some think there will be a drop in price very quickly; others say the price will not go down until next year, when the new crop is on the market. "Then," one produce man said, "you will see a glut of apples on the market, and they will be cheap."

For every hundred apples grown in Canada last year 65 went to England. England has been the principle outlet for Canadian apples. One estimate places the exportation of Canadian apples to the United Kingdom this year at a quarter of a million barrels.

One fruit merchant expressed his opinion on the situation in this way: "The effect of the British regulations will not be felt in Canada to any great extent until after the taking in of the next apples crop. At the present time very few apples are being exported because there are few in the country. For some time now we have not been able to do much exporting because of the shortage of steamers, but if the British market is not open to us next year, you can be certain that Canadian apples next year will be brought here for next to nothing.

While fruit growers are anxious about a possible decline in the price of apples, the house holders regards the down ward movement as a silver lining behind the dark cloud of the high cost of living. He hopes there were more such silver linings.

Jilted, Girl Says, Punching Broker

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Charged with disorderly conduct in the brokerage office of Arthur H. Goodwin in the Ansonia Hotel, Miss Pearl Lincoln, twenty-three years old, of No. 244 West Seventy-sixth street, was arrested and taken to West Side Court. Mr. Goodwin testified that she had struck him in the face before several customers in his office and that he had held her until a clerk could bring a policeman. Miss Lincoln admitted the blow and said she had formerly been employed as secretary by Mr. Goodwin and that she had resigned after he had promised to marry her. The promise was not kept, she says. She exhibited a ring which she said Mr. Goodwin had given her.

Mr. Goodwin denied her statements asserting that she knew he was already married and that she had been annoying him by calling at the office and by telephoning him. Magistrate Corrigan, in placing Miss Lincoln under $100 peace bond for six months told her that the civil courts were open if she had any grievance against Mr. Goodwin, but that she must not annoy him.

Several Deaths Reported In Havelock and Vicinity

A Number of Well Known Residents Have Passed Away Within the Past Month—Havelock Items of Interest

HAVELOCK, Feb. 28.— Mrs. Wm. McMillan, Sr., of Belmont, passed away at the age of 65 years. She leaves her husband and family of four sons William, James, Fred and Robert, all of Belmont. "BRINGING UP FATHER IN POLITICS"—Here for two performances Friday next.

Not even excepting the famous Floradora Sextette, has there ever been gathered together in one musical comedy company, such a galaxy of beautiful women, as is to be seen in Gus Hill's stage presentation of George McManus' newspaper cartoon piece, "Bringing Up Father in Politics," which is scheduled for appearance at "The Grand" for matinee and evening next Friday, March 2. Their matchless beauty is augmented by costumes from the emporiums of Worth of Paris, Hayden and Mme. Rhue, both of New York, who were given carte blanche to dress these women in the latest costume creations. This special feature of the production is calculated to attract the women, and place before their eyes the very has there ever been gathered together in one musical com-

MAID THREW GEMS WORTH THOUSANDS INTO THE STREET

POLICE ARRESTED THE FINDER AND LOCKED HIM UP—ONE DIAMOND MISSING.

(From the New York Herald.)

If this yarn could be spun in the films a director with a sense of humor would call it "Coincidences;" but since it must be written for an incredulous public it goes its way nameless, in proof of the old verity that fact is, after all, so interesting that it isn't worth while to lie any more.

On the morning of January 3 a maid with a determined pair of arms shook the bedclothes under which Mrs. Rose Tabor, of Rochester, N. Y., had slept the night before from the open window of the apartment of Mr. Emanuel Tabor, at No 251 West Eighty-ninth street, and when she did she shook into the street two jewel boxes containing about $7,000 in jewels and cash.

One of the jewel boxes struck a hard-working coal man on the head, raising a bump and filling him with pained indignation, until he saw what hit him, when only his active out-of-door life prevented him from naturally passing into the land yonder. He took the jewels in this box—the dinner ring— and the cash and gave it to the elevator man in the apartment. The elevator man, hearing screams which were then attending the discovery of the jewelery's loss, had no difficulty in determining where they came from.

VALUABLE CONTENTS.

Now for the other jewels and cash. The jewel box which lay in the street containing a ring worth $5,000, a roll of currency containing $165 and some other pieces. As it lay there the deity in control of the machinations and coincidences caused William McDonald, delivery man for a grocery firm, to drive by, and caused his eyes to rest on the package. He alighted, opened the box, and, it is hoped, gasped. Anyway, he drove back to the store and showed the rich find to a young woman who works there.

"Oh," she said. "Arn't they wonderful- I'll bet my brother could sell them. He sells jewelery sometimes."

"Could he?" asked McDonald. "Then see what he can do," and he passed the jewelry over to the young woman.

She gave the jewelery to her brother, who cast one astonished glance at it and determined that his customers were too modest to bid for it. But said he knew two brothers who worked for a big Broadway clothing firm who knew rich men and women who could buy that jewelery, and, if McDonald was agreeable, he would see if they wanted to buy it or knew any one who did.

McDonald was agreeable and the jewelery was shown the brothers. They gazed with open eyes and asked the brother of the young woman to bring it to the store in the afternoon. That was on the fourth. While waiting his arrival the two brothers spoke of the jewelery to other members of the store force and the chief buyer of the concern overheard them. He said he wanted to buy jewelery for his wife, if he could get a bargain, and it was agreed that when the man with the jewels arrived he would be brought to the buyer, whose name, by the way is, Emanuel Tabor. It was from his apartment the jewels were tossed by the athletic maid, and he had just finished a session with the police describing the jewels.

OWNER IDENTIFIES JEWELS

The brother of the young woman arrived with the jewels. He showed them to Mr. Tabor, who, on the pretext of showing them to his wife, took them home and had them positively identified by Mrs. Rose Tabor, his sister-in-law. She identified them and marked the occasion by swooning.

The jewels were brought back and the police were notified. They counselled care and suggested that Mr. Tabor enter into negotiations with the man who had the jewels So. Mr. Tabor communicated with the two brothers who work for the firm he is with. They communicated with the brother of the girl who works in the store with McDonald. He told his sister. She told McDonald.

The result was that by arrangement Mr. Tabor met McDonald in a cafe on Columbus Circle with Detective George O'Connor nearby. The dinner ring of his sister-in-law was shown Mr. Tabor. He examined it carefully.

"Say," he said, "that doesn't look like a diamond. There was a fine two and a quarter diamond in the centre of the ring. This is glass."

McDonald groaned.

BLAMED A FRIEND.

"Now I know I was stung," he said. "I showed this ring to a friend who said he knew a man who wanted to buy just such a ring, and he took it for two days and then returned it and said the friend didn't want it. He must have changed the diamond."

At this appropriate moment, Detective O'Connor arrested McDonald and locked him up. Now the detective and other detectives are seeking the friend to whom McDonald gave the ring, and when they find him they will seek from him information that will identify his friend, who they believed, changed the diamond, which in parlance is known as the gentle art of "switching."

McDonald returned everything, including the cash. He says he wasn't trying to be dishonest, but that he found this stuff and wanted to sell it, not knowing to whom it belonged. The whole trouble was, he says, that the stuff he found was too good for anyone he knew to buy, or if they bought it to wear without changing their mode of life.

HON. DR. BELAND IS CONFINED IN CELL EIGHT BY TEN FEET

ENGLISHMAN JUST BACK FROM GERMANY BRINGS NEWS OF CANADIAN M. P.

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—A cable to the Evening Telegram from its special correspondent, says:

"I have seen C. H. Mellor, an Englishman, just returned from Germany, where he was confined in the next cell to that of Hon. Dr. Beland, former postmaster-general of Canada. He reports the Canadian doctor well and regularly receiving parcels sent, but depressed by his long confinement. The doctor's cell is about eight by ten feet, and the only furniture is a wire mattress, bed and bedding, and a wooden stool. He is shut in there every night from 7 p. m. until 9 next morning. He is allowed to exercise in the day in a 70 foot corridor and a small prison yard, where a number of criminals are exercising. The cell is clean and comfortably heated, and is well lighted.

A HARSH MEASURE.

"The prison commandant is kind and considerate. Nevertheless, the confinement of the ordinary prison is declared by the returned man to be much harder than in an internment camp, where the latter was previously, and a very harsh measure.

"Sir George Perley is informed, and it is hoped by Canadians here, that Premier Borden will make fresh efforts to ameliorate the condition of the doctor's imprisonment, which has been such for over two years.

"The returned prisoner states that the food situation in Germany is very bad. A German soldier from the front was astonished to behold sandwiches, white bread and meat, which was in the Englishman's parcel from home, and was delighted to accept one. He thought England was starving. The same soldier declared that Germans in the trenches had meat only twice weekly."

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and one said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—and a sure to be sure, I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

The 247th Battalion team will go to Hamilton on Friday with a lead of six goals, which should be enough to carry them through the intermediate O. H. A. semi-finals into the final clash for the silverware with the Kitchener outfit. The soldiers won the first game of the semi-finals at Brock Street Rink handily last night by 9 goals to 3 and after the first fifteen minutes were as much the better team as the figures indicate. They out-scored the gang from Tigertown in all three periods and smothered them completely in the second, when the soldier speed boys found the nets four times and blanked the Hams. It was 2 to 1 at the end of the first session and 6 to 1 at the close of the second.

Hamilton trotted out a clever team, with a forward line that played their positions well and passed unerringly but they failed to show as much class all round as the Depot Batteries of Kingston. They had plenty of combination, but with all their passing were forced to do their shooting from out side, while the Petes on the other hand, worked their way right in on top of Sloane for most of their goals. The Hams were dangerous in the early stages, when their close checking held the soldiers pretty well in hand, but although they had a host of shots in the first fifteen minutes they were from outside the defence and Legros blocked them easily. Then the Petes began to come on and in the second period set a pace that had the visitors' tongues hanging out. The Tigers were a badly out-played team in that session and were lucky to get off with four goals scored against them.

As in the Oshawa game the work of the Peterborough defence was superb. Legros duplicated his performance of last week, blocking drive after drive, with an accuracy and coolness that was maddening to the Hamilton outfit. Last year's junior goaler performed like a veteran and his work was magnificent all the way. In front of him the Gold Dust Twins, Halpin and Pat Flanagan, undoubtedly the smallest defence pair in the intermediate series were a stone wall. They refused to be drawn out, broke up the Hamilton combination, when the visitors tried the passing game, or sandwiched the puck carrier or chased him into the corner when the Hams attempted to come in alone. The result was that they had the visitors shooting from outside all night and with Legros performing like Vezina in the nets the long range firing practice had as much effect as the Huns' rifle fire on a British tank.

On the forward line Jack Adams starred all night. The sturdy right wing showed more speed than he has all season and his stick handling was most effective, carrying him in on top of Sloane for four pretty goals. His back checking always helped.

No better exhibition of gameness has ever been seen at Brock Street Rink than that given by Bobby Armstrong. The big boy who is the leading goal getter of the soldiers and one of the most popular boys that ever wore a Peterborough uniform, was working under a most painful handicap. In last week's game with Oshawa when Hall chopped him off his feet, Armstrong slid into the boards and tore a ligament in his shoulder. He was unable to practice all week and until yesterday afternoon it was doubtful whether he would get into last night's game at all. The first rush he made hurt the injured shoulder and he was in agony for the rest of the night. At times he was forced to play with only one arm, but in spite of the pain, he never stopped trying. He was not himself, of course, but he got two goals and with Grover Halpin pulled off the prettiest passing run of the night Armstrong stayed until the finish of the game, always battling, and then went direct from the rink to Nicholls Hospital where his injured shoulder is being treated It is hardly likely that he will be able to play the return game in Hamilton, but it is hoped to have the big fellow back in the game for the final tussle with Kitchener.

George Evans tore off some of his best rushing of the year last night and checked back splendidly as well. He had hard luck on one occasion, when he stick handled around the Hamilton defence and got clean inside only to have Sloane nail his shot. Alf Flanagan gave a good account of himself at left wing, giving Boyd, the Hamilton captain a battle along the boards. He retired in the middle of the second period when McEwen of Hamilton was hurt.

For Hamilton, Reise the big defence man who used to be a team mate of Montgomery of last year's 93rd seven, and incidentally like Montgomery, has only one good eye, was by long odds the star. He broke away time after time and tore down the ice like a wildman, but could not beat the Peterborough defence, who forced him to shoot from outside, or went into him with straight body checks that stopped him completely. Although he got away a score of times he failed to score a goal. Harold Parker, the old Peterborough boy on the defence was also good, but the close checking of the Petes gave him little chance to get away. Reid the elusive centre man was the pick of the forward. His stick handling was clever and he had a lot of speed as well, doing some great back checking.

A large crowd saw the game, including the usual delegation from Lindsay and other outside points. With the higher prices in vogue the gate receipts were the largest ever taken in at a game at Brock Street Rink, although there have been bigger crowds in the local ice box. The ice was in good condition and the game was fast all the way.

STORY OF THE PLAY.

The pace was fast from the start with the visitors pressing. They were breaking away together and Legros was early called upon to show his class. Boyd drew the first penalty, when he tripped Armstrong and was chased. Armstrong grabbed the rubber at centre and nearly scored on a pretty rush. The effort hurt his shoulder, however. Pat Flanagan was benched for tripping and a moment later his brother was banished for hooking. The Hams, however, failed to score when the two representatives of the house of Flanagan were visiting the penalty box. Although they had a dozen drives at Legros from outside the defence, the youngster in the nets handled them in grand form. It was the Petes who scored first, when Halpin got away for a pretty rush with Adams and Armstrong. The play wound up in the corner, but Adams slipped the rubber out to Armstrong who scored.

Another fast rush by Halpin found the next few minutes' play. Parker tripped him and drew a penalty. Legros made several more brilliant saves, but finally Hamilton evened up the count, when Boyd scored on a rebound from his own shot. He drove one from the boards which Legros blocked the rubber bouncing high in the air and dropping at the mouth of the nets. Before Legros could locate it, Boyd swooped in and slammed the puck into the nets. Score 1—1.

Alf Flanagan was penalised for slashing. Parker and Reise, the Hamilton defence men each drew penalties the former for tripping Armstrong and the latter for dumping Pat Flanagan, when he was inside with the rubber. Just before the end of the period Adams broke away and beat Sloane with a pretty shot after dodging through the defence. That left the soldiers 2 to 1 to the good.

The Petes had all the better of the second period. They had the edge in skating and stick handling and went at top speed all through the session. In the first minute of play Sloane saved a goal by a beautiful stop of a low shot from Armstrong. The Petes kept pressing and in three minutes Armstrong pushed the rubber into the nets on a pass from behind the citadel by Adams.

Adams cross-checked McEwen and got a three-minute penalty. The Hamilton left wing man took the count and play was stopped until he recovered. A little later McEwen got a crack over the head from Pat Flanagan and the defence man was chased to the side lines. McEwen resumed after a five-minute delay, but he was plainly groggy. When operations were resumed Evans broke inside on a neat rush, but Sloane made a fine stop. Alf Flanagan went down the side and shot from the corner for a counter. Hamilton kicked on the goal and the umpire Archie Barbeau of Peterborough was removed, Jack Bigelow of Lindsay taking his place behind the nets.

McEwen decided to retire at this stage and Alf Flanagan was dropped to even up.

When Bernhardt got the game going again, Halpin and Armstrong broke away together for the cleverest combination of the night. A series of rapid passes carried them through the defence and Armstrong handed the rubber to Halpin, when they were both inside. Sloane was completely fooled and Halpin had only to push the rubber into the net. 247th 5, Hamilton 1.

Two minutes after Evans made it 6 to 1, when he brought the rubber from behind the Hamilton nets and pushed it around the post for a counter.

Boyd was chased for tripping and Armstrong followed him for the same offence, his third penalty in eleven games; at that it was an accidental trip. The period ended with them both in the penalty box.

The Petes opened the third session at top speed and it began to look like a runaway. Two minutes from the face off, Adams ducked through the Ham's defence and beat Sloane at close range. He came right back with another similar play and although his first shot was blocked he secured the rubber behind the nets and pushed it around the post before Sloane could clear.

With the score 8 to 1 against them Hamilton rallied and for a time they kept Legros busy. He made some beautiful saves until finally Reid wiggled in close and scored. Coir was chased for tripping and Parker and Adams drew penalties for the same offense. Armstrong hurt his arm again but resumed playing. From a face off near the Peterborough nets the puck went back to Coir who scored with a quick shot.

Reid tripped Armstrong and was gated. A little later Adams again got away for a beautiful rush that carried him inside for a close range goal, which wound up the scoring. Soon after Adams was penalized for tripping. There was only half a minute left when the referee and there were no further developments.

So Inconsiderate.— An old Scotch woman who, at considerable personal inconvenience, had gone a good way to visit a friend who was ill, learned on her arrival that the alarming symptoms had subsided. "An' hoo are ye the day, Mrs. Crawford?" she inquired, in breathless anxiety. "Oh, I'm nearly well noo, thank ye, Mrs. Graham." "Nearly well!" exclaimed the breathless visitor. "After me comin' sae far to see ye, too!"

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—In answer to Polly Tower's letter, written a few nights ago, to my estimation, she does not know what she is talking about.

She says she would be willing to give orders, but will not allow others younger than herself to give orders. I should like to be able to have this opportunity for a while. She also thinks the chief objection is that every one will have to give their age, which appears that she is an old maid. Another thing which makes her appear she is an old maid is that the trench female uniform makes a person of forty-five look like a girl of sixteen. This shows she wishes to be dressed young. She thinks, too, that Mr. Burnham would look well in it.

I should like to know which would look better, her with a pair of overalls on, working on the farm, or Mr. Burnham in a costume of a girl sixteen. If the job is easy enough she is willing to go. If she wanted to go to be of service to her country she wouldn't think about her job, if it was hard or easy.

HOW CANADIAN EXPORT TRADE STANDS TO LOSE

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—Canadian export trade will be materially affected by the import restrictions which the British Premier announced yesterday as a result of conserving tonnage because of the submarine peril. Calculated on the basis of last year's exports of the affected commodities, the restrictions to be applied will cause the trade diminution to amount to upwards of thirty million dollars.

It is assumed that while importations of grain for brewing purposes is limited, the same quantities will be imported for foodstuffs.

According to the Right Hon. Lloyd George's announcement, the importation of timber is prohibited. In the twelve months which ended on the 30th of last November, the figures for which are the latest available, the export from Canada to the United Kingdom of unmanufactured wood, inclusive of timber was $13,121,368, while the manufactured product was valued at $1,296,045. The British importation of Canadian apples, also on the prohibited list, amounted to 403,252 barrels, valued at $1,296,045.

Salmon in tins, imports of which are to be reduced by half, totalled last year 35,727,823 pounds valued at $5,144,623.

Canadian exports of printing paper to the United Kingdom, which are also restricted under the new order, totalled for the twelve months mentioned 84,310,100 weights, with a value of $190,571.

The effect of the newly imposed restrictions is obvious, and they are calculated to materially deminish the export trade in the commodities mentioned. If tonnage is available, however, it is thought that the losses on these lines will be much more than compensated for by the increased export of munitions, agricultural products and frozen fish, in respect of which, apparently, no limitation is imposed.

In a purely domestic sense, the effect may be beneficial, inasmuch as there will be largely conserved for the home market the commodities whose importation into Britain from Canada as well as other countries, is now prohibited. The tendency should be towards somewhat lower prices, especially for lumber, canned salmon, and apples.

NOVA SCOTIA HARD HIT.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 27.—Nova Scotia is seriously affected by the embargo on apples and lobsters adopted by the British Government. The Dominion Government official report this week states that 55,000 barrels of apples remain in storage in Nova Scotia. The value of these, based on latest cabled reports from England, is close to a quarter of a million dollars. Space has been booked on trans-Atlantic steamers from this port for 40,000 barrels and the steamship people up to a late hour last night had received no instructions to cancel this space.

One of the steamers is already in port and another is due to arrive, in the event of the embargo prohibiting the shipment of those for which steamship space has been booked, the Nova Scotia growers will ship to the Montreal, Toronto and western markets, where there is a good demand at high figures. The difficulty, however, exists of getting sufficient suitable cars.

The apples remaining in Nova Scotia are chiefly Golden Russets, Nonpariels and Tin Davis. The latter two of these varieties will keep in good condition for at least another six weeks, and before that time the danger of frost will be well over and shipments can be more safely made to the Canadian markets.

There has been a slack demand in the local markets on account of the prevailing high prices, which were governed by the prices being obtained overseas. With lower prices the local markets would consume a large quantity of those in stock so that the embargo, as far as the present apples are concerned, does not occasion much worry on the part of the fruit growers.

The Central Association of the Co-operative Companies announce that they have no fear for the coming season and have already stocked large quantities of fertiliser and spraying materials in preparation for a crop which is anticipated will be much in excess of last autumn.

The lobster embargo is more serious than the apple embargo so far as Nova Scotia is concerned.

The pack of canned lobsters last year was 25,000 cases more than the previous year. There was an increase of lobsters shipped in the shell, and it is estimated that over five million extra pounds of lobsters were caught on the Atlantic seaboard last season. Not many of the last season's pack remain on hand. Many shipments have been made during the past four weeks. The new season will open in a few weeks and the embargo places the canners in a difficult position.

Canning material has reached an almost prohibitive price, and with the uncertainties of the situation caused by the embargo, the packers will have to adopt a cautious policy in the opening of their factories; this, in turn, affects the fishermen who look to the canneries for their principal market. Certain parts of the shore carry on an extensive business in the shipment of live lobsters to the United States market, but this business will be curtailed because of the scarcity of shipping and of seamen.

NEVER ILL A DAY AT 70; STEP UPON A TACK PROVES FATAL

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Feb. 27.—For years Darwin E. Buccy, aged 70, a Civil War veteran, boasted that he had never been ill a day in his life. The other day he stepped on a small tack. Three days later he was buried, having died of blood poisoning.

Getting Out From Under

About 25 per cent of the Jobber's Coal purchased by us in January (to keep Peterborough from freezing up), is just now coming through the blockade, together with an increased supply of D. L. & W. Coal.

Believing that the extreme scarcity has been relieved by the weather and other conditions, we are placing a few hundred tons of the Jobber's Coal in our Murray Street Yard as a margin of safety, and will pass along the balance of this coal to Towns less fortunate than Peterborough, in order to "Get Out From Under" as much of the higher priced Jobber's Coal as would be reasonably safe.

This will enable us to Reduce the Price 25 cents on One Ton Lots of Hard Coal and will increase the percentage of D. L. & W. Coal to our customers. This price is effective on all orders dated February 27th.

To those who have been disappointed in getting their supply of Coal through their regular dealers, we will reserve 200 Tons of Hard Coal at our Murray Street Yards, which will be sold at $9.25 per Ton, without delivery.

Rich Spinster Bride of Driver 27 Years Junior

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 27.—News of the marriage in Shelbyville of Miss Margaret K. Judge, a large contributor to charity through independent means, to Joseph Estill Hutchins, about 30 years old, said to have been her chauffeur for the last five years, has just become known.

Miss Judge, it is said, is about 57 years old, and knowledge of the wedding came as a complete surprise to her relatives and friends. A member of the Cathedral of the Assumption, she has long been active in Catholic circles and was formerly president of the old Catholic Woman's Club.

After taking luncheon at her home Miss Judge, Mr. Hutchins, the latter's brother, and Miss Judge's companion, Mary Flanagan, left the house in her automobile for Shelbyville.

Hurry Away on Honeymoon.

The license was procured in Shelbyville and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father John H. Riley at the rectory of the Church of the Annunciation.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple motored back to Louisville to the bride's home. Spending only a short time there, they hurried to a railway station, without telling any one of the marriage or informing relatives of where they were going to spend their honeymoon.

Mrs. Hutchins, it is said, told her companion, who has been with her for a great many years, that she would visit a school which some children in whom she was interested, attended, but neither Mary Flanagan nor relatives have yet been apprised where the couple are.

SAID TO BE WORTH $200,000.

Mr. Hutchins has been connected with Miss Judge's household for about five years, and during that time went with her about the city on her numerous charitable missions. He is a member of her church, the Cathedral of the Assumption.

Mrs. Hutchins is reputed to be the possessor of a fortune estimated at $200,000.

County Begins the Work of Restoring The Court House

At a special meeting of the County Council yesterday afternoon the Property Committee, of which Reeve Anderson of Otonabee is chairman, was authorized to proceed with the arrangements for the restoration of the Court House. The preliminary work of securing plans and other details will be undertaken at once, it was understood, and the building is expected to be well under way early in the Spring. The Council does not contemplate any departure along the suggestions that have been made in the press and at local meetings by citizens who have had visions of a combined county and city building located on Central Park.

PUT POTATOES OFF MENUS

Rice Substituted at County Hospital and Other Chicago Institutions.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Potatoes were barred to-day from the menus in the county hospital by order of the Warden, acting on recommendation of the Health Commissioner. They were dropped from the bills of fare at the municipal sanitarium the preceding day, also on recommendation of the head of the Health Department. Rice will be substituted for potatoes at each institution.

The farmer who depends upon the dealer for the replenishment of his dairy goes to a dear market.

OBITUARY

VIOLA CATHERINE DAVIDSON

Viola Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Davidson, died this morning at 6:30, aged 21.

Miss Davidson has been suffering for some time with heart trouble, but her untimely end was not looked for, and her death will come as a shock to her many friends.

She is survived by three brothers, Vincent, Harold and Stanley, at home, and two sisters, Hazel and Iris at home.

The funeral will take place on Saturday from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, 857 Water street, at 2:30. A service conducted by Rev. Mr. Peever will be held at the house at 2 o'clock.

THE LATE ARTHUR GRAHAM.

The death of Arthur Graham occurred on Tuesday, Feb. 20, aged 81 years. Deceased gentleman was one of the best known and most highly respected residents of Cavan Township. He was born on the farm now occupied by Mr. Wm. Davis, Manvers, and lived there for 45 years when he moved to the farm on which he died.

He ran a saw mill for many years and by strict attention to business built up a splendid trade.

In religion he was an Anglican, a staunch Conservative and an Orangeman. He was of a very kindly disposition and no one in need ever left his door without help, monetary or otherwise. He was a wholesouled and liberal gentleman and many will miss his cheery smile and wise counsel.

The funeral to St. Paul's cemetery, Cavan, was very largely attended, Rev. Canon Allen conducted the services at the home and grave and spoke in most praiseworthy terms of the deceased. The pallbearers were: Thos. Graham, John Mitchell, Arthur Hilliard and Floyd McMahon and James Peel.

Three brothers, Jeffrey of Cavan, and William and John in the West, are left to mourn the loss of an affectionate brother. Four sisters predeceased him.

THE LATE MRS. A. EAGLESON

Another old and highly respected resident, of Cavan Township, in the person of Mrs. Andrew Eagleson (nee Miss Mary Greer) died at her home aged 75 years. About 50 years ago she was united in marriage to her now sorrowing husband. To this happy union six sons were born, all of whom except one survive their mother. Those left to mourn the loss of an affectionate wife, mother and sister are the husband, five sons, viz: William of Rochester, Burton of Brooklyn Walter of Toronto, George and James at home; one brother; viz: James of Harriston, and three sisters. Mrs Wright of Los Angeles, Mrs. S. Herriot of Toronto, and Mrs. Wm. Harmer of Bailieboro.

Deceased lady was a Christian woman in every sense of the term, a kindly neighbour, and her passing is regretted by all her acquaintances. She was a member of the Presbyterian church, and now that her life's work is done she has been called to the better land.

The funeral on Friday was very largely attended. Rev D. A. McConnachie conducted the services at the house and grave. He spoke in the highest terms of deceased lady.

MRS. BRIDGET McKENTY.

The death occurred on February 20th of Bridget Mooney, the relict of the late Henry McKenty who predeceased her some 13 years ago.

After a week's illness, Mrs. McKenty passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Fitzgerald, Indian River, where she had been living for some time previous to her death. Mrs. McKenty was born in Antrim, Ireland 87 years ago. She came to Canada at an early age, where she settled near Madoc on a farm. Mrs. McKenty is survived by one sister, Mrs. McAteer of Marysville; four sons and four daughters, namely, John of Linwood; Daniel of Montana; Henry of Alberta; Alexander of this city; Mrs. H. Black of Campbellford; Mrs. Wm. Fitzgerald and Mrs. Thos. Cummings of Indian River and Mrs. Wm. Casey of Tweed.

The funeral took place February 22nd from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fitzgerald via C.P.R. to Madoc, where the funeral was met by a large number of her old friends and neighbours of Madoc, where the remains were taken to the Catholic church, thence to the Catholic cemetery for interment.

ELLEN O'CONNOR.

Ellen Colliton beloved wife of James O'Connor, Otonabee, died to-day after four weeks' illness.

Deceased was born in Otonabee 70 years ago, where she has resided ever since. During her life her influence as a kindly neighbour and her devotion as a mother has made for her a place which never can be filled. She is survived by five daughters, Mrs. John O'Reilley, Regina; Mrs. Timothy Murphy, Ennismore; Mrs. John Leahey, Douro; Miss Mary of Edmonton, and Miss Agnes at home; also six sons, John of Otonabee; Hugh and Martin, Medicine River and Mr. Wm. Casey of Tweed, Toronto and Stephen at home.

The funeral will take place on Saturday morning at 8.45 from her late residence, Lot 32, Concession 9, Otonabee to the church of the Immaculate Conception, thence to St. Peter's cemetery.

JOHN PEARSON.

John Pearson, a highly respected citizen of this city for 16 years died this morning at 8.10 after a long illness.

Mr. Pearson was born in Smith Township 77 years ago, where he resided until coming to Petersborough where he was employed as a contractor. He was a faithful and consistent member of Trinity Methodist church. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Harry Peters, Hastings; Mrs. Thomas West, Toronto; Mrs. W. S. Westlake and Mrs. Vedery of this city. Mrs. Pearson predeceased him two years ago.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence, 359 Pearl Avenue to Mt. Hope cemetery, Lakefield. A service will be held at the house at 1.30.

MILLBROOK CREAMERY HAS RECORD YEAR

Over $21,000 in Gross Receipts —Officers Re-elected for 1917

The annual meeting of the patrons of the Millbrook Creamery was held in the Town Hall on Feb. 15th.

The report of the Sec.-Treas. was very satisfatcory and showed that the year 1916 was the best since the organization of the creamery, both as to the volume of business and as to the prices paid to the patrons.

There are many handicaps in the way of successfully conducting a cream business in an agricultural section such as we have in this district where few of the farmers make a specialty of dairying. The cows of the majority of farmers are shorthorn grades, and while many of them are fair milkers there is more attention aid to the beef end of the business than there is to the dairy part, so that to a large degree dairying is is just a side line to the average farmer in this section. Then there are also a number of dairy concerns in the local towns and large cities which yearly canvass this district and secure patronage which in many cases could be handled more profitably to the patrons by the local creamery.

These two causes then, the fact that dairying is only a side line and that other dairy concerns in the past have secured a large part of the business in this section have necessitated the gathering of cream over a wide area, and therefore the Millbrook creamery in this respect has been placed at a disadvantage in comparison with other concerns in special dairy districts. Yet, notwithstanding, it is a fact, the prices paid to the patrons were equal if not higher than those paid by other creameries in considerably better dairy sections.

The total proceeds from the sale of butter for the eight months from April 1st, till Nov. 30, was $21,276.99, and the amount distributed among the patrons and paid for salaries and expenses was $21,243.35, leaving a balance in the treasury of $33.64.

The Millbrook creamery is conducted in a manner that assures every patron of getting a square deal and the growing confidence of the public has been responsible for the large increase in the number of patrons. The officers and directors appeal to the farmers to support their home creamery. At the prices of beef and pork these late years, skim milk in the feeding of calves and pigs has a very high feeding value, and the farmer should receive a very high price indeed to compensate him for the selling of whole milk off the farm.

After the general business of the meeting was over the following officers of 1916 were re-elected for year 1917:

President—Nathaniel Belch.
Vice-President—A. J. Fallis.
Sec.-Treas.—David Fallis.
Buttermaker and Salesman—Harry Kerr.

Directors— N. Henry, J. D. Armstrong, J. Kennedy, W. Pritchard, L. H. Winslow, R. S. Staples, J. D. Hunter, M. Sutton, Geo. McDonald, D. B. Carsradden.

WONDERS OF TO-DAY HAVE SHORT LEASE

"Not a great many years ago a spectacled and skeptical old scientist wrote a long thesis in which he claimed that the world's great discoveries all lay in the past, that the future had no new wonders to disclose, and that all the really fundamental inventions, discoveries and researches had already been made," says J. S. Newman, in the February St. Nicholas.

"For," said the pessimistic philosopher, "there are no more strange lands to explore, no more conceivable inventions for the benefit of mankind. The telegraph, electric light, telephone and electric motor are already here. The camera and microscope, telescope, and linotype, printing press and sewing machine, airship and steamboat are already discovered. What else is there left that is really new?"

"But Mother Nature seemed to have kept her most wonderful secrets for just such an occasion. As if deliberately to disprove the foolish scientist, the next ten years brought out the most astounding collection of new inventions and discoveries the world has ever known. For in the period immediately following the bold claim of this doubting Thomas, Hertz discovered electric waves, Marconi invented wireless telegraphy, Rontgen stumbled upon the X-ray, Madame Curie isolated radium, Sir William Ramsay found five new chemical elements, Edison made his first moving picture machine, the Wright brothers conquered the air and countless greater or lesser discoveries astounded the scientific world.

"So the seven great wonders of today will become the commonplaces of to-morrow!"

Neutral League Against A Famine The Urgent Need Says French Farm Expert

Captain Reilly Quotes Joseph Jugg, Member of Agricultural Commission, in Warning Against Conditions Which Will Arise After the War.

MOST SERIOUS IN 1918

PARIS, March 1.—"The urgent need now is an allied and neutral league against the cereal famine which is threatening the world." That is the opinion of Joseph Jugy, a French Deputy, especially qualified to deal with the question which he has brought to the notice of the Chamber of Deputies' Agricultural Commission, of which he is a member.

"All of the allied and neutral nations ought to act promptly and unitedly," he said, "because during the war the Central Empires are blockaded from the world.

"While the Allies and neutrals as yet suffer only a shortage of food, it is lately appearing that our enemies suffered hunger since the beginning of the war."

Asked whether he proposed measures to last only during the war or also afterward, Mr. Jugy replied:

"During the war and also afterward, since the peace unfailingly will increase the difficulty temporarily by bringing into the competition the famished Central Empires."

MOST SERIOUS IN 1918.

When asked to explain the causes of the cereal shortage he said:

"The shortage came unawares. It dates from the second year of the war, and will be most serious in 1918. Its evident cause was the withdrawal of tens of millions of men from production to become combatants and economically unproductive workers. There are millions of Entente soldiers, munitions and armament workmen, and added to these are the Entente colonial soldiers and workmen and also millions of neutral war workers.

"Thus the neutrals are affected and the world food shortage shows that there are diplomatic but no economic neutrals."

Asked whether the length of the war was among the causes, he said:

"Everybody erred in their forecast of the duration of the conflict at the beginning of the war, now extended to thirty-one months. Only a few weeks, and then a few months of conflict were expected. Now the recognized neutrals are affected. In this war, unlike any previous one, entire nations are soldiers or war workers.

"The belligerents now have reached a turning point, where, after deflecting from their work the active male population for the battlefield, they now have completed a certain inverse process in order to keep up the economic life."

FRENCH SITUATION SATISFACTORY.

Asked what was the French situation Mr. Jury explained:

"France unquestionably is in a better position, not only among the belligerents but among the neutrals, despite an immense effort not yet fully realized by the world. Despite the fact that her large northern cereal producing districts were invaded, the situation is satisfactory in comparison with that of others, though it might be ameliorated.

"France is helped to withstand the present strain—and this will facilitate her recovery, as was always the case in her checkered history—by the habit and tradition of hard work, thrift, and the fact that in the country there are millions of small peasant proprietors."

When asked regarding measures proposed against a cereal famine threatening the world, he said:

"First, we must open our eyes to the dangers; second, we must adopt national measures for intensifying production and forbidding waste; third, we must have international measures from a world viewpoint.

RESERVES NOW EXHAUSTED

"Before the war the world lived on its reserves, waiting for harvests, which, according to the climates, successively came from all countries. Now, the reserves being exhausted, the world must organize mutually to avoid excessive competition in order [illegible] ing the 1918 harvests.

"For instance, in order to economise freights on the harvests, America could receive on its Pacific coast the Australian harvests, sending its own to Europe."

When asked about the national measures, he said:

"In France these measures come under the heads, fertilising, labour and agricultural machines. In regard to machines, France is certain to have recourse to America, whose machines are known and appreciated. I hope American industry will avail itself of the splendid opportunities of the French market. Of course, machines cannot supplant labour, but they intensify production, which is urgent.

"Country life is much cheaper than that in towns, therefore judicious measures should be taken to encourage farm work and aid a return of the population to the country, ending congestion in the towns, whereby the food shortage will be less."

The Chamber has decided that the classes of 1888 and 1889 shall return from the front to agriculture.

Retail Men "Raised Cain" With Farmers

H. B. Cowan of Peterboro' Charges Business Interests Blocked Co-operative Work

TORONTO, March 1.—The Ontario Government came in for red-hot criticism from the United Farmers of Ontario when Gordon Waldron told the convention that they should not tolerate the bill to amend Companies' Act, which had been intrduced by the Government. He said it would hamper their movements. Mr. Waldron had been looking into the matter on the farmers' behalf and declared that they should be allowed to conduct their co-operative society without interference from the Government.

To Go into Details.

This led to an attack on the Government which ended in a committee being appointed to go into the details and exact effect of the bill and report to the convention to-morrow.

"Every time that Mr. Monk, late Federal Minister, tried to advance co-operative interests he was blocked by business interests," declared H. B. Cowan of Peterborough. "The retail merchants raised Cain. Ordinary businesses don't have to submit their financial statements to the Government—why should we? Let us hold over this matter until we receive an Act that will suit us."

"The policy of the Department of Agriculture has tended too much towards paternalism," said Mr. E. C. Drury, Liberal candidate for North Simcoe. "We want to be free. I stand for the British system even if we have to muddle through. There's absolutely no chance for advancement, independent thought, or independent spirit if we are regulated as that bill proposes."

"There's hardly a man in the Queen's Park who understands the rural situation. Who knows how to work out rural co-operation better than we ourselves know? Nobody. We're not children to be bullied and spanked. Let the Government stop trying to tell farmers how to run their own business, and let them conduct investigations along the lines of endeavour about which we want to know. Let them keep their noses from poking into our business."

What Bill Declares.

Mr. Waldron explained that the bill declared that no member should have more than one vote and that no member might vote by proxy. Rules were laid down as to surplus and net earnings, and provisions were made to make it operative on every organisation using the word co-operative, and to keep these companies from going wrong by operating under the eyes of the Government.

"I was sure that the farmers would kick against carrying on under this bill," said Mr. Waldron. "You ought to object; farmers ought to be able to carry on their business like any other association. Why should it fall under Government direction any more than any other business?"

"The Government did not interest themselves much in us farmers before this," declared President R. H. Halbert. "We must strike while it is hot and nail this thing."

"Who is the father of this bill?" shouted a delegate.

'Premier Hearst, I believe," answered Mr. H. J. Pettypiece of Forest.

"Then he ought to be made to throw it out!" he shouted again, amidst cheers.

WHEAT MARKETS STRONG YESTERDAY

Flour is Up Ten Cents—Good Buying For Export—The Cattle Market

Markets acted very strong yesterday on reports of good buying for export, and freer movement on the railways with more cars available. The May option closed 3 1-2c higher at Chicago, and 2 7-8c higher at Winnipeg. Manitoba cash is 3c higher, once more touching $2. Ontario wheat 1c higher and Ontario flour up 10c.

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $2.00, track, bay ports; No. 2 $1.96 3-4; No. 3, $1.91 1-2.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C W. 72c to 73c; nominal; No. 3 70c to 71c; extra No. 1 feed, 70c to 71c; No. 1 feed 69c to 70c, all rail delivered, C.P.R. and C.N.R. points not embargoed.

American corn—No. 3, $1.15 subject to embargo.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 63c to 65c; No. 3, white, 62c to 64c.

Hay—Baled, track, Toronto, car lots; No. 2, $12; mixed, $9 to $11; straw, $9.

CATTLE MARKET.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday, 74 cars, with 690 cattle, 184 calves, 2,645 hogs, and 92 sheep and lambs.

Cattle trade was again strong and active, with only a moderately light run offering for the mid-week market. A few cars of Western cattle arrived, supplementing local supplies, and finding a good market, the Westerners selling well around 8.50 to $9.00. The general run of butcher cattle coming in is a little off quality, and at the prices selling yesterday would make the market 10c to 15c higher than the beginning of the week.

Invalided Russian Soldiers Meet With Disaster While on Way Home.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A train carrying 228 invalided Russian soldiers, who were on the way home from Germany through Sweden, went off the track late last night between Gefle and Soderham, says a despatch from Stockholm. The first car, carrying 23 insane Russian soldiers, was demolished, and its passengers were killed. About 25 persons in other cars were killed.

The work of rescue was made difficult by the condition of the passengers, most of whom were blind, had lost arms or legs or were otherwise rendered incapable of helping themselves. Their hardships were increased by the fact that the wreck occurred in darkness at a distance from any important town.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR SERIAL STORY

THE RED PAPER

By C. HOTCHKISS

"He is sick, also, I understand. Oh, Mr. Wentworth, please go." The voice was low and pleading; the girl was on the verge of panic, but manlike, Wentworth looked upon her state as an additional attraction. It would not be fair to state that he realized the extent of her suffering, but it was novel, and something more than merely pleasing for him to be begged for anything by a pretty woman—or by that pretty woman. He did not make a move to leave her.

"And am I never to see you? Am I not to be considered?" he asked.

"Not considered? Considering you is what I am doing! What more can I do? Please—please—" She stood up and laid a hand on his arm. "Won't you give me time to think?"

"Let me think for you," returned the man with a sudden passion that he did not understand—that was strange to him. "I'll swear no harm shall come to you. As for myself, I have no fear."

"Don't! Don't talk so!" she implored. "If— I will find a way to meet you—when we can be safer.

"Where is your room?"

"Number thirty-nine—near yours."

"Oh, how have you dared? How have you dared? And for me!"

"For you. And I will see you. I must."

"Perhaps, but no longer now—"

"How long must I wait?"

"Until you hear from me."

"It will be soon?"

"Soon!" She held out both hands to him to urge him from her, and now her face was animated. Wentworth, now well launched on what to him was an unknown sea, caught one of her hands and was about to raise it to her lips when he saw her looks directed to something behind him, and her eyes widen with fear. He dropped the lax fingers and turned to see Bagshot step through the door of the companionway.

That individual was smiling broadly—a smile that suggested his having for some time enjoyed a sight of the two, though to have heard a word through the intervening distance was impossible. He walked directly to the young man.

"How do you do, Mr. Wentworth?"

The tone was that of easy friendship; there was neither anger nor astonishment in it. To all appearances here was the casual meeting of two acquaintances. The girl buried her face in her hands.

"You had better retire to your stateroom, my dear," said Bagshot smoothly, though there was a sinister ring in his voice. "I think I can entertain this gentleman."

CHAPTER XIII.
AN OPEN GAME.

It cannot be said that Wentworth held a perfect mental poise as he realized the situation, but if he had a sense of absolute consternation he was overcome but for an instant, and failed to show it in either face or bearing. With a quick appreciation of the fact that Bagshot could not know of the extent of his intimacy with the girl, he ignored the hypocrisy of the extended hand and addressed the lady as she started to turn away.

"I trust, madam, that you will pardon my effrontery. My plea is that I have seen you once before in your fathers house. I hope to have the pleasure of seeing you again."

"You are excusable, perhaps, under the circumstances," returned the girl, grasping at self control, and on the instant following the lead she was given. "You took me at a disadvantage. I was startled. Good evening, sir."

She bowed gracefully and left the two men together, carrying herself proudly until she reached her stateroom. In its seclusion she dropped on the cushioned locker and burying her face in her hands, broke into a paroxysm of subdued sobs.

On deck Wentworth and Bagshot stood looking at each other for a moment, neither speaking. Presently the latter broke the silence.

"Do you take me for a fool, sir?"

The interim had given the younger man time to collect himself. The success of his interview with the lady and the easy way that they had pulled the wool over the eyes of Bagshot, made his position so assured in his own mind that he felt himself jocular as he answered:

"That is a question admitting of argument, Mr. Bagshot, or Merridale—Bagshot. It is said that every man is a fool for being dishonest or criminal. On that basis I think you a fool, for you certainly are a villain."

The other did not appear to be offended at this plain speech which brought him to a stop. A moment or two intervened, then, grasping a deck stanchion, he leaned against it, and said: "You don't mince your words, sir. You certainly are honest in that regard. What do you expect to do on board of this vessel?"

"That is strictly my affair," said Wentworth, taking a fresh cigar from his pocket and carefully cutting off the end. He had himself well in hand by then, and he made up his mind to protect the girl at any cost to himself.

"However," he continued, taking a match from a gold box and affecting a carelessness he was far from feeling, as he lighted the perfecto, "I am so far impressed by your tribute to my honesty that I will continue to be plain. I called you a villain. You are a liar, as well. If your are that lady's father, her name cannot be Merridale. If she is not your daughter, I congratulate her."

"And how did you come to know my name?" asked the other, biting his lip.

"That is my business."

Bagshot forced a laugh as he took a cigar from his own pocket, lighting it. "You certainly are a man of parts, Mr. Wentworth! I admire you. I wish I could enlist you! Let us talk plainly a moment. You have followed me for a purpose; that purpose is connected with a certain paper.

"That paper was, and is still mine—at least as much mine as yours, and Grace Merridale stands nearer to me than to you."

"How much nearer?"

"That is my business." The return was made with an air of great satisfaction. Wentworth was vexed with having laid himself open to the enemy, even in a fence with words. Bagshot continued: "You had no warrant in law for holding that paper. You assaulted me, not I you. The law you would have me invoke would protect me and not you. I have the paper, and therefore possess nine points in our contest. What can you do about it?"

Notwithstanding that his gorge was rising against this bare sophistry, and the last question did nothing to allay his anger, Wentworth felt relieved inasmuch as it was fairly plain that Bagshot did not suspect the girl.

"I confess that I came here to shake the paper out of you," said the young man. "But I came too late. As for being here now—I was carried off by accident."

Bagshot grinned in his face. "And you still take me for a fool. You had some other reason. What was it?"

"Which answer is an acknowledgment of the fact as I stated it. What is the use of our fencing like little boys with reeds? Come, sir. Can we not compromise? If you will drop your absurd position regarding the thing called honour and join me, I will make you fabulously rich. Can we not do it? I think so. I need a man like you."

Wentworth had been holding himself in check and to avoid boiling over at the sight of the man by his side, he turned and looked out over the dark sea that rolled under and gently heaved the vessel. But at Bagshot's infamous proposition to compromise with him he lost hold of both temper and discretion, and wheeled on the Southerner.

"What, sir! Do you propose that I sell out at the expense of Grace Merridale and the honor you sneer at? Listen to me: I would as soon compromise with the devil himself! I know you sir, from the soles of your feet to the top of your foul head. You are right in thinking I am here for some purpose other than to obtain possession of a map that may or may not be worthless, and in which I have no interest. Have you taken me for a cursed idiot?"

"Perhaps you are something of a villain yourself," was the angry retort. "Would you be so hot on my trail if I had not a handsome daughter? Or do you aim at thanks and a more tangible reward from Grace Merridale? If not, why are you here?"

Wentworth's spleen rose high at the sneer at himself and higher at the thinly covered insult to the lady. If he needed proof that Grace Merridale was not this man's daughter it was furnished by this man's innuendo against her. Throwing every consideration to the winds, Wentworth took a step nearer the man, holding on to the upright stanchion, and in a low voice, he said: "Sir, you have even no regard for a lady's reputation? You ask me what I am here for. Well, Mr. Simeon Bagshot, I am here that I may see you arrested when you set foot in Galveston—arrested not as a mere thief, but as a murderer."

"Murder!" exclaimed Bagshot, straightening himself and suddenly losing the sardonic grin he had put on when Wentworth began his tirade.

"Ay, murder! And had this vessel been delayed ten minutes you would now be in the Tombs!"

In the uncertain light Wentworth could see the man's complexion change—its normal ruddiness giving place to pallor, while the cigar that he had been smoking fell from his lips unnoticed.

"You are crazy!" said Bagshot; but the protest was neither loud nor strong.

"Comfort your soul that way, if you can," was the retort. "I keep my hands from you now, but if I did not live in the hope of justice, I'd throw you over the rail—if I had to swing for it."

"Listen to me! You are the last man my father ever saw in this world. You threatened to murder him. Outside of his house, Planet—your veritable satellite, stood watching. I saw him; he spoke to me. Now, you know me, sir, and as Heaven is my witness, I'll follow you to the crack of doom to bring you to your just deserts!"

Wentworth delivered this forcibly, being well nigh beside himself, and as he saw the effect of the shot he had fired, he at once regretted it. He knew that he had accomplished no more than to put his enemy on his guard.

For all his powers of self-control, this blow was more than Bagshot could stand. However, the gloom hid much of his emotion from Wentworth—it hid the palpable shaking of the man's knees, if not the nervous working of his face. He still had hold of the deck stanchion, else he might have fallen, and he stood, not daring to let go, for a moment unable to speak. But he was not the man to run tamely from any field. After a space of silence he recovered a measure of self control, sufficient, at least, to enable him to use his voice.

"I—I—confess you staggered me, Mr. Wentworth," he began, with an attempt at lightness of manner. "No man listens to a charge of—to such a charge unmoved. But your bluff is nonsensical! I grant that you may have reason to feel hard toward me—as I have got the better of you—but as a threat you are not a success. A gentleman of my standing is not to be fazed by one of your stamp. Sir, your father died of heart disease. Even the police say there was no—no murder. I understand you now. You have played your card, but you have yet to see mine. Good night, sir."

Without risking a return from the other he pulled himself upright, and walked off with an attempt at jauntiness and a wave of his fat hand.

But the words and act did not deceive Wentworth, who remained looking at the door through which Bagshot had disappeared. "I have rather overleaped the matter," he mused; "but I have given that fellow a shot under his water line and what have I gained? Not a damn thing but to put myself in danger. For Bagshot is not the man to let me alone after this. Hereafter, I think I had better not expose myself after dark; the water is cursedly deep here!"

He finished his cigar in silent cogitation, tossed the end over the rail, and turned in, carefully locking his stateroom door. For the first time in his life he wished he carried a revolver.

CHAPTER XIV.
BAGSHOT'S FIRST MOVE.

Bagshot was a shaken man, and looked it, as he went down the broad companion steps on the way to Planet's stateroom. But he was a man of resource—a man who dies hard. His lip was bleeding where he had bitten it, and the color had not returned to his face as he entered his benchman's well lighted quarters. Planet lay in his bunk, weak, yellow and nerveless. The Mexican was not a good sailor."

"What ees eet?" the sick man asked as he saw the other's face.

"What ees eet?" was the mocking return, "I have just met Wentworth—that ees eet."

"Heem here!" The Mexican started to his elbow.

"Yes—heem is here," was the scornful reply. "He came aboard—and he stayed aboard. He says he was carried off by accident."

"H—!" Planet fell back on his pillow. For a moment there was silence whilst Bagshot looked the more than perplexed invalid, but it was the Mexican who broke the silence.

"You haf blood on your mouth!" "Did he—"

"Shut up! No, he didn't. Do you think I'd be ass enough to tackle him barehanded? It's worse than that! It's you who have made the trouble! He charges you with killing his father."

"Me!"

The sallow man started up in his bunk so violently as to bring his head smartly against the upper berth. He fell back with a groan, his face filled with terror.

"Yes, you fool! You spoke to him that night. He remembers you. You never told me, your cursed greaser! Were you trying to hang both of us?"

"Caramba!" ejaculated the other feebly. "I ask the time—yes. But I know heem not! I walk away. I think you will nevair come! Dios! An' he remembair!"

"Yes, he remembers you. There is no proof—"

"I'll knife heem!" interrupted the Mexican. Bagshot strode to the bunk and shook his fist in the other's face.

"You'll keep out of sight!" he whispered. "Do what you like when we get ashore."

"Then, what—"

"Leave it to me. Do you suppose I'll risk any work of that sort here? Where's your sand?"

"Suppose he met with the—Grace?"

"He did meet her. He was talking with her. He kissed her hand."

As though he knew the effect of his words Bagshot smiled grimly as he spoke. The Mexican forgot his weakness and struggled from his bed. "He make the luf to her—to Gra-ce! I'll——"

"You'll do nothing," said Bagshot, grasping the man and forcing him back to his bunk. "You lift a finger to do what I forbid, and I'll give you the cold shake. Yes, by God! I will prove that you killed old Wentworth, even though you did not. She shall see no more of his highness, even if I have to lock her up! I have enough to arrange without you bothering me and putting your foot in it, Shearpole will help us out if you don't make it impossible!"

"You know best!" said the Mexican contritely. "But I would like one more wr-r-restle with heem for the' throat he put on me—for the insult!"

"You may yet have your chance," said Bagshot. "But from now on keep yourself scarce. Don't show yourself on deck. That's what I came here to tell you."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The General's Orderly

A Story of the Pan-European War

By ALAN HINSDALE

During a lull in the fighting in Flanders, when the Germans were making their onslaught upon the allies, Hans Schrieber, who had been called to the colors from his father's farm in Westphalia, had marched away as a private and had through the killing off of officers and his own bravery been promoted to be captain, was one morning ordered before the colonel of his regiment.

"Captain," said his commander, "it has been reported to me that you have been caught fraternising with a private soldier in your company. Possibly you may not know the customs of the army in this respect. In the army there can be no familiarity whatever between an officer and a soldier. This war has necessitated the promotion of many men from the ranks, which is contrary to the spirit of the military forces, and doubtless there are officers who do not realize the great gulf that lies between them and their former companions. I have sent for you to warn you that if you are again caught conversing familiarly with Fritz Oelrich you will be court martialed, and the punishment will be severe."

"But, colonel," the captain protested, "Private Oelrich is from the same locality as I. He is very young and requires a friend to cheer him, to prevent his falling a victim to homesickness, which will impair the value of any soldier. I feel it to be my duty"—

"Your duty is to obey orders. Go, and do not again let me hear any more of this breach of military discipline."

The colonel turned away from Captain Schrieber, who saluted and went back to his command. The very next day the Germans made a drive in which the captain again distinguished himself. One of the field officers of his regiment was killed, and his colonel was about to recommend him for promotion to be major when it was reported that young Oelrich had been slightly wounded and the captain, forgetting that his position was at the head of his company, had carried the private to the rear in his arms.

The colonel, as he considered this act of gallantry on the one hand and dereliction of duty on the other, knit his brows. Had it not been for the necessity of supplying the gaps constantly occurring among the officers he would have made short work of Captain Schrieber, notwithstanding his efficiency as a leader. As it was, he felt compelled to recommend his subordinate for promotion. Indeed, he knew of no other man that he could put in the place of the officer who had been killed in whom he would have confidence.

The necessities of the service and not a yielding to any tenderness he might feel induced the colonel to ignore the report of Schrieber's having carried Fritz Oelrich off the field and to give him a higher command than a single company.

"Captain," he said to Schrieber, "Major Heckler having been killed, you will assume his position and the command of the companies that were intrusted to his care. I shall only add that the higher the rank of an officer the more incumbent it is upon him to remember the gap between him and the men of the ranks whom he commands. The discipline of the army is of the highest order. This cannot be attained or kept up except by the officers being absolute masters of the men."

Captain—now Major—Schrieber saluted, but said nothing and again left his commander without that punishment which he knew except for necessity would have been meted out to him.

A combination of bravery and tenderness has always captivated the world. Major Schrieber the moment a fight opened was a lion; the moment it ended he became a lamb. He went about with the Red Cross workers succoring the wounded and was never known to prefer the case of a German to a Frenchman. It was this that led his comrade officers into a tacit unacknowledged agreement to turn the other way whenever the major's sympathetic nature overcame his sense of duty and he went beyond the limits in expressing that sympathy to a common soldier.

In the case of Fritz Oelrich he never offended openly. Toward Fritz, when others were there to see, he maintained an unapproachable dignity. But unfortunately he had been surprised speaking earnestly to the boy, and on one occasion had taken Fritz's hand in his while speaking words of encouragement and comfort. He did not know how often he had been seen in such position, for those who saw him kept the secret.

There was fighting all this time, and Schrieber's efficiency as a leader was constantly being demonstrated. On a reorganization of a certain force that had been very much depleted he was made colonel of a regiment. Another fight took the general of his brigade, and Colonel Schrieber was put in his place.

When those officers and soldiers who understood their general's weakness heard that he had made Fritz Oelrich, who was still a private, his orderly there was a feeling of dread among them. They feared that Schrieber's affection for the boy might place him in a position to bring his honors tumbling about his head. If Oelrich had but enough of the qualities of a soldier to promote him to the lowest rank of officer there would be no danger. There was no military law to prevent a general from hobnobbing with a lieutenant, but there was a very stringent law against his having anything of a social nature with a private. When men have confidence in a leader they are anxious that that leader should continue to command them. General Schrieber's troops were fearful that his partiality for young Oelrich would end in his being degraded and they obliged to accept another untried commander.

Their fears were not groundless. One day General Wenz, commanding one of the brigades, went to General Schrieber's headquarters—they were at the time in a farmhouse—for the purpose of arranging with him certain features of an attack that was to be made upon the enemy. He found Schrieber bending over his orderly, who was lying on a bed in an adjoining room in a high fever. The visitor called Schrieber out for consultation, but found it impossible to secure his attention.

"I understand, general," he said to Schrieber, "that my brigade and yours are to advance upon the enemy as soon as the artillery has demolished their defenses."

"What enemy?" asked Schrieber.

"What enemy? Why, the French, of course. There's no other enemy in our front. The British are far north of us."

"Oh!" was the only reply. A groan from the rear room carried the general there. When he returned he said:

"Please excuse me, general. My orderly is very ill. He comes from the same region as I, and we came to the war together, both in the ranks. I feel it obligatory on me to take especial care of him."

"Certainly. The orders are that we shall advance under a curtain of fire"—

Another groan. General Schrieber heard it and did not hear the speaker. The visitor arose impatiently. "I perceive, general," he said, "that your mind is centered upon your orderly, and the army must wait till the orderly recovers."

This was said with bitter tone, and the man who said it clanked out of the house.

The next morning the two brigades were drawn up in mass and at a given signal advanced to capture a French position that had been pounded by the German heavy guns. The attacking force became confused and were driven back.

"General," said Wenz savagely, "this comes of my being unable to get your attention yesterday when I called to talk over this attack. Your mind was on a single private soldier instead of on the welfare of the fatherland."

"Let us try again," Schrieber replied. And, moving out to the front of the line, he seized a standard from a color bearer and led a charge that was not only successful, but was maintained.

Soon after this fight Schrieber received an order from the general commanding the division to send Private Oelrich back to his regiment. It was evident to the recipient that General Wenz had reported the failure of his effort to secure his colleague's attention when he had called to arrange the details of the coming attack and the cause. Had not Schrieber by his gallantry accomplished the object of the charge he would not have got off so lightly.

Nothing was heard of the stumbling block in the way of General Schrieber's efficiency till the Germans began their attempt to reduce Verdun. Then after one of the terrible and unsuccessful charges in mass made on the French works the general was seen by his division commander leaning over Private Oelrich, who was lying on the ground in a pool of his own blood.

"General Schrieber, what are you doing here? Your brigade is forming with others to make another attack. We are expected to take the position if we have to try a hundred times."

There was no response except a moan. The man addressed quite likely did not know that he was addressed. The other was about to pour forth some stinging rebuke when he saw Schrieber fall lifeless across the body before him. He had been struck by the fragment of a shell.

When the Red Cross workers went over the battlefield they took up the bodies of General Schrieber and Private Oelrich together and carried them to the rear. Their identification tags were examined, and it was found that they hailed from the same place in Westphalia. Their bodies were sent home addressed to the same person, an old farmer, the father of General Schrieber.

The neighbors got together to do the last honors to the dead. Some troops in the neighborhood were detailed to carry the general's body to the grave and fire the customary salute over it. Old Schrieber took the commander of the escort aside and told him that Fritz was to be buried with the general and it would please the family if his body could go on the same gun carriage. The officer said no, but when the old man whispered a few words in his ear he consented.

The funeral cortege attracted more than usual attention, not only on account of the high military rank of General Schrieber, but because the secret of his attachment to his comrade was known to many of his fellow citizens who lined the route over which it passed, some of them shedding tears.

The two bodies were lowered into the same grave, and a volley was fired over them, and the mourners dispersed. In due time a headstone was placed over them, on which was inscribed, "In Memory of Carl Schrieber and Gretchen, His Wife."

HAS A BIG JOB.

Chairman of Quebec Board to Care for Soldiers is a Busy Man.

The appointment of the Hon. G. A. Simard as chairman of the Quebec Province Commission in charge of making arrangements for finding employment for returned soldiers, might be called an appreciation of services rendered both to the Government and the people of Quebec.

Mr. Simard was one of the first to recognize the value of good roads, and through his early efforts he gathered around him a body of public opinion that soon made itself felt. He is a large property holder on the south side of the river across from Montreal in the vicinity of Laprairie, and in 1913 was appointed a member of the Legislative Council of Quebec.

He organized the Franco-American Chemical Company, and is general manager of the St. Lawrence Drug Co. The former company is a world-wide concern with branches in Europe and the United States.

Mr. Simard is said to have a genius for organization, and he will have ample scope for his powers, for the task of securing employment for returned soldiers is no easy one. Already Montreal has 200 men invalided home seeking employment, and the list will be added to by half that number within a week.

Little aid is expected from the city of Montreal, so it will be the task of Mr. Simard and his associates to mobilize the manufacturers throughout the Province. Mr. Simard has great faith in the possibilities of technical education, and hopes by that means to help soldiers who otherwise might have to spend their days as mere laborers, janitors, or the like.

Mr. Simard is but 45 years old.

"Oh, yes, he has. The only trouble is that when Biggins makes a joke he isn't satisfied to get a laugh. He thinks it's a failure if it doesn't hurt somebody's feelings." — Washington Star.

Mother-Made, Quick Acting Cough Syrup

Should be Kept Handy in Every Home—Easily Prepared and Costs Little.

Mothers, you'll never know what you are missing until you make up this inexpensive, quick-acting cough syrup and try it. Children love its pleasant taste and nothing else will loosen a cough or chest cold and heal the inflamed or swollen throat membranes with such ease and promptness. It's equally as good for grown-ups as for children.

This splendid cough syrup is made by pouring 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-oz bottle and filling the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50—a clear saving of $2.

The moment it touches the inflamed, cold-congested membranes that line the throat and air passages, the healing begins, the phlegm loosens, soreness leaves, cough spasms lessen and soon disappear altogether, thus ending a cough quicker than you ever thought possible. Hoarseness and ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Excellent for bronchitis, whooping cough, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is famous the world over for its quick healing effect on the membranes.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

AMERICAN COLONEL GIVES FREE ADVICE TO RHEUMATICS

SAYS IT'S SHEER FOLLY FOR ANYONE TO SUFFER THESE DAYS.

Rheumatism can't be cured so long as your system is weak and run down.

You must first build up and get strength to fight off the disease.

Ferrozone cures because it builds up, because it renews the blood and dissolves the Uric Acid and the poisons that cause rheumatism.

It is proved right here that Ferrozone does cure.
